THE END OF LOCAL CENSORSHIP BRINGS NEW RESPONSIBILITIES

WHILE THERE ARE FEW industryites who have liked the numerous state and municipal censor boards that have ruled the "can see" and "can't see" of this industry's creative efforts over large and important sections of the nation for more years than we like to remember, their current abolition by the high courts places some new burdens on the backs of many theatremen.

There are actually two by-products of such censorship about which few theatremen thought very much. First of all, the fact that each picture, whether feature or short, had been submitted for review to a legally constituted authority, and "Passed by the State Board of Censors" served as a defense against all criticism of the theatreman, whether based on race, color, or religious beliefs. Faced by individuals or by large or small organized groups, he could draw himself up with self-righteousness and state, "This picture has been judged and found acceptable by a legally constituted group chosen by your elected representatives. Why bring me your objections? Who am I to high-handedly place my judgment, or your judgment, above that of your legally appointed judges?" And he was legally right, too! What local constable, or police chief, would pit his judgment of what was or was not decent, or of what contributed to the delinquency of minors, or of a whole flock of other possibilities, against the established judgment of a qualified censor board? And, if he did, what local court would uphold him?

Secondly, and equally important in keeping in check the fringe producers and "fast buck" boys who play Johnny-one-note on sex and violence, has been the economic importance of most of the states where censorship applied. In the national distribution picture, it wasn't possible to overlook or forget states like New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Maryland, and Virginia, and still plan on dividends to the investors. And the producer never lived who was willing to go "dirty" and lose money doing it.

So, now that bureaucratic previewing and pre-censoring seems to be either entirely out-the-window or without the power to enforce its findings, the responsibility for what is shown on the screen of his theatre rests squarely on the shoulders of the theatre operator. With the removal of the bureau, local police and local courts, subject to the intimacy of local pressure groups, can harass even the best intentioned showman. On the judgment of some policeman, who possibly never graduated from sixth grade, prints can be confiscated and days lost. Dependent on local laws, fines can be imposed, or theatremen can spend some days in the hoosegow. What is right or wrong is now a matter of exhibition, and the apprehension of wrongdoing a matter for the cops or the district attorney.

All of this may be good law and we certainly aren't defending censorship. But it certainly places the theatreman in a different legal position, and any that think of dipping into the new supplies of cheap sensationalism in order to build boxoffice grosses had better think again. The "fast buck" is surrounded with a little more personal danger than usual.

MORE ABOUT PRINT SHORTAGES

SPEAKING about our several recent references to a shortage of prints contributing to the general product shortage, an experienced distributor points out that the new techniques are to a certain extent responsible.

Prior to CinemaScope and stereophonic sound, it is stated that most national distributors would order 300 to 350 prints for domestic use, depending on the bigness of the boxoffice attraction. Now, with about 4,200 theatres equipped with stereophonic sound, about 10,000 theatres equipped for CinemaScope, and about 8,000, including most drive-ins, with only standard optical sound, it becomes necessary to re-evaluate requirements. Any company that wishes to sell a maximum of all runs and types must provide an adequate supply of two or three different kinds of prints. In doing so there have been instances where even 450 total prints, or 100 more than usual, have been insufficient to avoid booking crises.

For example, a distributor on a particular day may have 450 dates and 450 prints, but 300 of their dates call for CinemaScope and stereophonic sound, 100 for CinemaScope and a single optical sound track, and 50 for standard prints. The very next day, another series of 450 dates may reverse this print requirement split.

NEW YORK
By Mel Konecoff

JOSEPH KAUFMAN, former exhibitor and distributor and presently in the producing end of the game, wants us to tell exhibitors everywhere that they can get more money for themselves as well as for the distributor and producer if they will work on unusual and more interesting campaigns and follow through on the plans as laid down by the distributor and/or producer.

KONECOFF

For instance, on his latest entry, "Long John Silver," in CinemaScope and color, he reports having an unusual campaign with fine merchandising angles, and he thought the film has a big potential if sold properly utilizing TV, radio, and other facets. The film is scheduled to open in New England in 83 spots starting on Feb. 16 with tie-ins with the Yankee Network, schools, stores, newspapers, manufacturers, etc.

A special 12-minute trailer of the people in the film and highlights on what was done to make the filming possible is being shown in schools and on television, while a shorter six-minute version is being used in theatres in advance of the opening dates. Giveaway serializations of the story are being provided newspapers, while half-hour recorded radio yarns plugging the film and the story are also on the give-away promotion list. These were recorded in Australia at the time the film was being made.

"Silver," which was made in Australia, used 100 days of shooting time, with costs estimated at about a million dollars, and Kaufman said he was in no hurry to recoup the money, preferring instead to take his time and make sure that the playoff went properly, playing preferably when youngsters were available. He estimated that the film can gross five millions domestically properly handled and sold, and with Distributors Corporation of America handling the film on a regional

Business Slumps

NEW YORK—With few exceptions, the Broadway first runs were generally off over the weekend.

According to usually reliable reports reaching MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR, the breakdown was as follows:

"Young At Heart" (Warners). Paramount dropped to $36,000 on the second week.

"There's No Business Like Show Business" (20th-Fox). Roxy claimed $15,435 for Friday, Saturday and Sunday, with the seventh, and last, week down to $25,000.

"The Bridges At Toko-Ri" (Paramount). Radio City Music Hall, with stage show, hit $99,000 for Thursday through Sunday, with the second session heading toward $150,000.

"The Country Girl" (Paramount). Criterion claimed the seventh week would tally $42,000.

"Prince Of Players" (20th-Fox). Rivoli dropped to $4,900 on the third, and last, week.

"Cattle Queen Of Montana" (RKO). Globe hoped for $9,000 on the opening week.

"The Americano" (RKO). Mayfair was down to $18,000 on the second week.

"20,000 Leagues Under The Sea" (Buena Vista-Disney). Astor claimed $37,000 for the sixth week.

"Unchained" (Warners). Victoria expected the opening week to reach $17,000.

"Vera Cruz" (UA). Capitol expected the sixth week to exceed $24,000.

"The Violent Men" (Columbia). Loew's State was heading toward $25,000 on the opening week.

Toll-TV Benefits Cited

PITTSBURGH—Dr. Millard C. Faught, New York economic consultant for Phonevision for Zenith Radio Corporation, told the Pittsburgh Radio and Television Club last week that motion picture exhibitors would receive substantial benefits from toll-TV.

He claimed that experiments with Phonevision in Chicago several years ago "suggest that the home TV boxoffice could easily double, if not quadruple boxoffice movie consumption," and hence will "encourage the making of many more good films in contrast to the current acute shortage of the same."

This would, according to Faught, give the theatres the prime requisite of what it takes to exploit their new technological advantages, big screens, dimensional sound, etc.

He emphasized that toll-TV would not make people lose their desire to go to the theatre.

LA Set For VC Meet

LOS ANGELES—The Variety Club of Southern California, Tent 25, announced last week that as host tent it is all ready for the Variety International Convention to be held here on May 4-5-6-7. Ezra E. Stern is chief barker.

Trans-Lux Stockholder Action Is Dismissed

NEW YORK—A minority stockholders' action brought against the directors of Trans-Lux Corporation was dismissed in State Supreme Court last week by Justice S. Samuel DiFalco. In the lawsuit, which took three months to try, plaintiffs made a wide variety of charges of malfeasance against the directors of Trans-Lux.

Commenting on the decision, Percival E. Furber, board chairman, said, "This has been a long and laborious, trying and expensive lawsuit. The directors' actions, which have been attacked by the plaintiffs, have been examined with a microscope by the Court, and it is gratifying to know that we have been completely exonerated. I hope this ends the strife and we are glad that the Trans-Lux management, which has been diverted by this taxing lawsuit, will now be able to turn its complete attention to more constructive labors."

In his opinion, Justice DiFalco, finding "no evidence of wrong-doing or negligence on the part of the defendants," concluded, "all through this record we are confronted and impressed with the diligent application of management and the board to their work, with the thorough investigations, analysis, and reports of management to the board and the board's comprehensive studies, considerations and determinations in respect thereof."

Concerning the charges which plaintiffs made against Harry Brandt with respect to his purchasing of film for Trans-Lux, the Court rejected all such charges and found that "Brandt rendered exceptionally competent service to Trans-Lux in his purchase of films for its account."

Plaintiffs were Jerome B. Ross, George C. Mason, and Walter Siemers, stockholders. Defendants were Harry Brandt, Milton C. Weisman, William M. Girden, Percival E. Furber, Herbert E. Herrman, Jacob Starr, J. Whitney Peterson, Jay Emanuel, the late Lee Shubert, Robert Daine, Joseph Viertel, Ralph Weiner, Percy N. Furber, Philip G. Whitman, Allan Fromme, the late Daniel Greenfield, Ismena Greenfield, Vivian Gruder, Bernard Klein, Louis Mazze, Flora Mazze, Harry Eisenstein, Joseph Ingber, Arthur Sommer, and Bert Fromme.

Attorneys for the principal defendants are Pomerantz, Levy, and Hanlak and Satterlee, Warfield, and Stephens.

Columbia Bows In Houston

NEW YORK—A. Montague, general sales manager, and Rube Jackter, assistant general sales manager, attended the opening of Columbia's 33rd domestic branch office in Houston, Tex., early this week. Also present from the home office was H. C. Kaufman, manager of exchange operations. The new Houston exchange will be managed by John Winberry, formerly a salesman in the New Orleans office, and will operate in the southwestern division, headed by division manager Jack Underwood.

TOA Loans $10,000 To Film Finance Group

NEW YORK—Theatre Owners of America has decided to loan Exhibitors Film Financial Group, the company formed by it to finance independent productions, the sum of $10,000 to cover initial expenses of organizing the company, it was revealed last week.

It is expected that TOA will advance further loans to the company for the same purpose. The loans are to be repaid by the EFFG from the proceeds from the sale of stock issue, which will consist of 100,000 shares of $100 par value.

The prospectus reveals that the EFFG expects to have an executive committee of five directors, in addition to the board of directors. Edwin S. Cantor has been named as new assistant secretary.

Film Dividends Increase

WASHINGTON—The publicly reported cash dividends of motion picture companies increased last year for the first time since 1947, it was revealed last week in a Commerce Department report.

The department reported that the preliminary 1954 total was $28,289,000, the highest figure since the $35,122,000 reported in 1951. The final figure in 1953 was $23,405,000. Dividends reached a peak of $54,461,000 in 1947 and then fell steadily. The 1954 total reverses a seven year trend. The Commerce Department usually figures that publicly reported cash dividends account for two-thirds of all dividends, so the total payments of film companies may have actually been over $40,000,000.

TOA Seeks Insurance Plan

NEW YORK—Theatre Owners of America is attempting to interest a single liability insurance company in a form of group liability insurance for TOA members, it was announced by president E. D. Martin last week.

Every member has been asked to fill out a questionnaire to provide the association with information helpful to it in its negotiations. If the plan goes through said Martin, there will be a considerable saving in premiums to the members. Group liability insurance is currently receiving the attention of COMPO also.

Government Seeks To Name Allied, COMPO, Four Exhib Groups As Co-Conspirators; Link With Toll-TV Charged

LOS ANGELES—The Justice Department served notice last week that it intended to amend the original complaint in its 16mm. anti-trust suit to include COMPO, Allied States Association, and four other exhibitor organizations as co-conspirators.

Although the court must rule on the motion before the exhibitor groups would actually become co-conspirators, the action caused considerable furor. Abram F. Myers, general counsel, Allied, charged that the Justice Department's move was actually designed to help Zenith Corporation's propaganda drive for the immediate authorization of toll-TV. The move "was not unexpected in view of the mysterious influence which the interests which instigated and are supporting that law suit are exerting in the Department of Justice," said Myers, and added, "Allied has taken no action savoring of boycott or any form of restraint of trade." Myers stated that the recent action in New York of the exhibitors anti toll-TV committee would mean that "this assist from the Department of Justice will do them (the proponents of toll-TV) little good."

The other exhibitor groups named in the government's motion were the Southern California Theatre Owners Association of Los Angeles, Metropolitan Motion Picture Theatre Owners Association, and the Independent Theatre Owners Association, both of New York; and the Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owners, which has gone out of existence.

Harry Brandt, president, ITOA; Robert Coyne, special counsel, COMPO; Emanuel Frisch, president, Metropolitan Motion Picture Theatres Association; and Harry Arthur, president, SCTOA, all denied that their organizations had been involved in any conspiracy or restraint of trade.

Allied is reported to be weighing whether, in view of the government's action, it might not be wiser to ask the court to make it a defendant in the case instead of merely a co-conspirator.

If Allied is made a defendant, it can call witnesses, cross examine, and address the court, while as a co-conspirator all they can do is to submit a brief as a friend of the court at the end of the trial.

As defendants, however, they would have the expense of defending the case and if the case should be decided against them the court would bind the group in the final findings and judgment. This might make the group liable for damages in any private anti-trust suit brought by any TV station owner, who could use the government-won verdict as prima facie evidence in his own suit.

TV And Taxation Hurt Movie Operation

TORONTO—With the advancement of TV, all Ontario theatres have seen a decline since 1951 in attendance of 3,648,192, or approximately four per cent, although the increase in population was nearly 20 per cent.

In the TV areas, areas affected by the operation of TV stations, admissions have declined even more sharply. In all of the 242 theatres for which attendance figures are obtainable in the TV areas, there has been a decline in attendance between 1951 and 1954 of 11,219,868 or a loss of almost 21 per cent, according to a brief on the amusement tax in Ontario submitted to Hon. Leslie Frost, Premier of Ontario.

In a statistic packed brief, the Ontario Exhibitors Committee for Amusement Tax Relief puts forth some reasons why the government should lessen the amusement tax burden, so as to stop the ever-growing list of theatres in the province closing because of the inroads of TV. Already, according to the brief, 29 theatres in TV areas have either been closed or sold and converted for other purposes during the past three years. Some of the theatres have closed and reopened two and three times during this period. Of the total, 14 are in Toronto.

The brief points out that only one new regular theatre has been built, and "that theatre, which we are informed is unprofitable, was built in connection with a suburban Plaza Development in Toronto. Of course," says the brief, "there are many completely new suburban areas opened up adjacent to the larger cities which need, and under normal conditions would have, justified additional theatre investments.

"In the face of the competition which the industry has to face from television, no one now in the industry, so far as we know, has the courage to make these investments. In the whole of the Province there are only three regular theatres under construction today, all of these being in the nothern part of the Province and in areas not yet affected by television competition."

There have been many changes of ownership since March, 1952, it is stated, but these have occurred "not because such theatres have been profitable, but because of the efforts on the part of owners to unload a losing business."

The brief asks for a reduced and modified tax in the lower brackets, with all tickets under 50 cents tax exempt, the scale then being accelerated with the increase in the price of tickets.

The tax would be one cent on admissions of 21 cents to 54 cents, two cents on tickets 55 to 58 cents, three cents on 59 to 67 cents, four cents on 68 to 76 cents, five cents on 77 cents to 85 cents, and six cents on 86 to 94 cents. All these prices are before tax.

The brief points out that it was not just the large theatres in the large cities that have felt the effects of TV. "The small theatre in the small town and the small privately-owned theatre in the suburban areas of the larger centers have felt the effects of TV to an even greater extent."

Londoners recently mobbed the Plaza to see Paramount's newest Dean Martin-Jerry Lewis picture, "Three Ring Circus." The theatre's attractive circus-flavored front proved to be a real eye-catcher.

Canadian Comment

Ted Doney, Royal, Guelph, Ontario, has been getting some dandy results with clever co-op. ads in local newspapers. Smartly worded copy recently tied in "Three Ring Circus" with the House of Television next to the theatre with adroit use of real circus copy. This was nearly five-eighths of a page.

Cuba

In Havana, J. R. Grainger, president, RKO, and Walter Branson, world-wide sales manager, held sales meetings last week with Michael Havas, RKO's Latin America supervisor, and local sales personnel. Before coming here, Grainger held a series of meetings with exhibitors in Mexico City in connection with "Underwater!". Among the prominent Latin American exhibitors with whom he talked were Gabriel Alacon and Manuel Espinosa, who control 350 top Mexican theatres and who will play the Jane Russell starrer.

England

Westrex, Ltd., and the G. B. Kalee Company are the latest manufacturers of theatre equipment to sign licensing agreements to produce Perspecta sterephonic sound integrator units, it was announced by C. Robert Fine, president, Perspecta Sound, Inc. Fine said that the Westrex and Kalee deals, coming as they do on the heels of similar deals with N. V. Philips, Eindhoven, Holland, and Zeiss-Ikon, Germany, reflect high confidence of the world's principal equipment makers in Perspecta. Nearly 2,000 exhibitors throughout the world "have already gone Perspecta," according to Fine. Orders for the equipping of at least 5,000 more theatres await delivery of integrator units. The special significance of the Westrex and Kalee deals is that they break the bottleneck of import restrictions which up to now has held back the equipping of British and other sterling area theatres, Fine pointed out. Besides supplying growing demands among Commonwealth countries, Westrex, Ltd., will also act as suppliers of integrator units to Westrex offices throughout the world. Fine revealed that the total number of manufacturers throughout the world licensed to make Perspecta equipment is now eighteen, three in the United States, four in Italy, two in France, two in Japan, one in Brazil, one in Spain, one in Norway, one in Holland, one in Germany, and the latest two in Britain.

Mexico

MEXICO CITY—J. R. Grainger, president, RKO, last week attended a sales meeting here, held by Michael Havas, Latin American supervisor. Walter Branson, sales head will meet Grainger in Havana for a sales meeting which Havas also will attend. From Havana, Grainger will go to New Orleans and Dallas on his way back to Los Angeles.

Toll-TV Problem Tops Drive-In Agenda

WASHINGTON—Allied States Association announced last week that through courtesy of the joint committee on toll-TV, Harold Wolff, who was recently retained by that committee as public relations counsel, will address Allied's national drive-in convention which will be held at the Chase Hotel, St. Louis, Feb. 8-10.

Wolff is expected to describe and analyze the vast propaganda campaign that is being waged by the proponents of subscription television. Few exhibitors seem to realize the extent of that campaign, the skill with which it is being conducted, or the sinister misrepresentations and distortions of fact concealed therein, Allied said.

The convention is open to all drive-in operators regardless of whether they are Allied members, members of other oganizations, or members of none. Advance reservations indicate that a big crowd will be on hand to receive first-hand information regarding what the members of the joint committee regard as the greatest menace to the motion picture business today.

The committee seeks the best methods of exposing and counteracting the propaganda efforts of Zenith and others to make it appear that there is an overwhelming public demand for toll-TV. An obvious effort is being made to hustle the Federal Communications Commission, said Allied, and, perhaps, Congress, into approving toll-TV before the facts can be developed as to the disastrous consequences, not merely to motion pictures, but to television and the public as well, in case toll-TV is approved.

This will be Wolff's first public appearance since being retained in this matter, and it is believed that exhibitors will be impressed by this new personality in the business on whose experience and skill so much depends, convention chairman A. B. "Jeff" Jefferis said.

Hyman Predicts Strong Lineup

NEW YORK—Edward Hyman, vice-president, American Broadcasting-Paramount Theatres, last week forecast a stronger lineup of pictures for the usually slow months of May and June.

Hyman, long an advocate of an "orderly release of pictures," made the forecast after communicating with the major distributors. He has long claimed that good pictures would draw at any time of the year, and that both exhibition and distribution would benefit from the ending of the feast or famine condition created by the bunching of quality releases.

Atlas Buys RKO Stock

NEW YORK—An Atlas Company spokesman interpreted the buying of an additional 115,000 shares of RKO stock last week as an indication that president Floyd B. Odlum was confident of reaching an agreement with Howard B. Hughes regarding the management of RKO.

According to reports, Atlas and associates control nearly 1,200,000 shares of RKO stock, Hughes 1,262,000 shares, and others about 500,000 shares.

The 115,000 shares were acquired by Atlas on the open market during December.

"Obscenity," "Incite To Crime" Defined In Ohio License Measure

Flick Asks Classification Rather Than Censorship

RICHMOND—A "contract system of classification" was suggested last week to the meeting of state film censors here as a substitute for film censorship by Dr. Hugh Flick, director, New York State Film Censorship Board.

Under the Flick plan, a film company would receive a license for its films on a voluntary basis, and various classifications would be set up for films which might be the subject of moral controversy.

The meeting of censors was extremely general in nature and was not expected by Dr. Flick to produce any decisions, having under consideration such subjects as the increase in crime and violence in motion pictures during the last year and the variation in censorship laws from state to state.

Altec Signs Century Circuit

NEW YORK—Following several weeks of negotiation, Altec Service Corporation last week announced the signing of a contract whereby Century Circuit, Inc., will employ the services of Altec field engineers in 17 of its theatres.

The contract, consummated between Marty Wolf, Altec assistant sales manager, and Walter Dunn, Century Circuit, involves servicing, maintenance, repair, and replacement of the stereophonic and optical sound systems in all Century theatres located in Brooklyn, New York, and certain other locations.

Altec field engineers, under the supervision of Ralph Kautzky, northeastern division manager, and Shell Trent, branch manager, will service the Albemarle, Brooklyn; Avalon, Brooklyn; Bliss, Long Island City; Brook, Brooklyn; College, Brooklyn; Elm, Brooklyn; Farragut, Brooklyn; Broadway, Brooklyn; Kingsway, Brooklyn; Marine, Brooklyn; Mayfair, Brooklyn; Midwood, Brooklyn; Nostrand, Brooklyn; Patio, Brooklyn; Plaza, Corona, L. I.; Rialto, Brooklyn; Sunnyside, Woodside, L. I.

Edmund C. Grainger, newly appointed Republic sales manager in charge of circuit operations, is seen recently with Richard W. Altschuler, vice-president and director of world-wide sales.

COLUMBUS, O.—An administration sponsored bill to license films was introduced in the Ohio Legislature by Democrats John J. Conway, James P. Kilbane, and Jess Yoder, and Republican Charles Whalen, Jr., last week.

Exhibitors would be fined from $25 to $300 if they show unlicensed films and distributors fined the same amounts if they refuse to delete objectionable material. License fees are set at $5 per reel for the first print, which it is claimed would return about $65,000 per year, $200,000 less than the amount brought in by the old law. Appeals to the Ohio Supreme Court are provided for if licenses are refused. The bill would permit mayors, county prosecutors, and village solicitors to seek injunctions in common pleas court against distribution of indecent literature. Fines range from $50 to $2,000.

A film may be found to be obscene if it portrays explicitly or in detail an act of adultery, fornication, rape, sodomy, or seduction, or if either theme, manner of presentation, or both, present sex relations as desirable, acceptable, or proper patterns of behavior between persons not married to each other or the dominant purpose or effect of which is erotic or pornographic, or if it portrays nudity or a simulation thereof, partial nudity offensive to public decency, sexual relations of any kind, sex organs, abortion, or methods of contraception, or if it contains vile or profane language.

A film may be found to incite to crime if the theme or manner of presentation is of such character as to present the commission of criminal acts or contempt for law as constitutional, profitable, desirable, or acceptable behavior, or if it teaches the use or methods of use of narcotics or habit-forming drugs or presents explicit methods for commission of crime.

A service fee of $5 is provided for each additional copy of the film or fraction thereof to which license is granted. Exempted are scientific and educational films, trailers, and newsreels. The bill forbids the showing of trailers with scenes ordered deleted from the feature which they advertise.

Robert Wile, secretary, Independent Theatre Owners of Ohio, claimed that the $5 fee would yield about $100,000 a year rather than the administration's estimate of 65,000. Calling the bill an attempt to get around the word censorship, he said the license system is "just as unconstitutional as any other form of prior restraint." On definitions of obscenity, Wile said, "I doubt if the language can go through the mails. If these are all right in print why can't you see the actions they describe on the screen."

Siegel, Paramount Part

HOLLYWOOD—Paramount last week issued the following statement, "Y. Frank Freeman, vice-president in charge of the studio, and Sol Siegel, producer, jointly announced that at Siegel's request, the contract between Siegel and Paramount, had been terminated."

Theatre equipment manufacturers and other industryites gather at the home of Harold F. Wendt to honor Harry H. Strong, president, Strong Electric Company, Toledo, O., upon his retirement as a director of TESMA. Left to right, standing, William Gedris, Al Boudaris, Fred Matthews, Frank Kuehnle; seated, Harry Strong, Erwin Wagner, Harold Wendt and Bert Martin.

The hungry gang pitches into lobsters flown from Boston for the festive occasion by host Harold F. Wendt, head, Wendt Advertising Agency.

Lobsters, Laughs, And Memories

HOW do theatre equipment manufacturers relax when they manage to take a few hours off from their business? Well, here is how eight of them, from various parts of the country, "played" when they gathered recently to honor one of their number—they ate 30 pounds of lobster, shuffled the pasteboards, and reminisced, for the most part.

Deserting their desks for 36 hours, the men gathered at the home of Harold F. Wendt, head, Wendt Advertising Agency, Toledo, to honor Harry H. Strong, president, Strong Electric Company, Toledo, manufacturers of projection arc lamps, upon his retirement as a director, Theatre Equipment Supply Manufacturers Association.

The association staged its first trade show in 1946 in the Secor Hotel here. Between 40 and 45 equipment manufacturers were present. Today there is but one hotel in the country, the Conrad Hilton, Chicago, large enough to accommodate all the members and exhibits under one roof.

Those present at the lobster party included Fred Matthews, Chicago, current president, TESMA, and also president, Motiograph, Inc., the oldest manufacturers of motion picture projectors; Bert Martin, motion picture exhibitor; Erwin Wagner, Chicago, president, Wagner Sign Service, Inc., manufacturers of the marquee signs; William Gedris, Grand Rapids, Mich., president, Ideal Seating Company, manufacturers of theatre seating; and Al Boudouris, Toledo, president, Theatre Equipment Company and Eprad, Inc., manufacturers of in-car speakers, and operator, new Miracle Mile Drive-In and other drive-ins in Ohio, Michigan, and Indiana, together with Frank Kuehnle and Harold Wendt, Wendt Advertising Agency.

Collectively, they could write a documentary of the industry from an equipment standpoint, virtually from the first "flicker" up to the present time.

Strong is recognized as the dean of equipment manufacturers as well as one of the country's outstanding projection lighting engineers.

As can be seen easily from the pictures equipment executives long to loosen their on these pages, it didn't take these top ties and make themselves comfortable.

Wagner, president, Wagner Sign Service, Inc., and a five pound lobster survey each other with considerable suspicion evident.

Strong and Wagner demonstrate that their work for the association has been pleasant as well as profitable for them.

After a lobster dinner, there's nothing like a good cigar or plenty of cigarettes.

Boudaris discusses public acceptance of Miracle Mile Drive-In, of which he is manager, with Martin.

Strong appears dubious as Wendt asks him if he'd like to organize another trade association.

Host Wendt checks the menu for next morning. What's eggs anyway, might be the caption.

RKO Embarks On Most Active Year With 21 Indies, Four Home-Made

NEW YORK—With the release of "Underwater!," Howard Hughes' $3,000,000 Superscope-Technicolor production, RKO embarks on one of the most active years in its history, according to an announcement last week by Walter Branson, world-wide sales manager.

Scheduled for release at this time by RKO are 21 independently made films plus four top-budgeted pictures made by RKO. Among the independents set to release through its facilities are Edmund Grainger's Ram Productions, Benedict Bogeaus, David Butler Productions, the King Brothers, and Nat Holt Productions.

The first two films from Ram Productions are "Treasure Of Pancho Villa" to be filmed in northern Mexico, and James Street's best selling novel, "Oh, Promised Land," starring Alan Ladd. Both pictures will be filmed in Technicolor and Superscope.

"Escape To Burma," from Benedict Bogeaus, will be released March 26, starring Barbara Stanwyck, Robert Ryan, and David Farrar. Another Bogeaus picture, also starring Miss Stanwyck, is scheduled to go before the cameras in the near future.

David Butler will guide the production and direction of three pictures to be released through RKO. The first, "Miracle At Santa Anita," will have that famous race track as its Technicolor background. Two others, as yet untitled, will also be under the production and direction of Butler.

The King Brothers are currently preparing "The Boy And The Bull," budgeted at over $2,000,000, in CinemaScope and Technicolor. In June, they journey to England to start work on "Two-headed Spy."

Nat Holt has three pictures lined up on his schedule. The first is a Superscope-Technicolor production, "Rage At Dawn," starring Randolph Scott, Mala Powers, and Forrest Tucker, which goes into release April 19. Slated for future production by Holt are "Louisiana Lottery" and "Texas Lady."

"Quest for the Lost City" and "Tarzan's Hidden Jungle" are two Sol Lesser products that will shortly go into release. Another production, as yet untitled, is also on the Lesser agenda for 1955.

Robert Stillman has "The Americano" currently in general release. Allan Dowling Productions have two films on their calendar, "People Like Us" and "The Sea Is A Woman."

Winding up the list of independents are three pictures, all untitled, to be filmed under the banner of Prize Pictures.

The RKO pictures to go into release this year are "The Conqueror," starring John Wayne, Susan Hayward, and Pedro Armendariz; "Jet Pilot," starring Wayne with Janet Leigh; and "Son Of Sinbad," with Dale Robertson and Sally Forrest.

Actor James Stewart's father, Alexander Stewart, 82, and his bride of less than two months, the former Nita Stothart, 76, St. James, New Brunswick, Canada, recently had their first glimpse of a Hollywood studio when they paid a visit to U-I's and saw Joan Crawford appearing before the cameras in "Female On The Beach." All are shown above.

NT Plans No New Houses

NEW YORK—At the present time, National Theatres has no plans to acquire new theatres, it was announced last week by NT president Elmer C. Rhoden. This applies to both drive-ins and conventional theatres, although the company may "develop" its own vacant properties.

National Theatres has just completed its divestiture program under the consent decree, and is legally allowed to buy new theatres.

MGM To Stop C'Scope Regular Prints Abroad

NEW YORK—Morton A. Spring, first vice-president, Loew's International Corporation, in charge of sales, last week issued the following statement: "Beginning Sept. 1, 1955, MGM will discontinue release of wide-screen versions of its CinemaScope pictures in the international market. The actual cut-off date will vary with each country because release schedules vary. However, in no country will the new policy begin before Sept. 1, 1955. Because of the time required for a picture to play through to theatres not yet equipped for anamorphic projection, it will be at least one year before any theatre overseas will be affected by the new policy.

"We feel that this time-span plays fair with our customers and in our mutual best interests will provide them ample opportunity to install anamorphic equipment and thereby share in CinemaScope prosperity. In connection with this announcement, it is important for exhibitors to realize our belief in the great present and the even greater future boxoffice value of CinemaScope presentations. In every country the film public has given unmistakable approval to CinemaScope pictures with Perspecta stereophonic sound and has shown overwhelming preference to attend those theatres properly equipped for CinemaScope showings.

"We are confident that our action will inspire exhibitor cooperation and approval, and that theatremen everywhere, even those who operate the smallest theatres, will realize the wisdom of installing the equipment necessary to show MGM CinemaScope pictures at their best," the statement concluded.

Loew's Meeting Set

NEW YORK—The annual meeting of Loew's, Inc., will be held in the home office on Feb. 24, it was revealed last week in a proxy statement issued by the management. The management proposes the reelection of the present board, consisting of George A. Brownell, G. Richard Collins, Howard Dietz, F. Joseph Holleran Eugene W. Leake, Benjamin Mi'n'ker, Charles C. Moskowitz, William A. Parker, J. Robert Rubin, Charles M. Reagan, and Nicholas M. Schenck.

Republic executives and stars gathered recently at the studio to honor some members of the 20-Year Club. Seen on the left are, left to right, Reginald Armour, Republic managing director in Great Britain; President Hebert J. Yates; Francis A. Bateman, western division manager, Republic; actor Jim Davis; actress Vera Ralston; and, standing, Jack E. Baker, Republic vice-president in charge of studio operations. On the right, Armour is seen in the center background, while others represented include Hy G. Glick, secretary-treasurer; Bateman; William J. O'Sullivan, associate producer; T. W. Yates, purchasing department chief; John Bourke, location manager; Gerald Roberts, head, music department; Joe Kane, associate producer-director; R. G. Springsteen, director; Barry Shipman, writer; William Witney, director; Bud Thackery, cameraman; Betty Andrews, accounting department office manager; and other long-time employes. These senior staff members all received gifts and other tokens of appreciation from management.

Abner And Iannuzzi Upped By Warners

NEW YORK—Ben Abner and Ralph Iannuzzi have been promoted to the posts of district managers in an important realignment of the Warner sales force, it was announced last week by Ben Kalmenson, vice-president in charge of distribution. At the same time, Kalmenson announced several other promotions and transfers of key sales department personnel, pointing out that this realignment was in keeping with the company policy of promoting from the ranks whenever possible.

Abner, at present New York branch manager, is promoted to metropolitan district manager. Iannuzzi, now Boston branch manager, will assume the position of eastern district manager, with supervision over the Albany, Boston, Buffalo, and New Haven territories.

Additional promotions and transfers announced were Ernest Sands, promoted from the post of Cleveland branch manager, and transfers to New York branch manager; William Twig transfers from Pittsburgh to Cleveland branch manager; while Jack Kalmenson transfers from Milwaukee to Pittsburgh branch manager. The position of Milwaukee branch manager was assigned to Frank Reimer, who was promoted from his present position of local sales manager, Los Angeles, while William Kumins was promoted from assistant branch manager, Boston, to succeed Iannuzzi as Boston branch manager.

Abner is replacing Norman Ayers, who is resigning to enter private business.

MGM Launches 16mm. Drive

NEW YORK—Loew's International Corporation last week launched a year-long sales effort in celebration of MGM's opening of the overseas 16mm. market 10 years ago. More than 40 MGM territorial offices overseas will participate in the celebration, which will be called MGM's 10th Anniversary 16mm. Olympiad.

R. Haven Falconer, 16mm. sales manager, has been appointed world-wide captain.

"Don't Forget My Shorts," Cautions Warners' Moray

NEW YORK—Warners announced last week that May 1 through May 29 will be Norman H. Moray's 25th Silver Anniversary Month.

The short subjects sales manager said, "It's been a wonderful quarter of a century in a great business. Of course, I am very thrilled to have my home office associates designate the month of May in my honor for all branches of Warners business, not just short subjects, but don't forget my shorts!"

Crown Productions Formed

NEW YORK—Formation of Crown Productions, a new independent film-producing organization to release through United Artists, was announced last week.

The four principals involved are Robert L. Jacks, Robert Goldstein, Spyros S. Skouras, and Plato Skouras. Jacks and Goldstein were both executives associated with the late Leonard Goldstein's independent productions. This venture, however, marks the first time either of the Skouras brothers have been connected with film production.

Jacks will function as producer; Goldstein will handle the west coast financing and other executive matters; Plato Skouras, currently employed at 20th-Fox, will work with Jacks on the production end; while Spyros S. Skouras will continue his executive duties as president, Skouras Theatres, New York, and confine his activities with the new company to eastern financing and distribution problems.

RKO Rent Rates Rise

HOLLYWOOD—Beginning immediately, RKO-Pathe studios at Culver City will increase its rental rates 10 per cent for theatrical production and 20 per cent for TV production, it was announced last week by C. J. Tevlin, vice-president in charge of studio operation.

The increase has not been induced by the shortage of space, Tevlin explained, but is due to increases in property taxes, personal taxes, labor charges, etc.

This Was The Week When.....

Industry and United Nation leaders planned the Feb. 9 world premiere in New York of "Assignment Children," highlighting Danny Kaye's overseas trip on behalf of the United Nations Children's Fund. . . . Winners Announced For IFE Jacon Drive

NEW YORK—The final results of IFE Releasing Corporation's Bernard Jacon Testimonial Sales Drive were computed last week with sales personnel from three different sections of the country finishing in top money positions. Phil Levine, New York branch manager, and Sal DiGennaro, New York representative, finished in first place after leading the field for several weeks.

Glenn Fannin, former Dallas district manager, who was recently promoted to central division manager, finished in second place, with Joe Nercesian, San Francisco representative, finishing in the third money spot.

The drive, IFE's first sales contest, was launched in September, 1954, in honor of the distributing company's vice-president in charge of sales.

In notifying the field of the results, Jacon expressed his gratitude to the men and women of the sales organization for their untiring effort and support, and predicted that the experience and results gained in this first drive will fortify them for 1955.

Vending Suit Filed

PHILADELPHIA—An anti-trust suit was filed in U. S. District Court last week by Charles Sweet Company against Berlo Vending Company, A.B.C. Vending Company, Peoples Service News Company, Peoples Service Vending Company, Automatic Sales and Service Company, Popcorn Sez Company, Inc., Raceway Concessions, Inc., Shipyard Concessions, Inc., Rath Concessions, Inc., and also the partnership of Jack Beresin and Phillip Loeb.

Monopoly is charged under the anti-trust laws, and it is charged by the plaintiff that the defendants conspired to dominate the concession field in states along the eastern seaboard, and that Berlo and the others bought up and sought to eliminate competition in the vending field.

No dollar amount of damages was asked as this could not possibly be estimated until pre-trial decision is made, but it is reported that the amount will be considerable.

Edwin Rome is representing the Sweet Company in the proceedings.

Distribs Called In Schine Case

BUFFALO—Justice Department trial attorney Joseph E. Mcdowell called representatives of Warners and RKO to the stand last week in the government's attempt to prove that the houses of Darnell Theatres, Inc., and Elmart Theatres, Inc., were operated so they would not afford competition with Schine Circuit theatres.

The representatives called were Max Westlake, branch manager, RKO, Albany, and Morris E. Lefko, eastern central district manager, Warners. Westlake testified that Schine Theatres was allowed to use alternative licensing, which allows an exhibitor with more than one theatre in a community to use a film in either theatre. He further testified that Fabian Circuit theatres in Albany and Schenectady have the same privilege. Both Ayers and Westlake testified that they treated Schine no differently than other exhibitors, with all business transacted picture by picture and theatre by theatre.

Industry Upsurge Seen In U-I Report

NEW YORK—Universal-International last week reported consolidated net earnings for the fiscal year ended on Oct. 30, 1954, of $3,797,688 after provision of $5,600,000 for federal taxes on income and $500,000 for contingent liabilities, and after a write-down of investments in the amount of $414,812. After dividends on the preferred stock, such consolidated net earnings amounted to $3.58 per share on the 995,289 shares of common stock in the hands of the public on Oct. 30, 1954.

For the preceding fiscal year, consolidated net earnings were $2,616,356 after provision of $3,863,000 for federal taxes on income and $500,000 for contingent liabilities. After dividends on the preferred stock, these consolidated net earnings were equivalent to $2.35 per share on the 1,010,411 shares of common stock in the hands of the public on Oct. 31, 1953.

Firm rentals and sales for the fiscal year 1954, according to the company's annual report, mailed to stockholders yesterday, were $77,887,688 as compared with $70,490,254 for the previous fiscal year. It is noted in the report that the company continued the practice of reflecting in its accounts the operations of subsidiaries operating in foreign countries having exchange restrictions only to the extent that net earnings from such operations were realized in U.S. dollars, regardless of the periods in which such net earnings accrued.

The report also notes that during the calendar year 1954 regular quarterly dividends of 25 cents per share and an extra dividend of 25 cents per share were paid on the common stock.

Stockholders will meet on March 9 to elect 11 directors and transact other business.

Nominated as directors were N. J. Blumberg, Alfred E. Daff, Preston Davie, Albert A. Garthwaite, R. W. Lea, John J. O'Connor, Milton R. Rackmil, Budd Rogers, Daniel M. Sheaffer, Harold I. Thorp, and Samuel H. Vallance.

Remuneration paid to directors and officers of the company during the fiscal year amounted to $748,389.

Individuals receiving more than $25,000 during the period were N. J. Blumberg, board chairman, $78,000; Milton R. Rackmil, president, $80,002; Alfred E. Daff, executive vice-president, $74,520; and John J. O'Connor, vice-president, $52,000.

UA Theatre Stock Offered

NEW YORK—Allen and Company heads a syndicate offering 400,121 shares of United Artists Theatre Circuit, Inc., common stock at a price of $17 per share, it was announced last week.

Of the total net proceeds from the sale of the common shares approximately $5,200,000 will be used by the company to retire outstanding bank indebtedness under two collateral bank loans with Bank of America N.T and S.A. and The Marine Midland Trust Company of New York. The balance of the net proceeds will be added to the company's working capital.

Associated with Allen and Company are Salomon Brothers and Hutzler; Carl M. Loeb, Rhoades and Company; E. F. Hutton and Company; and Sutro Brothers.

Valuable Exploitation Keys To Profitable Merchandising

Auto Show, 20th-Fox Tieup For "Racers"

NEW YORK—Unfurling of the largest street banner ever seen on Broadway initiated a major tieup for "The Racers" arranged by 20th-Fox with the Annual Universal Travel and Auto Sports Show, the company announced last week.

The banner, measuring 30 feet x 40 feet, has been erected on Broadway and 54th Street for a display period of four weeks. Copy, in day-glo, reads "World Premiere—20th Century-Fox 'The Racers' in CinemaScope—starring Kirk Douglas and Bella Darvi—Starts February 4—Roxy Theatre. Then See New York's Fabulous 1955 Travel and Auto Sports Show—Madison Square Garden—February 20 through 27."

A diversified program of cooperative activities, designed to herald the CinemaScope film both locally and nationally and the upcoming Auto Sports Show, has been further developed in meetings held recently between 20th-Fox and executives of the automotive event.

The show hosted a special preview screening of the Julian Blaustein production at the film company's Little Theatre. In attendance were 200 members of the automotive press, sports car dealers, auto writers, sports car and racing enthusiasts and celebrities from the entertainment world.

Leading automobile dealers in the city were contacted for window and showroom displays on the CinemaScope production and the Auto Sports Show, and activities utilizing many different models of racing cars for promotion of the picture on TV, radio, and in the press were finalized.

A special sports car display is being prepared for the lobby of the Roxy theatre and exhibit space is being allocated at the Auto Show for promotion of "The Racers" to the thousands of persons expected to turn out for the important automotive event.

Additionally, thousands of snipes are being printed for posting throughout the metropolitan area in the next 10-days. Copy reads, "See Kirk Douglas Driving Sleek Race Cars in 'The Racers,' starting Roxy Theatre—February 4."

Women Aid "Country Girl"

NEW YORK—Twenty million American clubwomen and university alumnae are being informed in a letter from the National Council of Women of the United States that Paramount's "The Country Girl" is a picture "not to be missed."

The letter, over the signature of Mrs. Dean Gray Edwards, chairman of Motion Pictures of the National Council, hails the performances by stars Bing Crosby, Grace Kelly, and William Holden and points out that "The Country Girl" is "serious drama, vivid and all-absorbing; for adults and mature young people who can view sharply delineated human weaknesses with understanding and charity."

The recipients of the letters are members of the numerous women's organizations affiliated with the National Council which, in turn, is affiliated with the International Council of Women.

Organists Service Offers Exhibs "Something Extra"

NEW YORK—Jack Richmond, organists service, 1650 Broadway, is now furnishing a music service for theatre organists which consists of six professional copies of the latest and most requested song hits at a charge of $5 for each five weeks service, including one mailing each week.

Richmond advises that subscribers include many of the most popular organists in the country. He says that his subscription list is limited but that he still has a few openings for new accounts from exhibitors wishing to add that "something extra" to their film programs by putting to use dormant organs.

UA Uses College Ads

NEW YORK—A unique supplementary co-op. ad campaign comprising 300 insertions in 50 college newspapers has been set with Van Heusen Shirts in behalf of "Not As A Stranger," "The Barefoot Contessa," "The Night Of The Hunter," and "The White Orchid," it was announced last week by Francis M. Winikus, national director of advertising, publicity, and exploitation for United Artists.

The display for "Not As A Stranger" will feature Broderick Crawford; Edmond O'Brien, "The Barefoot Contessa;" Robert Mitchum, "The Night Of The Hunter;" and William Lundigan, "The White Orchid," will also be featured in the important college ad program.

Karl Fasick, publicist, Loew's Boston Theatres, recently arranged to have a well-known artist in the lobbies of the State and Orpheum for patrons to have their portraits drawn as part of the advance publicity on UA's "Barefoot Contessa." The drawings were made on large sheets of paper carrying a portrait of Ava Gardner. 'Teenagers particularly relished the stunt, with the artists at both houses kept busy at easels.

Electric Chair Heats "Black Tuesday" Run

JACKSONVILLE—George Krevo, manager, Palace, scored an outstanding publicity bonanza when he obtained from the Florida State Prison at Raiford the historic electric chair in which neurotic Guisseppe Zangara died soon after he had slain Mayor Anton Cermak, Chicago, by gunfire in a Miami bayfront park in 1933 while attempting the assassination of President Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Krevo used the famous hot seat as part of a sidewalk display in front of the theatre for his Florida premiere of "Black Tuesday," starring Edward G. Robinson. He also had a large lethal weapons display, loaned by the local Police Department, and a prison cell. Ushers dressed in convict clothes, wearing ankle irons and arm chains, were used as a street ballyhoo on downtown streets. A 40 x 60 sidewalk set piece carried a typewritten blowup descriptive of the electric chair's role in dispensing justice to Florida criminals over a period of more than 25 years.

A special front was erected for the Palace during the "Black Tuesday" run, with black crepe paper forming realistic bars for jail cells. All newspaper ads and radio copy used in exploiting the film stressed that the gun-crazed gangster killers in "Black Tuesday" were forced to pay their debt to society.

Hope Ads Aid "Foy"

NEW YORK—Bob Hope and "The Seven Little Foys," his latest Paramount picture and first in VistaVision, have been set for a huge magazine advertising tieup with Sonic Industries, Inc., portable phonograph manufacturers, it was announced last week.

Sonic announced the tieup to the retailing trade in Retailing Daily this month, pointing out that "Bob Hope, America's No. 1 laugh-man is your No. 1 salesman . . . now telling all America the biggest news in the industry . . . In the greatest advertising campaign in Sonic history, Hope repeats this selling slogan to music-minded millions from coast to coast."

Publications like the New York Times Magazine, Esquire, Coronet, and others, Sonic states, will carry its color ads under the Hope tieup. Hope's portrait as Eddie Foy and the picture title will have prominent positions in all Sonic ads.

Konecoff (Continued from page 6) basis, he thought the maximum in returns should be forthcoming.

He agreed with the theory that producers and distributors must spend some money in order to get some back and that each film merits different treatment in selling and merchandising. Over the past few years, the burden of selling the films have been on the producer and while he doesn't mind expending time, effort, and money, he hoped that exhibitors would go along and do their part in the overall campaign.

Reports already in on some dates on the film permits an estimate of a $200,000 gross in Australia, while in England in a number of spots the release is running second only to "The Robe." Overseas distribution is being handled by 20th-Fox which has a piece of the film, and some independents, while DCA is handling domestically.

Otherwise, Kaufman is presently preparing four screen plays, three of which may be filmed in Australia with one possibly being filmed here. All will probably be in some wide-screen process and in color. "Medicine Whip," an early-west outdoor action yarn; "The Sundowners," a story of an Australian family; "Come Away Pearler," the story of the Australian pearl industry; and "Spanish Main," a pirate yarn, are the ones he is working on at the moment, with the first, as yet undetermined, to start in July. All are expected to be completed over the next two years.

P.S.: Incidentally, exhibitors can have their prints of "Long John Silver" with either magnetic stereophonic sound or with optical sound tracks.

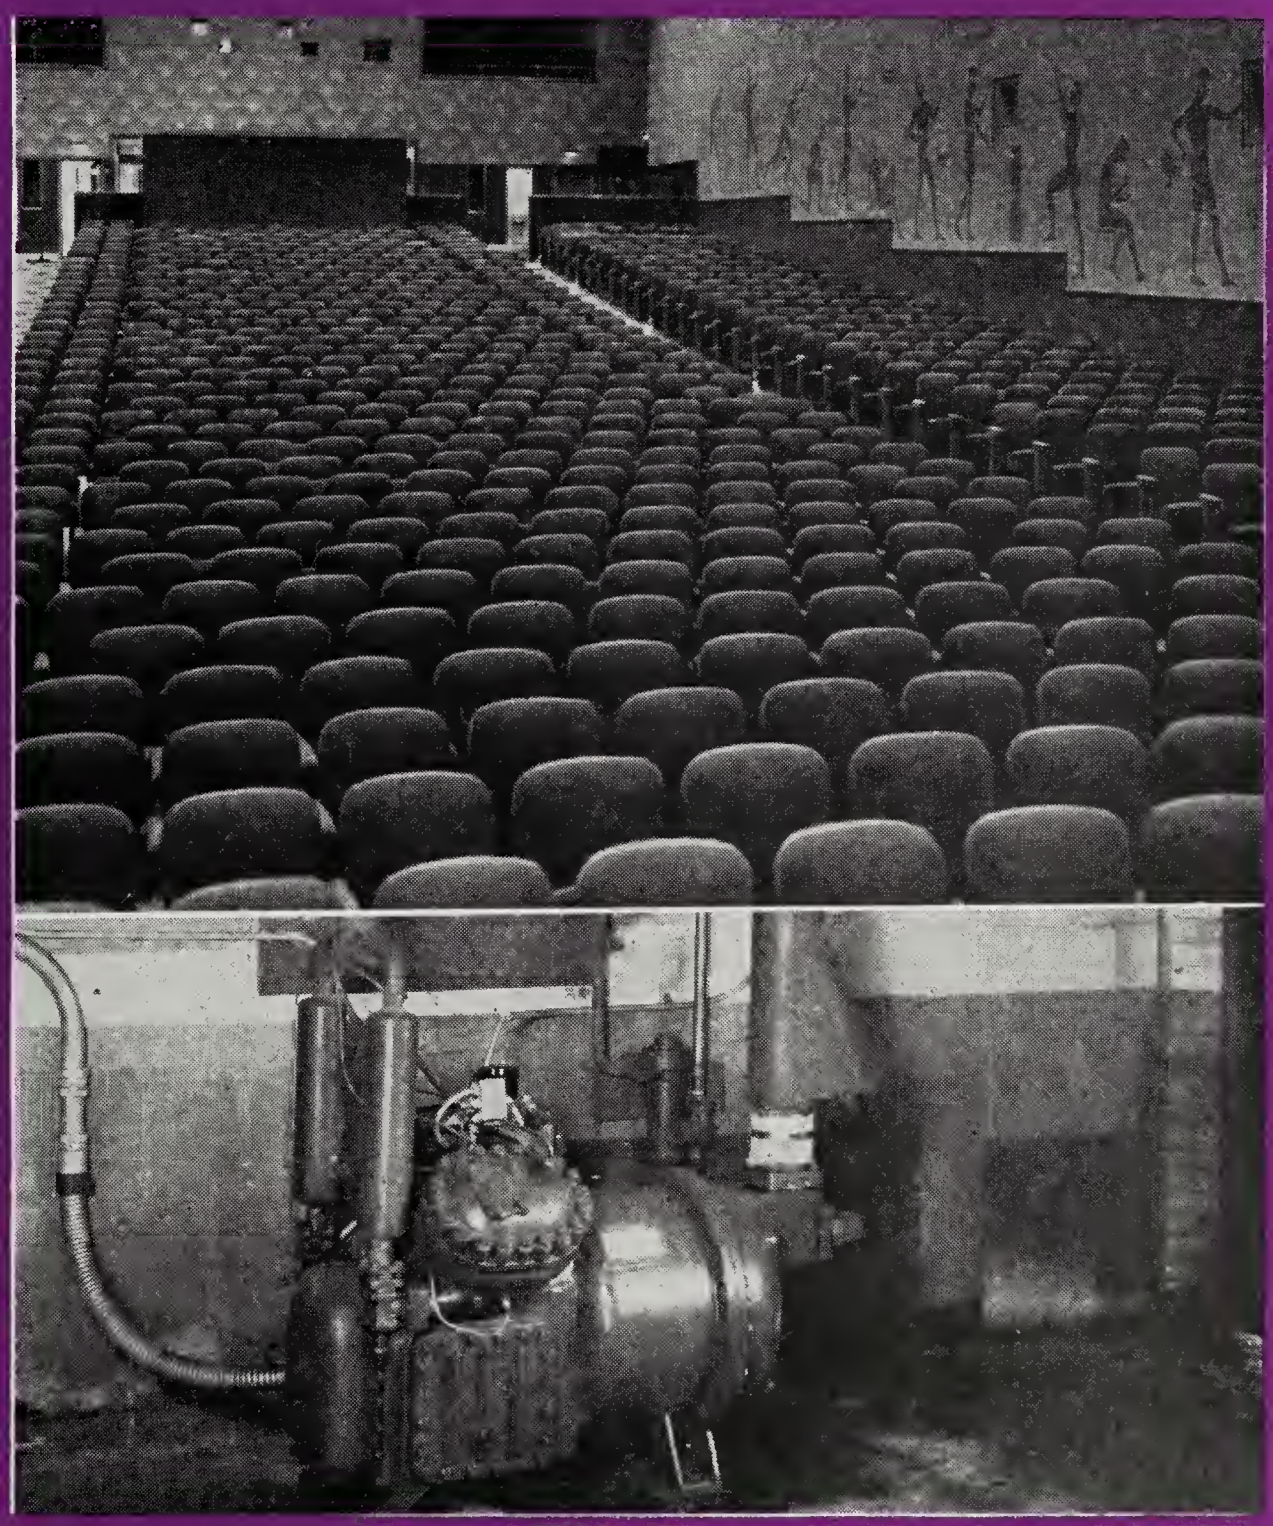
WHAT'S NEW ABROAD? Arnold Picker, vice-president in charge of foreign operations, returned recently from a trip through Latin America and reported that distributors should be getting more money out of the area come 1955 when he expected that UA's gross for 1954 of over three millions should be doubled. Generally, business is very good filmwise because more and better pictures are seeing distribution, and there is no product shortage south of the border probably because films there are released considerably later than they are here and therefore a backlog tends to mount.

Brazil and Chile are in an inflation period which has shot the cost of living up at an alarming rate, while the currency has been devaluated about two-and-a-half times, all of which has taken place while admission prices have remained frozen for the last two years, at least. This means that while theatres are doing very well as far as physical attendance is concerned, moneywise the profits are smaller and smaller, with a phenomenal hit only being able to provide big returns. Increased costs, cost of prints, duties, etc., are taking their toll on the returns as well.

Bits: Latins still want no part of dubbing of pictures. . . . French and Italian films have made some advances in the area. . . . Recent political troubles have not closed down any theatres. . . . TV is operating widely but inferior programming plus a limited number of sets has not given theatre owners in the countries affected any cause for alarm to date. . . .

About People

NEW YORK—The appointment of Harry K. McWilliams as assistant advertising, publicity, and exploitation director, Magna Theatre Corporation, was announced last week by Nicholas John Matsoukas, National advertising director. McWilliams was formerly exploitation manager, Columbia, for eight years and later became director of advertising and public relations, Screen Gems, Inc. He is leaving his position as sales manager, Air Programs, Inc., to join the advertising staff of Magna Theatre Corporation, who are the worldwide distributors of Rodgers and Hammerstein's production of "Oklahoma."



LOS ANGELES—Jack Case, manager, New Fox, Hollywood, has been promoted to Fox West Coast Theatres' advertising-publicity department, it was announced last week by Thornton Sargent, public relations director. Upping is in line with a long-established policy of promoting from ranks and comes at a time when the circuit is intensifying advertising-publicity-exploitation activities.

The 16mm. market in Latin America is shrinking, and UA has no plans for entering same. . . . There are only four drive-ins in the area, located in Panama, Peru, and in Puerto Rico, and the potential is good for more to be constructed soon. . . . There are still a number of new theatres under construction.

PARTY NOTE: Allied Artists hosted a cocktail party for director John Huston at the "21" Club prior to his taking off for India to scout locations for his next film assignment, "The Man Who Would Be King," starring Humphrey Bogart. Among those who attended were Marilyn Monroe, Esther Williams, Marilyn Monroe, Donna Reed, Marilyn Monroe, Ben Gage, Marilyn Monroe, Faye Emerson, Marilyn Monroe, Eddie Condon, Marilyn Monroe, Joe Bushkin, Marilyn Monroe, Leonard Lyons, Marilyn Monroe, Steve Broidy, Marilyn Monroe, Morey Goldstein, Marilyn Monroe, Ed Morey, Marilyn Monroe, Harold Mirisch, Marilyn Monroe, Mike Todd, Marilyn Monroe, and others. It was a real good party, yessiree.

THE METROPOLITAN SCENE: Ashes to ashes and tennis to tennis, or, in case anyone is interested, the laboratory and research center in the indoor tennis court at Oyster Bay, L. I., where the final developments of Cinerama were made, will be no more since the estate has changed hands and the present owner wants to play tennis. Cinerama, Inc., and its president, Hazard Reeves, plan on acquiring an estate in Glen Cove, L. I., for the continuing research and development program of the medium. . . . A distinguished group, they tell us, of leading penologists were due to attend the Victoria on opening day to view "Unchained," a fine film about a prison without the usual guards and guns, being released by Warners. . . . Good promotion piece in the form of a tabloid newspaper aiding the campaign on "Six Bridges To Cross." . . . Okeh press books out on "Prince Of Players," "White Feather," "Women's Prison," "Untamed," "Wyoming Renegades," "A Life In The Balance," "Pirates Of Tripoli," "The Far Country," and "Battle Taxi."

LAYING IT

On The Line

Fade-Out For A Few

At a press interview last week, the sales head for one of the major film companies underlined a situation that is becoming more obvious with every passing day—theatres that are not properly equipped and properly run will soon pass out of existence. We can only add our full agreement to this statement. The time when a marginal house using antiquated projection and sound equipment in gloomy, uncomfortable auditoriums could "get by," is definitely past.

It should be obvious to anyone in the business today that the public simply will not tolerate a theatre that does not meet the quality standards that it has learned to expect and demand. However, there are still a few exhibitors who, perhaps still dreaming of the lush war days, refuse to install new equipment, refuse to make repairs and still expect to remain in business. It is these same few that wail about the doom of the industry as their theatres are converted into shops or parking lots. For them it is the end, but the death blow was self-inflicted.

Fortunately, the great bulk of exhibitors throughout the country are well aware of the changing times, and are doing all in their power to make their theatres attractive and comfortable. While it is true that the average third and fourth run neighborhood house cannot compete with the luxury of the first runs, the management can create a warm, friendly atmosphere that makes for regular patrons.

The need for installing the equipment necessary to show the, by now, not so new processes, is too plain to even be mentioned. However, it cannot end just at that. Theatremen must also give their auditoriums an air of modernity. One of the best ways to achieve this is to have proper seating. A theatre chair must be comfortable enough, wide enough, and spaced so that the customer can focus his entire attention upon the screen, and not get restless and tired as a result of improper seating.

It is significant that in the new houses constructed, almost as much attention is given to seating and sight lines as to projection and sound. This important part of a theatre's furnishings must not be underestimated.

As the reader will see when he reads the lead story in this issue, the firms that manufacture theatre chairs have kept up with the times. Chairs to meet almost every need and every pocketbook are available, and the manufacturers will usually give invaluable advice about aisle widths, spacing, sight lines, etc., if the request is made.

To the exhibitor who simply refuses to make his theatre attractive to the public we offer a well deserved rocking chair in the poor house.

To the exhibitor who carries the true stamp of a showman we offer a prediction of future prosperity.

"THERE'S A BRANCH NEAR YOU"

THE AUDITORIUM OF THE NEW CENTRE, DENVER, CONTAINS OVER 1200 SELF-RISING SPRING-BACK SEATS FROM THE AMERICAN SEATING COMPANY

By Installing New, Modern Seating Exhibitors Can Offer

Comfort For Sale

THEATRE seats are probably the most intimate contact that your patrons have with the theatre. Actually, the ticket buyer rents a seat from you so that he or she may watch the performance in comfort.

Therefore, while it is agreed that the customers came in to see the picture, it is also true that they are to be provided with a seat to see the picture. The seat then becomes an aid or detriment to their enjoying the program. It has been fairly well proven that while comfortable seating will not make a bad picture good, poor theatre seating can make a good film less enjoyable.

The first point a theatreman should have in mind is keeping his seating in excellent operating condition. This is rather simple to do with late model chairs because the seat cushions are easily recovered, the metal backs are easily touched up, and the hinges and operating parts have been simplified with welding and riveting replacing the old nuts, bolts, and screws that caused so much trouble. This is true of new theatres and reseating installations which have been put in recently.

Important Improvement

The most important single improvement that can be added to an existing theatre building, with the exception of sound and projection equipment, is new seating utilizing all modern-seating techniques for greater comfort and convenience of the patron. A seating expert from any of the many reputable manufacturers will gladly analyze a theatre as to layout, sightlines, and general seating needs.

These experts all recognize the fact that comfortable seating, arranged in a fashion to take full advantage of the wide screen systems, are protective insurance for the future of the theatre industry. Gone is the old time idea of how many seats can be jammed into an auditorium, and still pass the minimum requirements of local and state safety ordinances.

Now the seating man works out every reseating or new job with careful thought given to the maximum comfort of the public so that the theatre will draw the customers in, not only with good product on the screen, but aided and enhanced by proper seating also.

The following is information supplied by leading seating manufacturers, and deals with their latest theatre equipment:

American Seating

The American Seating Company's new Bodiform Lounge is designed primarily for use as a loge chair, but is equally desirable throughout the theatre. When the occupant sits up straight, the Lounger assumes an upright position. When the occupant leans back, both the seat and the back of the Lounger tilt back for complete comfort.

Both the spring-arch seat construction and the thickly upholstered spring back are in keeping with the other luxury features of the new Lounger.

Convenience for theatre patrons is promoted by the fact that American Bodiform chair seats automatically assume a three-quarter fold position when vacant, which makes for easy ingress and egress. This same feature is said to save many hours of housekeeping time yearly.

An element of design which is reported to find high favor with patrons is the back panel, which extends below seat level to prevent people from behind putting toes on the seat in front, and perhaps getting them pinched in the process. Another favorite Bodiform feature is the silent hinge which, it is said, can never become noisy or get out of order.

In connection with Bodiform theatre chairs, the manufacturers emphasize the importance of planning the whole installation with full regard for the slope of the floor and general seating arrangement. For an inclined floor, chairs must have the feet of the standards specially formed to fit the slope, must have the height of front and rear legs adapted to preserve the comfortable pitch of the seat and back, and must have proper height with relation to the position of the patron's feet on the inclined floor.

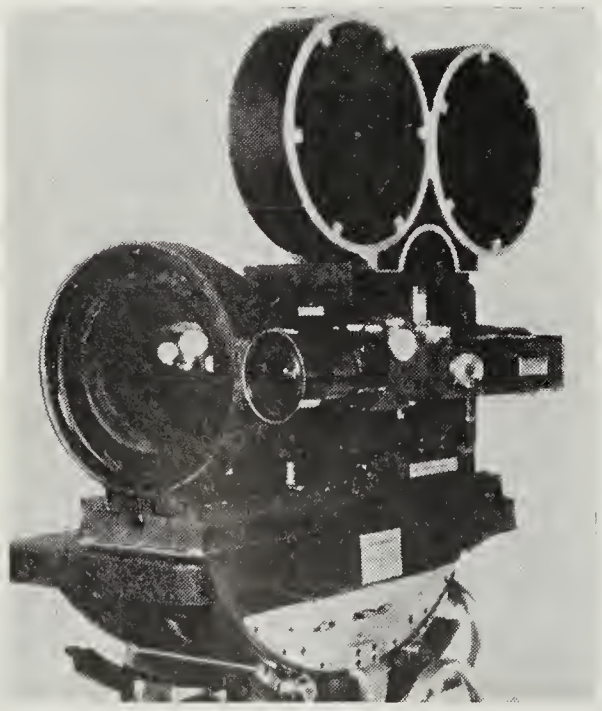
The Todd-AO Process

ANOTHER new and exciting form of film presentation will be unveiled at the Rivoli, New York City, in the early part of May when "Oklahoma," the first motion picture using the Todd-AO process, has its world premiere.

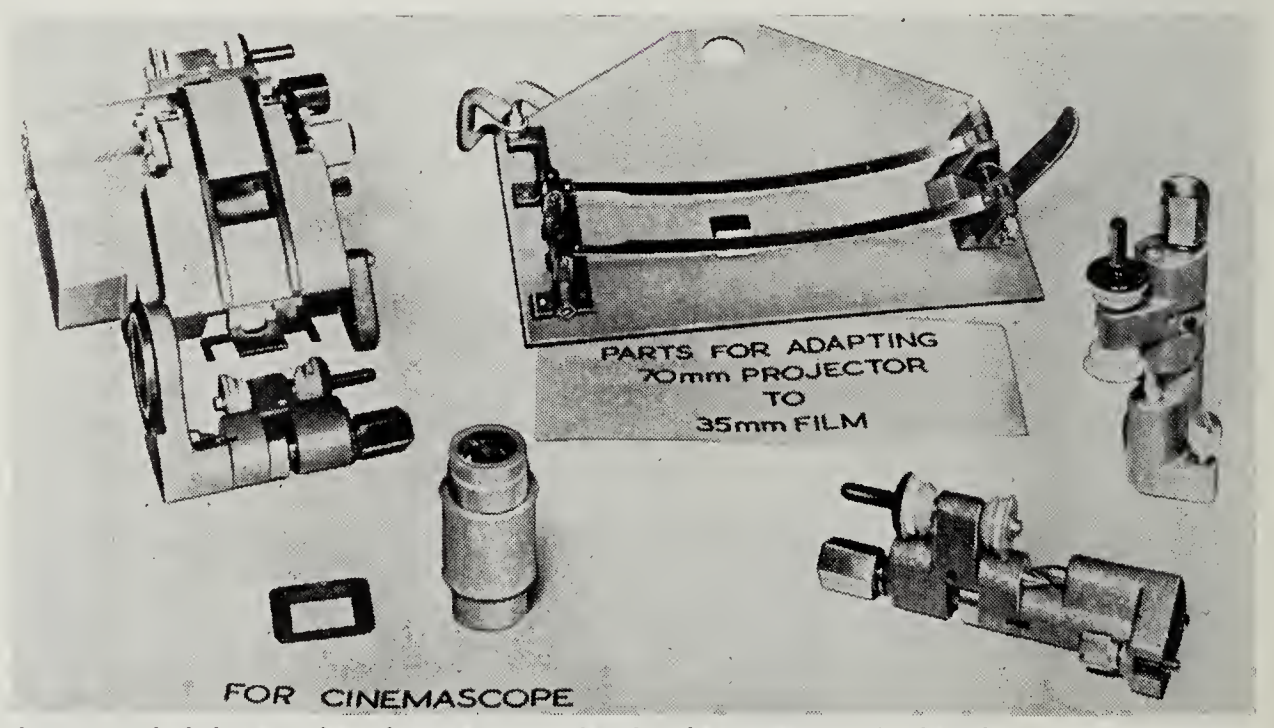
The Todd-AO process is the result of research by a team of research and engineering scientists headed by Dr. Brien O'Brien at the American Optical Company laboratories in Rochester, N. Y. Early reports indicate the system achieves a result similar to Cinerama, but uses one camera and one projector, as opposed to the three presently required for Cinerama.

As developed by Dr. O'Brien the camera uses four lenses which cover every shot from an intimate close-up to a distance scenic or panoramic shot. The angle of coverage of these lenses range in size from a 128 degree wide-angle lens, down through the 64, 48, and 37 degree lenses. The camera has been so constructed that all four lenses can be used interchangeably, it is claimed, thus eliminating the need for additional cameras for each scene set-up.



Todd-AO uses a negative film which is 65mm. wide, giving three and one-half times the photographic area of standard 35mm. film. The film shown in the theatres will actually be 70mm. wide, to allow for the six-channel stereophonic sound track. The picture is projected from a single projector, pictured above, onto a large curved screen which has an aspect ratio of two to one.

All-Purpose Projector



The projector developed for this process is said to be a "universal" projector, meaning that because of its simple changeover mechanism it can handle the Todd-AO 70mm. film; the Todd-AO film reduced to 35mm.; any wide screen picture produced today in other process (except Cinerama), or the conventional flat picture.

Manufactured by the Philips Works in Eindhoven, Netherlands, this projector has a driving mechanism that is housed in an

A front view of the Todd-AO camera with a 128 degree lens. The camera uses a 65mm. negative.

The parts which have to be substituted or added for the projection of other than Todd-AO's 70mm. films in the "all-purpose" projector are shown. The modifications are said to take 10 minutes.

Tweed-Textured Floor Tile

A new rubber floor tile with a modern tweed-textured surface has been developed by the American Mat Corporation, it was announced.

Known as the "Do All Tweed Corded Rubber Tile," it is non-porous and dirt cannot become embedded, thus greatly reducing maintenance requirements, it is claimed. The tweed-textured surface is obtained by a new process, using a special rubber compound which is said to be extremely durable and fade-resistant. The manufacturer also states that it is resilient, and has high sound-absorbing qualities.

The Do All Tweed Corded Rubber Tile comes in three colors—white on black, red on black, and green on black. It is obtainable in sizes of nine by nine inches, nine by 18 inches, and 27 by 27 inches. The tiles may be applied directly to concrete, wood and steel floors, using any good rubber tile adhesive, without felt or paper between the tile and the floor, it is said.

The American Mat Corporation is offering this new rubber floor tile with a tweed-textured surface made possible by using a new process.

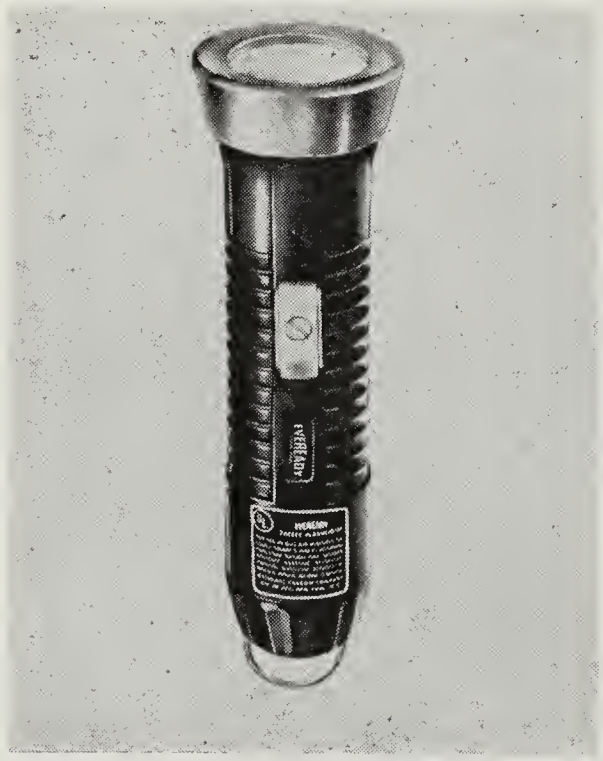
Portable Cleaning Machine

A lightweight portable machine for cleaning upholstery, stair carpeting, and in other hard to get at places, is available from the Multi-Clean Products Company.

Called the Professional, the machine is a hand-sized power unit that weighs only six pounds, and which will maneuver in awkward corners where even hand cleaning is difficult, it is claimed. The firm but gentle shampooing action of the nylon bristles makes it safe for the most delicate fabrics.

The Professional is said to have many improvements, and includes such features as a special pump built into the cleaning unit to give accurate control of the solution flow at the point of work; a clear plastic hose from tank to unit that gives the operator complete maneuverability

This lightweight portable cleaning machine has many uses in the theatre. It is simple to use and it can get into places where other units cannot.



and won't mar the furnishings; and a powerful lightweight motor that operates from any standard light socket.

Heavy-Duty Flashlight

Two new heavy-duty flashlights, one a new approved safety type, have been announced by National Carbon Company, a division of Union Carbide and Carbon Corporation. They would be of particular value to theatre maintenance staffs, and drive-in theatre attendants.

The new "Eveready" heavy-duty flashlight has an insulated ethyl cellulose case that will not shatter, crack, or dent, and is resistant to temperature extremes, it is claimed. The flashlight has a self-lubricating, hand replaceable insulated slide switch and a special lens guard made of tough polyethylene which protects the lens, and throws a powerful red safety warning light.

The "Eveready" safety flashlight is approved by the Underwriters' Laboratories, Inc. It has the same features as the heavy-duty model, plus an extra lamp in the bottcm cap. The safety flashlight is so designed that if the lamp is broken, the filament is snuffed out instantly before it can ignite inflammable or explosive mixtures of gas in the surrounding atmosphere.

An item which would be of particular value in a drive-in is this new safety flashlight. It is built for long, heavy use in all types of weather.

New Lighting Troffers

New troffers, designed and built by Lighting Products, Inc., can be installed glass-to-glass to form a line of light unbroken by dividers, the firm announced. These troffers are said to be adaptable to any known form of ceiling, and to offer a wide selection of shielding media, including metal and plastic louvers, Corning lenses (flat and curved), Alalite glass (flat and dished), and dished Plexiglass. All are interchangeable in the LPI troffer frame, it is said. This frame is quickly and easily slipped into place (no tools required) and is secured by a stable floating hinge, hidden from view. This eliminates the need for screws or other fastening devices which would mar the appearance of the trim.

These lighting troffers are said to be adaptable to any type of ceiling. They can help supply more light and also add to the beauty of the decor.

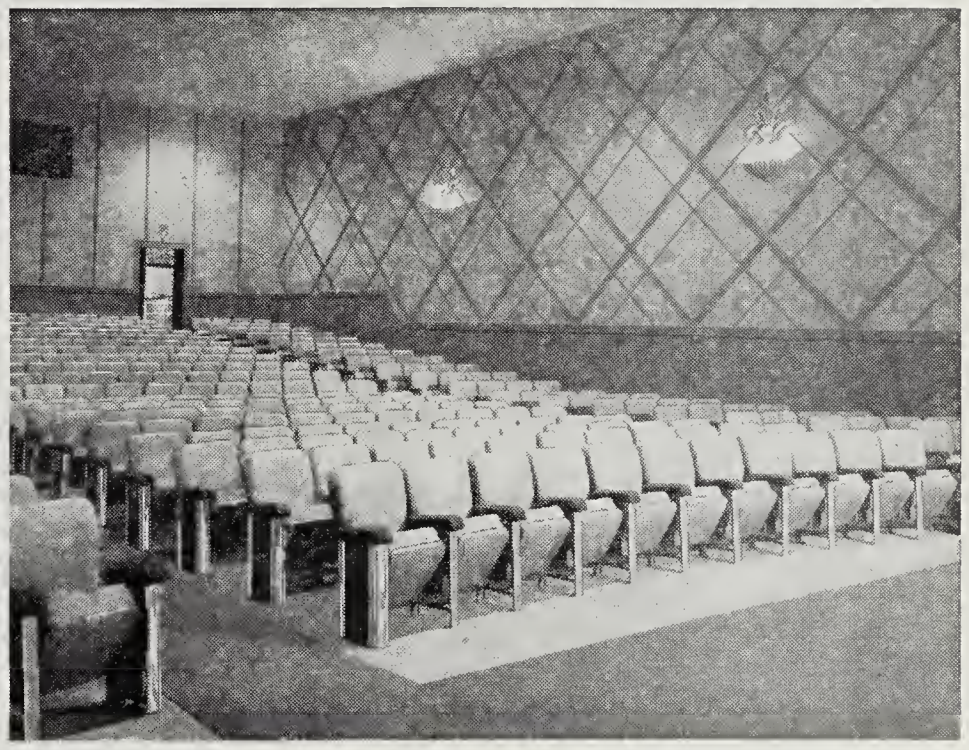
Luxurious Heywood Seating Comfort



Exterior of Cinema Theatre

Makes Both These Theatres S. R. O.

Interior of Playhouse Theatre

Interior of Cinema Theatre

When Schwaber Theatres of Baltimore decided to convert their Playhouse Theatre from a conventional-type theatre into an intimate art theatre, their aim was to halt a decline in patronage by showing better films in the most luxuriously comfortable surroundings possible.

The project proved so successful that recently they converted another one of their Theatres, the Cinema, along the same lines. From the start, these theatres have enjoyed "Standing Room Only" patronage, at higher admission prices than formerly asked.

Both theatres attain a new concept in theatre seating comfort with Heywood-Wakefield's TC 706 Airflo "Rocking Chair" Loge. And both theatres point the way to bigger audiences for theatre owners everywhere.

Heywood-Wakefield's TC 706 Airflo "Rocking Chair" Loge has a coil spring seat and back as restful as the finest easy chair in your own home . . . plus the reclining "rocking chair" action, exclusive Heywood-Wakefield base mechanism which retains a scientifically correct pitch of back to seat regardless of how you shift your weight.

Allied Drive-In Convention Trade Show Plans

St. Louis—Several thousand drive-in theatre owners and operators throughout the United States have been requested by A. B. Jefferis, general convention chairman of the second National Allied Drive-in Theatre Association convention and trade show, to be held at the Chase Hotel, St. Louis, on Feb. 8-9-10, to mail in the problems they would like to have discussed at the conclave.

As it is presently arranged the program provides for an Allied film clinic the afternoon of Feb. 8. The mornings are to be kept open for guided tours of the exhibits that will be a distinct feature of the gathering.

Discussing the mailed requests Jefferis said, "These replies of the drive-in theatre owners will be the guiding factor in the final arrangements of the program for the three-day gathering, and will enable us to select the proper speakers and moderators to handle the problems that are pertinent to the owners of the outdoor theatres. This, of course, will assure the utmost interest in the program from start to finish."

The film clinics will be divided into two groups, one for the operators of small drive-ins, and the other for those in the larger situations.

Special stress will be laid at the convention upon the operation of drive-in concession and the vending of merchandise in those theatres. A clinic will be set up for this important phase of drive-in operation. Other discussions planned for the three-day meeting will include promotion and publicity; exploitation and publicity; playgrounds, their equipment, supervision and location; methods to facilitate the movement of traffic into and out of the drive-in, and any other subject that may be suggested by those attending.

All available space in the exhibition halls will be utilized to house the large equipment trade show. A number of new products for use by drive-ins, never before shown at exhibitor conventions, will be on display, it is reported by Jefferis. He said that the displays will include everything from fireworks to ferris wheels.

One of the most important problems to be discussed at the convention will be the subject of toll TV.

"Toll TV," stated Jefferis, "represents the greatest threat that has ever faced the motion picture exhibitor in the hisory of the business. It is regretable that apparently very little interest has been shown among the exhibitors as a whole, about this hazard that may well put them out of business, but this seeming lack of interest probably stems from lack of information and study of the subject. It should behoove every exhibitor to exert the same effort to fight this critical situation that he did when he made the struggle for the elimination of the admission taxes."

The report on toll TV will be made by Trueman T. Rembusch, one of the best qualified men in the country to speak on this subject. Rembusch is a past president of Allied States Association of Motion Picture Exhibitors, and at present is a national director of that organization. He has served on the COMPO committee, and is a leading figure in the industry. Rembusch has made a thorough study of toll TV, has appeared numerous times in many capacities before the FCC. His report will be presented at the opening sesssion of the convention on Feb. 8.

The following is a partial list of the firms which will participate in the trade show:

Carbonic Dispenser, Inc., Hertner Electric Company, Steel Products Company, Nehi Corporation, Ohio Valley Merchandise Company, Rio Syrup Company, Jamison Manufacturing Company, J. E. Robin, Inc., Ballantyne Company, Frozen Farm Products, Cretors, Inc., Pepsi-Cola, Safeway Sanitation Company, Rex Specialty Bag Company, Temple Frosted Foods, Mission Dry Corporation, Coca-Cola, Selby Industries, Inc., Raytone Screen Corporation, Hollywood Brands, Berlo Vending Company, Thermolator Corporation, National Theatre Supply Corporation, Manley, Inc., Wald and Company, Fireworks, Jobil Products Company, Motiograph, Inc., Rickensohl Fixture Company, R. J. Reynolds Company, Reavis Vending Company, Timber Structures, Inc., Strong Electric Company, Manco-Vision, Heat Exchangers, Inc., Tyson-Caffey Company, Signs, Inc., Miracle Whirl Company, Theatre Specialties Company, Altec Service Company, Projection Optics, Hollywood ServeMaster.

3-Phase Converter From J. E. Robin

East Orange, N. J.—The Robin "Ro-Ro" single phase to three phase converter opens a new field for the motion picture industry in communities and areas where only single phase power is available and three phase power is desirable for efficient operation, according to Emil A. Kern, president of J. E. Robin, Inc.

This unit is said to make three phase symmetrical currents and voltages possible for operating selenium type rectifiers, or for operating any three phase static load with a power factor below 90 per cent.

The converter, according to Kern, consists essentially of one special transformer and two groups of capacitors. Single phase current is supplied to the primary of the transformer. The core of this transformer is provided with two independent windings arranged to supply two isolated banks of capacitors. Two radial adjustment panels permit the gradual calibration and adjustment to accomplish balance of currents to the approximate load. This adjustment will also attain symmetrical voltages, and no further adjustment will be required thereafter, it is claimed, unless the load conditions are materially changed.

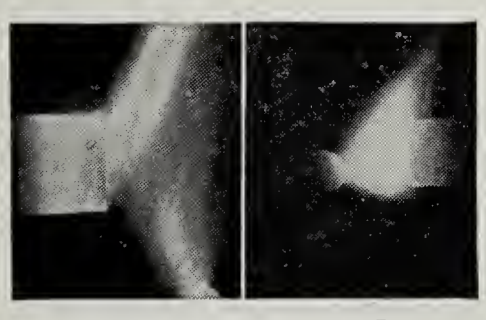
An interior view of the Ro-Ro, which can give three phase power off single phase power lines.

When used in conjunction with a selenium rectifier the Robin Ro-Ro is said to have many advantages by permitting the use of standard three phase rectifying equipment to be operated off available single phase power lines. Kern reports that the converter requires less current to operate than a single phase rectifier installation; improves the performance of rectifiers by providing an almost ripple-free current; permits the use of standard three phase equipment without the necessity of installing new power lines, transformers, motors, etc.

The Ro-Ro is said to be available for any size equipment presently obtainable for projection arc lamps, and is built to accommodate one or two projection lamps for one and the same unit. The converter is sturdily constructed and designed for many years of use.

Motiograph Offers Film Cooling Device

Chicago—Motiograph has developed a new water cooled gate which materially cools the film before, during, and after the time it passes the projector aperture. The actual cooled area is three and one-eighth inches wide by four and one-quarter inches high or over 13 square inches. Two and one-half inches of the film is cooled before reaching the aperture. Because the track is attached to the water cooled gate the track also aids in cooling a full four and one-eighth inch of film.



These new water cooled film gates may be ordered for AA and AAA mechanisms now in use and for new AAA mechanisms.

Trailers Remade For Wide Screen

Chicago—CinemaScope and wide screen installations in the nation's theatres have caused a major upheaval in the motion picture trailer-making companies, since their libraries of stock institutional trailers were filmed for the standard screen ratio, according to Irving Mock, Filmack Trailer Company president.

Thousands of stock institutional trailers for the regular screen proportions are now being remade for the giant screens of conventional and drive-in theatres.

THE PICTURE IS LIGHT... GIVE IT ALL YOU CAN with "NATIONAL" CARBONS

THE NEED FOR MORE and better projection light began with the first "flicker" and grew as the industry grew. From the very beginning, "National" carbons have satisfied projectionists' demands for brighter, whiter light and slower, steadier burning.

SINCE "NICKELODEON" DAYS, the brightness of "National" projector carbons has been increased more than 1000 per cent! And, today, with giant screens becoming almost universal, arc-carbon progress continues to meet the challenge.

FOR EXAMPLE, the new "Suprex" 8mm carbon, latest in a long series of recently improved "National" carbons, provides 15% more light and a higher color temperature than its predecessor — at no increase in cost! Yes, the picture is light... and with "National" carbons you are sure of getting it in fullest measure.

The term "National" is a registered trade-mark of Union Carbide and Carbon Corporation

Said To Have A Light Gain Of 3, Here Is Data On

The Manco-Vision Screen

By J. B. Schuyler
Manco-Vision

THE Manco-Vision screen is a development and patent of the Motion Picture Research Council, Hollywood, and the result of approximately two years of experimentation and development on their part. The Research Council, working with the Aluminum Company of America and the Manco Plating Company, Los Angeles, developed and created for the drive-in theatre one of the most important improvements in outdoor projection in many a year.

This extruded aluminum screen has accomplished even light distribution cut to the extreme viewing angle with little or no fade-off. This was accomplished by the scientific research and technical knowledge that went into the proper fluting of the screen. The Manco-Vision screen has a surface that, though highly reflective, still contains certain diffusing elements that prevent high lights or arc spots on the screen. Further, the control of color of the extruded aluminum panels was a highly critical development and required many, many months of experimentation.

Construction

Manco-Vision screens are made of fluted aluminum extrusions, six inches wide, and six feet long that interlock like flooring. These aluminum extrusions are fastened to wood stringers by being screwed thereto with triple cadium plated screws every two feet. In a theatre where it isn't in excess of a 45 degree viewing angle from the center of the screen, no horizontal curvature is necessary inasmuch as the screen is so designed to deliver to every patron the same amount of illumination in an area as described above. A vertical curvature is preferable wherever the projection booth is not at least 400 feet from the screen. In such instances, an arc is scribed on a 400-foot radius, taking from that radius the portion of the arc that would represent the bottom of the screen to the height of the screen. This means, should the bottom of the screen be 20 feet from the ground, and the screen 50 feet high, that one would select that portion of the 400-foot arc that would be taken from 20 feet from the ground to 70 feet. This means a very slight vertical curvature which does not require any special treatment at the factory as the extrusions, when fastened to the two by four stringers with the cadium plated screws, will draw itself into the curvature.

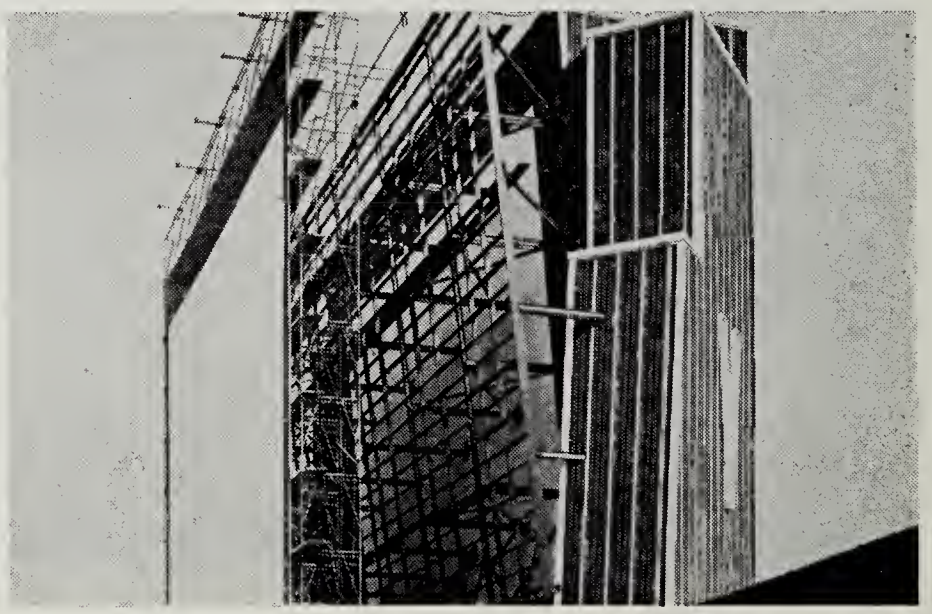
The screen positively delivers from any light source 300 per cent increase in light over a white screen which has recently been painted, and as previously stated, this same light increase is enjoyed by everyone within a 45 degree angle from the center of the screen or theatre.

Important Feature



The important feature of installing a Manco-Vision reflective type screen is the angle to which it is placed in respect to the projection lenses and the viewing area. This must be done if the light is to be reflected into the area in which it is needed, rather than into the sky or the area between the first ramp and the screen. Also, vertical and horizontal curvatures may be necessary in some instances. Complete data on this and other installation questions is available to any individual exhibitor or architect.

A view of the completed Manco-Vision screens as installed in the Victory Drive-In, Butler, Wisc. This screen, which is made of extruded aluminum panels, is able to give even light distribution to the extreme viewing angles.

The photo (above) shows the screen surfacing erected in the right hand portion of the picture, and screen out in front of that is the temporary screen which was in use during preparation of the tower. The photo (below) shows the 2 by 4 stringers which were attached to steel members.

Todd-AO Process

oil-tight casing, closed hermetically by means of a large cover, which protects it completely against dust. The cover is fixed with five screws only, and therefore can easily be removed for inspection of the mechanism and simply be refitted. The driving mechanism itself is said to be sturdy and simple.

In order to achieve perfect definition, the distance between the film in the gate and the projection lens does not vary in this Todd-AO "All-Purpose" projector. It is also equipped with a curved runner plate. The slight bend in a longitudinal direction gives the film a greater stiffness in transverse direction. The concave side of the runner plate faces the lens.

Greater Film Speed

For the projection of 70mm. films, the driving mechanism is much heavier than that of normal 35mm. films. In each 70mm. film frame, there are five perforations instead of the usual four. The speed of the 70mm. film is 30 frames per second instead of the 24 frames per second in the conventional film. This added speed can be attained by the flick of a switch, thereby achieving perfect definition by the elimination of flickering in the projection, it is said.

In the 35mm. operation of the projector the construction for 35mm. projection is just the same as for the 70mm. projection except for the smaller distance between the running faces of the plate and the smaller aperture.

The mask of the gate for 35mm. films can be replaced in a few seconds by that for CinemaScope films, or by a wide-screen mask. All the sprockets used in the projector and the roller of the first traps are universal and need not be replaced.

In summary, the Philips "all-purpose" projector is said to be suitable for: 70mm. film provided with any number of magnetic sound tracks; 70mm. film with separate sound film; CinemaScope film provided with four magnetic sound tracks; CinemaScope film provided with optical sound tracks or Perspecta sound; wide screen films of any size, provided with magnetic or optical sound tracks; normal 35mm. films; 3-D films using either the single-film or twin film system.

Special Printer

In order to make the Todd-AO system as flexible as possible Dr. O'Brien also developed a special printer which can reduce the original 65mm. negative to a Todd-AO 35mm. negative, and which can also make 35mm. wide screen prints for theatres now equipped to show CinemaScope, VistaVision, etc., or conventional films.

At the present time no prices have been announced for the Todd-AO camera or projector, which will be distributed exclusively by the Todd-AO Corporation.

Following the New York premiere of the Rodgers and Hammerstein production of "Oklahoma," which will be distributed by the Magna Theatre Corporation, this initial Todd-AO film will open in Hollywood, Chicago, and 47 other principal cities, exhibited on a road-show policy.

. . . And there are millions like them throughout the country!

No question about it: "movies tonight" is a favorite American tradition — and every exhibitor wants to keep that tradition going strong! Best way to do this is by making and keeping your theatre genuinely inviting for all patrons. Its appearance . . . the comfort it provides . . . the modern equipment it has to show the exciting new picture techniques — all are vitally important when putting out the welcome mat.

O'Brien Given New RCA Assignment

CAMDEN, N. J.—J. F. ("Jack") O'Brien has been appointed manager of the Theatre and Industrial Marketing department, Engineering Products division, Radio Corporation of America, it was announced last week by Theodore A. Smith, vice-president and general manager of the division. He succeeds George L. McKenna, who resigned.

For the past several years manager of RCA theatre equipment, O'Brien now assumes responsibility for the product planning, marketing, and sales of RCA theatre products, industrial and scientific equipment, film-recording apparatus, sound equipment and "TV Eye" closed-circuit industrial television systems.

O'Brien joined RCA in 1931 and has served the Engineering Products division as field sales representative in such markets as Hollywood, St. Louis, Chicago, and Boston. In 1946, he was appointed sales manager for RCA Theatre Equipment, with headquarters in the division's Camden home office. In 1951, he was advanced to Sales Manager, RCA Theatre, Film Recording, Visual, and Sound Equipment.

ADC Markets New Line

ALLENTOWN, PA.—A diversified line of new products has been announced by Automatic Devices Company, makers of curtain tracks and controls for theatre, auditoriums, and other installations.

"In order to maintain our leadership in the curtain track and control field, we are ever endeavoring to improve our present products and introduce new ones as well," the company announcement said. "We are extremely pleased by the enthusiastic response that has greeted advance showings of these new products."

New Besteel "Space Savers" are features of the curtain track line, and fill a definite need on many installations where curtain packing area is limited. They are supplied and sold as extra accessories only, and are available with most ADC tracks, it was reported.

Automatic Devices has specially designed master carriers for motion picture screen maskings. They are classified as No. 1740 master carriers for use with Besteel No. 170 track and can also be obtained for use with Silent Steel track, the firm reports.

Spanotrac is now obtainable in two sections for a single track installation. Still another recent ADC product development is the neoprene ball bearing carrier as optional equipment for Besteel and Fenesteel tracks. Neoprene has advantages of quietness of operation, is strong, resilient and long-lived.

In curtain machines, Tom Thumb curtain controls with limit switches for automatic pre-set stops are now available for immediate delivery. Automatic Devices officials believe this new mechanism is the answer for the automatic control of side curtain maskings and is an ideal stop, start and reverse miniature controller. Also, all No. 93 "Autodrapes" are now being furnished with a control switch on the machine itself.

Filmack Signs Union Contracts

CHICAGO—Contracts with three additional film industry unions have been signed by the Filmack Trailer Company, it was reported by Irving Mack, president.

The unions are: Screen Actors Guild, which includes all talent used for television commercial films, such as actors and announcers; Motion Picture Cartoonists, artists who draw cartoons and do hand lettering on animated films; Motion Picture Laboratory Technicians, the union which includes everyone in the Filmack laboratories who develop, print, edit, and inspect 16mm. and 35mm. films. The Laboratory Technicians received a 10 per cent raise, retroactive as of Sept. 1, 1954.

The signing of these contracts made a total of eight unions now represented at Filmack.

American chairs are made in varying widths combined to make rows of any desired length, and to insure perfect alignment of aisle standards. Aisles running diagonally, or in rows present a complex engineering and construction problem. Chairs to be used on bowl-shaped floor, or in circular rows must be specially designed for the purpose with compensating hinges and flexible back attachment.

Heywood Wakefield

In keeping with the trend towards more attractive and more comfortable chairs for theatres, which has been on the increase particularly since the advent of the popular wide screen systems, Heywood-Wakefield has been marketing its Relax Recliner model. The most outstanding feature of this chair is its ability to recline according to the patron's wishes. The chair is so engineered that the most comfortable angle is determined merely by the amount of body weight applied by a natural slouching in the chair. This reclining advantage does not require push buttons, hand levers or other gadgets, it is said, and is an exclusive Heywood-Wakefield feature. In addition to the added body comfort of the Relax Recliner models, it also fits right in with current demand for wider spacing between rows so prevalent in new or remodeled theatres.

Another fairly recent Heywood-Wakefield development is the "sit-in" cushion. It is generally agreed that what is under the covering material contributes the most in seating. The "sit-in" cushion is basically a coil spring engineered seat mounted on an all-steel frame. These coil springs are of varying heights, gauges and resistance to give the cushion a flat, not crowned, top so that the patron will sit in —not on— the seat. On top of the coil spring unit are four soft layers of wire reinforced burlap; sisal; rubberized hair, and rubber topper.

Another Heywood-Wakefield improvement in cushions is the "Contour," molded and formed of rubber. The one-piece foam rubber filler is full cushion depth mounted on a steel strap, and helical spring platform.

Ideal Seating

The Ideal Seating Company offers a wide selection of cast iron or steel theatre chairs. The popular Universal chair is available in 32 all-steel models including the conventional or slide-back type. The full length back of these seats are said to eliminate the danger of pinched fingers or feet, and there are no protruding parts to snag the clothes of patrons.

All models in the Ideal line feature cushions that are locked in place without the use of tools, and these cushions are or coiled spring construction for comfort and long wear.

Irwin Seating

The latest contribution of the Irwin Seating Company to modern theatre seating is the new Comet. This chair is said to feature "neck-to-knee comfort" in its all steel construction. A new and improved seat and hinge have been developed, and the rolled edges around the entire perimeter of the seat increases the strength and rigidity, and provides a smooth surface contact. The hinge is completely enclosed and has the automatic seat-raising mechanism, the company reports. This chair also features spring-arch seat construction, and can be furnished with or without foam rubber pads. The full length steel back panel has a rolled edge to protect the upholstery material. In addition, all metal parts are "bonderized" before the infra-red enameling operation.

RCA

The Griggs line of theatre chairs, including the Kroehler-developed "push-back" type was recently added to the line of theatre products distributed by the theatre equipment section, engineering products division, Radio Corporation of America.

The Griggs line includes five basic chair types, ranging from the fully upholstered "push-back" to an all-veneer hardwood seat designed for use in warm, damp climates.

Feature of the line is the "push-back" chair which was developed and patented by the Kroehler Public Seating division, and later acquired by the Griggs Equipment Company. Designed to eliminate the confusion and annoyance caused by patrons passing through the seating lanes, the "push-back," with slight backward pressure by the occupant, slides back to provide adequate passing space. The chair returns to normal position when the pressure is relaxed.

The "push-back" is a fully upholstered lounge-type chair. It is available in a choice of fabrics, is ruggedly constructed of pressed-steel, and is made in four standard widths, 19-inch, 20-inch, 21-inch, and 22-inch.

Other basic chair types in the Griggs line include: the "NBW" series, a fully upholstered standard chair, with automatic uplift feature, available in two end-stand styles; the "BW" series, a combination chair with veneer back and upholstered seat, uplift feature, and three different types of end-stands; the "B" series, a hardwood chair with an upholstered leatherette-covered cushion, available in three end-stand styles; and the "A" series, an all-veneer hardwood chair available in three end-stand styles.

All upholstered chairs are available in a wide choice of fabrics and leatherette coverings for matching and blending with indoor motifs.

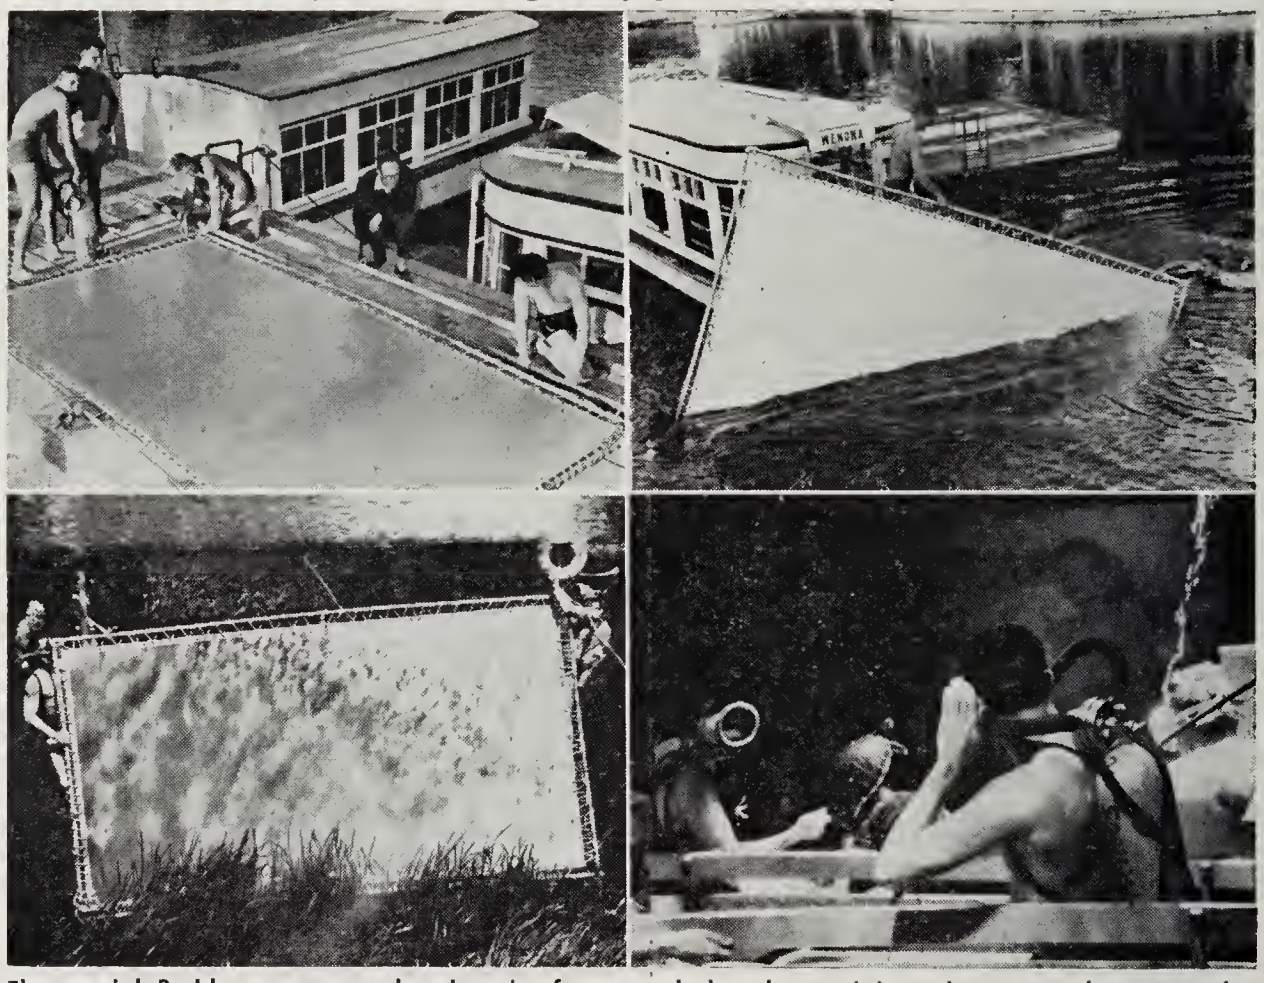
Equipment For Those Who Go To Sea To See

Although we have some doubts as to the widespread demand for the showing of films underwater, we do think that the technical problems involved in the recent screening of RKO's "Underwater," under 20 feet of water, at Silver Springs, Fla., would be of interest. The following comments were made by John Aalberg, director of the RKO Studios Sound Department:

The screen for this project was a special water resisting plastic material in which aluminum dust has been added to increase its reflection properties. This results in a screen gain (reflection factor) of four. The screen was laced in a steel frame with rubber cord and suspended in 20 feet of water. The screen itself was 15 by 30 feet. This two to one ratio of height to width is regarded as the ideal screen by RKO and is the ratio utilized for its Superscope productions, such as "Underwater!"



The screen manufacturer now intends to sell this type of screen to theatres because it can be washed and retain its initial reflective properties for many years. It is also made in one piece eliminating distracting seams. This means that you will be seeing clearer and brighter movies in the future in your local theatre because of this development.

The projection machine was 35mm. standard and equipped with an arc lamp utilizing 10 kilowatts. The projection distance from machine to screen was 52 feet with the glass walled projection booth suspended below a boat and holding the auxiliary equipment such as the arc rectifier, amplifiers, etc.

Projection through clear water presents no more problem than projection through air except that its index of refraction must be considered when calculating the picture size. This effect reduces the image that would exist in air approximately 30 per cent.

A standard amplifier of 100 watt output was employed. Speakers were placed in and above the water, and the sound projected through the water by special speakers placed in the underwater audience area. They were placed close to the audience to overcome the normal aqua-lung breathing noise.

This entire project was interesting and productive of future possibilities. For example, we learned that the color balance and density of the picture must be adjusted to compensate for the water clarity or coloring. Many uses come to mind for underwater screening, some of them military such as the gunnery practices used by the Air Force.

The special Bodde screen was laced to its frame and then lowered into the waters by men using skin diving equipment. It was then set in place. With the audience ready, the show went on.

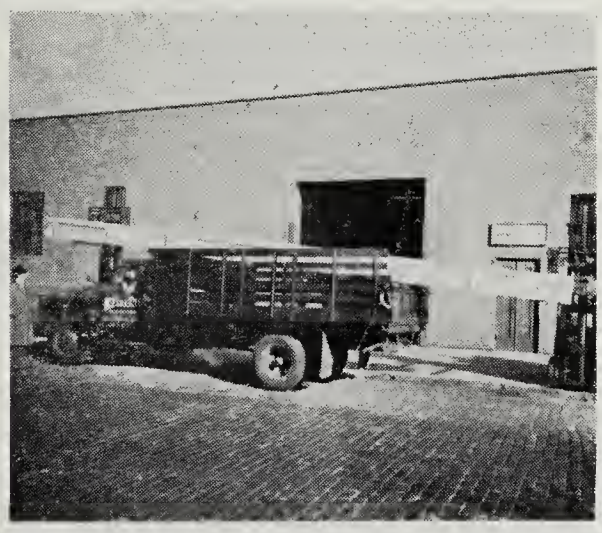
Frayne Names SMPTE Award Committee

HOLLYWOOD—President John G. Frayne, Society of Motion Picture and Television Engineers announced that he has appointed a five-man committee to select the author, or authors, of the most outstanding paper published in the Society's Journal in 1954. An award certificate will be presented to the winner at the Society's 78th semi-annual convention to be held in Lake Placid, New York, October 2-7.

The committee will base its selection on the technical merit of the paper, its originality and breadth of interest, and its excellence of presentation. In order to qualify for a Journal award, a paper must deal with some technical phase of motion picture or television engineering.

The Journal Award Committee is headed by Dr. Armin J. Hill, staff physicist of the Motion Picture Research Council of Los Angeles. Dr. Hill received the Journal Award last year for his paper, "A Mathematical and Experimental Foundation for Stereoscopic Photography," which appeared in the October 1953 Journal.

This and That Around the Trade



National Theatre Supply recently held a two-day sales meeting in Cleveland and discussed 1955 sales plans for their six central district branches. Presiding over the meeting was John W. Servies, vice-president and central district manager. Important plans were revealed at the meeting by company president, William E. Green . . .

. . . Election of Merlin Lewis, motion picture trade paper executive, as executive secretary of the Theatre Equipment and Supply Manufacturers Association, Inc. (TESMA) by its board of directors, was announced by Fred C. Matthews, TESMA president. He succeeds Roy Boomer, recently resigned because of ill health. Lewis, had been, until his election by TESMA, vice-president of The Film Daily and had been with Showmen's Trade Review in both business office and editorial capacities. He has had wide experience in theatre operations with Loew's, Warner Brothers, Publix, Fox Metropolitan and Skouras Theatres in management, publicity, and advertising capacities. Lewis also had been with production and distribution segments of film company activities, having been with Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, Paramount Pictures, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, United Artists Corporation and more recently with Columbia Pictures Corporation. Headquarters of TESMA will be opened in New York City .

. . . A new catalog has been published by the General Industrial Company, Chicago. Many new items have been added to General's standard line consisting of steel shelving, lockers, storage cabinets and inter-communication systems. Offered in a wide variety of sizes and capacities, are the plastic drawer cabinets which are ideal for small tools, nails, etc. . . .

. . . An important policy conference was called at New York headquarters recently by H. M. Bessey, executive vice-president of Altec Service Corporation. YOU GET A SCREEN-FULL OF BRILLIANCE with an AIR-FLO BLOWER COOLED STEREOPTON

The powerful light projection of a GoldE Air-Flo Stereopton brings every detail of your 3¼" x 4" slides into crisp, clear focus on your screen —for always perfect visibility.

Equally important, Air-Flo Stereopton is the projectionists' favorite—because it is so easy to operate . . . so cool and quiet when running . . . so trouble-free . . . so reliable for day after day service. Stereopton is mounted on an extra-rigid base that prevents tipping or shaking. It is also equipped with an all-steel bellows that is instantly adjustable and actually confines stray light; while a radial-type tilt-control instantly locks and holds tight in any up-down position.

The oversize, efficient, motor-driven forced air cooling system protects and lengthens life of both slides and lamps . . . also keeps the projector amazingly cool to the touch even after hours of operation. Servicing and cleaning of the precision optical system is quick and simple. Then, for quick change of slides, the Stereopton provides a two-place slide carrier, silent and lightweight.

No doubt about it! The GoldE Air-Flo Stereopton is a star performer in any theatre. See your dealer now.

Phil Isaacs, salesman, Paramount, Washington, was in calling at Theatre Booking, who owns theatres in Virginia. . . . A freak storm blew down the 80 foot screen, except about 20 feet, of the Shenandoah Drive-In, Roanoke, Va. The manager, believing in the saying that the show must go on, reduced his picture to the 20 foot space left and did normal business.

The Reverend W. L. Freeman, pastor of the Scotland Neck Methodist Church, Scotland Neck, N. C., says regular Sunday morning services have been well attended at the Dixie while a new church building is under construction. Only complaint so far, a child threw a temper tantrum because his mother refused to buy popcorn.

Dave Williams, district manager, IFE, made his first trip through South Carolina this week. He said it was very good meeting all his old friends he made years ago when was salesman for MGM and later with Eagle-Lion.

Ed Rosenblatt, motion picture sound and projection engineer, believes he is the first to have had a cut made and put on his typewriter. He just shifts the ribbon to red, hits the key to which the small cut is attached, and it comes out CinemaScope. Rosenblatt and wife, Mary Nell, have started their new home, located about five miles further out than their present one. The new site is Sherbrooke Road, off Sharon Road.

Exhibitors on the Row buying and booking were Bob Wilburn, Sunset Drive-In, Buffalo, S. C.; H. P. McManus, Greer Drive-In, Greer, S. C.

Jacksonville

Distributor representatives here from Atlanta were Ken McCartney, Kay Productions; Ken Laird, Buena Vista; and Jimmy Hobbs, United Artists. Bob Pollard, Republic salesman, came in from the Tampa, Fla., branch to call on circuit bookers. . . . Visiting exhibitors were John Harrell, Martin Theatres, Atlanta; Lynn Goodyear, Empire, Daytona Beach, Fla.; Sam K. Strathos, Jefferson, Monticello, Fla.; Harold Poppell, Telco Theatres, West Palm Beach, Fla.; and from south Georgia, C. L. Jackson and J. M. Wells.

U-I branch workers geared themselves for the Charley Feldman Drive, which runs to April 30. The branch office was gaily decorated by Lyn Safer to herald the drive. Head booker Oliver Matthews said that U-I is offering exhibitors of the area a "baker's dozen package deal," consisting of 13 of U-I's best current feature products.

This year concludes Jacksonville's first decade as a film distribution center. Paramount was first on the scene, followed several years later by MGM in 1950. Columbia, third here, established its branch office in January, 1951; 20th-Fox in February, 1952; U-I in June. 1952; RKO and United Artists following soon after; and Buena Vista coming in only a few months ago. Only one film distribution firm maintains a Florida branch office outside of Jacksonville, that of Republic in Tampa.

Carl Carter presented a 30-minute act of a trick horse and its rider to supplement several double-feature programs at the Air Base Drive-In. . . . Bob Skaggs, manager, Florida, used an eye-arresting newspaper ad by ad writer Edith Smith, with generous amounts of green ink instead of black, to herald the opening of his first-run of "Green Fire." Prior to his opening, he had a lobby teaser display of a large shipping case labeled "handle with care" and "this contains the blonde dynamite of Grace Kelly in MGM's 'Green Fire.'" For a week prior to the opening, Skaggs' cashiers, ushers, and candy girls wore green silk streamers announcing the picture. All backboards of the largest drugstore and soda fountain in the theatrical district carried oversize ads, tying in "Green Fire" with the store's leading merchandise. A large jewelry store in the town's main shopping district tied-in with an emerald sale and display by using a trailer belt describing "Green Fire" which was projected from a hidden point onto a screen above the store's display window.

T. P. Tidwell, 20th-Fox branch manager, came back from several days spent in south Florida to report that motion picture grosses may reach an all-time high in resort cities crowded with free-spending tourists. . . . An attractive floral arrangement by Becky Roberts in the boxoffice of the Imperial was a reminder of a few years ago when all downtown theatres were similarly decorated. . . . Cecil Cohen opened the year at the Murray Hill with a completely redecorated interior to match his installation of CinemaScope.

There's excitement on Film Row in anticipation of the forthcoming "Sadie Hawkins Dance," which is to be sponsored by WOMPI, as gossip has it that there is much hidden talent that will be revealed in a floor show. Excitement is running high as plans are prepared to make this the gala event of 1955. The event takes place April 16 at Variety Club and will be sans evening gowns, with prizes for costumes. . . . Mrs. John Coll, wife of the Ski Club president, donned the frog suit of her husband and defied the weather to take a ride on water skis. The motor of the boat was too cold, so she just took a swim. A mighty pretty picture she made, and the suit worked fine.

New Orleans

Joy N. Houck, co-head, Howco Productions, flew to Hollywood for the initial screening room preview of their latest movie, "Kentucky Rifle." . . . Eileen Kaiser Clay, a member of WOMPI and head booker, Columbia, reigned as queen over Krewe of Carthage at the presentation of the Krewe's annual Carnival Ball which was held in the Municipal Auditorium Among the six maids of her court was her sister, Jo Ann Kaiser, also a WOMPI member and Columbia's contract clerk, and Mary Schumaker, another WOMPI member and Columbia's second booker. Another of the maids well known in film circles was Mildred Olister, whose papa, D. J. Olister, served as manager of theatres for more than a quarter of a century, and who just recently resigned as manager, Twin Do Drive-In, Metairie, La.

Claire Tremorel, WOMPI publicity chairman states that congratulations are in order for WOMPI members Lillian Flick, Paramount; Eva Vignalles, 20th-Fox; Connie Bouche, MGM; Nina Bauer, UA; Gloria Barefoot, 20th-Fox, and Evelyn Beyer, Paramount, who have birthdays in January and February, and to Dorothy Rybiski, U-I, who will observe an anniversary in February.

Tom Sawyer, manager, Polk, had the foresight to clip a humorous article about "Phffft," written by famous AP columnist Hal Boyle, about two months before the comedy feature was booked at his theatre. On the opening day of "Phffft," Boyle's column was blown up to three columns and used as the principal part of the Polk's newspaper ad. Sawyer also induced the local Arthur Murray dance studio to insert scatter ads in the newspaper to announce that free dance coupons were available to persons who passed the Polk's boxoffice to see Judy Holliday and Jack Lemmon doing the mambo in "Phffft."

Shreveport

For the second time in seven months, safe crackers looted the safe at the Broadmoor and escaped with more than $200. Charles Williams, manager, reported that the theft was carried out in identical fashion to the job pulled in June last year, when about $250 was taken. The burglars also broke into a cigaret machine and took an unknown amount of cash. Entrance to the theatre was made by prying the front door open. Williams said the safe was worth $450 and was a total loss. They took the safe from a closet in the office and rolled it to the main part of the theatre where the door was peeled off. The manager said the yeggs missed some $400 of Saturday's receipts which were in another place in the theatre.

Ohio Censorship Debate Continues

COLUMBUS, O. — Censorship of motion pictures has little trouble "with the vast majority of motion picture producers and distributors" said Dr. Clyde Hissong, former chief Ohio film censor, in a debate on censorship aired last week over WBNS and WBNS-TV, Columbus, on Columbus Town Meeting of the Air.

"Just as the State Highway Patrol has no trouble with most citizens who travel the highways but does have trouble with a minority, so there are a few distributors and producers who are constantly trying to 'strike it rich' through production of pictures abnormally emphasizing sex and crimes without regard to the accepted code," said Hissong.

"Producers with concern for the making of fine pictures and the maintenance of their legitimate profit look to existing laws and make movies with the legal limitations in mind," he added.

Hissong's opponent in the debate was Senator Charles Mosher, Republican, Oberlin, O., who led the fight against censorship in the legislature. He has introduced a bill to abolish all censorship. Said Mosher, "The extent of willingness to accept censorship, this false reliance on the 'protection' of bureaucratic authority in a field so largely concerned with ideas and ideals, is cause for grave concern. Where freedom of expression is curbed on one point, it is seriously threatened on all points. I believe that the motion picture is, in fact, a medium of expression in the same degree as are newspapers, magazines, books, radio and television. And all are certainly entitled to the same degree of freedom from prior restraint. The constitutional guarantees apply to all of them equally."

Also on the censorship front, showing of "The French Line" in eight Columbus neighborhood theatres caused The Columbus Dispatch to warn the industry that "sooner or later this unrestrained showing of unsuitable films is certain to arouse calls for an even more stringent brand of censorship."

"A moderate law, such as the Legislature doubtless will consider, can continue to protect the Ohio public from objectionable films, and worse," said the Dispatch. "And it will serve also to stave off the ironclad type of censorship of the kind that no one wants to see established," concluded the editorial.

Robert Wile, secretary, Independent Theatre Owners of Ohio, in commenting about the "remarkable business" done by "The French Line" in Cincinnati, Dayton and Columbus said that the cut version being shown is not objectionable, "although the ads are quite objectionable."

"Word of mouth is likely to hurt rather than help this picture," said Wile. "RKO's cooperation in releasing only the cut version is appreciated. There can be no objection to this, although the Legion of Decency still has the picture on its condemned list. If we were to show it to a legislative committee, the reaction is likely to be 'What's all the noise about?' "

Ohio Censorship

Wile, in a bulletin to Ohio theatremen, objected to a statement by Governor Frank Lausche in his inaugural speech in which the chief executive said a "certain number of members of the film and book industry have clearly demonstrated their unwillingness by self-restraint to protect our society" and constitute "a grave menace."

"We object to being classified as a menace under any circumstances," said Wile. "There are some independent distributors who have attempted to capitalize on the court decisions recently won. We hope that the Governor was referring to these people and not to any exhibitors. Nothing said here should be interpreted in any way as a condemnation of those distributors, major and independent alike, who have observed good taste and judgment. Meanwhile, we again plead with every exhibitor to do nothing to offend good taste and propriety. This applies to your advertising as well as your screen."

Wile predicted that the recently-introduced Putka bill which gives more specific definitions for censorship bans will not get out of the referral committee to which it has been assigned. He said the disposition of the bill indicates that legislative leaders "don't know just what to do with it and thus shelve it." Wile said the definitions in themselves "are about as obscene as any picture could be and frankly, I doubt whether this bulletin could go through the mail if the bill were reprinted." The bill is co-sponsored by Representative Corkell, Republican, Ottawa, O.

Wile challenged the statement of Dr. Hissong that "we don't have trouble with pictures approved by the Production Code." Wile reminded Hissong that in a 10-year period the board had ordered cuts in some 400 code-approved films. The board also banned a number of code-approved movies, including "M," "Kiss Tomorrow Goodbye," "The Outlaw," and "Born To Kill."

Hissong said chief trouble came from the non-code pictures, which constituted 40 per ccent of films submitted to the board last year. Of that number, about 30 per cent were foreign-made. Hissong suggested that any new Ohio censor law might have a provision automatically giving approval to code-approved pictures. Mosher said he doubted whether the Ohio Legislature has the legal authority to order such an exemption. Mosher countered with a suggestion that the board itself give automatic approval to such films. He said such a practice might be challenged in the courts by makers of non-code films.

Hissong stated that Ohio's censorship standards have had a good influence on movie-makers Mosher retorted, "That makes censorship just 48 times as bad." He added, "When you censor films on moral grounds, you also censor social, economic, and political ideas."

Hissong declared Ohio censorship has stood the test of time. The now defunct censor law was passed in 1913. He said, "Limited control of movies is just as essential as other controls we have for meeting present problems of juvenile delinquency, crime, and low moral tone."

Mosher demanded proof that children in Ohio are different from children in any other state which does not have film censorship. Hissong said there are no "objective tests" to prove this. He contended parents want help of "the kind on which they can depend" in selecting good movies for the children to see. Mosher countered by citing lists of approved movies issued by the Legion of Decency, the National Federation of Women's Clubs, Parents' Magazine, and many other agencies, including newspaper reviews, which give guidance to parents.

Mosher declared that New York is the only censorship state still actively reviewing pictures. "We should go forward to join the rest of the union in freedom of expression." He predicted that eventually the U. S. Supreme Court will declare all film censorship unconstitutional.

William H. Beau, manager, Louis, Louisville, Ohio, recently ran a contest on Warners' "Dial M for Murder" with free passes awarded to those giving the correct answer as to who was the murderer. He is seen above in the lobby of the theatre.

Prairie View Corporation, Chicago, has bought for about $300,000 the remainder of the leases on the East Drive-In, Shelbyville Road, and the West Drive-In, Dixie Highway, from Louisville Drive-In Theatres, Inc. Both leases run until August, 1966.

Robert A. Wile, executive secretary, Independent Theatre Owners of Ohio in a recent bulletin advises that "Besides censorship there are two other bills before the Legislature which have industry interest. One by Representative Miller, Cleveland, provides for daylight saving time throughout the state every summer." If this goes to a hearing, Wile says he will appear before the committee and oppose it. "However," Wile says, "We can do more through our allies in this fight such as the railroads, bus lines and air lines, the Parent Associations, and the farmers. The second bill would provide that Ohio State must have its football games televised and would expressly prohibit theatre television unless such telecast was also avilable in homes. Says Wile, "This one we will also appear against, particulary in the last clause. This would put the Legislature in the position of saying to Ohio State University that they must obtain a sponsor for such telecasts and that even if theatre television, should it be avilable, offered more money, that Ohio State must turn this down in favor of home television."

Ohio voters in November may be given a chance to legalize bingo in the state if the Ohio Legislature approves a bill introduced by Representative Anthony O. Calabrese, Democrat, Cleveland. His bill proposes a constitutional amendment to the anti-lottery laws so that bingo games for charitable, religious, or fraternal purposes may be allowed. The bill will be submitted to the voters if approved by three-fifths of the House and Senate. Calabrese sponsored a similar measure two years ago but it never received a hearing. Senator Robert R. Shaw, Republican, sponsored a similar bill two years ago, but it was killed in committee.

Norman Nadel, Columbus Citizen theatre editor, was a member of the press party flown from New York to Silver Springs, Fla., for the underwater premiere of Howard Hughes' "Underwater!" Nadel has also been seeing Broadway shows.

"Mlle. Gobette," a French picture with sub-titles in English, will be shown to adults only at the Ziegfeld starting Feb. 5.

Newly-elected Sheriff Joseph Lohman is taking a cool attitude toward the proposal to pin censorship on the five drive-ins and other theatres in unincorporated areas of Cook County, most of which are just outside the city limits. Lohman is a former sociology professor at the University of Chicago and would head a proposed five-man censor board. The censorship idea was sprung by William N. Erickson, chairman of the County Board's legislative committee, who announced the Illinois legislature would be asked to set up a censorship law. Sheriff Lohman holds that the best type of censorship is self-regulation by the industry itself and that "public authorities should proceed in a very restrained and cautious manner in censorship moves."

NEWS OF THE Territory

Boston Crosstown

The personal appearance of stars Tony Curtis, George Nader, and Claudia Hall at the world premiere of U-I's "Six Bridges To Cross" caused a near riot at the Keith Memorial, when more than 5,000 teenagers stormed the inside and outside of the theatre. Extra police were detailed to the scene during the first scheduled appearances of the star when Tony Curtis was signing autographs in the inside lobby. He was so mobbed that the management refused to allow him to appear for the two later autograph dates. Instead, he and the other two stars addressed the audience from the comparative safety of the stage. Even from this vantage point, the stars might have been mobbed had it not been for the extra police precautions taken by the management. Ben Domingo, manager, claims that the opening day's gross was $8,000, a new weekday record for the house with the only exception "The Robe," which played a year ago at upped prices.

Five bills pertaining to the industry have been filed in the House. Bill 718, petitioned by Joseph Wisniowski, Chicopee, regulating the further use of cinematographs for public exhibition, asks for the presence of two licensed operators in the booth and is the same bill that was filed a year ago which died in committee. Bill 934, petitioned by Mayor John B. Hynes, would require special licenses for operators of motion picture machines in churches, schools, and public institutions upon application of a fee of three dollars. Bill 1204, petitioned by Eileen M. Hogan, would prohibit the storage or distribution of nitrate motion picture film for public exhibition. If this bill were passed, it would outlaw any nitrate film entering the Commonwealth. Bill 1692, petitioned by Edward Lider, would have the age limit for licensed projectionists lowered from 21 years to 18 years. Bill 1701, petitioned by Frank C. Lydon, asks for an amendment to the cinematograph law which would strike out the existing regulations regarding the use of nitrate films, to apply only to cellulose acetate or slow-burning films.

George Nader, participating in the record comprehensive personal appearance campaign in connection with the Boston world premiere and New England territorial saturation of U-I's "Six Bridges to Cross," is seen in Boston recently with. standing, left to right, Harry Zeitz and Morton Zeitz, Zeitz Brothers Circuit; Ed Scully, Pittsfield, Mass., exhibitor; and, seated, Nader with E. Myer Feltman, Boston U-I branch manager.

Independent Exhibitors, Inc., and Drive-In Theatre Association of New England, through executive secretary Ray Feeley, advised members of the meeting of National Allied's board to be held in St. Louis at the Park Plaza Hotel on Feb. 7-8 and Allied's second national drive-in convention to be held at an adjoining hotel, the Chase, on Feb. 8-9-10. Feeley stated "the most important topic to be discussed at the annual board meeting will no doubt be the implications of the producing companies using the medium of toll-TV and presenting their pictures to the American public. You need no extra amount of imagination to comprehend what will happen to the sub-run theatres of the country if toll-TV is allowed by the government and employed by the producing companies of Hollywood. This will be the ultimate in the exhibitors' long fight for existence in this business. This measure certainly would obliterate all other successes that Allied has accomplished to date and would mean the ruination of 75 per cent of the theatres in this country. As an exhibitor, you are therefore urged to attend the meeting and do what you as an individual can to bolster Allied's position in this fight which could very well be to a most disastrous finish without the cooperation of everyone."

Sunday Censors Under Exhib Fire

BOSTON — An appeal was filed by the Brattle, Cambridge, Mass., from a ruling of the Middlesex Superior Court upholding the validity of the existing Sunday licensing law. Brattle is contesting the right of the Commissioner of Public Safety to deny a license to show the Swedish film, "Miss Julie," on Sunday on the grounds that the law is unconstitutional. Judge Cahill, Middlesex Superior Court, upheld the present regulation of the Department of Public Safety.

Under the present law, all motion pictures which are to be shown on Sundays must be licensed by the city or town and by the Department of Public Safety. The Department has refused the application of Brattle to show "Miss Julie" on two Sundays in the spring of 1954, and has refused a similar application for a future Sunday. Attorneys for the theatre contended in the lower court that the licensing law is invalid under both the United States Constitution and the Massachusetts Constitution.

By its appeal, the Brattle has placed the question of constitutionality before the Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court. It is expected the case will be argued before the Supreme Court early in 1955. Attorneys for the theatre are Peabody, Koufman, and Brewer, Boston, who cited a recent case in the Supreme Court of the United States striking down a New York licensing law which prohibited the showing of "sacrilegious" pictures as binding upon the Massachusetts court. Judge Cahill, however, upheld a demurrer filed by the attorney general alleging that the statute was constitutional.

Among those invited to meet David O. Selznick at a recent cocktail party at the Ritz Carlon Hotel by Joseph H. New Haven Fetes Taylor, Premiere

NEW HAVEN—Mayor Richard C. Lee presented Robert Taylor, star of "Many Rivers to Cross," with a proclamation honoring MGM's 1955 "Motion Picture Theatre Celebration" and setting aside the month of February as "Go to the Movies Month."

Taylor arrived from New York with a contingent of MGM studio and home office executives for the world premiere of his picture at Loew's Poli, the party consisting of Dan S. Terrell, home office publicity head; William Golden, studio publicist; and Arthur Canton, eastern division field press representative.

Shortly after his arrival, Taylor was interviewed by local newspapers and radio representatives of WHNC and WAVC, and more than 30 newspaper film editors and sports writers from nearby towns. Activities included an appearance on the WNHC-TV "Yankee Peddler" show, following which he appeared in the lobby of Loew's Poli to sign autographs. He was also honored at a luncheon attended by MGM and Winchester executives. A press cocktail party and buffet supper was held at the Taft Hotel, following which Taylor returned to the Poli for a stage appearance and was presented officially with the 1,500,000th gun manufactured by the Winchester organization.

Activity continues on the drive-in theatre scene. Two new corporations filed incorporation papers with the Secretary of State's office, Meadows Family Drive-In Theatre, Inc., Hartford, listing incorporators, Albert J. Bronstein, Attorney Bernard E. Francis, and Israel Bregman, all of Hartford; authorized capital, 100 shares in stock without par value; beginning business, paid-in capital of $1,000; and Summit Drive-In, Branford Hills, Branford, Conn., authorized capital stock, $50,000, incorporators, Charles M. Lane, North Haven; Irving C. Jacocks, Jr., and T. Holmes Bracken, both of Branford. The Meadows Family Drive-In will be the world's largest outdoor project, with car capacity for 2,010. Estimated cost is over the $500,000 mark. Unique features will include a modernistic six-lane cafeteria building, swimming and wading pools, first of their kind in an eastern drive-in, and extensive playground facilities, situated in two sections. The Bronstein interests also own and operate the East Hartford Family Drive-In, South Windsor, Conn. The Summit Drive-In incorporators are not newcomers to the film industry either. Lane at present owns and operates the New Haven Drive-In, North Haven, Conn., while Jacocks is owner and operator, Branford, four-wall situation in Branford.

The drive-in being constructed on Route 6A by the Ames Construction Company has been leased for 25 years to Perakos Theatre Associates, New Britain, Conn. May Wynn and Robert Francis were in for personal appearances and a crowded publicity schedule arranged by Mike Stranger, Plymouth, in connection with Columbia's "They Rode West." Stranger, in acknowledging appreciation to theatres for their untiring efforts, stated he is convinced that much good will come from presenting in person, clean cut, educated movie individuals, to the people in the community, providing a wholehearted attempt is made through all mediums available to sell them as being just like the boy or girl next door or the lady and gent across the street; and providing the greatest effort is made to sell the film they are appearing in and the theatre, rather than far away Hollywood. Stranger's campaign had the stars picked up at Union Station by a promoted '55 Lincoln-Mercury and escorted to the Mayor's office by motorcycle police escort. Mayor James O'Brien greeted them and presented them with a "key to the city." Next they met the press, radio, and TV people at a Hotel Sheraton luncheon. Later they made three radio and TV appearances on three stations and a tape recording interview for another. Wynn and Francis in the early evening held a theatre lobby autographing session with star photos given away free. For street bally, Stranger had a western two-seater cavalry wagon, drawn by a beautiful pair of horses and appropriately bannered, traversing the town.

Edward H. Harwood, manager, Burns, in a tieup with local merchants is running a photo contest in conjunction with the showing of "Rose Marie." This includes an all-expense paid trip to Boston for a weekend and tickets to see "Cinerama" there, plus tickets to a legitimate show and $20 in cash for incidentals. Prior to leaving, the "Rose Marie" local girl will be presented with a dozen red roses on the stage of the theatre and a red rose corsage to wear on the train. All entries must submit photographs to the theatre so they may be judged by the local merchants who have donated toward the weekend trip. The winner will be crowned "Miss Rose Marie of Orleans County." Harwood, incidentally, was chairman of the Variety Club's Heart Fund drive for Orleans County.

Governor Lauds R. I. Theatremen

PROVIDENCE — Speaking before some 50 Rhode Island theatre owners, operators, and managers, at a dinner held in the State Suite of the Sheraton-Biltmore Hotel, Governor Dennis J. Roberts commended the exhibitors "for their charity and hard work in promoting the March-Of-Dimes campaign" and for their efforts in rallying to the support of every worthwhile enterprise that benefitted humanity. He said, "Despite a busy schedule, you give of your time and efforts to guarantee the success of these worthwhile causes, and I, as governor, know that I speak for all Rhode Islanders when I say your tremendous work is sincerely and gratefully appreciated."

The dinner-rally, given by the Governor in behalf of the Infantile Paralysis Foundation, just one of several charitable and philanthropic endeavors that theatremen sponsor locally was attended by representatives from every theatre in the state.

Speakers included Louis A. R. Pieri, state chairman, who reported that Rhode Island stood first among all states in 1954, showing the greatest per capita increase in contributions. He attributed this directly to the efforts of the theatre owners, operators, and managers.

Joseph F. Nee, director of fund raising activities, National Infantile Paralysis Foundation, gave a brief outline of the progress that was being made with the new preventative serums. He, too, was generous in his praise of the activities of local theatremen.

Dr. James H. McLaughlin, head, State Board of Health, and president and treasurer, state Infantile Paralysis Foundation, in reporting a deficit exceeding $9,000 covering the past 12 months, indicated he "felt sure the theatre group would not only make up this deficit, but their efforts as proven by past performances would take us out of the red."

Present at the dinner in addition to local showman were Robert M. Sternberg, vice-president and district manager, New England Theatres, Boston; Larry Herman, Associated Theatres, Boston; John Harris, president, Ice-Capades"; Joseph H. O'Donnell, chairman, Providence County Chapter, Infantile Paralysis Foundation; G. Fred Aiken, MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR correspondent; and Albert J. Clarke, former Majestic manager, who operates a large commercial estate brokerage business.

Willard J. Mathews, Majestic manager, acted as chairman of the occasion in the absence of Edward M. Fay, who was recuperating in a local hospital following an operation. Fay has headed this drive for the past 18 years, ever since its inception. Mathews was ably assisted by Ed Kelly, assistant-manager at the Majestic.

Archibald Silverman, president, Strand Realty Corporation, operators, Strand, and next to Fay, the man longest in Rhode Island show business, was greeted by many friends at the dinner. Governor Roberts will again act as honorary chairman of the drive.

Committee Urges Return of Will Rogers Scrolls

NEW YORK—Abe Dickstein, local distributor chairman, and Ray Rhone, local exhibitor chairman, 1954 Christmas Salute to Will Rogers Memorial Hospital, Saranac Lake, N. Y., last week urged that although the official campaign period is long ended, there are still many scrolls outstanding in the New York exchange area and all efforts must be made to get them in on or before March 1.

Area receipts from scrolls and special gifts as of Jan. 21 equalled $26,152.41. This compares with $26,936.40 for the entire campaign of 1953. When the large number of scrolls still to be returned from the area, it is certain that New York will go over its last year's figures by a good margin. But the wind-up period must be made, from now until Feb. 25. Every last scroll, every last dollar of contribution rounded-up should be returned to the hospital's national office, 1501 Broadway.

Joe Miller, Menands Drive-In, expects to install CinemaScope before the spring reopening.

A valued friend of Variety, William Knightly, vice-president, Pepsi-Cola, flew International Chief Barker George C. Hoover here in his plane from Washington for Hoover's official visit to Tent 9 and attendance at its testimonial dinner for Charles A. Smakwitz, new Stanley Warner zone manager, Newark, N. J.

Every Variety Club, Tent 9 included, should employ the services of the Foote organization in raising money for their charitable projects, so Chief Barker George H. Schenck reported that International Chief Barker George C. Hoover, Miami, Fla., told local officers during an hour's confab on the local unit's affairs. Hoover reported that the Foote people had raised more than $400,000 last year for the Children's Hospital, Miami. They handle the campaign arrangements, prepare the literature, man the telephones, and care for other details, receiving a set fee for the job. This is not paid until the drive has ended. The amount is the same, regardless of the total raised. Tent 9 was to receive specific information from the money-collecting organization about its plan and probably would contract for the service in conducting the 1955-56 Camp Thatcher drive, Schenck said.

Nat Rosen, 20th-Fox branch manager, headed the local delegation to a district meeting in Boston, addressed by Glen Norris. Salesmen John Wilhelm and Clayton Pantages accompanied Rosen. . . . The area experienced a surge of Italian-picture promotion; Harold Strassman played and strongly advertised "Citta Canora" and "Fugitive in Trieste" at the Eagle, here, for a three-day first-run exhibition; John Capano screened two consecutive Italian bills at the State, Troy, N. Y.; Sidney Dwore presented "Taxi de Notte" and "Tormento" at the Cameo, Schenectady, N. Y., for two nights; Stanley Warner Delaware, presented "Bread, Love and Dreams."

Harold I. Tyler, owner, Delphia, Chittenango, N. Y., is serving his third year in the Assembly. The only exhibitor elected to the Legislature in recent years, Tyler also is engaged in the funeral directing, furniture and electrical appliance business.

Theatre Group Pleads For City Tax Reduction

PHILADELPHIA — Another attempt by the Philadelphia Theatre Association to have City Council reduce the city admissions tax was made last week. This time the group asked Council to reduce the tax from 10 per cent to five per cent.

Al Sindlinger, market analyist, delivered an impressive statement of facts; Howard Minsky, eastern division manager, Paramount, said "Philadelphia's theatre business as compared to other tax free cities was poor. With business now picking up a bit, adjustment of the tax situation would be a big help." Lester Krieger, SW executive, said, "The city budget would not be affected by reduction of the tax as many more people would go and make up the difference by paying the smaller tax." He promised that any tax reduction by the city would be passed on to the public. Jerry Ford, University of Pennsylvania, representing other athletic endeavors, asked that the tax be eliminated entirely for sports events. Councilman at large Victor H. Blanc lead most of the discussion and was seemingly in favor of the reduction. The matter was taken under advisement.

In Baltimore County's Equity Court it was ruled by Judge J. Howard Murray that a drive-in, two miles from Edmondson Village, Md., where an indoor theatres happen to be located, will be allowed to retain its name. Edmondson Village Theatre, Inc., had sought to enjoin Joseph Y. Einbinder, owner, Edmondson Drive-In, from operating under that name. In seeking the injunction, the plaintiff contended that adoption of the name Edmondson Drive-In bears a confusing similarity to Edmondson Village; that it constitutes unfair competition; and had diverted customers and potential customers from the indors to the outdoors.

Leon Back, head, Rome Theatres, and president, Allied Motion Picture Theatre owners of Maryland, will attend the Allied convention in St. Louis. . . . Bernard M. Serlin, Warners, New York, was in for advance promotion of "Battle Cry."

The world premiere of "Battle Cry" at the Stanley, as put on by manager Rodney Collier, was a gala occasion. With film stars Mona Freeman, Dorothy Malone, and Tab Hunter, plus the story's author, Leon Uris, and director Raoul Walsh for personal appearances, the occasion marked one of the biggest events of its kind ever held in Ba'timore.

Three local projectionists, Charles Pearce, George Mathews, and Charlie Conners, who were ill, are well on the road to recovery. . . . Jack Sidney, city manager, Loew's, here, made a hit as impromptu master-of-ceremonies at the testimonial dinner for J. Lawrence Schanberger, formerly of Keiths. . . . Frank LaFalce, Stanley Warner advertising head, was in on business.

The Astor, J. Lester Stallman, manager, began advertising "Six Bridges to Cross" the same day news stories and an editorial in The Reading Times discussed delay in a big state highway project, with six bridges in the Reading area. The cost of the project will far exceed the total of the $2,500,000 robbery pictured in the "Six Bridges" film.

The Plaza was reopened for a night for a concert by the Reading Choral Society. . . . Reading Consistory, Scottish Rite Masons, voted at a business meeting to lease part of Rajah Temple, Mystic Shriners, for office and storage uses, and also to lease Rajah for all its degree and business meetings and social entertainments for the next two years. The Plaza has been without a continuous tenant for nearly three years. With a capacity of 1,000 to 1,200, it was completely renovated by Cornelius G. Keeney, then manager and lessee, about five years ago and is in very good condition. The house may eventually be renovated for store or office purposes.

The Embassy, Paul E. Glase, manager, displayed in its lobby during the showing of "Prince of Players," the life of Edwin Booth, original Booth playbills of more than 60 years ago and a Booth authographed photo, all from manager Glase's theatre library and program collection.

Charlie Kessler, Reading Times columnist, devoted an entire column to pests who annoy paying customers in movie houses. High on his list are the "tongue wagglers," who spend most of the time they are in the house in loud conversation about everything and nothing of importance; the 'show-offs," who know the story of the picture and want to tell everyone; and the "roughnecks," guilty of bad manners, not to mention downright vandalism.

Masonic organizations are considering plans to establish a joint central Masonic committee to study plans for separate or a joint building operation in a suburb, on a large tract that would provide the parking facilities and space for large banquets needed by both Rajah Temple, Mystic Shrine, and Reading Consistory, Scottish Rite Masons. The prospective moves, if adopted, would affect the future of two theatres, the 1,200-seat Plaza, part of the present Masonic Temple, and Rajah, 2,000 seats, part of the Rajah Temple property. The Reading Consistory, Scottish Rite Masons, now meeting in the Plaza, is about to rent the Rajah on a two-year lease.

Scranton

Permission was granted by local superintendant of building Joseph Corcoran to the Scranton Drive-In Amusement Company, owned by Scavo Brothers, Old Forge, Pa., also owners, Oak Hill Drive-In, for the erection of the first local drive-in. Plans provide for a one story structure of cinder block construction with surface dimensions of 30 feet by 60 feet, and a screen 63 feet high and 85 feet wide with the overall estimated cost of the entire project being $100,000. The tract where the theatre will be located is 200 feet by 800 feet, and there will be space for 500 automobiles.

Tom Jones, manager, Strand, was host to the area nuns, numbering about 250, at a showing of "Silver Chalice."

Manager Bill Kays reported a highly successful premier showing of "The Detective," the inaugural attraction under the new policy effected by the Capitol whereby each Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday high calibre entertainment will be presented to theatre-goers of the area. To further mark the adoption of the art policy, on the opening night coffee was served to the patrons on the mezzanine floor. A succession of noteworthy films, both American and foreign, are scheduled for presentation. Columbia's Alec Guinness English-made comedy got things off to a fast choice.

A capacity audience, among whom were Federal Judge John Murphy, Lackawanna County President Judge T. Linus Hoban, Mayor James Hanlon, and attorney Henry Nogi, president, Scranton Chamber of Commerce, attended the premier showing of "This Is Your Army" in the Capitol, Bill Kays, manager. Lieutenant Colonel Francis E. THE CHECK-UP

This every-second-week regular department is NOT just an index as published in many other trade papers.

THE CHECK-UP is an exclusive EXHIBITOR service. Started many years ago, it represents a complete, unmatchable . . .

CAPSULE SUMMARY

. . . of ALL Features and of ALL Shorts that have been released and reviewed during the last 8 Months, . . . PLUS information on all that are in production for early release.

WITH THE CHECK-UP AT HAND—

. . . it is NOT necessary to go to your file or to look up a complete Review in order to find:

VOLUME 53 NUMBER 15

RIGHT SUIT . . . WRONG CUSTOMER!

ONE OF THE SILLIEST SUITS currently being pushed by the Department of Justice is the so-called "16mm. Anti-trust," that recently roped in a flock of theatre owner associations to add to the bundle of producers and distributors originally named as defendants several years ago. It almost looks as though the Justice boys ran out of material and, in desperation, grabbed at anything. Certain it is that if they had shown any interest in this industry, even since their suit was filed, they would realize that most, if not all, of those theatre owner associations couldn't agree with producers and distributors on the time of day. And vice versa!

Of course, this was a silly suit to begin with, and most industryites believe it was instituted as much in an effort to help the first faltering steps of the new TV industry as in any belief that the 35mm. motion picture industry was erring in protecting its products and its normal outlets. The rejuvenation and rescheduling of this suit at this time, when our industry is attempting to file a fair answer to the threat of toll-TV, could again reflect the efforts of the powerful TV interests.

And, speaking about TV interests reminds us of some other customers for antitrust action if those Justice boys are looking for something to do.

How about the newspapers?

Look around and notice how many of them, by dint of licensing of the news wire services and by merger, are now either alone in, or peacefully "cohabiting" with one another in the leading cities of the land.

While selling the same circulation to all advertisers, they arbitrarily set a rate on the advertising of the local theatre that is higher than and sometimes double that paid by any other local retail merchant. Critics, often unqualified and seldom initiated in even the basic rudiments of popular entertainment, have complete freedom to lambast and advise readers to avoid the very pictures currently advertised. "Egg-head" writers, of little judgment or ability other than the college requirements in English composition, "talk down" domestic motion pictures as moronic, and only find the arty imports worthy of their grudging praise.

And now, one after another, the opulent big publishers have expanded into radio and TV. In one of the largest industrial cities of the nation, having three TV stations, two of them are owned by the two newspapers that peacefully dominate the morning and evening fields. In another city of 125,000 there is now only one publishing company publishing a morning and an evening paper (with special high rates to advertisers who don't use both), and operating the one TV station of the area. With minor variances this same situation can be repeated section by section across the country. And where TV station ownership exists, the attention to TV programs and the praise for everything that is TV is dramatically obvious. The same pictures that stunk five or ten years ago when they played the local theatre somehow take on a nicer odor and are "recommended for your evening's entertainment" when they play TV.

This is just a rough outline. There is much more that could be added, some specific and some general. And a monopoly of the public's information could be much more dangerous to the American life than a monopoly of its entertainment, or of its automobiles, or of its cigarettes.

So, if the Justice boys have some spare suits, we'd like to suggest some customers we really feel they can fit.

(For additional comment on the above subject, see editorial box on page 8)

SMART THEATRE MANAGEMENT

WE LIKE the recently announced policy of the Walter Reade Circuit under which teachers in the various public and private schools in the areas served by their theatres will merit a special reduced admission scale. There is probably no one group of the potential movie patronage that is in such a responsible position to cultivate and form the opinion of the future. However, teachers' income has not kept pace with rising costs. They could use a break!

As an industry we pride ourselves on the fact that our entertainment offerings have become more mature, and that our interprctations of the classics and of historical fact add materially to the culture of the nation. If we are right, the teachers of the land should be the first to recognize it, and we should do everything possible to win their approval and recommendation.

NEW YORK
By Mel Konecoff

GRATIS NOTE: Paramount last week unveiled its two-reel short, "Paramount Presents VistaVision," which presents scenes from the first 10 features made by the company in the improved photographic process. It intends to supply the subject to theatres gratis so that customers can get a glimpse of what is in store for the future from the Paramount studios, and toward that end a total of 500 prints are on order with Technicolor. All will be working by mid-March. The result is interesting, educational, and calculated to whet the appetites of patrons especially where the theatres play Paramount product. Scenes from the following films are presented: "White Christmas," "Run For Cover," "The Trouble With Harry," "To Catch A Thief," "The Seven Little Foys," "We're No Angels," "The Far Horizons," "Three Ring Circus," "Strategic Air Command," and "Lucy Gallant." The photography is nice and clear.

HONOR DEPARTMENT: Retired army sergeant Marty Maher, on whose life at West Point Columbia's "The Long Gray Line" is based, was honored with a luncheon at the Lambs Club last week. Columnists, sports writers, and other representatives of the press were on hand, as were several well-known West Point oldtimers who attended while Maher was in action. General Albert Wedemeyer, General Willis Crittenberger, and three former Army All-American football stars Elmer Oliphant, Gene Vidal, and John McEwan paid tribute to Maher and related some stories concerning his activities at the Point. He got even and did the same on them.

The observation may be made that he looks pretty much like Tyrone Power, who

(As of this Monday)

Boxoffice Freeze Continues

NEW YORK—Old Man Winter had Broadway first-runs in a deep freeze over the weekend with the inclement, to say the least, weather blamed for the off-beat business in most spots.

According to usually reliable reports reaching MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR, the breakdown was as follows:

"Battle Cry" (Warners). Paramount was heading toward a most satisfactory $90,000 opening week.

"The Racers" (20th-Fox). Roxy announced $24,535 for Thursday through Sunday, with the opening week sure to top $45,000.

"The Bridges At Toko-Ri" (Paramount). Radio City Music Hall, with stage show, hit $84,000 for Thursday through Sunday, with the third session heading toward $128,000.

"The Country Girl" (Paramount). Criterion claimed the eighth week would tally $35,000.

"Bad Day At Black Rock" (MGM). Rivoli reported the first week would top $25,000.

"Cattle Queen Of Montana" (RKO). Globe was down to $8,000 on the second week.

"The Americano" (RKO). Mayfair dropped to $10,000 for the third, and last, week.

"20,000 Leagues Under The Sea" (Buena Vista-Disney). Astor claimed $36,000 for the seventh week.

"Unchained" (Warners). Victoria reported that the second week would hit $13,000.

"Vera Cruz" (UA). Capitol announced that the last five days of the seventh week would be around $16,000.

"The Violent Men" (Columbia). Loew's State was heading toward $18,000 on the second week.

Chesapeake Decision Reversed

NEW YORK—The United States Court of appeals last week reversed a Federal District Court ruling that Loew's, RKO Theatres, and RKO Film Booking Corporation were released from the $15 million anti-trust action filed by Chesapeake Industries in the contract covering the transfer of Chesapeake's assets to United Artists.

The action against Chesapeake Industries was filed in October, 1950, by Eagle Lion Classics, who also named Loew's, RKO, Paramount, Warners, 20th-Fox, Columbia, and United Artists as defendants. Eagle Lion's assets were sold to United Artists in 1953, and the contract released United Artists from claims in the lawsuit.

Arnall Keeps Post

HOLLYWOOD—Governor Ellis G. Arnall was reelected president, Independent Film Producers Export Corporation, last week.

The meeting of the executive committees of the Society of Independent Motion Picture Producers and IFPEC also named as officers of IFPEC, Gunther Lessing, board chairman; Marvin L. Faris, vice-president and secretary; and George Bagnall, treasurer. The committee also voted to continue its membership in the Motion Picture Industry Council, with the same contribution as last year, $2,500.

Exhibs Win Round In New York Tax Fight

Marcus Not To Stand For Allied Re-election

WASHINGTON—In a letter to board members of Allied States, President Ben Marcus announced last week that he will be unable to offer his services as a candidate for reelection to the office of president for a second term.

Marcus stated that "due to the heavy penetration of new TV stations in our area during this past year, it created a tremendous pressure and demand on my time and personal efforts in the operation of my circuit of theatres, in addition to my organizational activities. At times, the pressure was so great that it was almost beyond human endurance, and my doctors advise me that unless I limit some of this activity, I am faced with a complete physical breakdown."

Marcus pointed with pride to the accomplishments of Allied during this past year on behalf of independent exhibitors. He enumerated the appointment of regional vice-presidents; the stereophonic sound issue which was successfully resolved; the formation of the Emergency Defense Committee; the Declaration of Emergency, which document he referred to as a milestone in the motion picture industry; the action taken by the E.D.C. against Columbia and its successful solution and amicable settlement with Columbia; and the effort by Allied leaders in the successful fight for elimination of the admission tax.

Marcus declared that there was no other group or organization that is more important to the welfare of the independent exhibitor than Allied. He promised to be willing and ready to contribute his time, effort, and money to help preserve this great organization. He offered his unlimited support whenever called upon to act in whatever capacity by the leadership of Allied, and promised his utmost cooperation and support to the new officers and directors who will be elected for the coming year.

Marcus also answered a letter from E. D. Martin, president, TOA, and expressed pleasure that a report that TOA was opposed to Allied's Declaration of Emergency was found to be erroneous.

He stated that exhibition's problems were "identical and numerous" and invited all exhibitors to support the Declaration of Emergency Defense Committee. Marcus also stated that he would refer to the Allied board Martin's suggestion that committees of TOA and Allied meet to discuss cooperative action.

Censorship Appeal Planned

NEW YORK—Times Film Corporation will appeal to the courts the Maryland State Censor's rejection of the French film, "The Game Of Love," it was announced last week by William Shelton, vice-president in charge of sales.

The corporation is still waiting for a decision on its appeal for reversal of the Pennsylvania censor's rejection of the film, and will institute a suit in the Court of Common Pleas if the rejection is upheld.

SCTOA Asks Extension Of Circuit Expansion Ban

HOLLYWOOD—The Southern California Theatre Owners Association last week urged the Department of Justice to "view with greatest concern" efforts of the "giant theatre companies formed from acquisitions of former producer-theatre owning defendants, to further expand their theatre properties."

Calling such companies monopolistic by reason of their very size, the SCTOA claimed that independent theatre owners could not compete on fair and reasonable terms with the purchasing power of these giant companies, and that the Justice Department should continue in effect those rulings in the case of the United States versus Paramount which restrained the companies formed by the breakup of the producer-exhibitor combines from buying new theatre properties. The resolution hoped that such rulings would be continued for a time sufficient to allow managers of new drive-ins to compete with the big companies entering the drive-in field. Copies of the resolution were sent to the Justice Department and members of Congress.

Government Concludes Case

BUFFALO—The government last week concluded its case in the contempt trial of Schine Chain Theatres.

Government attorney called 69 witnesses and presented about 960 documents in the trial, which started Dec. 9. It is expected that the Schine defendents will present their defense after a week's adjournment to permit them to prepare their case.

Supreme Court Rules City Has No Power To Collect Breakage; Tax Held Valid, But Retrial Is Forecast

NEW YORK—Justices of the Supreme Court, Appelate Division, Brooklyn, ruled last week that New York City has no power to collect any tax on admissions in excess of five per cent.

Exhibitors in New York City have been withholding, with permission from a lower court, such "breakage" since the imposition of the admissions tax. Justice Gerald Nolan, presiding in the case, stated that it was not clear that the state legislature in its enabling act wished to prevent the customary practice of adding an additional cent wherever computation results in a fraction of one half cent or more. Since the language of the statute did not reveal "a clear intention to prohibit" such practice, he declared the local law to be valid, but definitely called the New York City major fraction ruling illegal, since its collection results in a tax of more than five per cent.

Although the Supreme Court, in its three to two decision, found the collection of the "breakage" illegal, Justice Nolan warned the exhibitors that they faced the possibility of criminal prosecution if they failed to comply with the law. He also refused to grant an injunction in the case.

Thomas Bress, attorney for Loew's, Inc., expressed the opinion that the decision of the court would probably send the matter back to the lower courts for a trial on all the issues. Although the attorney called the decision in the breakage matter a great victory for the exhibitors, the city was expected to sue for the monies collected on the grounds that the exhibitors were acting as the city's agents in the collection of the tax.

He urged exhibitors to continue to display signs telling their patrons to save their ticket stubs for possible tax refunds.

Stanley Buchsbaum, assistant corporation counsel in charge of the New York City excise department, revealed that he would seek permission from the Appelate Division to file notice of appeal with the Court of Appeals in Albany within a week or 10 days, hoping for a hearing about Feb. 21.

Polaroid Patents Upheld

WILMINGTON, DEL.—"Upon the stipulation and consent of the parties and their attorneys, and solely and upon that basis, without a hearing or adjudication based on proofs or counter-proofs," Chief Judge Paul Leahy, U. S. District Court, last week signed a "final consent decree" holding that three patents owned by Polaroid Corporation are valid and have been infringed by Multiplate Glass Corporation and Glendale Optical Company, Inc., permanently enjoining and restraining each of them from directly or indirectly infringing any claims of the patents, from offering or advertising so to do, and from aiding or abetting or in any way contributing to the infringement of the patents.

Industry Press Relations Better, But COMPO Report Cites TV Danger

NEW YORK—The motion picture industry's press relations have shown marked improvement in the last year, it was revealed last week by Harry Mandel, RKO Theatres, chairman, COMPO press relations committee, in releasing results of a nation-wide press survey conducted by COMPO regional press relations groups.

A tabulation of press relations reports covering 102 cities and towns showed that the attitude of the nation's newspaper editors toward the industry is generally sympathetic, Mandel said.

"The intensive missionary work done by COMPO regional press groups during the successful tax campaign," Mandel asserted, "made many newspaper editors realize that there is more to our business than they had been led to believe, and that it is very much to the newspapers' advantage to foster the prosperity of motion picture theatres. The COMPO ads in Editor and Publisher have supplemented the work of the regional committees, and the excitement caused by technological improvements and a succession of outstanding pictures has also been reflected in editorial columns."

Besides Mandel, those on the committee are Harry Goldberg, Stanley Warner Theatres, vice chairman; Oscar A. Doob, MGM; Jerome Pickman, Paramount; Ernest Emerling, Loew's Theatres; Gilbert Golden, Warners; and Kenneth Clark, MPAA. Charles McCarthy, COMPO director of information, has acted as coordinator.

The survey, suggested by Doob, was conducted by means of a questionnaire which was sent to 268 members of COMPO regional press groups several weeks ago. Replies to these questionnaires totaled 122.

The survey shows that 50 newspapers are giving more space to news of the industry than they did a year ago, and only 15 have reduced their movie news coverage. Some of this reduction took place in locations where newspapers have acquired an interest in, or control of, local TV stations. Seventy-five of the replies stated that local newspapers were sympathetic in their attitude towards the industry, and only 14 reported the local press as critical. Forty described the attitude as better than a year ago, and 11 as worse.

The majority of the papers in the areas reporting carry TV and radio program listings, some of them as paid ads. Exclusive of these listings, however, a large majority of the papers continue to give more free space to movies than they do to television and radio. Television coverage, however, has increased, particularly in those areas where newspapers own an interest in TV stations, but 74 replies indicated that movie space has not suffered as a result, and 28 replied that it had.

"Personal contacts with newspaper editors established by industry representatives during the tax campaign," Mandel said, "unquestionably resulted in a better editorial understanding of the industry problems. Many newspaper editors have been frank to admit that through these contacts and the Editor and Publisher ads they have been made aware of industry problems and difficulties of which they had no previous knowledge.

Barney Balaban, right, Paramount Pictures president, recently received at his New York office a citation by The National Association for Mental Health for "his outstanding contribution to the fight against mental illness by making possible a benefit premiere of "White Christmas" in Los Angeles in behalf of the Southern California Society for Mental Hygiene. Presenting the award is S. E. Judd, top officer, national Foundation.

"In order that we may continue to retain the good will of the nation's newspapers and improve our relations in those few areas where there is still some hostility, I think it is imperative that industry representatives improve and strengthen their press contacts, and take the initiative in frankly presenting their problems and viewpoints to local editors whenever industry developments or motives are likely to be misrepresented or misunderstood. I also think that industry representatives, particularly exhibitors in small situations, are missing an important bet in not bringing to the attention of local editors the series of COMPO ads now being published, as not all of them have had the opportunity to see and read these ads as they appeared. Extra copies are always available at COMPO headquarters."

Allied Interim Report Stresses Film Rentals

ST. LOUIS—The board of National Allied heard this week the interim report of Allied's Emergency Defense Committee, recommending a "field settlement" of the issue of film rentals.

The report, which describes the problem of film rentals as the "overshadowing economic problem of the industry," proposes that in the case of difficulties arising over the rental of a film, a meeting should be arranged between an Allied leader from the territory, a member of the Emergency Defense Committee, and the company's division manager or other executive. It is claimed that in such a conference, the EDC member could inform the exhibitor, and in some cases the division manager as well, of the practices and prices prevailing in other territories. That this may be necessary was indicated in the reports from Allied units in different territories, which indicated that the same company, in different localities, might be pursuing different policies. For instance, in Maryland and New Jersey, 20th-Fox is thought to be living up to its agreements with exhibitors, while in western Pennsylvania it is reported that 20th-Fox definitely is not. As to the question of which company is the hardest to get along with, out of 16 regions, six selected Paramount, two 20th-Fox, six Warners, and two U-I.

The EDC report made no recommendation in the matter of the proposed bill to regulate film rentals, stating that the mater should be left in the hands of the national board, which should be unembarrassed by a premature expression on the part of EDC members.

The report also stated that the recent tax cut did not aid small town and subrun theatres significantly, but contributed largely to the profits of the film companies.

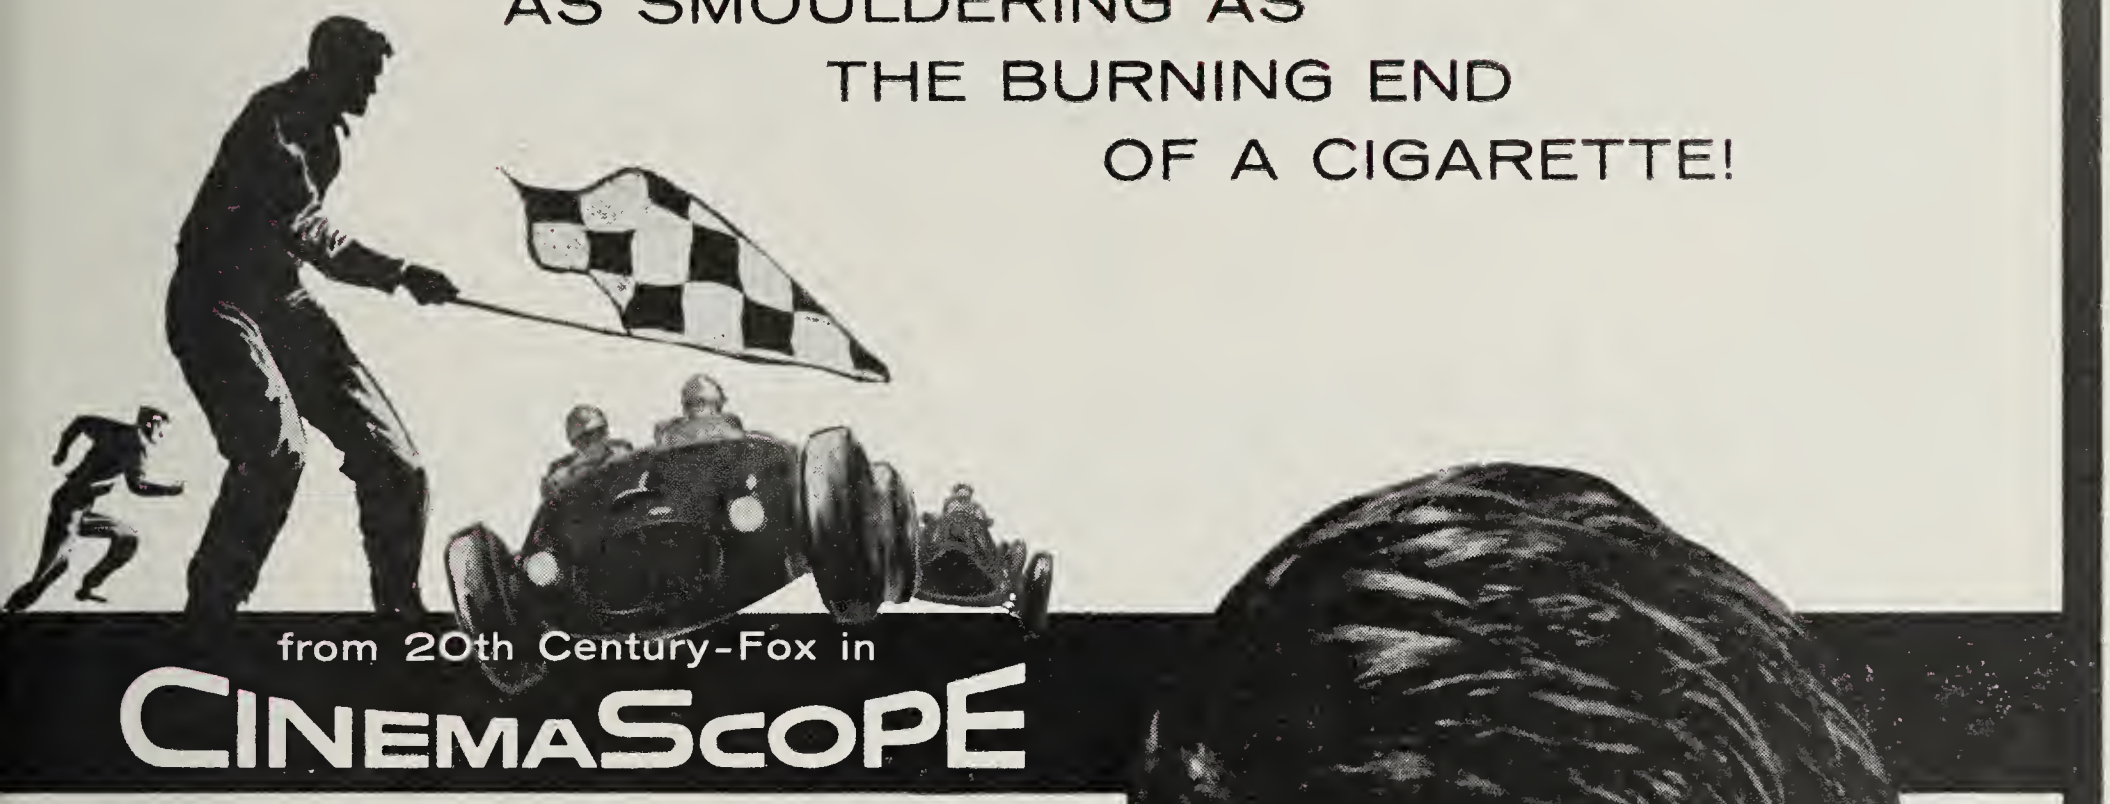
It expressed disappointment that the proposed industry round-table conference was shelved until an agreement of arbitration was worked out.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT!

Subsequent to the writing of the editorial, "RIGHT SUIT . . . WRONG CUSTOMER," (see this issue) a very interesting press release credited to Harry Mandel, chairman, COMPO press relations committee, has come to hand. Relating to a tabulation of press relations reports, covering 102 cities and towns, taken up during recent weeks, Mandel states it showed that the attitude of the nation's newspaper editors toward the industry is generally sympathetic. In a further explanatory breakdown, the survey shows that "50 newspapers are giving more space to news of the industry than they did a year ago, and only 15 have reduced their movie news coverage"; that "some of this reduction took place in locations where newspapers have acquired an interest in, or control of, local TV stations"; that "75 of the replies stated that local newspapers were sympathetic in their attitude toward the industry, and only 14 reported the local press as critical."

Now there is a nice coincidence in numbers; "15 have reduced their movie news coverage" and "14 reported the local press as critical."

We suppose the very best in professional movie making, combining the world's best story with the biggest name actors and exhibited with the latest technical innovations, can expect antagonism, criticism, and a "bad press" from all newspaper publishers who have one foot in the TV bucket. When the movie theatre attendance figure increases in their area there is a good probability that the "Hooper" on any home TV viewing audience will decrease. And it is the viewing audience that the advertiser buys. Nobody has to draw pictures!



But if the Justice boys have trouble disposing of those 14 or 15 suits that they are trying to fit to the movie industry's wardrobe come next September, we'd like to recommend that they latch onto Harry Mandel's current survey as a prospect list.

Warner's First Quarter Earnings High, But Decrease Is Forecast

WILMINGTON, DEL.—Stockholders of Warners were told last week at the annual meeting that there is no estimate of earnings for the present quarter, but based on December and January the operating results will not be as favorable as the first quarter which ended Nov. 27, 1954.

Former Federal Judge Hugh M. Morris, who presided at the meeting, announced that for the November quarter Warners and subsidiary companies report a net profit of $1,203,224 after provision of $1,300,000 for federal income taxes and $175,000 for contingent liabilities, or 48 cents per share. In the corresponding quarter one year ago, earnings were 30 cents per share or $765,000, after $825,000 for federal income taxes and $75,000 for contingencies.

Film rentals, sales, etc., after eliminating inter-company transactions, for the three months ended Nov. 27, 1954, amounted to $18,414,000 as compared with $15,825,000 for the corresponding period last year, Judge Morris said.

A charter amendment providing for the stagger system of electing directors in accordance with existing by-law provisions was approved by the shareholders, receiving the votes of 1,954,455 shares in favor, 20,614 against, and 103,386 not voting.

Stockholder I. Emanuel Sauder, Philadelphia, questioned the legality of the move in view of the previous day's decision by Judge Harry M. Fisher, Chicago, outlawing the stagger system as a violation of the Illinois constitution.

Robert W. Perkins, vice-president, secretary, and general counsel, Warners, pointed out that the Chicago decision was on the Illinois state constitution, and declared there is "no doubt" of the validity of the stagger system in Delaware. Judge Morris expressed doubt that any Delaware court would follow the Chicago decision in the face of a Delaware state constitution provision permitting the directorial stagger system.

Frank E. Schoonover, prominent Delaware artist, asked whether the charter amendment means a change in Warners meeting place. Perkins stated that it does not, although the new charter provision, like the old, permits meetings of stockholders to be held outside of Delaware if Warners' by-laws are changed to so provide.

Asked by Sauder whether Warners have any subsidiaries outside the "main business" of the company, Perkins said that Warners has some music companies but all subsidiaries are in entertainment fields related to production-distribution.

In an obvious reference to acquisition of International Latex by the no longer affiliated Stanley Warner Corporation, Sauder had asked whether Warners is in any unrelated business "like rubber pants."

"Why don't they say uranium?" Perkins asked, and Sauder replied, "Rubber pants is stretching a point."

Perkins, Albert Warner, Harry M. Warner, Jack L. Warner, and Waddill Catchings were all re-elected directors, with Catchings, who is listed in the proxy statement as owning no shares, receiving 2,078-241 votes and the others each 2,078,372.

Company executives attending the meeting included Edward K. Hessberg, assistant secretary, and Thomas J. Martin, auditor.

Greenberg To Australia

NEW YORK—Wolfe Cohen, president, Warner International, last week announced the promotion of Berry Greenberg from Far Eastern sales representative to the post of field division manager, with headquarters in Sydney, Australia. In his new post, Greenberg will have jurisdiction over Australia, New Zealand, Indonesia, Singapore, India, Afghanistan, Ceylon, Thailand, Burma, and Pakistan. At the same time, Cohen announced that Jack Dagal, Warner general manager for Japan, will also assume full supervision of the company's offices in Formosa, Hong Kong, and Indo-China.

New Code Edition Available

NEW YORK—A new edition of the industry's Production Code is being distributed by the Motion Picture Association of America to trade, public information sources, schools, and librarians.

The new edition replaces one that has been exhausted and incorporates code amendments adopted by the MPAA board last September and in 1952.

UA Theatre Stock Sold Out

NEW YORK—The 400,121 share offering of United Artists Theatre Circuit, Inc.'s common stock at $17 apiece was oversubscribed and the books closed, it was announced last week by Allen and Company, managing underwriter.

Freeman Honored By Fame

HOLLYWOOD—Y. Frank Freeman, vice-president in charge of studio operations, Paramount, has been selected by the editors of Fame Magazine to receive the 1955 Fame Achievement Award for the development of VistaVision.

The award will be presented on February 10 at a luncheon to be held at the Paramount studio commissary. The 1955 achievement award is the second that has been made, the first having gone to Spyros P. Skouras, president, 20th-Fox, for the development of CinemaScope.

Todd-AO Projectors Limited To Theatres

NEW YORK—The Todd-AO Corporation will sell Todd-AO projection equipment only to theatres, it was announced last week by H. S. Woodbridge, president.

The corporation will be the sole distributors of Todd-AO projectors, lenses, and screens. Prices for the equipment will be announced shortly. The corporation will follow a standard price policy for all theatres.

It is expected that delivery of equipment for showing of Rodgers and Hammerstein's "Oklahoma," the first picture made in the new process, will start in March.

Martin Names Heads Of TOA Committees

NEW YORK—E. D. Martin, president, TOA, last week announced the organization's standing committee chairmen for the new year.

They include organization and membership, George G. Kerasotes, Springfield, Ill.; Walter L. Morris, Knoxville, Tenn.; and Art Adamson, Portland; research, Myron Blank, Des Moines, and Elmer C. Rhoden, Los Angeles; COMPO, Samuel Pinanski, Boston, and Pat McGee, Denver; theatre television, S. H. Fabian, New York City, and Mitchell Wolfson, Miami, Fla.; national legislation, A. Julian Brylawski, Washington; state and local legislation, Robert E. Bryant, Charlotte; film reviewing, H. F. Kincey, Charlotte; labor relations, Duncan R. Kennedy, Chicago, Phillip F. Harling, New York City and Abe Blumenfeld, San Francisco; drive-ins, Jack Braunagel, Little Rock, and Ray Edmundson, Atlanta; arbitration, Alfred Starr, Nashville, Tenn., and R. B. Wilby, Atlanta; building and safety codes, Henry Anderson, New York City; concessions, Bert Nathan, Brooklyn, N. Y., and B. S. Convisor, Boston; theatre equipment and accessories, Joseph J. Zaro, Nashville, Tenn., Lucian E. Pope, Kansas City; and Edwin Gage, Oakhurst, N. J.; public relations, Jack Keiler, Paducah, Ky., and Emil Bernstecker, Atlanta; insurance, Gene Lutes, Frankfort, Ky.; Arthur H. Lockwood, Boston; and Ernest G. Stellings, Charlotte; and legal advisory council, Herman M. Levy, New Haven.

SDG Names Top Critic

HOLLYWOOD—Screen Directors Guild selected Harold V. Cohen, motion picture editor, Pittsburgh Post-Gazette, to receive the annual critic's award, it was announced last week by George Sidney, Guild president.

The award will be formally presented to Cohen at the Guild's award dinner at the Biltmore Hotel on Feb. 13. According to Sidney, "the award is conferred upon the critic whose reviews during the past year are judged to be most perceptive and conducive to betterment of motion pictures."

Hospital Collection Urged

SARANAC LAKE, N. Y.—The Will Rogers Memorial Hospital last week urged that although the official campaign period of the 1954 Christmas Salute is long passed, there are many scrolls still outstanding in the various exchange areas, and requested that all scrolls and every last dollar of contribution be rounded up and returned to the hospital's national office, 1501 Broadway, New York City.

Servicemen Invade Studios

HOLLYWOOD—The Los Angeles USO reported last week that 3,855 servicemen have made 682 tours through Hollywood motion picture studios in 1954. These special tours are arranged by AMPP in cooperation with USO.

Cash, Interest Boost RKO Financial Report

NEW YORK—In a financial statement released last fortnight by James R. Grainger, president, RKO Pictures, the company's estimated $30,000,000 capital-loss-carry-forward was reported to be still available, under appropriate circumstances, to be used as a set off against any capital gains made by the company.

The statement, dated Dec. 31, 1954, listed the company's assets at $17,833,567, $17-796,958 of which was listed as cash and the rest interest receivable. The report covered nine months and stated that of the $23,489,478 received from Howard Hughes for the sale of RKO Radio Pictures, $5,717,952 was used to redeem 952,-992 shares of its stock.

At the present time, the holdings of the company consist of the equivalent of at least $6 for every one of the 2,961,921 shares of stock now outstanding. The report gave no indication of any change in the status of the company, with Howard Hughes and the Atlas Corporation now owning the principal number of shares. The company, since its letter of December 16, 1954, has not renewed its offer to purchase outstanding stock at $6 per share, which expired on Dec. 31.

NT Divestiture Approved

WASHINGTON—The Department of Justice last week agreed to a final windup order for the National Theatres divestiture program.

The order permits four theatres originally required to be sold for use as theatres to be sold for any purpose. These are theatres where new drive-ins or other changed situations have increased competition in the area, according to Justice Department officials. They must be sold by Feb. 28, and it is claimed that arrangements have been made to sell them all for non-theatrical use.

Fox originally had to dispose of 110 theatres. Besides the four mentioned in the preceding paragraph, Fox has four more under long-term lease to National Theatres.

AA Reorganizing Exchanges

NEW YORK—Allied Artists is currently reorganizing its exchange operations in the domestic market along lines similar to the pattern found in other top film companies, it was announced last week by Roy Brewer, manager, AA branch operations.

Brewer is setting up his new office in New York to completely supervise the activities of the 17 AA owned branches and the 14 franchised distributors which handle AA product in the United States and Canada.

Loew Gifts N.Y.U.

NEW YORK—Arthur M. Loew, president, Loew's International, has made a gift of $300,000 to pay part of the cost of a new student residence at the University Heights campus of New York University. The new building will be named Loew Hall, in memory of Loew's father, the late Marcus Loew, who started in the industry 51 years ago as a penny arcade operator, and later merged his chain of theatres with the Goldwyn Company and Louis B. Mayer to form MGM.

"Class Mass" Audience Seen For Opera Films

DETROIT—Jonas Rosenfield, Jr., IFE vice-president in charge of advertising, publicity and exploitation, estimated last week that a "class mass" audience of 5,000,000 exists in the United States to support films such as "Aida."

Basing his estimate on a national survey being conducted by IFE, thus far covering over 250,000 patrons attending "Aida," Rosenfield pointed out that 56 per cent of the picture's audience had never before seen an opera, and 27½ per cent had not been to a motion picture in three years.

Rosenfield revealed that a number of Italian producers are preparing other musical dramas for the American screen, including "Madame Butterfly," "Andrea Cheinir," "Carmen," "Rigoletto," and "Joan At The Stake."

N.J. Allied Urges Clearance Changes

NEW YORK—A meeting of New Jersey Allied last week pledged the support of the membership of that body in the financial support of the anti toll-TV drive.

The action, announced after a membership meeting called by Wilbur Snaper, president, makes this body the first exhibitor group to endorse the fund raising efforts of the joint committee on toll-TV.

The meeting also produced one "serious complaint," which Snaper said would be put before the national board for remedial action. This concerned the plight of subsequent-run theatres which find their product shortage more acute because of extended playing in first-run situations. Snaper claimed that in view of this situation, clearances for sub-runs should be pegged on what he called "normal engagements," rather than from the end of the extended runs at first-run situations. He said that the problem was not related to the situation on Broadway, but to the smaller cities of New Jersey.

George Gold, chairman, legislative committee, was instructed to get an opinion on whether certain methods can be employed in playing bingo which would make the playing of the game valid in New Jersey theatres.

Adolph Zukor, chairman of the board, Paramount Pictures, recently observed his 82nd birthday in the Paramount studio commissary, where seen congratulating him are Y. Frank Freeman, vice-president and studio head; Don Hartman, executive producer, standing; and Eugene Zukor, son of the board chairman.

Skouras Pledges Aid In Toll-TV Struggle

HOLLYWOOD—Spyros P. Skouras, president, 20th-Fox, called upon producers last week to do as much as possible to aid exhibitors in their fight against toll-TV.

Stating that exhibitors face a very hard fight, Skouras gave assurance that the greatest effort of the Fox research department will be toward 35mm. developments on CinemaScope.

Skouras said that 1955 will be the greatest year in history for American pictures in the foreign market, due mainly to CinemaScope. He added that this is the first time in history that we can compete in foreign markets with domestic pictures.

As of Jan. 15, CinemaScope equipment has been installed in 10,775 houses in the United States, in the foreign market, in 4,000 houses with approximately 6,000 ordered and waiting to be installed. Skouras predicts that in 1955 there will be 15,000 domestic installations and 10,000 foreign houses showing CinemaScope.

Skouras called the biggest problem of the motion picture industry the improvement in free TV, and said that the answer to it was to make more and better pictures.

Lardner Case Continues

Washington — Twentieth Century-Fox last week urged the Supreme Court not to set aside a Circuit Court decision upholding its right to fire writer Ring Lardner, Jr.

Lardner was fired under the morals clause in his contract after he refused to answer House Un-American Activities Committee questions as to whether he had ever been a Communist. He brought suit, the District Court found for him, but the Circuit Court of Appeals reversed that decision. He then appealed to the Supreme Court.

The company filed a brief with the Supreme Court last week claiming that Lardner's actions had created a strong public feeling of disapproval towards the industry and that the firing of Lardner was justifiable.

Grainger Lauds Latin Business

HOLLYWOOD—J. R. Grainger, president of RKO Radio Pictures, Inc., returned last week after a two-week trip to Mexico City and Havana, Cuba.

Grainger was enthusiastic over the movie business south of the border. "In South and Latin America, as in this country, good pictures are doing great business," the RKO head stated. "Exhibitors are alert in exploiting the excellent product they've been getting. Two Mexican exhibitors, Gabriel Alacon and Manuel Espinosa, who control 350 top Mexican theatres, will play 'Underwater!' in Superscope, and as an example of their confidence in the future, the Espinosa brothers start construction in May of a 4,000-seat movie theatre in Mexico City."

"Desert" Honored

HOLLYWOOD—"The Living Desert" was awarded one of four honorable mentions given by the Uruguayan Film Festival at Punta Del Este. The Festival did not award any grand prize.

Other honorable mentions went to France for "Rouge et Noir", England for "Lesson In Love"; and Mexico for "Robinson Crusoe."

Women's Clubs Rate Film Entertainment

TORONTO—An interest in motion pictures may be aroused in the "lost audience" in Canada through issues of a Canadian Estimate of Entertainment Films sent out by 10 women's organizations.

Each month the bulletin reviews current films and "an estimate is designed to indicate to a reader whether there will be entertainment in that film for him." The estimate also classifies the picture as for children or not.

A suggestion has been made by Clare J. Appel, secretary, Canadian Motion Picture Distributors' Association, that all branches of distribution discuss the potential of these reports with exhibitors in order that the greatest benefits be derived from them. Significant in the bulletin is the fact that the women's organizations cover all segments of women's activities.

Exhibitors have been asked to cooperate with the local branches of the women's organizations, by providing display space to the bulletin in his lobby; having an influential woman member of one of the local organizations show the bulletin to the local newspaper; see that it is posted on public building notice boards; encourage the ladies to talk about them at their meetings, and invite member groups to his theatre from time to time.

Fred Leavens, who has purchased National Theatres, Ltd., three Ottawa houses, the Elmdale, Glebe, and Towne Cinema has formed Fredell Theatres Company, Ltd., to operate the theatres. In the announcement by National Theatres, it is stated booking will continue to be handled by the former owners, as well as the sale of confectionery products.

Of the 490 35mm. features that were before the Saskatchewan film censor in the year ended March 31, 1954, just four features were rejected, the report of Rev. D. J. Vaughan, film censor, just released, reveals. The board reviewed and stamped 525 shorts, seven serials, 312 news films, 539 trailers, and 812 advertising films. Eliminations were made in six features. The Saskatchewan censor operates in Winnipeg from where all film is shipped. He pays a rental fee to the Manitoba government for the use of Manitoba's facilities in censoring films. Altogether he approved 49 building permits.

A Halifax theatre managers' association, headed by Douglas Smith, Odeon-Garson Theatres, Ltd., supervisor in Halifax, will benefit the industry and the theatre-going people of the city, its president says. Other officers of the new association are Malcolm Walker, vice-president; Carlton Brown, secretary-treasurer; and Hilary Howes and John Aliotis, directors. Meetings will be held monthly, and the organization is open to all theatre executives.

E. R. Zorgniotti, executive vice-president, IFE, was recently named an official Knight of the Italian Republic Order of Merit by Nicolo De Pirro, director, Italian Bureau of Entertainment, in ceremonies held in Rome. Italo Gemini, president, AGIS, is seen congratulating Zorgniotti after the luncheon and medal-awarding ceremony.

The third house in Senneterre, Quebec, has been opened by Miss A. Pelchat, who operates both other houses in the town of 1,686. This is the only new house opened recently while there is construction on three other houses in Canada. One theatre under construction is W. C. Aiken's 480-seat Cardium, the first theatre in Drayton Valley, Alta. The other two are in Quebec, Lucien Bouchard's Parroissiale as the first one in Normandin, and S. Bode's Cinema at Sherbrooke and St. Lawrence, Montreal.

CINE CHATTER—Sharing married bliss are Herb Black, Famous Players head office booking staff, and Betty Ann Maidenberg, Toronto IFD staff. . . . Two theatres in Hamilton, the Downtown and Tivoli, were required to hold the hundreds of Spectator newsboys who turned out to the free show arranged by managers Paul Turnbull and Don Edwards. . . . The Royal George, Toronto, is now being operated as the Continental by Bob Lester, who also heads the operation of the Studio in the same city. . . . Molly Foreman, Alliance Films' Montreal manager, has resigned to work in New York City. . . . Manager Sam Berman, Norgan, Palmerston, Ont., presented a check from the theatre for $250 to the winner of the high school scholarship given by the theatre. . . . A pension scheme has been set up by George Altman, Mavety Film Delivery Service, for six of his lads. It is the only one of its kind in the industry in Canada. . . . IGA stores in Ottawa are now cooperating to present Foto-Nites at six theatres with the present jackpot totaling $3,800. . . . Day-and-date bookings are being set up by the Roxy, Dundas, two small villages outside of Hamilton, where Howard Binns and John Grant, respectively, are managers. . . . Regina City Council has boosted the per seat tax from 50 cents a year to 75 cents. . . . There are now 37 drive-ins in Saskatchewan, according to the latest count, with three near Regina, and three near Saskatoon, the largest centres in the province.

England

In London, the British government has approved National Film Finance Corporation's proposals for the formation of a new distribution organization to succeed British Lion. The new organization will continue British Lion's films and service contracts with exhibitors, and acquires the goodwill and assets of British Lion. NFFC holds 3,000,000 Pounds in debentures in the old British Lion and has agreed to expend 160,000 Pounds to satisfy British Lions debt. The net result of the operation will be an expenditure of 356,900 Pounds by NFFC against which it holds 600 shares of one Pound each, which represents the whole capital of the new company. The government approval was regarded as a means of maintaining British Lion production facilities, in addition to sustaining a third force against J. Arthur Rank and the ABC organization.

Japan

TOKYO—The Japanese government has called upon exhibitors, through the Welfare Ministry, to limit the time of their programs to two and one-half hours. The move was aimed mainly at those houses, particularly in rural areas, which have been showing double and triple bills with a running time of four hours or longer. The ministry claimed that such long shows polluted the air and prevented the theatre staff from cleaning up between shows. Voluntary cooperation was asked of the exhibitors, although it was stated that laws might be passed if cooperation was not forthcoming.

Switzerland

Managers of Westrex Corporations' subsidiary companies in Europe and northwest Africa attended a three-day conference in Zurich, Switzerland, convened by E. S. Gregg, president, Westrex, New York. The Westrex representatives who attended the conference were W. S. Tower, Jr., London; J. G. Van Erk, Basle; G. F. Van Weyenbergh, Brussels; F. De Renzis, Rome; J. P. Winter, Paris; J. L. Monnerot-Dumaine, Barcelona; C. Nygaard, Copenhagen; and A. C. Lenoel, Algiers. R. E. Warn, vice-president, Westrex, New York, was also in Zurich for this conference.

DIRECTOR OF NOTE OR NOTES ON A DIRECTOR: Arthur Lubin, who has directed many fine films in his years in the business as well as many profitable ones, the Francis series for instance, was in town recently, having returned from England where he completed directing "Rebound" for producer Mike Frankovich who is releasing it through Columbia. He could only think of two reasons for making films in England and these are because someone has frozen currency there and because the film qualifies as a quota film. Then the government, through the Eady Plan, is ready to see that the producer gets back a goodly amount of the overall cost. Otherwise, England hain't what it's cracked up to be for filmmaking.

For instance, gripes Lubin in a nice friendly way, picture making is a slow, laborious process, with personnel trying to stretch out each production because they are employed on a per-picture basis and not steadily by a studio or company. If overtime is desired, the approval of the crews must be obtained, which is reluctant in forthcoming since the pay is so small and taxes so high that they rarely feel it's worth while staying extra periods. The crews aren't interested in whether or not they are in on the making of a good film, preferring to take their two 20-minute tea breaks come what may.

"Rebound," which stars Stewart Granger and Jean Simmons and is in Technicolor, was brought in under budget, according to Lubin, which is pretty good considering that he didn't at the start nor does he now know what the budget was supposed to be. He thought that the film would probably be released by Columbia in July. The director thought that the only reason British Technicolor was better than American Technicolor is because it takes them longer to turn out their footage, with rushes emerging three days after entry compared to the one day it takes here.

Don't get him wrong, though, he likes making pictures abroad, claiming it gives him a chance to see the country cheaply what with expenses and transportation paid. As a matter of fact, he will return to England to do another one for Frankovich and Columbia release, "Ghost Of Drury Lane." Also on his schedule for the future is another "Francis," with Donald O'Connor for Universal-International, "Francis Weighs Anchor." This is only naturally as he claims he's the only one that can make the mule walk.

Elia Kazan recently signed a contract with Warners calling for him to produce and direct a series of films for them over a period of years, the first to be "East Of Eden." From left to right are Ben Kalmenson, vice-president in charge of distribution; Kazan; Jack L. Warner, executive producer; and Mort Blumenstock, vice-president in charge of advertising and publicity.

Lubin sang the lament often used by actors that once he starts to do a series he gets typed, and its pretty tough to effect a change. For instance, he made the first five Abbott and Costello pix and no one wanted him for anything else until he took matters in his own hands and worked up a switch. The best way to do this, he claimed, was for the party concerned to go out and buy his own story material, prepare a script, and then interest the studios in the property.

THE METROPOLITAN SCENE: With the reissue of "Camille," starring Greta Garbo, to theatres by MGM, the Museum of Modern Art has been requested to cancel showings of the film as well as to withdraw it temporarily from national distribution to museums and other non-theatrical sources. . . . NYU is honoring Stanley Kramer, former alumnus, with a series of showings of his films for students and faculty. To be shown are "Champion," "High Noon," "Death Of A Salesman," "The Men," and "The Four Poster." . . . Posters tieing the opening of "The Racers" at the Roxy with the book are getting wide play.

NT Income Declines But Rise Is Predicted

Los Angeles—Consolidated net income of National Theatres, Inc., for the 13 weeks ended Dec. 25, 1954, was $546,416, or 20 cents per share on the 2,769,486 shares of stock outstanding, Elmer C. Rhoden, president, stated last week in a report to stockholders. The consolidated net income for the corresponding 13 weeks ended Dec. 26, 1953 was $655,582, or 24 cents per share, Rhoden said.

Theatre admissions and miscellaneous theatre income in the quarter were $2,650,000 less than in the corresponding 1953 quarter, Rhoden said, attributing the decrease in gross to "the phenomenal drawing capacity of 'The Robe'," which was exhibited in many of the circuit's key houses in the comparable quarter of 1953.

Rhoden also noted that the decrease in gross income was substantially offset by reductions in expenses, particularly film costs, and therefore the decrease in net income was limited to approximately $100,000.

Citing the many important attractions released over the holiday season and new product to be released in the coming months, Rhoden told the stockholders "we have reason to be optimistic about results for the current quarter."

The second annual stockholders meeting will be held at the corporation's offices on Feb. 15. With the president's report went checks covering a quarterly dividend of 12½ cents per share payable Feb. 3 to stockholders of record on Jan. 20.

Theatre TV Sees Good Year

New York—Nathan Halpern, president, Theatre Network Television, and William Rosensohn, vice-president, Boxoffice Television, last week both expressed the opinion that 1955 would be a good year for Theatre TV in the field of off hour commercial broadcasting.

Halpern predicted an increase in the volume of business telecasts, and said that TNT would again offer big boxing matches in the summer. Halpern was vague on the possibilities of securing a big entertainment "package" such as a Broadway show for presentation on closed circuit TV. He pointed out that the 112 theatres presently equipped for theatre TV could not afford to pay for such a package.

Film Council Elects Officers

New York—The Film Council of America last week announced the election of officers for 1955, including J. R. Bingham, chairman of the board; Dr. William S. Carlson, vice-chairman; Eddie Albert, secretary; William H. Garvey, Jr., treasurer; and Richard B. Sealock, member at large.

Others serving on the FCA board are Mrs. Oscar A. Ahlgren, Dr. John T. Caldwell, Louis de Rochemont, Roy Disney, David C. Fulton, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Dr. John Slawson, Dr. Frank Stanton, and Dr. Paul Wagner.

Disney Officers Reelected

Hollywood—All members of the board of directors of Walt Disney Productions were reelected last week.

The vacancy created by the recent death of Edward Wadewitz was not filled. At the organization meeting of the board, all Disney officers were reelected.

COMPO Ad Hails Increased Film News

NEW YORK—Under the headline, "Bigger Audiences Mean More Readers," the 36th COMPO advertisement published in Editor and Publisher last week urges newspapers to give more space to news about motion picture activities.

"Managing editors, it seems to us," says the ad, "should have a special interest in the resurgence of the movie business. For the more people go to the movies the more they will be interested in reading about pictures and picture people. Several papers, we are happy to note, have become aware of this. Naturally, we are pleased. For a while there, a year or so ago, it looked as if newspapers had lost their faith in their movie pages. But no more. Now the tendency is the other way —more space, brighter layouts, fresh, alert news and comment. The reason for this reversal is fairly obvious. Better pictures, technological advances that give greater scope to theatre screens, reduction in the federal admission tax—all these and other factors have wrought a noticeable change in the people's attitude toward movies."

The ad points out that the industry has never lost its high regard for the movie editor, even when attendance was way down and the going was tough. In conclusion, the ad cautions editors not to underrate their movie editor "If you only give him a reasonable amount of space," it says, "he will get you new readers and at the same time will make the movie pages one of the most-read departments in your paper."

Academy Nominations Set For TV

HOLLYWOOD—Hollywood's own election night will go on TV for the first time when NBC radio and TV presents the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences nominations in a distinctly new format.

TV cameras in four widely separate locations in the film capital will show the reactions of top movie personalities as they learn which players, pictures and techniques are to compete for honors in the 27th Academy Awards presentation. The nominations show, presented on Feb. 12, will be followed by a showing of the actual awards in March.

Jack Webb will be master of ceremonies, and past award winners will act as host and hostesses.

"The Long Gray Line"

When a picture can make you laugh and cry at the same time, when it can wrap you up and keep you enthralled from start to finish without gimmicks or sensationalism, brother, that's an achievement. And that's exactly what Columbia does in "The Long Gray Line."

Ordinary adjectives are inadequate to describe this picture. There are no high dramatics, nor is there low comedy, but there is a transcendence of just plain humaness that has seldom been equalled on film.

One lives Marty Maher's life more personally than many people live their own, and Tyrone Power is Marty Maher in the flesh. To say he is superb in the part would be to suggest he was acting; actually, he was living the role, just as everyone who sees the picture will live Marty Maher's life along with him.

I came away from seeing the picture mopping my eyes and wondering why I was crying, for it's anything but a sad picture. It's real. It's warm. It's wonderful. For complete, unadulterated enjoyment, I recommend "The Long Gray Line" without reservations.

Rhoden Sees Selling Need

HOLLYWOOD—Elmer C. Rhoden, president, National Theatres, warned the members of his organization in a letter written last week that it is necessary "to sell our attractions for dear life."

Stating that theatres "are hosts to a discerning public," which decides to "go out and see a show, or sit it out before their TV sets," on the basis of the quality of the picture, he urged that exhibitors remember that attractions must be presold, and that exhibitors must help the producers to do this job. "The moment you get a booking of an attraction, start to sell it," he wrote.

King Brothers Sue Columbia

HOLLYWOOD—Charging that their MPAA registered title, "The Syndicate," was appropriated and used in a low budget picture entitled "The Chicago Syndicate," King Brothers Productions last week filed a $1,000,000 suit against Columbia, Sam Katzman, Katzman Corporation, and Clover Productions, Inc.

Some 1500 inmates of the California Institution for Men, Chino, Cal., recently saw themselves in Warner's "Unchained" when the premiere of the film in which they appear was held on the grounds of the institution. The showing was held in the combination mess hall-theatre so that the inmates might be able to see it. Among the screen personalities and members of the press in attendance were, left to right, producer Hall Bartlett, Elroy Hirsch, Newton Arnold, Donald Crisp, Joan Vohs, Jimmy Starr, and Mrs. Starr.

About People

CHICAGO — Don Mack, vice-president, Filmack Studios, and Chicago television sales director for the past eight years, has been appointed head of the TV sales department of Filmack's newly-expanded New York City branch, it was announced last week. Irving Mack, president, Filmack, announced that Don Mack's appointment is part of the TV expansion of the New York plant, which has already been equipped with a complete studio for on-the-spot production of TV films, slides, and commercial industrial films; in addition to its regular production of special trailers for theatre use. Filmack's Chicago TV department sales will be directed by Lou Kravitz, newly-appointed vice-president in charge of sales, assisted by Jim McGahan, formerly with Ruthrauff and Ryan.

NEW YORK—Eric Johnston, president, Motion Picture Export Association, last week announced the designation of Joaquin D. Rickard as a special consultant to the Association. Rickard served as the Association's Latin American representative until early 1953. As the result of an injury sustained in an automobile accident in South America that year, he requested an indefinite leave of absence.

NEW YORK—David Hanna, who recently returned from an around the world exploitation trip with Ava Gardner for "The Barefoot Contessa," has been set by the Rogers and Cowan office to do special publicity on the DCA release, "Long John Silver." Hanna left for Washington and Baltimore to begin the campaign for the CinemaScope production, which opens in both cities around Feb. 24.

HOLLYWOOD—Stephen Bosustow has been reelected president and chairman, United Production of America, for the 10th time. Other officers reelected include Robert Cannon, vice-president; Don McCormick, New York, vice-president; T. Edward Hambleton, treasurer; Melvin Getzler, assistant treasurer; and M. Davis, secretary.

NEW YORK—Maria Van Slyke, director of national magazine publicity at Paramount for the last five and a half years, will join Rogers and Cowan as head of the publicity firm's motion picture division. Before her Paramount affiliation, Miss Van Slyke was film critic for Newsweek and a feature writer for the Journal-American and King Features.

NEW YORK—The American Broadcasting Company has announced the formation of a closed circuit program department to be headed by William Balaban, assistant program manager, WABC-TV, New York. The move was announced last fortnight by John H. Mitchell, vice-president, ABC-TV network.

NEW YORK—James L. Wolcott, executive vice-president, Pathe Laboratories, Inc., announced last fortnight that Albert A. Duryea, vice-president in charge of east coast operations for Pathe, had resigned. Wolcott stated that he will assume the duties which Duryea has been performing.

NEW YORK—George Schaefer has been retained as producer's representative for United Artists' "Sabaka," it was announced last week by Francis M. Winikus, national director of advertising, publicity, and exploitation for UA.

AA's Mirisch Cites Top Talent Lineup

HOLLYWOOD—Allied Artists enters its 25th year with the greatest array of top calibre star, producer, and director talent in its history, Walter Mirisch, executive producer, announced last fortnight.

The company's silver anniversary year also is marked by its emergence as a major studio and its affiliation with the Association of Motion Picture Producers, Inc.

On its roster of stars for recently completed and contemplated films are Jose Ferrer, Gary Cooper, Joel McCrea, Errol Flynn, Fred MacMurray, David Niven, Yvonne De Ralo, Barry Fitzgerald, Debra Paget, Raymond Massey, Mark Stevens, Diana Lynn, Cornel Wilde, John Derek, Sterling Hayden, Joan Bennett, and Richard Conte.

Among those producers and directors who will be affiliated with Allied Artists in 1955 are John Huston, Jose Ferrer, William Wyler, Billy Wilder, Walter Wanger, Samuel Bischoff, Mike Frankovich, Scott R. Dunlap, Richard Heermance, Vincent M. Fennelly, Hayes Goetz, Henry Levin, Jacques Tourneur, Don Siegel, and Charles Marquis Warren.

Drive-In Delegates Prepare Own Agenda

ST. LOUIS—The National Allied drive-in convention currently in progress appears to be one of the most successful yet, due largely to the efforts of convention chairman A. B. Jefferis, president, Mid-Central Allied, to get "the facts" from those attending the convention, via questionnaires, about what they would particularly like to have discussed. The film clinics this year are also divided into two parts, for the operators of large and small situations, while the usual subjects such as concessions and their equipment get their share of talk. These subjects include vending machines, car to car vending, promotion, advertising, publicity, playground equipment, facilities for handling traffic, cooperation with local officials, etc.

A principle speaker of the convention will be Harold Wolff, public relations council for the joint committee on toll-TV, who is expected to tell of efforts to prevent FCC approval of toll-TV.

On the entertainment side, George Murphy, MGM, will be toastmaster at the banquet session on the evening of Feb. 10.

The Pepsi-Cola Company will be hosts at a party to be held on the old Showboat "Golden Rod" and also at a cocktail party.

Exhibs Rally Against Toll-TV

DALLAS—Exhibitors from Texas and Indiana have pledged financial support to the Exhibitors Joint Committee on Toll-TV.

Texas exhibitor leaders pledged unanimous support and formed a committee to contact other exhibitors. H. A. Cole, chairman, Texas Allied, said, "the first aim of toll-Tv is to take away subsequent runs from theatres, and then graduate into the first run operations."

In Indiana, exhibitors are already organized, under the leadership of William Caroll and Marc Wolf, prominent Indiana showmen, to receive contributions which will be forwarded to the national committee's fund.

BETTER MANAGEMENT

Valuable Exploitation Keys To Profitable Merchandising

UA's "Sabaka" Aided By Varied Campaign

NEW YORK—A three-pronged promotion to back United Artists' "Sabaka" with nation-wide store displays, contests, and eight solid weeks of TV network plugs has been set with Buster Brown Shoes, it was announced last week by Francis M. Winikus, national director of advertising, publicity, and exploitation for UA.

The comprehensive campaign spotlighting the Technicolor spectacle will reach an estimated audience of 9,000,000 with a program slanted to both small fry and adults.

Implemented in the field by the Brown sales and dealer organizations and United Artists' exploitation force, the "Sabaka" co-op effort will spot impressive window displays at the 14,000 Brown outlets covering every exchange area in the United States and Canada. Exhibits, which will be pinpointed to local playdate, will feature the special 40 by 60 contest poster, window cards, and scene stills. To expedite store-theatre liaison, the shoe company has mailed all its dealers instruction bulletins for the promotion.

Important additional support will come from a coloring contest featuring young Nino Marcel, who makes his screen debut in "Sabaka." Prizes for the competition, which will be jointly run by exhibitors and Brown outlets in the area, will include Buster Brown Shoes and passes. A coloring contest mat, available at National Screen, will key heralds, and newspaper, radio, and TV publicity will back the competition.

Eight consecutive weeks of video bally for "Sabaka" will be beamed over 97 ABC-TV stations via the Buster Brown program, "Smilin' Ed's Gang," which stars Nino Marcel, the youngster who handles a key role in the film. The show will pitch a minimum of eight separate plugs for the United Artists release, alerting viewers to watch for openings in their locality. Scenes from "Sabaka" will also be featured on the program every week.

Theatre promotion will include special lobby displays, matinee discount tickets distributed through local dealers and lively street bally tying in the colorful Indian setting of "Sabaka" and Buster Brown co-op support. Schools will be brought into the campaign with screenings for teachers and educators and school-front distribution of heralds and contest announcements.

"Underwater!" Kit Created

NEW YORK—A king-size promotion kit, bound in painted lucite to simulate ocean water, has been created for local-level exploitation by RKO fieldmen on behalf of Howard Hughes' "Underwater!", it was announced last week by Walter Branson, world-wide sales manager.

The kit contains all advertising and publicity material prepared to date for the Superscope-Technicolor production, as well as special text and photo layouts on the recent underwater debut of the film in Silver Springs, Fla. In addition, the kit provides a detailed outline of suggested promotion campaigns, with information on tieups and how to utilize them in indivdual exploitation approaches.

Colored Theatre Tickets Can Save Patron's Life

SWEDEN—A Swedish hunter buried by an avalanche for eight days near Tarnaby saved his life by waving a red movie ticket he found in his pocket.

Evert Stenmark was saved when a search party saw the bit of red waving feebly at the end of a stick he had thrust up through the snow. Doctors reported Stenmark suffered frostbitten feet but otherwise was in good condition. He kept from starving by eating grouse he had shot.

The moral is, "Don't use white tickets; color may save a life."

Saturation Promotion Set For DCA's "Silver"

NEW YORK—A saturation promotion campaign designed to back up with maximum effectiveness the saturation booking of DCA's "Long John Silver" in 30 New England first runs, beginning Feb. 16, started last week in Boston. The New England territory has been divided into three areas. With Phil Knapp supervising, field men will work out of Boston, Providence, and New Haven tying up schools, newspapers, department stores, TV, and radio outlets for the multiple "Long John" promotions.

The cooperation of Boston's parochial schools in DCA's "National Long John Silver Essay Contest" is already assured. The grand prizes are college scholarships for students submitting 1,000 word essays on Robert Louis Stevenson and Long John Silver. Schools are being heavily circularized. Additionally, a quantity of 16mm. prints of a short, narrated by Robert Newton, showing how the picture was made, is being set up for school assembly programs. The short carries the contest details.

The same 12-minute subject is also doing duty on television with top time having been arranged for its showing on Yankee network stations. Transcriptions, stressing Robert Louis Stevenson and his contribution to literature, have been made available to radio outlets. Educational content of the platters assures maximum free time.

Newspaper promotions are being set up in Boston and in other key New England towns. They include a treasure hunt and coloring contest. Trip to Florida, Paper-Mate pens, merchandise, free tickets, and cash prizes are the contest baits. 200,000 Long John Silver eye patches will be distributed to kids during the week before the opening.

The DCA pattern of complete and specialized covering of individual areas will be followed in Washington and Baltimore where "Long John Silver" opens later in February. Already the New York campaign, headed toward an April opening, is underway with the essay contest having drawn support from educational leaders here. Macy's is cooperating in a city-wide treasure hunt, timed to coincide with the opening day.

Already in preparation are plans for promotional campaigns on DCA's next two releases, "The Stranger's Hand" and "I Am A Camera."

"Purple Plain" Boomed

NEW YORK—United Artists' "The Purple Plain," Technicolor romantic drama starring Gregory Peck, will be drumbeat to better than 2,500,000 readers throughout the country with a citation in the February issue of Seventeen magazine. The selection of the film, based on the best-selling novel by H. E. Bates, as a Picture of the Month continues the high-gear campaign booming the feature.

CANDYDLY SPEAKING

IF ANY ONE ITEM can be pointed out as that which aided the growth of extra profits operations in this country's theatres more than any other, it is probably popcorn. The street has been a two-way thoroughfare, however, for as concession stands in theatres became increasingly busy and contributed an ever-greater percentage of the total theatre income, theatres became an increasingly important retail outlet for popcorn.

AL CAPP has offered America the questionable suggestion that "what is good for General Bullmoose is good for the nation," but there is no question that what is good for the theatre business is equally beneficial for those individuals trading in popcorn. Happily, all parties involved give evidence that they are well aware of this fact.

SPRING IS NEARING, believe it or not, and The Popcorn Institute, which is responsible for much of the progress of the industry, recently announced the completion of plans for a huge spring promotion, a popcorn "jamboree." One of the most important facets of the campaign will be concentration on point-of-purchase merchandising, and, to this end, promotional material is available to exhibitors from popcorn processors or directly from The Popcorn Institute.

ATTRACTIVE DECORATIONS can be as much a contributing factor to concession profits as can the more readily evident necessity to keep the popcorn machine clean and the concession aides neat. Posters, banners, headpieces for aides, and special promotional caps are available and will certainly do much to make theatregoers popcorn conscious.

IN ADDITION to the above standard promotional gimmicks, wideawake exhibitors will come up with their own ideas to increase popcorn sales; circuits which have operated successful contests among their managers in the past will certainly repeat the efforts. In addition, the popcorn industry is now and will continue to be benefitted from national advertising tie-ups with other foods and beverages.

THE YEAR 1955 shapes up as a banner one for "King Popcorn."

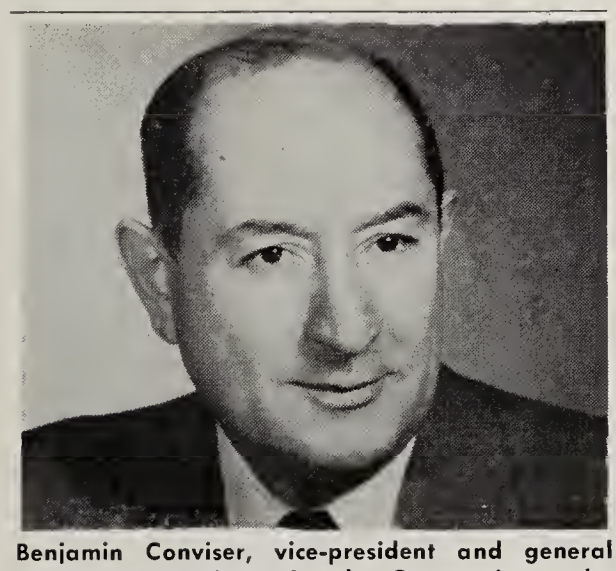
IPA Announces Plans For Pre-Spring Forum

NEW YORK—Lee Koken, RKO Theatres, senior director, theatre-concession segment, last week revealed International Popcorn Association's plans to sponsor a pre-spring one-day popcorn and concession merchandising forum at the Park-Sheraton Hotel on March 8. The confei-ence, which is eastern regional in scope, will include representatives from practically the entire eastern seaboard from Maine to Virginia, including all of New York State and the eastern half of Pennsylvania.



According to Koken, who has been designated general chairman by IPA president Bert Nathan, Theatre Popcorn Vending Corporation, Brooklyn, N. Y., the forum will be made up of two separate segment meetings, manufacturer-wholesale and theatre and concession operators.

The manufacturer-wholesalers morning and afternoon sessions, under the chairmanship of IPA member Morrie R. Yohai, King Kone Corporation, New York City, will be devoted to a study of plant operation and sales for both popped and raw popcorn products. The morning concessions session will cover all phases of vending as it relates to indoor theatre operation. Afternoon discussions will be on similar subjects pertaining to drive-in theatres.

Arrangements call for a luncheon and cocktail party for those attending, plus prize drawings in both the morning and afternoon sessions. Koken has indicated that he hopes to announce a grand prize of a color television set. Only those attending both the morning and afternoon programs would be eligible for the grand award.

Serving as vice-chairmen in the promotion of this giant IPA regional conference are Carl Siegel, Stanley Warner Management Corporation, New York City; Nat Buchman, Theatre Merchandising Corporation, Boston; Lawrence S. Goldmeier, Poppers Supply Company, Philadelphia; Don Mayborn, Cornco., Inc., Baltimore, Md.; and Martin B. Coopersmith, The Marjack Company, Washington.

The conference will hear from Thomas J. Sullivan, executive vice-president, IPA, on the work of the association, and from William E. Smith, executive director, the Popcorn Institute, on promotional programs.

Benjamin Conviser, vice-president and general manager, American Supply Corporation, who has been appointed national co-chairman, concession committee, Theatre Owners of America, by E. D. Martin, president.

Popcorn Institute Sets Program For Annual Promotion Campaign

CHICAGO—Plans for a huge spring popcorn promotion to be conducted by The Popcorn Institute in motion picture theatres were announced at the Institute's annual meeting held recently. Designed to increase theatre sales and profits of popcorn, the promotion, the Spring Popcorn Jamboree, is an annual event sponsored by The Popcorn Institute. Featuring colorful point-of-purchase material and unique merchandising aids, the Jamboree is backed by intensive national advertising and publicity.

The merchandising material is built about a kit of 12 hard-selling point-of-purchase posters and banners. The 12 banners, each individually designed, are printed on four vivid colors of lithographed enamel paper stock, and have been created for display about the motion picture concession stand, stub box, box-office, and lobby. The material has been prepared specifically according to the requests of concessionaires and motion picture theatre operators, following an extensive survey made by The Popcorn Institute.

In addition to the point-of-purchase material, The Popcorn Institute is making available as part of the Spring Popcorn Jamboree attractive caps and headbands inscribed with the words "Hot-Fresh Popcorn" for use by the attendants manning the concession stands.

According to William E. Smith, executive director, The Popcorn Institute, the Institute will follow its usual policy of making all promotional material available to concessionaires and theatre operators for less than actual production costs. "Theatre operators have reported to The Popcorn Institute," Smith stated, "that the use of The Popcorn Institute's merchandising material has had a marked effect in boosting popcorn sales."

The Jamboree promotion is being backed by intensive national advertising as part of the joint Popcorn Institute-Kraft Foods popcorn promotion. The advertising campaign will feature full-page color ads in the comic sections of 79 of the large metropolitan newspapers in the United States in 78 major markets. In addition, popcorn will be featured on the weekly Kraft television program, "Space Cadets," on Saturday mornings. In addition to the intensive newspaper and television programs will be a five-star radio news line-up. The Kraft Mutual News will carry commercials five times a day, five days a week, covering a total audience of 50 million families. Tying-in on the promotion will be the International Popcorn Association and its member companies.

Promotional material is available from popcorn processors or direct from The Popcorn Institute, 332 South Michigan Avenue, Chicago. The supply of point-of-purchase posters and banners and concession attendants' caps and head pieces is limited. Theatre operators are urged to order promotional material immediately.

Seen above are some of the colorful and interesting point of purchase merchandising aids available to spur "Jamboree" popcorn sales.

Tri-State Exhibitors Discuss "Jamboree"

MEMPHIS—"Increase Your Popcorn Sales," a subject very close to the hearts of exhibitors and theatre concessionaires, was discussed by William E. Smith, executive director, The Popcorn Institute, at the annual convention of Tri-State MPTOA, comprising the states of Tennessee, Arkansas, and Mississippi, last month.

"Popcorn is an impulse purchase item," Smith told the TOA audience. "Thus, point-of-sale merchandising is essential in building popcorn sales and profits." The extensive promotional programs of The Popcorn Institute were explained in detail and exhibitors were shown how to tiein with these industry-wide campaigns through the use of point-of-purchase material made available by The Popcorn Institute.

The mechanics of The Popcorn Institute's "Fall Popcorn Promotion" and "Spring Popcorn Jamboree" were explained by Smith. Both of these major trade promotions are backed by vast advertising and promotional campaigns of tieins by national advertisers who are manufacturers of commodities that enjoy a community of interest with popcorn.

The Popcorn Institute's three dimensional "Happy Popcorn Man" and colorful "Animal Fair" point-of-sale posters were displayed. "Point-of-purchase material are proven sales builders," Smith said, and he urged in the strongest terms that exhibitors utilize the Institute pieces to the fullest extent. He stated that many theatre managers had found sales were increasing by using the material not only at the concession stand, but by displaying the smaller pieces at the box office and the stub box.

"The price for bulk popcorn is low compared to the ultimate sales price," Smith continued, "and in order to insure a high sales level it is essential that theatres purchase only top quality corn from reputable suppliers." To increase sales, he urged that the popcorn machine and concession stand be kept neat and appetizing at all times, and that attendants be immaculate in their attire. As an additional boost to popcorn sales, The

The prizes offered in the promotion with Pepsi-Cola were prominently displayed in the theatre, also serving as a boost to sales of the beverage.

Michael King presents the grand prize, a bicycle, to the winner of the contest at the Nortown. Six theatres participated in the holiday effort.

Beverage Tieup Brings In The Kids

IT has often been said that holidays belong to children, and it is certainly true that nothing offers theatremen a better opportunity to interest their patrons of the future, a community's child population, in motion picture entertainment. The movie habit, instilled early, lingers long, and not only do children bring extra dollars into the boxoffice register, but they also provide an excellent source of increased concession revenue.

The promotion-wise exhibitor has little trouble figuring out a gimmick on which to peg an extra holiday effort aimed at youthful citizens, and if the costs can be cut through intelligent merchant tieups, so much the better.

A three-way pre-holiday soft drink promotion, which can be utilized by practically any type of situation or soft drink company, certainly paid off for three weeks in six Toronto suburban theatres just before Christmas. Through the combined efforts of Harry Sullivan, Theatre Confections' manager, District A, Toronto; Syd Koffman, Pepsi-Cola Company; and six theatre managers, a promotion was lined up that resulted in above average Saturday matinee attendance, excellent sales, and local goodwill that can't be measured in dollars and cents.

The promotion was simple and the cost small when split three ways. Michael King, manager, Nortown, was the winning manager for the best displays, attendance and confection sales. Theatre displays were set up during the week of Nov. 29; on the following Saturday, the distribution of coupons commenced followed by the distribution of gifts. Theatres participating were the Donlands, Nortown, Midtown, Parliament, Prince of Wales, and Vaughan.

Each of the theatres gave away as main prizes one bicycle, two dolls, two holster sets, six cowboy hats, and, as supplementary prizes, 20 cartoons of Pepsi-Cola, 36 jars of unpopped corn, and sundry contributions by merchants. Theatre Confections, Ltd., the theatres, and Pepsi-Cola shared the costs of gifts equally, with the beverage company providing blotters, coupons for the bicycle drawing, and the 120 cartons of Pepsi-Cola, as well as incentive gifts to the theatre managers.

Advertising wise, the theatres provided standees, window displays, counter cards at concession stands, and space for lobby displays giving details of the promotion, dates, prize lists, etc. Pepsi-Cola provided advertising material, including large stand-up Santa Clauses, lobby display materials, handout blotters giving promotion details and publicizing the theatres participating in the event.

Every child entering a participating theatre was handed a coupon to be entered for the bicycle prize, which were deposited in a theatre receptacle. In addition, the purchase of a Pepsi-Cola at the candy counter entitled the child to an extra coupon.

As can be seen readily, the latter idea created considerable additional traffic at the concession stand, with purchases of items other than Pepsi-Cola also showing a pronounced increase as a result of greater impulse buying. Through the entire promotion, adults or children purchasing Pepsi-Cola during day or evening performances were given coupons.

At Saturday matinees preceding the final drawing, two-thirds of the gifts were given away by means of lucky seats or admission ticket stubs, with the draw for the bicycle and remaining gifts climaxing the promotion in each house.

Each theatre showed an increase in matinee attendance in contrast to a normal seasonal falling-off. All theatre managers were sold on the public relations value of the promotion and agreed that the stimulation of good will is highly important with youngsters, their adult audience of tomorrow.

Sergeant Crosby of the Forest Hills Police gives safety tips to the kids flocking to the theatre for the contest. This created considerable good will for the theatres involved.

A young patron at the Vaughn has a message to Santa, and the two enjoy a Pepsi apiece.

Robot Cafeterias Seen In '55 Vending Plans

NEW YORK—All-weather "mechanical milkmen" on 24-hour duty at street intersections; cigarette vending machines that talk back to customers; "robot cafeterias," indoor and drive-in theatres, supplying complete lunches; store front vendors catering to passersby, these and other innovations helped boost the automatic merchandising industry's gross sales in 1954 to approximately $1,750,000,000, Robert Z. Greene, president, The Rowe Corporation, world's largest manufacturer and operator of automatic merchandising equipment, said in a year-end review.

Already on the industry's drafting boards for 1955, he stated, are 24-hour-a-day roadside "vending machine diners" where motorists will be able to buy complete snack meals from coin-operated vendors.

While cigarettes, soft drinks and candy continued to lead vending sales, Greene reported, "milk made biggest automatic merchandising news of the year, with some 16,000 milk vendors, many of them in theatres, opening up a $22,500,000 'impulse market' for the dairy industry.

"These added milk sales are likely to double in 1955," he predicted, "and may eventually wipe out the entire milk surplus." In addition, vending machines sold an estimated 20,000,000 worth of ice cream.

Other new developments of The Rowe Corporation, which pioneered automatic merchandising in the United States more than a quarter century ago, and of the industry, Greene said, included conversion (still in its early stages) of vending machines from "passive" to "active" salesmen—to stimulate impulse purchases. An innovation along this line is The Rowe-Corder, a miniature record player which gives a mechanical "voice" to cigarette vending machines reminding customers to buy two packs and not run short, and which in 1955 is expected to be added to milk vendors as well.

Also expected is the spread of "robot restaurants," batteries of food vending machines which serve complete "soup-to-nuts" light meals into new fields. In a Long Island school, he said, these food vending machines, serving hot soup, sandwiches, cookies, fruit juices, and ice cream, have entirely taken over the job of a school cafeteria. And some 150 industrial plants throughout the nation are now using complete batteries as a substitution for a cafeteria or for "coffee break" snacks. The Pennsylvania Railroad, with aid of Rowe engineers, early this year installed a new automatic buffet-bar car in one of its trains and this idea, he predicted, will spread in 1955.

Introduction of 24-hour-a-day store front vending is also in the offing, through a Rowe-designed vending machine built right into a store window or theatre front.

Rowe has in production a new 14-column "Ambassador" which can vend any type of cigarette on the market today. Automatic merchandising's share of total cigarette sales held steady and may even have increased over 1953's estimated 16 per cent, he said.

New Freezer Offers Simplicity And Control

SEATTLE—In keeping with the greater emphasis on modern design and automatic operations, the Sweden Freezer Manufacturing Company, makers of soft-serve freezers and milk shake machines, announces an improved version of its large capacity Model 1-200 freezer. Major changes include the removal of all switches on the front panel and the development of a new control system, which adds to the appearance of the freezer and greatly simplifies operation. Freezer occupies less than five square feet of floor space and has ample production for the large operation.

The elimination of all switches on the front gives the freezer a more attractive and streamlined appearance and makes the cleaning operation much easier, it is claimed. The few necessary controls have been housed in a small, removable box that plugs in like a radio tube and is located under an easiliy removed cover. They are out of the way of the operator who does not need to touch them during the day, as actual operation of the freezer is done by an electrically-operated foot-switch which opens the serving gate and also controls the feeding of fresh mix into the cylinder to replace the product drawn. This system of control leaves the operator's hands free to make up to four servings at a time.

The electronic portion control unit developed by the company is available as an accessory on all automatic continuous Sweden Freezers. Operating through a foot-switch, this control permits the operator to dispense two different-sized servings by merely stepping on different ends of the foot-switch. The size portions desired are pre-set by the owner or his manager and are not under the control of the operator. This portion control gives the owner exact food cost control, reduces the time required to train employes in fountain operation, speeds up service, and assures every customer the same-sized serving.

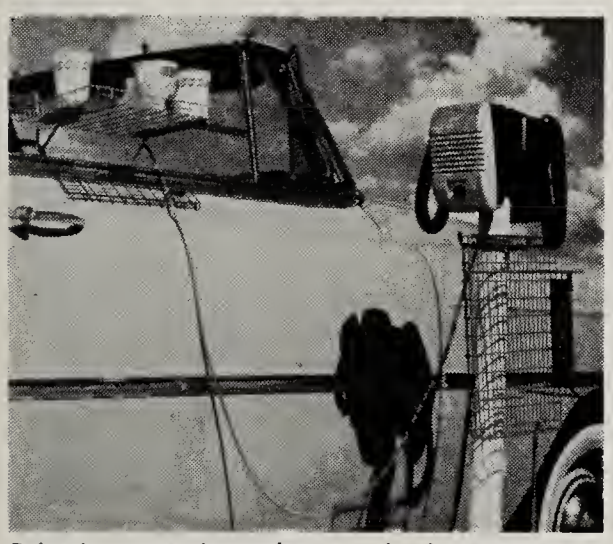
Sweden Freezer Manufacturing Company, Seattle, recently came up with a large capacity Model 1-200 freezer. Major changes include the removal of all switches on the front panel and the development of a new control system, which adds to its appearance and greatly simplifies operation of the unit.

Port Morris Sets New Freezer Line

NEW YORK—The Port Morris Machine and Tool Works, Inc., announced the introduction of an entirely new Model 10P and 20P machine. These machines were on demonstration at the DISA Show in Atlantic City. It is said that the 1955 Electro Freeze is the finest advance in direct draw soft ice cream freezers since their inception.

The features of the new models are a faster freeze down period which increases the production and gives a finer, firmer product. The new freezers give a wider stream of finished cream which in turn makes a cone or sundae with greater eye appeal yet uses less cream. The 1955 Electro Freeze has a refrigerated, insulated hopper, the only freezer that has a hopper that will actually bring down the temperature of the mix put in it. The new design in stainless steel makes the machine easier to clean and keep clean and gives it the rugged construction necessary for trouble-free long life.

The new Model 10P features a 1½ h.p. beater motor and a 1½ h.p. compressor motor. This freezer will produce in excess of 10 gallons per hour continuously. The size of the Model 10P is 34 inches long, 25 inches wide, and 65 inches high.



The refrigerated hopper has a capacity of six gallons.

The new Model 26P features a 3 h.p. beater motor and a 3 h.p. compressor motor. The 25P will produce in excess of 25 gallons per hour continuously. The size is 51 inches long, 25 inches wide, and 65 inches high. The refrigerated hopper has a capacity of six gallons.

Drive-In Tray Increases Sales

PARSONS, KANS.—Drive-In concessions sales can be increased with the use of the new Serv-A-Car Snack Tray, introduced by Serv-A-Car Products, Inc. By offering a convenient place to hold refreshments and snacks, and through the use of an eye-catching menu-type nameplate, the tray induces the patron to purchase items, and in larger quantities.

The trays which fit onto the car window, are coated with an all-weather plastic and are attached to the speaker post by a bracket, and connected by a plastic coated six-foot chain. The tray measures 10 x 13 inches and will accommodate any paper tray currently in use.

Popcorn Institute is preparing special popcorn head bands for the girls and popcorn caps for the boys manning the stands. The promotional head pieces will be made available to the trade, along with hard-hitting new point-of-sale pieces, starting in January as part of the Popcorn Institute's "Spring Popcorn Jamboree."

"Popcorn has built its present mass market," Smith stated, "because it is a food confection priced within the range of the great masses of people. In the hope of immediate profits," Smith urged exhibitors, "do not price yourselves out of the market by hiking popcorn prices to excessive levels. Above all, the watchword of increased popcorn sales must be merchandising, merchandising, and more merchandising."

To add to his Extra Profits sales and to accommodate balcony patrons, E. C. Lamoureux, manager, Palace, Windsor, Ontario, Canada, recently installed the small self-service candy and popcorn bar on the mezzanine. The balcony ticket taker keeps watch on the "honor system" machine, which he claims has proved successful.

Mr. Conner says, "The butterlike flavor that POPSIT PLUS gives popcorn did wonders for our refreshment stand sales. We wouldn't think of using any other popping oil today!"

Thousands of theatre operators, concessionaires and carnival men have had the same experience. POPSIT PLUS gives popcorn an easy-to-sell flavor . . . leaves fewer duds in the bottom of your popper . . . and because it's always liquid, it's convenient to pour, measure and store.

Increased Candy Sales Forecast, But Competition Creates Problems

by Philip P. Gott,
President, NCA

OPTIMISM prevails as this is being written. Economists generally expect 1955 to be a good year. If the gross national product index continues to run high and the amount of money available for consumer expendables is likewise high, the sales volume for the candy industry should be good. Over the years, the sale of candy trend line is comparable to the trend line of our business economy. The industry could easily exceed the $1,001,000,000 former peak reached in 1948.

As candy becomes consumed more and more as an everyday food item as well as an item for special occasions, the trend of candy sales will follow the food index. Statistics show that the per capita consumption of food has increased over the last eight years.

The candy industry has absorbed innumerable cost increases through the adoption of scientific processes. Technical research on ingredients and the rise of better processing techniques enables the industry to supply better products at lower costs to the American public.

The fact that sales may be relatively high does not constitute convincing evidence that profits will be better. The death toll among candy companies has been large during the last few years. Increased competition may force others out of business in 1955. Other foods, sellers of other merchandise and, basically, the attitude of the consumers are challenging our industry. Will the consumer buy candy or other foods, goods, and services that furnish satisfaction and pleasure? A constructive approach to this problem is the recent action of the NCA board authorizing the NCA president to appoint a special committee to seriously and thoroughly appraise the candy industry as it stands today and to recommend a course of action.

Probably no other food industry is confronted with so many external problems, over which it has little or no control, as the confectionery industry. This is due in part to the fact that important ingredients come from many sections of the world which are affected by social, economic, political, and racial problems. With respect to cocoa beans, there is a problem of decreased production due to disease among the cocoa bean trees as well as the fact that many of the cocoa producing countries, as a means of raising the standard of living among their own people, have placed a high export duty on cocoa beans. According to authorities on the cocoa bean situation, however, it is felt that an equilibrium of supply and demand has been reached.

The domestic price support program for agricultural products has created many problems for the candy manufacturers. It has resulted in the limitation of ingredients fomerly secured from foreign countries. It has increased prices of ingredient materials which make it difficult for the American manufacturer to compete with the confectioners in foreign countries who are able to purchase raw materials at lower prices than the artificial government controlled prices paid by the American manufacturer.

One phase of the agricultural and related programs has never been fully analyzed. Let's label it cooperation vs. conflict. Practically unanimous opinion prevails that one basic solution to the agricultural program is to increase sales by increasing consumption. This could be undertaken if all segments, the growers and the processors, would join hands in a friendly manner to promote constructive programs. But what has happened? Under the law, sugar growers, peanut growers, tee nut growers appeal to the government for special restrictions, special import fees, import quota restrictions, or surplus disposal allowances. The industrial processors of these farm products believe generally in an expanding rather than a restrictive economy. At duly called government hearings, as prescribed by law, one segment opposes another segment.

Is it not appropriate as we begin 1955 to emphasize cooperation rather than conflict as a means of serving our industry in the public interest?

In spite of the myriad problems, the confectionery industry can look hopefully to a fairly stable production in 1955 in line with the other food industries if equitable adjustments can be made which will permit the confectionery industry to compete on a fair basis.

Both pictures have been market-tested, but neither has been put into national release.

Mrs. Max Miller, Royal Oak, Mich., president, Federation of Motion Picture Councils, Inc., was guest speaker at a meeting of the Motion Picture Council of Greater Cleveland held in the Higbee auditorium. Mrs. Miller urged the councils to work constructively, not critically, with local theatre owners and managers to accomplish desired aims. "We must all accept the fact that the theatre owner knows his business, but is always open to friendly suggestions to improve his public relations, with his eye, of course, on the box office. To do an intelligent job, I think motion picture councils should be aware of . . . important factors and should not be content just to classify pictures as good, bad, or indifferent. I also believe every council should have a public relations committee, not to work against the theatre owner, but to work with him. And the itme has also come, in my opinion, for councils to have a foreign picture committee to study the techniques of these." Mrs. Miller invited the local council members to come to Detroit on

George Seaton and William Perlberg, producers for Paramount of "The Bridges of Toko-Ri" and "The Country Girl," recently stopped off in Cleveland to tell the press about the pictures at a luncheon at the Statler Hotel. A resolution calling on the State Legislature to enact a motion picture censorship law that could be upheld by the United States Supreme Court was unanimously adopted by the welfare committee of the City Council in open meeting. While arguments for censorship were presented by several women and by Msgr. Clarence E. Ellwell, head, local parochial schools, nobody representing the industry appeared to combat the resolution. It now goes to the City Council for final action. All of the old contentions against the movies were paraded before the welfare committee board members. This included claims that a "flood" of undesirable films have been shown since censorship stopped, that the movies are infested with communism, that the movies contribute to juvenile delinquency, and that "because parents cannot possibly review every movie for the children, therefore the state must set up machinery to help people secure this right." Msgr. Ellwell states that "this crusade for motion picture censorship is a battle for protection of human rights against the secularist and the confused liberal. The battlefield for the entire nation is here in the state of Ohio."

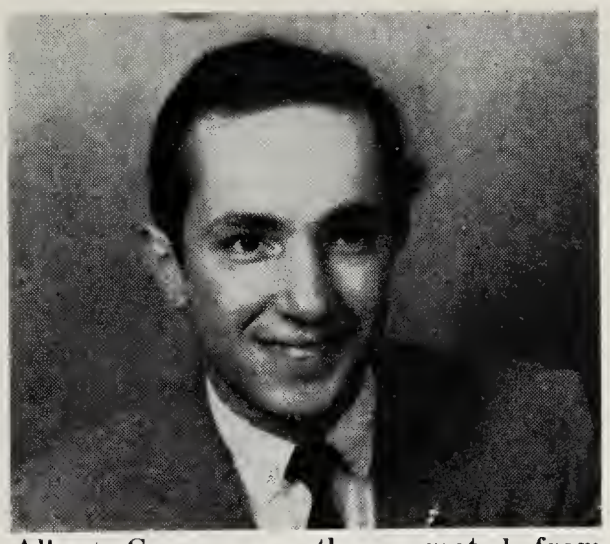
Boston Crosstown



Stanley Warner Theatres has reopened the Capitol, Everett, Mass., which has been closed since 1952, using a full week policy. William Murphy, former assistant manager, Strand, Clinton, Mass., has been put in as manager, under Jose Liss, district manager. A large CinemaScope screen and equipment has been installed. . . . For the first time in three years, Stanley Warner Theatres opened the balcony at the Warner, Lawrence, Mass., for the opening of Terry Turner's "Gangbusters." Much credit for this fact is due to the stupendous campaign put on by manager Steve Barbett.

Robert Taylor, plugging MGM's "Many Rivers To Cross," arrived in town for a full day's activities. He met the press at a luncheon at the Ritz, made radio recordings, and met exhibitors and circuit heads at a cocktail party. One of his most enthusiastic admirers was a Mrs. Ida Drew, Milton, Mass., aged 88, who was invited to the cocktail party to meet her favorite movie star. Taylor, who was wearing a heavy black beard, told the group that he is leaving shortly for England to shoot "Quentin Durward" and hence the whiskers.

The Coolidge, Watertown, Mass., is sporting a sparkling new marquee designed and installed by University Sign Company, the pride and joy of Raphael Sandlow, operator. . . . Herbert Schaefer, Buena Vista manager, screened the Disney CinemaScope feature, "20,000 Leagues Under The Sea," for the trade and press at the Fenway. The feature opened at the Keith Memorial.

During the second week's run of Terry Turner's "Gangbusters," two of the four guards who were held as hostages for 85 hours during the Charlestown prison siege, appeared on the stages of the Paramount and Fenway and were interviewed by an emcee, telling of their horrifying experiences. The two guards, Girard Kadlick and Thomas Ryan, appeared five times a day at both theatres.

Smith Management Company, Philip Smith, president, and Richard Smith, vice-president, has purchased a large tract of land in Jersey City, N. J., for the erection of a 2,000-car drive-in to be ready for a spring opening. Called the Roosevelt Drive-In, it will embody the latest and most modern facilities and is designed and will be engineered by William Riseman Associates of Boston. There are to be two concession stands, one main one in the center and another auxiliary stand, each with four-lane self-service counters. The theatre's location is on Route 1, only a few miles from another huge open airer now under construction in Newark, N. J., for Redstone Drive-In Theatres, another Boston outfit for which Riseman Associates has also drawn the plans.

Albert Coury, recently promoted from assistant manager, Loew's Poli, Springfield, Mass., to assistant manager, Loew's Poli, Hartford, Conn., has been with L-P New England theatres for the past four years. For the opening engagement of Terry Turner's "Gangbusters" in Fall River, Mass., William S. Canning, director of publicity, Yamins Theatres, and John J. MacAvoy, manager, Yamins' Empire, staged one of the most extensive campaigns of their careers. It was highlighted by the sending off of 100 balloons from the top of the Empire. Over $500 in prizes or merchandising giveways were attached to the balloons. Some balloons had actual cash, one dollar bills and five dollar bills, inserted by string to the balloons. All carried cards reading, Compliments of the Empire Theatre now playing "Gangbusters." The giveaways were tied in by the local merchants. In the business section was a huge 28 foot banner announcing the arrival of "Gangbusters." More than 10,000 paper napkins were distributed in the lunch rooms of the 26 mills in the area, and those mills having public address systems heard an announcement six times a day. The theatre itself was all dressed up for the occasion resembling a prison. The outside was taped with bands of hard black

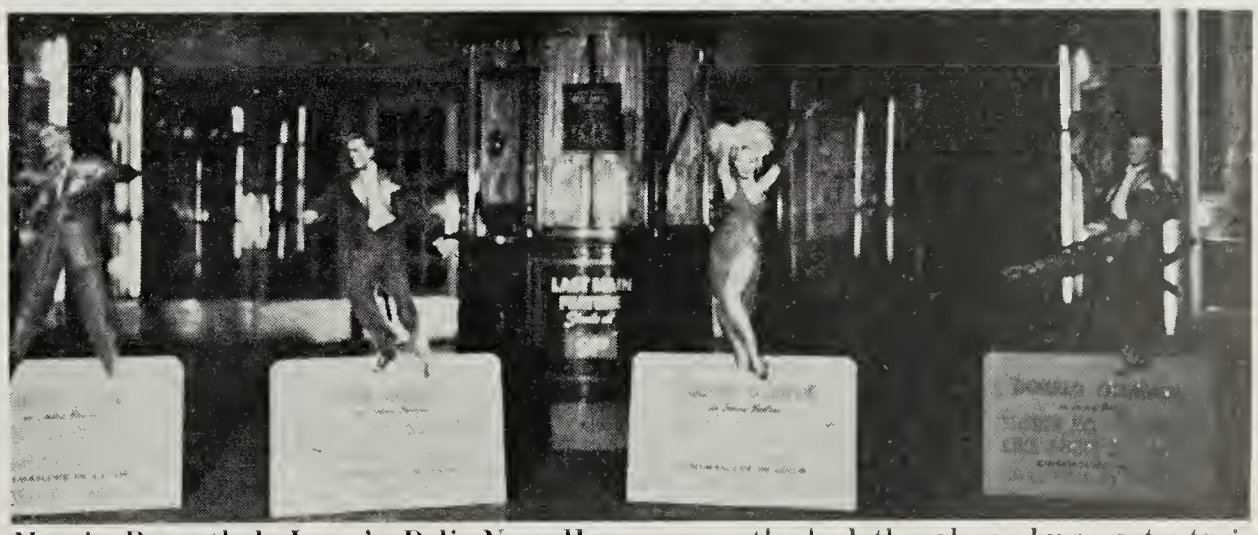
Hartford



In an official statement, Governor Abraham A. Ribicoff commented, "The motion picture theatres of the state of Connecticut represent an important and unique activity, not only as progressive business enterprises, but also as a community service. With characteristic optimism, spirit, and enthusiasm, the theatres of Connecticut have planned a 'Forward In 55' Celebration to bring to the movie-goers of our state many outstanding film productions in the months ahead. It is fitting that we give encouragement and support to such plans and salute those motion picture theatre people who diligently strive to provide entertainment for the men, women, and children of our state. Therefore, as Governor of the state of Connecticut, I am happy to endorse February as 'Go to the Movies Month.'"

The suburb of Glastonbury will have its first drive-in theatre this spring. The town's Zoning Board of Appeals has finally approved an application filed by Jack Leitao, East Hartford businessman, with the latter planning immediate construction. The board had previously tabled the Leitao application. Springfield

This community loses its second downtown movie house in a year, with the announcement that the Court Square, established as a legitimate outlet in 1892, and since then used also for vaudeville and films, will be torn down for reconstruction into an office building. Present lessee of the Court Square is Samuel Wasserman Enterprises, Inc., and landlord is Gilmore Associates, a real estate firm. A spokesman for Gilmore said floor plans for the remodeling have already been drawn, an architect engaged, and that work will start as soon as the Wasserman lease expires April 1. Various civic groups have tried to take up the slack when the going was slow. An organization known as The Playgoers of Springfield took the house over, and spent around $50,000 in refurnishing it, and then made way for the present lessee. Sparse attendance was the reason given for finally abandoning one of the oldest houses in the country.

The Marines, from the U. S. Naval Base in Brooklyn, greeted Mona Freeman, Nancy Olson, Tab Hunter, and Dorothy Malone, stars of the film, who came in by plane from the Baltimore, Md., world premiere. The final judging of the "Miss Battle Cry" contest was held in the Paramount lobby with the stars acting as a panel of judges to determine the winner and two runners-up. Winners receive a long list of prizes, including a two-week vacation at Banner Lodge, Conn., to "Miss Battle Cry."

Edward L. Fabian, chief barker, Variety Club of New York, Tent 35, announced the club's 1955 program. The Club will not reopen its penthouse at the Picadilly Hotel, but members will meet at a series of luncheons, the first of which is scheduled for a private dining room at Toots Shor's on Feb. 15. The Tent will again present a Heart Award dinner, honoring an industry member who has been outstanding in public service. Fabian said, "By refraining at this time from a heavy investment in club quarters, we should end the year with a considerable financial gain, which can be utilized to develop our industry welfare activities or develop our Club further in accordance with the wishes of the membership." The election of new officers will be held at the Feb. 15 meeting.

Spyros S. Skouras, Jr., New York area exhibitor chairman, Brotherhood Drive for 1955; William J. Heineman, national distributor chairman of the industry's interfaith effort; and Francis M. Winikus, national director, publicity and advertising for the drive, met with leading theatremen from the metropolitan area to plan the campaign that will be undertaken by local showmen in support of Brotherhood Week, Feb. 20-27. Exhibition notables present at the luncheon conference at the St. Moritz Hotel included Russell V. Downing, Radio City Music Hall; Ed Fabian, Fabian Theatres; Si Fabian, Stanley Warner; Emanuel Frisch, Randforce Circuit; Murray Lenekoff, Loew's; William Moclair, Roxy; Leslie R. Schwartz, Century Theatres; Sol Schwartz, RKO Theatres; Morris Seider, Associated Prudential Theatres; Charles Smakwitz, Stanley Warner; and Sol Strausberg, Interboro Circuit.

Asbury Park

Walter Reade Theatres, Inc., has requested a three-year lease to operate Convention Hall. Walter Reade, Jr., president of the theatre organization, declared that "the desire of our company is to attract the largest possible number of persons to Asbury Park both during the winter and summer months. Therefore, our plans are perhaps more ambitious for the operation of the premises than those of anyone in the past. It is our thought not only to engage outstanding talent for the presentation of concerts, symphonies, arena spectaculars, outstanding name and dance bands, important lecturers, but also to provide a series of exhibits and displays in and around the building which will result in the Convention Hall becoming the cultural and 'want to go' place for all of New Jersey. It is conceivable that if present program planning is effective and well received, at some future date structural improvements and alterations to the building will be recommended." The offer states that the Reade organization would utilize its theatre circuit to advertise and publicize the City of Asbury Park and plans to establish a permanent, remote television installation at Convention Hall for Station WRTV to televise events at the Hall. The Reade organization operates the Paramount, directly across the Boardwalk arcade from Convention Hall, as well as the Mayfair, St. James, Lyric, Ocean, and Savoy, in Asbury Park.

Newark

Appointment of Edgar Goth as director of advertising and publicity, Stanley Warner Theatres, in the state of New Jersey, was announced by Charles A. Smakwitz, zone manager. In his new post, Goth will coordinate and supervise all promotional campaigns and motion picture merchandising for the 40 showhouses in the zone which embraces Essex, Hudson, Union, Bergen, and Passaic counties. Goth succeeds Robert R. Deitch, who has resigned to join Frank J. Damis and his associates in the Eastern Drive-In Corporation. Prior to his Newark zone executive post, Deitch had served for over 20 years in publicity and top managerial positions for Warner Brothers Theatres. Goth is a veteran of 25 years in show business. Upon graduation from Syracuse University he put in a stint on the service staff of Paramount, New York, where he learned the fundamentals of theatre operation. He then moved up to managerial posts for Publix Theatres in Asbury Park and Plainfield, N. J. His next move was to Staten Island, N. Y., where he was manager, Paramount, and advertising director of seven theatres. Fabian Theatres acquired this group and Goth continued with them in his advertising capacity. During World War II, Goth was active on the industry War Activities Committee. He headed the public relations segment in war bond drives, Red Cross, United Nations, and other war time efforts spearheaded by theatres. In 1944, when Fabian Theatres bought the Wilmer and Vincent Circuit of 21 theatres in Pennsylvania and Virginia, Goth was named advertising director. In 1949, he was called to New York City on a special assignment to plan and coordinate the Fabian Theatres 35th Anniversary celebration. In 1950 he was promoted to advertising head of the entire group of Fabian Theatres, working out of the home office. Goth entered the Stanley Warner organization in 1953 when Simon H. Fabian and Sam Rosen took over control of the 300 theatre circuit from Warner Brothers. Goth is married and the father of three children. He lives in Upper Montclair, N. J.

Malcom William Deitch, 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert R. Deitch and a grandson of the late Rabbi Max William Deitch, celebrated his bar mitzvah. Mr. and Mrs. Deitch were hosts to the congregation after the services. A reception and dinner attended by approximately 175 relatives and friends was held in the Oxford-Cambridge Room, Essex House. Deitch is director of advertising and publicity, Stanley Warner Theatre Circuit, Jersey Zone office.

The largest street banner ever seen on New York's Broadway was recently unfurled when 20th-Fox initiated a major tieup for "The Racers," Roxy, with the annual Universal Travel and Auto Sports Show, Madison Square Garden.

A theatre attendant who tried to usher a gate-crasher out of the State, Jersey City, N. J., was cut slightly with a knife. The assailant was apprehended. . . . Irving Lippman, auditor, Stanley Warner Jersey Zone, who was with the company for approximately 39 years, resigned to take a much needed rest. Lippman was presented with a beautiful wrist watch and gold money clip by his co-workers and a generous gift from the company.

The theatres participating in Valentine drawings for beautiful boxes of candy, sponsored by the Barricini Jersey City Candy Shop, and dinners by the Oyster Bay Restaurant, to be given to the lucky winners, are the Fabian, Hoboken; Lincoln, Union City; Roosevelt, Union City; Central, Jersey City; and Ritz, Jersey City, all in New Jersey.

With the showing of "On the Waterfront" at the Fabian, Hoboken, N. J., John Stanek, manager, had on the stage Elia Kazan, Tony Galento, and about 20 individuals who live in Hoboken and had small parts in the picture.

Walter Reade Theatres joined forces with MGM for a three-month managerial campaign in conjunction with MGM's Theatre Celebration, Walter Reade, Jr., circuit president, announced. The circuit and MGM have posted a total of nearly $1,000 in prizes, to be awarded to the managers who do the best advertising and exploitation job in February, March, and April, on specially selected pictures. Special prizes will go to the managers who do the best work in the public and community relations field over the full three-month period. Special brochures, outlining the drive, have been sent to each Reade theatre manager, in addition to the special press book and accessories prepared by MGM for the theatre celebration. Judges will be Edwin Gage, vice-president; Jack P. Harris, film buyer; Nick Schermerhorn, general manager; Paul Peterson, assistant general manager; and Al Floerscheimer, advertising-publicity director, all from the Reade organization; and members of MGM's staff including Charles Felleman, field exploitation man.

New York State

Albany

Mrs. Lydia Van Buren, 72, long-time owner, Van Buren, Cairo, N. Y., died in Greene County Memorial Hospital, Catskill, N. Y., only a few hours after attending a motion picture show in the Catskill. Mrs. Van Buren, who sold the Van Buren several months ago, subsequent to closing it for the winter, had not been in the best health recently. For years, she made weekly visits to Film Row. Representing the industry at funeral services were Ray Smith, Warners manager, and Jack Goldberg, MGM manager.

The formidable nature of competition by television to motion picture theatres of the state may be visualized through an analysis of the 15-page "Television Broadcasting in New York State" report, in the January Commerce Review of the State Commerce Department. In an optimistic vein, the report observed that the possibilities of closed-circuit television "have not yet been fully explored." Mentioning a number of uses in businesses, medical schools and hospitals, it pointed to the introduction of new products to dealers by manufacturers "via a television hookup," and to the fact that "a number of motion picture theatres have found large audiences for closed-circuit broadcasts of opera performances and sporting events," the report concluded: "As experience in this field grows and color takes its place in telecasting, closed-circuit broadcasts may become even more important in the industry as a whole."

Another chapter in the account of "Mom and Dad" was written here when the Board of Regents announced it had unanimously affirmed the ruling of Dr. Hugh M. Flick, director, motion picture division, state education department, that the picture could not be licensed with the birth sequence included. Ephraim S. London, appellant's attorney, had announced he would take the case to the courts if he drew a turn-down from the Regents. An announcement by the Regents read, "After a full discussion, and upon motion of Chancellor Emeritus Wallin, chairman of the committee which viewed the motion picture, 'Mom and Dad,' it was unanimously resolved that the determination of the director . . . denying this licene because of the scene depicting the actual birth of a baby is affirmed. The Court of Appeals affirming the Board of Regents has held that such a scene can not be shown in the amusement theatres of the state because it is indecent when shown in such theatres."

International Variety Chief Barker George C. Hoover's address, at the recent testimonial dinner which Albany Variety Club gave Charles A. Smakwitz, new Stanley Warner zone manager in Newark, continued to win favorable comment long after Hoover had left. Local chief barker George H. Schenck was one of those commending the talk. He called it "deeply inspirational, beautifully phrased." In praising Smakwitz's services to Tent 9 and to the Variety movement, Hoover said that every man, whether Catholic, Protestant or Jew, felt "closer to His maker when he helped the less fortunate"—as all Variety clubs and members did. The obligation of theatremen to "root" themselves in the communities where they live and which they serve, was also emphasized by the international chief barker.

Columbia Pictures Music Corporation has been authorized to conduct a music publishing business in New York. Capital stock is 200 shares, no par value. Directors and recording attorneys are Marshall H. Rosett and Nathan Weinstein.

Wells Closed Circuit Network, Inc., has been reserved as a corporate name in New York. Attorneys are Engel, Judge, Miller, and Sterling. . . . Flanders Drive-In Theatre Corporation has been empowered to conduct business in Bay Shore, Suffolk County. Capital stock is $40,000, $100 par. Incorporators are Joseph M. Seider, Morris Seider, and Walter F. J. Higgins.

M and L Amusement Corporation has been empowered to conduct business at Albion, N. Y. Incorporators are Charles V. Martina, Salvatore J. Panzarella, and Marion K. Hartlett.

The Legislature is considering a number of bills which would affect theatres and the industry. Among those of the first category is one by Assemblyman Bertram L. Podell, Kings County Democrat, which amends the New York City Administrative Code to provide that motion picture film shall not be brought into the booth of any theatre there unless it has been inspected and repaired, with evidence thereof, immediately prior to shipment for projection purposes. The metropolitan film inspection and shipping local, IATSE, advocated the measure, and the State Federation of Labor supported that unit. However, industry distribution and management sources strongly opposed the plan, which they termed unnecessary and costly. Another bill is the Williamson-Brook act which would make it mandatory, instead of permissive, for standard time to be adopted annually from the last Sunday in April to the last Sunday in October, adding a month to the present "clocks ahead" span.

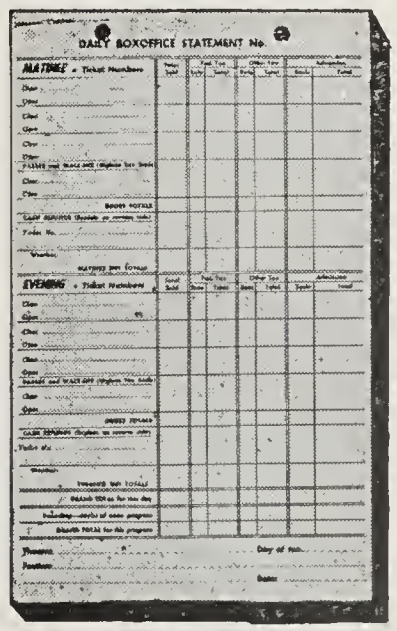
William B. Zoellner, MGM short subjects sales manager, was in at the local branch.

Buffalo

John P. Byrne, eastern MGM sales manager, was in. He was due to visit Albany before returning to his New York City headquarters.

Thomas McMahon, Sutton, New York City, recently had this handsome lobby display for United Artists' "Romeo and Juliet."

Geneva



Jerry Fowler, Schine's Geneva, has set up a Miss Valentine contest, an annual affair at his theatre. Feb. 14 is, of course, the date of the affair.

Windham

George Thornton closed the Windham for the winter.

Washington

The refurnishing of Washington's most famous theatre, the new RKO Keith's, with complete new decor, will be ready to be unveiled for the gala event of the world premiere of "The Long Gray Line" on Feb. 10. Managing director Jerome Baker announces that the work which has been going on since July involves renovations from the stage right out to the entrance on the street. The changes, while giving the theatre new beauty, luxury, and magnificence, will, however, retain the original dignity and tradition of the theatre. According to architect John McNamara, the finest materials to be obtained were brought to Washington for this project. Greek Cipolin marble is being used in the outside entrance, lobby, and foyer. The box office, which has been moved from the entrance to the right side, will be of curved glass and stainless steel. All new carpeting of modern red, beige, and black design, all new recessed and indirect lighting, the ultra modern candy stand, two sets of all glass doors, and marble flower boxes on either side of the foyer displaying fresh flowers are some of the items that will now enhance the historical RKO Keith's.

Leading figures of the government, armed services, diplomatic corps and society were due to grace the world premiere of "The Long Gray Line," Keith's. Proceeds of the benefit opening will be donated to the Soldiers, Sailors, Marines and Airmens' Club of Washington. Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower, wife of the President, honorary president of the club, served as honorary chairman of the premiere, which is sponsored by the wives of the Officers of the Technical Services of the U. S. Army, chairmanned by Mrs. Charles E. Wilson, wife of the Secretary of Defense.

Variety Club of Washington, Tent 11, lost another member, Alexander Forman, who passed away on Jan. 27. He is survived by his widow, to whom condolences are extended.

Stars of Warners' "Battle Cry," including Mona Freeman, Dorothy Malone, and Tab Hunter, and director Raoul Walsh, stopped over for a series of personal appearances and interviews en route to the world premiere of the film in Baltimore, Md. They were met at the airport by a delegation from the U. S. Marine Corps. Their activities in the capital included appearances on Mark Evans' TV show over WTOP, breakfast and interview with amusement editors of the local press, interviews over stations WRC and WWDC. The stars met press, radio, and TV representatives at a special "Battle Cry" buffet luncheon.

MGM—Sickness took its toll at the local exchange as Edith Hislop, secretary; Rose Frank, clerk; Lucille Ryon, clerk; and Kitty Arnold, clerk, were down with the virus. . . . Oliver Broughton, maintenance supervisor, was a home office visitor.

Sunday motion pictures in New Castle County outside of incorporated communities would be permitted continuously without the 6-8 p. m. closing under the provisions of a bill introduced in the House by Representative Paul R. Livingston, Democrat, Wilmington, during the 16th legislative day of the 118th General Assembly. Unlike the present law for the city of Wilmington where continuous operation is permitted on Sunday from 2 p. m. to midnight, Livingston's bill would permit theatres in unincorporated areas of New Castle County to operate continuously from noon to midnight. The measure would leave the law as it now is for Kent and Sussex Counties, Sunday films would be permitted between noon and 6 p. m. and from 8 p. m. to midnight outside of incorporated communities.

Bids are being invited on or about March 9 for the construction of a theatre at the Dover Airforce Base, according to Colonial Allen F. Clark, Jr., engineer for the Philadelphia district of the army engineers. The proposed work will consist of a theatre building which will contain an auditorium about 62 feet wide by about 116 feet long, and about 20 feet high; a stage, dressing room, canteen, and lobby. The building will be air conditioned throughout. The related site improvements will consist of a service road, sidewalks, electric service, water service, and sanitary sewers. The work is scheduled for completion within 10 months after the successful contractor receives notice to proceed with the work.

Baltimore

Warners' "Battle Cry" had its world premiere at the Stanley. The house was sold out days in advance. Mayor D'Alesandre welcomed Hollywood stars Tab Hunter, Mona Freeman, and Dorothy Malone and director Raoul Walsh. Baltimore is the home of "Battle Cry" author Leon Uris, who also attended. One of the highlights of the stage presentation was the bestowal of the title, "Hero of Baltimore," on ex-Marine Donald Heilman by the Mayor. On Jan. 16, Heilman rescued a seven-year-old boy from the icy waters of Gwynn's Falls and in a letter from the Mayor was commended for his "outstanding heroism." In the morning, the stars and others officially launched the National Fund Drive for the American Heart Association in special ceremonies at the City Hall. Maryland's Governor McKelden attended the presentation. Previously, full-scale Marine induction ceremonies were held in which an English bulldog was drafted into the Corps and given the name of "Battle Cry" in Treasure of Ruby Hill (5507)

WESTERN
71M.

ESTIMATE: Okeh western for the lower half.

CAST: Zachary Scott, Carole Mathews, Barton MacLane, Dick Foran, Lola Albright, Gordon Jones, Raymond Hatton, Lee Van Cleef, Steve Darrell, Charles Fredericks, Stanley Andrews, James Alexander, Rick Vallin. Produced by William P. Broidy; directed by Frank MacDonald.

STORY: Cattle ranchers Barton MacLane and Charles Fredericks are fighting each other for the control of the open range after driving off most of the smaller opposition. MacLane's chief gunslinger is Lee Van Cleef, while his counterpart is Gordon Jones. At this point, Zachary Scott rides on the scene having filed claim with the government to all of the important water outlets in the territory. All are unaware that the real power behind-the-scenes is Dick Foran, foreman on a ranch owned by Rick Vallin and his sister, Carole Mathews, who is attracted to Scott. Foran manipulates things so that both MacLane and Fredericks are killed and then he steps in. Scott, however, steps in at the right time with a few friends and cleans up the situation, and he and Mathews look for a happy future together.

X-RAY: There's enough action and intrigue to satisfy most western fans, and the Scott name may be of some value in the selling. The story is adequate, and the acting, direction, and production average. The screen play is by Tom Hubbard and Fred Eggers, based on a story by Louis L'Amour.

AD LINES: "War On The Open Range Meant Death To Many"; "An Action-Filled Yarn Of Feuding Cattlemen With Little To Lose And Lots To Gain"; "Roaring Guns And Death Guarded The 'Treasure Of Ruby Hill."

The Long Gray Line

BIOGRAPHICAL DRAMA
138M.

(Color by Technicolor)
(CinemaScope)

ESTIMATE: High rating entry.

CAST: Tyrone Power, Maureen O'Hara, Robert Francis, Donald Crisp, Ward Bond, Betsy Palmer, Phil Carey, William Leslie, Harry Carey, Jr., Patrick Wayne, Sean McClory, Peter Graves, Milburn Stone, Erin O'Brien Moore, Walter D. Ehlers, Willis Bouchey, Don Barclay, Martin Milner, Check Courtney. Produced by Robert Arthur; directed by John Ford.

STORY: Tyrone Power, an old technical sergeant with fifty years of service in the army and stationed at West Point during his entire term, complains to the President over his enforced retirement. His story is related in flashback, how in 1903, in his early 20's and just off the boat from Ireland, he got a job as waiter at West Point, but soon finds that men of the regular army on the post are better treated and joins up. His boxing ability is noted by Captain Ward Bond, athletic director, and he is assigned to his staff helping with the cadets. He becomes a friend and father confessor to most of the cadets, many of whom become famous in later years. An Irish girl just off the boat, Maureen O'Hara, attracts his fancy and they get married. By diligent savings, she is able to bring his father and brother over, Donald Crisp and Sean McClory, as a surprise for Power who had intended to return to Ireland. Crisp lives with them while McClory goes to New York City. He plays cupid to cadet William Leslie by introducing him to Betsy Palmer, who helps him with his work. O'Hara becomes pregnant and gives birth to a boy who lives briefly, after which she can bear no more children. In World War I, Power requests a transfer to the fighting forces but is convinced he is more important where he is. Leslie dies in battle after leaving Palmer and a son, with O'Hara and Power practically becoming foster parents to Robert Francis. He enters the Point and is ready to graduate when he secretly marries and, though this is annulled, he feels he has despoiled the honor of the school and resigns enlisting as a private in the regular army after Pearl Harbor. He gains his rank on the battlefield. O'Hara dies peacefully of old age. The President refers the matter to one of his aides and they return to the Point to find a full parade salute awaiting Power, who must retire officially but who will remain on at the Point for as long as he desires.

X-RAY: While the running time here is long, the entertainment values are constantly of high quality and the story of a man who gave his life and his efforts and devotion to West Point is a thoroughly interesting one. The usual story and anecdotes to be found in entries about West Point are kept in the background and instead audiences are permitted to see the institution and its men and officers through the eyes of an outsider with a different, pleasing, and heartwarming result. There are a number of instances when tearful emotions will come to the fore, and there are still others where bits of humor will induce hearty laughter. The entire package as shaped by John Ford is one that should impress audiences and boxoffices. The cast, headed by Tyrone Power and Maureen O'Hara, gives a very good account of itself. The screenplay is by Edward Hope, based on "Bringing Up The Brass" by Marty Maher and Nardi Reeder Campion.

Pirates Of Tripoli (706)

MELODRAMA 78M.

(Color by Technicolor)

ESTIMATE: For the duallers.

CAST: Paul Henreid, Patricia Medina, Paul Newland, John Miljan, Mark Hanna, Jean Del Val, Lillian Bond, Mel Welles, Louis G. Mercier, Jarl Davis, Maralou Gray. Produced by Sam Katzman; directed by Felix Feist.

STORY: In the 16th Century, princess Patricia Medina flees when her kingdom is overrun by the savage hordes of John Miljan. She goes to Tripoli to seek the aid of the pirates headed by Paul Henreid to regain her kingdom. Henreid agrees, making his former girl friend, Maralou Gray, jealous, and word gets back to Miljan who sends his fleet to destroy the pirate vessels. Medina persuades Henreid and his top associate, Paul Newland, to go to the palace with her for the royal jewels which will permit them to go to Europe and purchase vessels for the pirates. They are successful and sail on a merchant vessel for Italy, but Gray has revealed the plan to Miljan's agent, after which she is killed. The ship is taken, but Henreid and Newland are hidden while Medina becomes a prisoner. She is sentenced to die. Henreid and Newland gain entry to the city and with the pirates disguised force a showdown battle, disposing of Miljan and regaining the city for Medina. Henreid and the princess plan a future together.

X-RAY: This entry follows the usual pattern of hero and heroine vs. the powerful villain and should do okeh as part of the program where an average lower half entry is sought and needed. The story, acting, direction, and production are all average, with color by Technicolor proving of assistance. There's enough action to placate most viewers. The story and screen play are by Allen March.

TIP ON BIDDING: Program price.

AD LINES: "Pirates Take To The Land For High Adventure"; "Action Galore When Men Battle For Plunder And The Affections Of A Princess"; "A Princess And A Pirate Team Up For A Plunge Into Adventure."

Ten Wanted Men (725)

WESTERN 80M.

(Technicolor)

ESTIMATE: Western has action and angles.

CAST: Randolph Scott, Alfonso Bedoya, Donna Martell, Jocelyn Brando, Richard Boone, Skip Homeier, Clem Bevans, Minor Watson, Lester Matthews, Dennis Weaver, Leo Gordon. Produced by Harry Joe Brown; directed by Bruce Humbertstone.

STORY: Randolph Scott, owner of a cattle empire in Arizona, brings his widower brother, Lester Matthews, and Matthews' son, Skip Homeier, to his town. Homeier, arriving at the ranch meets Spanish Donna Martell the ward of Richard Boone a power in the area. Boone discovers that Martell and Homeier are becoming romantically inclined and flies into a rage, then proposes to Martell. She takes refuge at Scott's ranch. Importing a gang of gunmen headed by Gordon, Boone acquires a neighboring ranch and rustles Scott's cattle. One of Boone's gunmen challenges Homeier and the youngster, forced to fight, kills his man. Boone's friends accuse Homeier of murder and the boy is jailed. Homeier breaks jail and with Martell's help finds a hiding place. Scott discovers his boy and knocks him out. Scott then arranges for independent ranchers to meet at the house of Jocelyn Brando, his sweetheart, in order to tell them of his plans. Seeking Boone, Scott walks into a trap, but manages to shoot his way out, taking refuge at Brando's house. Boone and his killers follow, and a gun battle ensues, with Homeier making his way into the besieged house. Boone uses dynamite, killing most of the defenders, but Scott and Homeier escape into the river. Boone starts to pay off his thugs, but is double-crossed by Gordon and the others, who take everything. Boone rides out to get Martell but meets Scott who kills him in a showdown. Riding back to town Scott engages Gordon in a free-for-all in which Gordon is beaten. Scott marries Brando and Homeier marries Martell.

X-RAY: With loads of action this entry is fast-paced and has lots of violence. Randolph Scott displays his usual brand of slick heroics and should be as good a drawing card as ever to his audience. The cast, story, and direction are okeh and it should make up well on the program. Screen play is by Kenneth Gamet based on a story by Irving Ravetch and Harriet Frank, Jr. Legion of Decency rating: "B."

TIP ON BIDDING: Program price.

AD LINES: "He Carved Out An Empire With Bullets and Fists"; "It's Scott Against Ten Killers"; "Blood And Bullets On The Lawless Range."

Women's Prison (726)

MELODRAMA 80M.

ESTIMATE: Exploitable prison yarn.

CAST: Ida Lupino, Jan Sterling, Cleo Moore, Audrey Totter, Phyllis Thaxter, Howard Duff, Warren Stevens, Barry Kelley, Gertrude Michael Vivian Marshall, Mae Clarke, Ross Elliott, Adele August. Produced by Bryan Foy; directed by Lewis Seiler.

STORY: Set in a prison that houses both men and women separated by a wall, the two groups are conscious of each other. Governing the men is tough, uncaring Barry Kelley, while head of the women's section is Ida Lupino, power-mad and with a twisted mind and a lack of male companionship in her life which makes her bitter towards her charges. Housewife Phyllis Thaxter, guilty of reckless driving that caused the death of a child, and veteran convict and forger Jan Sterling are both admitted at the same time. Prison doctor Howard Duff tries to help Thaxter face her life behind bars but Lupino goes out of her way to make things tough. Convict Warren Stevens gets to see his wife, Audrey Totter, in the women's side to tell her where he hid the money from their last job so that she can use it when she is paroled. The visit leaves her pregnant. Lupino is threatened with expulsion unless she forces Totter to tell her how Stevens managed to get into the women's section and beats Totter until she has a miscarriage and lies near death. The other girls, led by Sterling and Cleo Moore, take over the prison from the matrons while Stevens again makes the trip between the two buildings in time to have Totter die in his arms. Amid teargas and bullets, Stevens seeks out Lupino and almost kills her but is stopped in time and rescuers find her raving mad. A clean-up is assured, with Duff taking a stand against Kelley and his methods. Thaxter is paroled and is reunited with her husband, Ross Elliott.

X-RAY: There are a number of angles, especially the women's prison theme, that can be exploited. The story is an interesting one, and the characterizations by the various performers are good, as is the direction and production. It should make up well on the program and with a little extra effort give an okeh account of itself. The screenplay is by Crane Wilbur and Jack DeWitt, based on a story by the latter. The names in the cast should also prove of considerable assistance sellingwise. Legion of Decency rating: "B."

TIP ON BIDDING: Program price.

AD LINES: "A Man Gets Into The Women's Prison . . . Don't Miss What Happens"; "They Had A Way Of Taking Care Of Rats"; "Women Driven Mad By Bars That Kept Them From Their Loved Ones."

LIPPERT

They Were So Young (5406)

MELODRAMA 78M.

(Filmed in Germany)

ESTIMATE: Exploitation entry can be sold.

CAST: Scott Brady, Johanna Matz, Raymond Burr, Ingrid Stenn, Gisela Fackeldey, Kurt Meisel, Katherina Mayberg, Eduard Linkers, Gordon Howard, Elizabeth Tanney, Erica Beer, Hanita Hallan. Produced and directed by Kurt Neumann.

STORY: Five European models, including Johanna Matz and Ingrid Stenn, arrive in Rio under contract to a fashion house managed by Gisela Fackeldey, but secretly owned by wealthy Raymond Burr. Finding it not a fashion house but rather one devoted to the entertainment of gentlemen, Matz and Stenn go to appeal to the authorities. Stenn is captured and beaten before she can get there. Matz brings the police back but can prove nothing since the other girls refuse to back her up out of fear and other considerations. Matz appeals to American engineer Scott Brady, who works for Burr, and he places her in the home of Burr for protection. She escapes, convinces him that Burr is behind the whole operation, but is kidnapped and taken aboard a Burr-owned pleasure boat containing women to please plantation workers. Scott traces her with the help of a disgruntled Burr employe and rescues Metz after Stenn has been killed. A police undercover agent helps Scott break up the ring and capture Burr. Scott and Matz plan to leave for America for a future together.

X-RAY: There are a number of angles that can be used by exploitation spots to maybe do better than average with this while others can use it on the program. The story is offbeat and having been made abroad it has a different atmosphere to it. The acting, direction, and production are okeh with interest in evidence pretty much throughout. The screen play is by Felix Luetzkendorf and Kurt Neumann, based on an outline by Jacques Companeez.

AD LINES: "Too Innocent . . . Too Willing . . . Too Eager"; "They Had To Please Men Or Else"; "They Called Them Luxury Girls."

Anchors Aweigh (520)

COMEDY WITH MUSIC 144M.

(Reissue)

(Technicolor)

ESTIMATE: Reissue has names to sell.

CAST: Frank Sinatra, Kathryn Grayson, Gene Kelly, Jose Iturbi, Dean Stockwell, Pamela Britton, Rags Ragland, Billy Gilbert, Henry O'Neill, Charles Ramirez, James Flavin, Edgar Kennedy. Produced by Joseph Pasternak; directed by George Sidney.

STORY: Sailor Gene Kelly, who saved the life of his buddy, Frank Sinatra, when a blast threw him into the water, is the top wolf of the ship. Both are decorated, given four days leave. Sinatra trails along with Kelly to learn the wolf technique, but manages to be only a handicap. When young Dean Stockwell wants to join the navy, police enlist Kelly's aid to find out where Stockwell lives. Sinatra and Kelly accompany Stockwell home, where he lives with his aunt, Kathryn Grayson, a movie extra who wants to meet and sing for Jose Iturbi, but is unsuccessful. Sinatra falls for Grayson; and Kelly, wanting to make an impression, says Sinatra and Iturbi are pals. They chase after Iturbi, but never catch up with him. Meanwhile, Sinatra falls for Brooklyn-born waitress Pamela Britton, while Kelly and Grayson are in love. Finally, just as their leave is ending, and the boys are ready to tell Grayson the truth, she meets Iturbi, who, on hearing the story, gets her the screen test. She clicks, and the windup is on the boys' ship where Iturbi is conducting the band.

X-RAY: When first reviewed in THE SERVISECTION of July, 1945, it was said: "Headed for the bigger money, this is one of the best from MGM. It is Kelly's show all the way, but he gets able support from the others. Sinatra plays the role of a meek sailor, and acquits himself well. One sequence, in which Kelly dances with a cartoon character, is a real gem, and another dream sequence also gives him a chance to come through with a strong dancing specialty. Songs heard are 'Tango,' 'The Worry Song,' 'Anchors Aweigh,' 'I Fall In Love Too Easily,' 'Concertine,' 'Donkey Serenade,' 'La Galondria,' 'Jesusita En Chihuacha,' 'Cielita Lindo,' 'El Caseabel,' 'El Relajo,' Tschaikowsky's 'Piano Concerto,' 'The Charm Of You,' 'Hungarian Rhapsody,' 'Waltz Serenade,' 'What Makes The Sun Set,' 'Largo Al Factotum,' 'I Begged Her,' 'We Hate To Leave,' 'Wiegenlied,' and 'Jalousie'."

Many Rivers To Cross (517)

OUTDOOR COMEDY DRAMA 92M.

(CinemaScope) (Eastman Color)

ESTIMATE: Offbeat outdoor show has names and amusing angles.

CAST: Robert Taylor, Eleanor Parker, Victor MacLaglen, Jeff Richards, Russ Tamblyn, James Arness, Alan Hale, Jr., John Hudson, Rhys Williams, Josephine Hutchinson, Sig Ruman, Rosemary DeCamp, Russell Johnson, Ralph Moody, Abel Fernandez. Produced by Jack Cummings; directed by Roy Rowland.

STORY: Frontiersman Robert Taylor, fleeing from a girl with marriage on her mind, is wounded by Indians and rescued by Eleanor Parker, who takes him to the home of her family to recuperate. She also has marriage in mind for Taylor, which pleases the family headed by Victor McLaglen but disgusts long-time suitor Alan Hale, Jr. Parker provokes a fight between Hale and Taylor, with Hale emerging victorious, but nothing she can do sways Taylor from his aversion to a wedding. She finally resorts to falsely accusing Taylor of compromising her, whereupon McLaglen and brothers Jeff Richards, Russ Tamblyn, and John Hudson force a marriage at shotgun-point. Taylor flees after the ceremony, but Parker follows doggedly through the Indian-infested woods, determined to consummate the marriage. He remains stubborn, and at last she tearfully leaves him to return home. Taylor plans a trapping venture with James Arness, a family man, but realizes that Arness' ties to his wife and children are too strong. He returns to Parker, finds her in touble with Indians, but they emege from the battle victorious and in love.

X-RAY: Producer Cummings has attempted to follow up his highly successful "Seven Brides For Seven Brothers" with something in a similar vein, a good natured spoof of post-Revolutionary customs and mores, and has succeeded fairly well. An excellent cast affords several amusing portrayals with Parker and Taylor baring real comic ability, particularly in an Indian-fighting scene that is a gem of frustrated fury. There is real suspense in several Indian chase scenes, but the tongue-in-cheek is always present. The film is comparable to a dramatized folk-song, with the spirit of the frontier nicely captured in excellent color. One song, "The Higher Up The Berry Tree," is heard. The screen play is by Harry Brown and Guy Trosper.

TIP ON BIDDING: Better rates.

AD LINES: "Frontier Frolics As A Wedding Loving Woman Chases A Marriage Shy Woodsman"; "She Meant To Have Him, Dead Or Alive"; "He Feared No Man, But She Was No Man."

ESTIMATE: Okeh programmer.

CAST: Jack Warner, Robert Beatty, Bill Owen, Maxwell Reed, Bill Travers, George Rose, Alfie Bass, Ronald Lewis, Sidney James, Joan Collins, Kay Kendall, Bernadette O'Farrell, Eddie Byrne, Vic Wise. Produced and directed by Michael Relph and Basil Dearden.

STORY: At a fight stadium, Jack Warner is a handler in the dressing room readying various contestants for their bouts. There is Robert Beatty, former champ, trying a comeback against the wishes of his wife, Bernadette O'Farrell, who separated from him because he refused to give up the ring. There are others, a punch-drunk old-timer, a slow-witted giant who knows his way around in the ring, a good fighter suspected of throwing some fights, a novice facing his first professional fight, a peppy fighter despairing of having looks disarranged, etc. The old-timer wins and plans to continue full of confidence; the simple lad wins; the chap who was ordered to throw the fight is double crossed when his opponent quits before he can, and his life and that of his girl is in danger from gamblers; the novice loses because of his opponent's foul tactics; and the boy who fears for his looks gets a clout on the nose and almost murders his opponent in anger. Beatty puts up a good show against a younger and stronger opponent but takes a beating. He wins in the last round but the effort has been too much for him and he dies to the despair of O'Farrell.

X-RAY: There are some good dramatic moments as well as some action in the ring to be found in this entry devoted to what happens both in and out of the ring to various contestants. The story is interesting and direction, acting, and production okeh, and it should do satisfactorily as part of the program. The screen play by Robert Westerby is based on a play by Ralph W. Peterson.

Timberjack

OUTDOOR MELODRAMA 94M.

(Trucolor)

ESTIMATE: Colorful outdoor meller will fit into action spots.

CAST: Sterling Hayden, Vera Ralston, David Brian, Adolphe Menjou, Hoagy Carmichael, Chill Wills, Jim Davis, Howard Petrie, Ian MacDonald, Elisha Cook, Karl Davis, Wally Cassell, Tex Terry, George Marshall. Associate producer and director, Joe Kane.

STORY: Sterling Hayden returns to his Montana home and learns from cabaret owner and entertainer Vera Ralston, his childhood sweetheart, that his father has been murdered. The cabaret is popular with the lumbjacks employed by David Brian, also interested in Ralston, whom Hayden suspects of killing his father. Hayden decides to operate his father's logging interests despite the fact that Brian controls the railroad and tries to force him to sell. Aided by Chill Wills, he plans to float the timber to market and receives valuable tips on Brian's plans from Ralston, her father, Adolphe Menjou, and pianist Hoagy Carmichael. Brian kills Menjou when he learns he has tipped off Hayden and imports thugs to destroy Hayden's dam. Ralston learns Brian is guilty and flees to Hayden with Brian in pursuit. Hayden kills him in a gunfight, learns Brian killed his father, and marries Ralston, while Carmichael receives the cabaret as a gift.

X-RAY: Republic journeyed to the wildest parts of Montana to film this, and the result is some truly breathtaking scenery captured in excellent Trucolor. The story is familiar, but there is plenty of action and outdoor fans won't be disappointed. Performances are capable and several song and dance interludes act as a neat change of pace. Heard are "The Tambourine Waltz," "What Ev'ry Young Girl Should Know," "He's Dead But He Won't Lie Down," "My Dog," and "Timberjack." The screen play is by Allen Rivkin, based on a novel by Dan Cushman.

AD LINES: "Lusty, Rousing, Robust Adventure Sprawling Across A Canvas As Huge As The Great Outdoors"; "Spurred By A Thirst For Vengeance, He Challenged The Might Of A Forest Emperor"; "Timber And A Beautiful Woman Explode Into Violence In The Great Northwest."

Belle Starr's Daughter (541)

WESTERN 86M.

(Reissue)

ESTIMATE: Western reissue should do okeh.

CAST: George Montgomery, Rod Cameron, Ruth Roman, Wallace Ford, Charles Kemper, William Phipps, Edith King, Jack Lambert, Fred Libby, Isabel Jewell, J. Farrell McDonald, Cris-Pin Martin, Kenneth MacDonald, William Perrott, William Ruhl, Frank Darion, Larry Johns, Harry Harvey, Charles Stevens, Paul E. Burns, Bill Kennedy, Lane Chandler, Mary Foran, Henry Hull, John Cason. Produced by Edward Alperson; directed by Lesley Selander.

STORY: When Rod Cameron and William Phipps, outlaws, venture into Antioch and kill the marshal, they break the truce that exists between the town and the outlaws at Cherokee Flats. Isabel Jewell, queen of the outlaws, orders the pair brought before her to turn them over to the authorities, but Cameron shoots down Jewell, and the pair make a break for safety. Wallace Ford, another outlaw, is suspicious of Cameron. The townspeople, under the leadership of George Montgomery, new marshal, wipe out the outlaws. Ruth Roman, Jewell's daughter, thinks Montgomery is responsible for her mother's death, and, later, when she gets a job in Antioch, she tries to brush off the marshal whenever possible. Cameron shows up and talks her into coming with him and his gang.

They ride out of town after Cameron kills Ford, fearing he would talk about the Jewell killing. Montgomery and his deputy, Charles Kemper, trail the outlaws to their hideout, where Kemper is wounded. The outlaws escape, and Montgomery wires for aid. Phipps finally is left to die at a farmhouse. Meanwhile, Roman learns Cameron's true nature and flees their camp back to Phipps. The latter, knowing he is dying, tells her that Cameron killed her mother. Montgomery arrives, but is wounded. Roman offers to go back for a trial, and Montgomery offers to wait for her.

X-RAY: When first reviewed in THE SERVISECTION of November, 1948, it was said: "Loaded with action and gunplay, this should please western fans. Performances are competent, the story holds interest, and the direction is in the capable class. The screenplay is an original by W. R. Burnett."

TIP ON BIDDING: Average reissue price.

ESTIMATE: Reissue has the angles.

CAST: George Montgomery, Marie Windsor, Rod Cameron, John Emery, Wallace Ford, Jack Lambert, Larry Johns, Marion Martin, James Flavin, J. Farrell McDonald, Lillian Bronson, Kenneth MacDonald, Clancy Cooper, Walter Sande, Frank Lackteen, Bill Perrott, Joel Friedkin. Produced by Edward L. Alperson; directed by Lesley Selander.

STORY: George Montgomery, Indian fighter, is assigned to breaking up the "Hole-In-The-Wall" gang, bandits who have terrorized the west, by the U. S. Secret Service, since the gang has stolen $100,000 in unsigned government money. Montgomery contacts Marie Windsor, notorious forger, in a Mexican town, and posing as an outlaw, outlines a deal whereby Windsor will forge the signature of the U. S. Treasurer, making the notes negotiable. Windsor gets a job with Rod Cameron, wealthy saloon owner, who is also the leader of the gang, and lets him discover she is a forger. Cameron leads Windsor to the gang's hideout, a school for outlaws. Windsor later learns that Montgomery's contact man has been strangled by Cameron after he and Montgomery had gotten to the hideout. Montgomery and Windsor fall in love, but Windsor learns Montgomery is working for the government, threatens to tell Cameron. She relents on learning of the death of Montgomery's aide, and tells Montgomery she'll help him capture the gang in return for a light sentence. While forging the bills, Windsor slips one unsigned bill in her blouse, and Cameron tries to kill her. However, Montgomery comes to the rescue, Cameron is killed, and Montgomery is wounded. Windsor goes to serve her sentence knowing that Montgomery will wait.

X-RAY: When first reviewed in THE SERVISECTION of February, 1950, it was said: "A pleasant deviation from the usual run of western-type of shows in that it involves the U. S. Secret Service, this has a story that is surprisingly tight and achieves a high degree of drama and tenseness. There are fine photography, direction, and production. This is based upon a story by Frank Gruber." When first released this was in Cinecolor and bore a Legion of Decency: "B" rating.

ESTIMATE: Entertaining entry.

CAST: Kirk Douglas, Bella Darvi, Gilbert Roland, Cesar Romero, Lee J. Cobb, Katy Jurado, Charles Goldner, John Hudson, George Dolenz, Agnes Loury, John Wengraf. Produced by Julian Blaustein; directed by Henry Hathaway.

STORY: Kirk Douglas and his mechanic, Charles Goldner, enter the Grand Prix de Napoli. They are to race against a crew managed by Lee J. Cobb and champion drivers Caesar Romero and Gilbert Roland. Before the race, Douglas meets and is attracted to ballerina Bella Darvi. The race gets underway, and Douglas, about to set a new speed record, is forced to swerve his car when Darvi's dog runs across the track. Smashing into a wall, the car is demolished but Douglas escapes uninjured. He listens to her apology for the accident and gets better acquainted. Darvi gives up dancing and goes with Douglas to the important races. Douglas noses Roland out at the finish. Later, he urges her to reconsider her desire to remain with him, and advises her to return to the world of the ballet, but she stays. Douglas is hired by Cobb as a reserve driver and follows the circuit the first year without getting into a race. His opportunity arrives when Romero, unnerved by an accident, is forced to leave the race. Douglas takes over and finishes third with Roland winning the contest. The next race sees Douglas entered as a starter. Ignoring a worn tire, Douglas guns his car into the lead. On a rugged turn, the tire blows and Douglas is critically injured. Douglas is rushed to the hospital where Darvi is asked to permit amputation of his leg, but she decides against it. Douglas pulls through, with his leg troubling him occasionally as he tries to race again. He enters the Le Mans race as a co-driver with Roland. They are supposed to alternate, but Roland incurs an accident forcing Douglas to drive alone, which he does, winning. This is the first of a series of wins for Douglas that eventually rockets him to a first place standing among the drivers. Romero announces his retirement after his final race. When newcomer John Hudson replaces Roland in the race, Douglas competes actively against him. Romero is forced into an accident by Douglas but is unhurt. Hudson wins and Douglas not only loses the race but his girl and the respect of his friends as well. Later he sees Darvi at the ballet, but she refuses to return with him. The next race, the Grand Prix de Italia, finds Douglas driving off the track to rescue Roland, whose car has turned over. Roland lives and Douglas gets Darvi back, a new man.

X-RAY: Well made and fast-paced, this entry has much to offer in the way of thrills via authentic European auto races in CinemaScope, which add to the value of the presentation. The story is interesting, the cast good, and the direction and production in the better category. Audience participation because of CinemaScope is almost a reality in some scenes. It should please most viewers. Peggy Lee sings an off-screen song, "I Belong To You." Screenplay is by Charles Kaufman, from a novel by Hans Ruesch.

ESTIMATE: For the lower half or art spots.

CAST: Boris Karloff, Nino Marcel, Reginald Denny, Victor Jory, Lisa Howard, Jay Novello, Lou Krugman, June Foray, Peter Coe, Paul Marion. Produced, written, and directed by Frank Ferrin.

STORY: Victor Jory and June Foray start a new cult in India of fire-worshippers which would result in their profiting in money and power. The natives are forced to join and contribute by threats and burning and killing. One of the victims is Lisa Howard as well as her husband. Howard's champion is youthful elephant trainer Nino Marcel, friend of the Maharajah Lou Krugman, who swears vengeance. Military head Boris Karloff refuses to believe any of the theories or stories advanced by the youth, being jealous of his friendship with Krugman. Jory and Foray have a falling-out and Jory is killed. Marcel, with the aid of a pet tiger and elephant, breaks the cult and brings the killers to adequate justice.

X-RAY: Incorporating some Indian background footage, this entry shapes up as a fair programmer or as a possible supporting feature in the art and specialty spots. The subject matter is offbeat, the story fair, as is the acting, direction, and production.

ESTIMATE: Okeh program meller.

CAST: Dana Andrews, Piper Laurie, Rex Reason, William Talman, Gordon Jones, Milburn Stone, Douglas Spencer, William Schallert, Bill Phipps, Bob Wilkie, Pat Hogan, Peter Coe. Produced by Howard Christie; directed by Jerry Hopper.

STORY: A small group of cavalrymen decide to abandon a fort in the face of superior Indian forces whose attacks have wiped out most of the garrison. Under Captain William Talman, they take to boats, including prisoner Captain Dana Andrews who is charged with murder and treason for deserting to the Indians who now want to kill him as well, and Piper Laurie, daughter of the dead commandant. Andrews hopes to reach an Apache chief who can stop the other Indians from an all-out war. They lose men to both the treacherous currents and Indian attacks from the shore so that a handful and one boat are left. Laurie and Andrews, who has gained the esteem of the men via several acts of heroism, fall in love and he explains his desertion which was in the best interests of the country. Rex Reason, in love with Laurie, tries to kill Andrews but falls to his death from the overlooking cliffs. As they approach the end of the jorney to find troops awaiting them, Talman decides to give Andrews a chance to prove his story and case by allowing him to escape, grateful for his aid in the river passage. Laurie knows he will be back.

X-RAY: This should do okeh as part of the program with a yarn that holds interest pretty much throughout, colorful sequences on the Colorado River which add excitement and thrills, good performances, and efficient direction and production. There's enough action to satisfy most audiences seeking this type of film fare. The story and screenplay are by George F. Slavin and George W. George.

(CinemaScope)

ESTIMATE: High-rating marine yarn.

CAST: Van Heflin, Aldo Ray, Mona Freeman, Nancy Olson, James Whitmore, Raymond Massey, Tab Hunter, Dorothy Malone, Anne Francis, William Campbell, John Lupton, Justus E. McQueen, Perry Lopez, Fess Parker, Jonas Applegarth, Tommy Cook, Felix Noriego, Susan Morrow, Carleton Young, Rhys Williams, Allyn McLerie, Gregory Walcott, Frank Ferguson, Sarah Selby, Willis Bouchey. Directed by Raoul Walsh.

STORY: In 1942, shortly after Pearl Harbor, a number of youngsters enlist in the marines. A train picks up enlistees in various cities with Tab Hunter bidding his family and girl friend Mona Freeman farewell; William Campbell desperately bids his girl friend Susan Morrow goodbye promising to send for her. Others on board are J. E. McQueen, studious John Lupton, Indian Jonas Applegarth, delinquent Perry Lopez, and lumberjack Aldo Ray. The group remains together at boot camp and after a rugged training period emerge as marines. They are assigned to radio school under sergeant James Whitmore and attached to major Van Heflin's command. Campbell goes to pieces when he receives word from Morrow that she has married someone else. Lupton meets Anne Francis on a ferryboat and they become friends though she refuses to see him anywhere else. Tab Hunter becomes infatuated with Dorothy Malone, USO worker whose husband is away, and his studies and base life suffers. Whitmore arranges for a furlough which breaks up the romance and permits Freeman and Hunter to wed. Lupton is deeply affected when he discovers that Francis is a B-girl. The battalion is sent to New Zealand where Ray picks up widow Nancy Olson and tries to make time until he finds out her background. After an apology, they get better acquainted. The outfit is sent to Guadalcanal to mop up resistance on the island and then returns for recuperation. Ray and Olson get more time together and they decide to get married with Olson informing him he is to be a father. When sailing orders arrive, Ray plans on deserting to be with her but is convinced he should go with the outfit. Again on Tarawa they are assigned to mop up and they go to Hawaii to rest. Word reaches Heflin that an invasion of Saipan is in order, with his outfit to get the usual mopping up position. He risks court-martial to protest to General Raymond Massey who reassigns them to the most dangerous spot. Heflin and others are killed. Ray, minus a leg, refuses to see anyone or to return to Olson, but Whitmore persuades him with the help of a letter from Olson to return to her and her baby. Hunter returns home, waiting Freeman, while Whitmore visits next of kin of dead boys.

X-RAY: Well-made and at all times interesting, this yarn of the training of raw recruits into efficient marines and of the making of men from boys is different from the usual service film in that there is a minimum of fighting and battle scenes with the concentration rather on the boys, their lives, and their girl friends. There are a number of sex-laden sequences which can be used in the exploitation. The shifting of scenes and themes as well as the play on the varied personalities is expertly handled by director Walsh who turns in a high-rating job and the story-line follows the best-seller by Leon M. Uris who also wrote the screen play. It could make a heavy dent boxofficewise. This bears a Legion of Decency "B" rating.

TIP ON BIDDING: Higher rates.

AD LINES: "A Best-Seller Made Into Forceful, Dynamic Entertainment"; "When The Marines Decide To Fight Or Fun . . . Look Out"; "Girls . . . Girls . . . Girls . . . And Each Waiting For Her Marine."

ESTIMATE: Well-made programmer.

CAST: Elroy Hirsch, Barbara Hale, Chester Morris, Todd Duncan, Johnny Johnston, Tim Considine, Peggy Knudsen, Jerry Paris, John Qualen, Bill Kennedy, Henry Nakamura, Kathryn Grant, Bob Patten, Don Kennedy, Mack Williams, Saul Gorss. Written, produced, and directed by Hall Bartlett.

STORY: Elroy Hirsch is among a group of men transferred from San Quentin to the California Institution for Men at Chino after being convicted of nearly killing a man suspected of stealing from him. The newcomers are greeted by superintendent and founder, Chester Morris, who explains the absence of bars, armed guards, high walls, and gun towers as well as the proper way to go over the fence and the penalty after being caught of an addition to the record and never being able to return to the institution. Hirsch and bully Bill Kennedy tangle when the latter picks on ex-musician Johnny Johnston who, because of a crippled hand, turned to crime. He chafes at the confinement to wife Barbara Hale. Veteran prisoner Todd Duncan takes Hirsch in hand and guides him in the right direction, even convincing him to run for the governing body against Kennedy, who plans to use the office to escape. Johnston's hand is corrected by surgery and he commences rehabilitation. When Hirsch is elected to the council, Kennedy plans revenge and tries to frame Hirsch so he would be sent to another prison, but this is foiled. Later Hirsch decides to make a break; Duncan tries to stop him via a brawl, but then decides to let Hirsch make up his own mind especially since his latest bitterness stems from the parole board refusing to set a definite sentence limitation for his crime. Hirsch realizes at the last moment that escaping is wrong and decides to remain and serve his time.

X-RAY: All-around high quality is to be found in this off-beat type of prison film. The story is a highly interesting one as well as being different, while the cast as a whole is fine in the characterizations and the direction and production are in the better class. The entry will need selling if something special in returns is sought and once audiences get to see it, it will be appreciated. The story was suggested by the life and work of Kenyon J. Scudder and by his book, "Prisoners Are People."

TIP ON BIDDING: Program rates.

AD LINES: "What Happens When 2,000 Of The Toughest Cons Are Let Loose In The 'Prison Without Bars' "; "You've Seen Prison Riots; You've Seen Inhuman Guards; You've Seen Convicts Slugged In Their Cells By Other Convicts; But You've Never Seen What You Will See In 'Unchained'."

Animal Farm

CARTOON
73M.

Louis De Rochemont
(Technicolor)
(English-made)

ESTIMATE: Cartoon feature is excellent for art spots.

CAST: Produced and directed by John Halas and Joy Batchelor.

STORY: The farm animals rebel and drive out the evil farmer. Under the leadership of two pigs, the animals organize their own government. The animals prosper and again fight off the farmer when he attempts to return. One of the pigs proves himself to be a real leader and develops plans to build a windmill. The other pig is jealous, develops a small army, and takes over the government. The construction of the windmill continues, as do other improvements, but now the pig and his cronies set up an absolute dictatorship, and reap all the profits. The farmer again attempts to win back the farm, but although the windmill is destroyed, the animals once more succeed in defeating him. As the years pass the farm becomes more and more prosperous, but only to the benefit of the ruling clique. The rest of the animals now find themselves worse off than when the farmer was in control. The farm animals replace their old slogan of "all animals are equal" with "all animals are equal, but some are more equal than others."

X-RAY: Some years ago, George Orwell wrote a fable satirizing the Communist government. This modern classic has been made into a feature length cartoon that portrays in pictures what Orwell said in words. It has been done in such a manner that no grain of meaning is lost. Although this is a biting political satire and an education in political reality, the feature has been so handled that it could stand on its own as an amusing cartoon. The Matyas Seiver musical background adds a stirring quality to this entry. The film should be a welcome entry in art house circles, but will take a lot of selling in other situations.

AD-LINES: "George Orwell's Classic Anti-Communist Fable Brought To Life"; "A Picture No Thinking American Can Afford To Miss"; "A Political Satire That Pulls No Punches."

ESTIMATE: Okeh import for art and specialty spots.

CAST: Alastair Sim, Joyce Grenfell, George Cole, Eric Pohlmann, Lorna Henderson, Lloyd Lamble, Vivienne Martin, Hermione Baddeley, Betty Ann Davies. Screenplay and direction by Frank Launder.

STORY: Sultan Eric Pohlmann decides to send his daughter, Princess Lorna Henderson to an English girls' school, and chooses St. Trinian's because of its proximity to his racing stables. The head mistress, Alastair Sim, instills an unorthodox doctrine of free expression in her collection of uninhibited pupils. The young ladies' forceful methods of tackling anything necessitates the shuttering of the village shops and the consultation of a psychiatrist by the local police inspector, Lloyd Lamble. The inspector's policewoman girl friend, Joyce Grenfell, takes a position at the school in order to investigate numerous irregularities. The head mistress' niece, Vivienne Martin, daughter of the headmistress' bookmaker brother, also Alastair Sim, is enrolled in the school since her father knows that the princess is there, and he needs to know the form of the Sultan's horse, Arab Boy. Martin finds that Arab Boy is a virtual certainty to win and persuades the girls to kidnap the animal to prevent its running. But Henderson's schoolmates learn of the plot and turn the tables by recapturing the horse. They are supported by head mistress Sim, who has secretly put the school's funds on the animal in a desperate effort to avert financial disaster. Arab Boy reaches the course in time to win.

X-RAY: A swiftly moving chuckle from start to finish, this production is quite entertaining, with Alastair Sim leading the merriment in a dual role. This is typical British humor and the end result is above average. The story is based upon the drawings of Ronald Searle.

AD LINES: "Ringing The Bell For Laughter And Merriment"; "Those Awful School Girls Will Leave You In Stitches"; "Gay And Witty, A Bubble Of Joy."

ESTIMATE: One of the better imports.

CAST: Edwige Feuilleire, Pierre Michel-Beck, Nicole Berger. Producer: Louis Wipf; director: Claude Autant-Lara.

STORY: The action takes place on the French coast where 16-year-old Pierre Michel-Beck is vacationing at the home of Nicole Berger, 15. They have become good friends, and find themselves attracted to each other in a different way. After attending a motion picture, they kiss for the first time. One day Michel-Beck meets middle-aged vacationer, Edwige Feuilleire, and is attracted to her. Later he pays a visit to her summer home. Indecisive about his devotion to Berger, Michel-Beck releases his suppressed emotions in a verbal outburst directed at the girl. She talks him into running away. In his flight, he encounters Feuilleire who informs the boy that he can come to her but only if his mind is free of thoughts of Berger. Off again goes Michel-Beck, but is this time stopped by Berger. They return home, but the boy goes to Feuilleire and stays the night. This occurs the following night, but indecision again looms in Michel-Beck's mind. Feuilleire senses this and turns the boy away. A reconciliation ensues between Michel-Beck and Berger, climaxed by intimacy. Days pass and the boy learns that Feuilleire is leaving. He races to her house, only to find her gone—then returns to the girl. By now the season is over, and in a mood of sadness the young lovers part for the year.

X-RAY: This is a mature drama, filled with vivid realism and insight well-paced and emotionally moving, it is endowed with superior acting performances, an outstanding fare for art and specialty houses. Based upon a story by Colette. Screen play by Claude Autant-Lara, Pierre Boot, and John Aurenche.

ESTIMATE: Pirate yarn is well-made and has angles for selling.

CAST: Robert Newton, Connie Gilchrist, Kit Taylor, Lloyd Berrell, Grant Taylor, Rodney Taylor, Henry Gilbert, Harvey Adams, Muriel Steinbeck, John Brusskill, Harry Hambleton, Eric Reiman. Produced by Joseph Kaufman; directed by Byron Haskin.

STORY: Robert Newton (Long John Silver) and his crew of pirates are stranded without a ship in Porto Bello and he spends most of his time in a tavern owned by Connie Gilchrist, who is in love with Newton. When he learns that his long-time enemy, pirate Lloyd Berrell, has captured the governor's daughter and Kit Taylor, his young shipmate at Treasure Island, he offers to get back both hostages and the ranson money for Governor Harvey Adams. This he does by double crossing Berrell. Adams offers him a pardon and money but refuses to let him have Taylor as a cabin boy on a ship, instead intending to send the lad back to England. Newton needs the medallion Taylor wears around his neck to find a fabulous treasure on Treasure Island. They try to take over a commercial vessel on which Taylor is returning to England but the tables are turned by the forewarned captain and crew. They are set ashore on a deserted island, only to find it the hideout of Berrell, whose boat they take. On Treasure Island, they run into blind Rodney Taylow and some men who try to kill Newton and his crew. Newton surrenders to Berrell and is about to be killed when his men use grenades made with pieces of gold to kill or drive off the Berrell pirates, with Berrell dying as well. The governor attends a celebration party for Newton, who intends to settle down to a respectable existence until he spots Gilchrist and a parson headed his way with marriage plans, whereupon he and young Taylor disappear.

X-RAY: There's lots of excitement and thrills in this pirate yarn that emerges as a fitting sequel to "Treasure Island," with two of the principal characters, Long John Silver and Jim Hawkins, continuing with the adventures in suitable fashion. Colorfully presented, the feature emerges as one that has good characterizations, direction, with interest in the yarn pretty much on high throughout. There are moments of suspense as well as some comedy, with the balance nicely maintained. It should do quite well boxofficewise given a little bit of selling and exploitation. Martin Rackin wrote the screen play.

AD LINES: "One Of The Greatest Pirates In History In A New And Thrilling Adventure"; "Suspense . . . Adventure . . . Treasure . . . Action . . . Thrills . . . ESTIMATE: Fair burlesque entry.

CAST: Lili St. Cyr, Contessa Vera Richkova, others. Produced and directed by Willis Kent.

STORY: In revue format this has a western opening with cowboy song, girls in cowgirl suits; etc.; an acrobatic dancer and rope twirler; and a square dance. This is followed by a comedy skit; Contessa Vera Richkova, a French type singer, and a bit of interpretative dancing. An acrobatic toe dancer is next; an impersonator with a drunk, foreign waiter, and Negro band leader routine, then the Contessa again, this time in color film in an exotic dance, another skit in the burley tradition; and then, again in color, Lili St. Cyr in her bedroom strip routine.

X-RAY: This is a fair burley entry for the exploitation and specialty spots with a variety of miscellany numbers. Some of the material may have been around before, particularly St. Cyr's "Bedroom Fantasy" specialty, but the presence of color in some of the footage and the St. Cyr name may help where it plays.

rounded by her honor guard in their formal attire. Her subjects line the streets to pay homage to the queen on her birthday. From the rolling hills and the silent lakes to the sea, all Britain gives tribute this day, and the soldiers parade down the noisy London streets and the mud roads of Korea. The royal flags are bowed beside Buckingham Palace. A good subject for art and specialty spots. EXCELLENT.

Color Sport

WHERE WINTER IS KING. Warners—Technicolor Special. 17m. In East Tyrol, sleighs race across the snow while watchers are dressed in picturesque costumes. Skijoring involves skiers being pulled by fast moving horses or mechanized horsepower. At Innsbrook, ski lifts climb to the tops of mountains. At Seefeld, ice skating is seen. Youngsters perform at St. Anton Ski School, while at St. Johann expert skiing takes place. The "fishing" season arrives in the Tyrol, with participants bedecked in masks and costumes. At Hahnenkamm Cafe, skiers entertain guests and costumed dancers, and at Kitzbuhel, ski school instructors perform. GOOD. (2004).

ONE REEL

CinemaScope Color Cartoons

PET PEVE. MGM—Tom and Jerry Technicolor CinemaScope Cartoon. 7m. The owners of Tom and Jerry decide it is too costly to keep them in food if a dog also has to be kept around the house. First it is the dog who is nixed, then Tom the cat, with Jerry staying on as the ultimate solution because of his small quota of cheese consumption, as against the enormous stomachs of the other four-legged animals. FAIR. (C-631).

SOUTHBOUND DUCKLING. MGM—Color Cartoon. CinemaScope. 7m. A poor duckling tries hard to find ways and means to fly to Florida to no avail, until Jerry comes to his aid with a plane. Jerry joins the little duck after trying to get him off under his own steam, and who should they find on Miami shores but Tom. GOOD.

CinemaScope Color Novelty

EL TORO. 20th-Fox—Movietone CinemaScope Special (Eastman Color). 9m. Spain and its centuries old sport of bullfighting are seen. Toro is as different from a domestic bull as is a tiger from a pussy cat. He's born to fight, bred to kill. The camera captures El Toro exploding into an arena meeting the Torero who demonstrates his mastery with risky passes of the cape. FAIR. (7423).

Color Cartoons

CATNIPPED. Columbia—Color Favorites Reissues. 7½m. When first reviewed in THE SERVISECTION of January, 1946, it was said, "A cat goes after a canary, whom he let out of his cage, but doesn't get the bird. When the dog of the house steps in, the cat is ready for some medical attention. The reel winds up with the canary giving a transfusion to the cat, and the latter commencing to chirp like a bird. GOOD." (7607).

NO IFS, ANDS OR BUTTS. Paramount—Noveltoon. 6m. A cat, frightened by continuous warnings against the dangers of cigarettes, consults a remedy book which suggests eating a crow meat salad to cure the smoking habit. Buzzy, the crow, suddenly appears and the cat makes a grab for the bird, who evades his pursuer. However, when Buzzy is cornered, he talks the cat into trying a milder smoke which proves to be a stick of dynamite that explodes. GOOD. (P14-2).

RAIL-RODENTS. Paramount—Herman and Katnip Cartoons. 7m. Some mice, headed by Herman, are aboard a streamliner headed for Florida. Katnip is after the mice every second, chasing them through the mail car and the baggage compartment. Herman utilizes every mechanical device near him to corner the cat, and finally, with the help of some surplus war material, Katnip is shot into space and lands at the North Pole where he is frozen stiff. GOOD. (H14-1).

Comedy

SO YOU DON'T TRUST YOUR WIFE. Warners—Joe McDoakes. 10m. Alice queries Joe as to whether his insurance is paid up. From then on everything she does Joe suspects is a plot to murder him. Joe quakes when he hears Alice discussing the ax with the handyman; when she orders a shotgun for his birthday; when he finds a box of rat poison; when she attempts to rub his neck. Result, Joe is committed to a sanitarium for hallucinations. FAIR. (2403).

Novelty

HOW TO WIN AT THE RACES. Paramount—Pacemaker. 11m. A know-it all guy and a dumb doll place bets at the races. He bases his picks on the horse's past performances and their jockeys, what the entries do in the walking ring, and on tips he receives. She selects the horses with the prettiest tails and those with the cutest names. The doll wins every time, and bets on three horses to win the last race, which they do in a photo-finish. FAIR. (K14-2).

JUST THE BEAR FACTS, MA'AM. Paramount—Topper. 9m. This short presents a variety of frisky bears cavorting in their natural habitat. Brown bear cubs of Alaska get into mischief with a squirting hose and other household equipment. In Australia, Koala bears have fun climbing eucalyptus trees. Polar bears are seen getting involved with pots, pans, washtubs, and food. FAIR. (M14-3).

KILLERS AT BAY. Paramount—Toppers. 10m. Africa is the locale for scenes in which the hunters overcome the dangerous elephant. A herd of tame elephants aids man in capturing the wild pachyderm. In California, an alligator is seen tusseling with a lady. A chase in Arizona cattle country finds a mountain lion being pursued. The lion has just made a meal of a sheep dog. The ranchers have set their hounds after him. The cat moves through the forest but is finally caught. GOOD. (M14-2).

THE MAN AROUND THE HOUSE. MGM—Pete Smith Specialty. 9m. With Dave O'Brien as the foil, nothing seems to go right with the man around the house. He has ideas of improving conditions, but everything he does or touches seems to backfire to his ill fate. FAIR.

PENNIES FROM HOLLYWOOD. Columbia—Screen Snapshots. 10m. George Burns is Ralph Staub's guest master of ceremonies for this Screen Snapshots. They talk over intimate, off-stage shots of such Hollywood luminaries as Jack Benny, Irene Dunne, Louella Parsons, David Brian, Rocky Lane, and Gary Moore. FAIR. (7855).

Color Sports

SILVER BLADES. Warners—Sports Parade. 10m. Teen-agers in Vienna perform on the world's largest rink. A costume skating party takes place during the festival. Following this, we see stars of the ice revue practicing. Next we are shown scenes from the Vienna Ice Revue. Acrobatics and a pageant highlight the revue on ice skates. This is in Warner-Color. GOOD. (2504).

Sports

BOYHOOD THRILLS. Paramount—Grantland Rice Sportlight. 9m. Youngsters, fascinated by a giant locomotive, help its engineer to grease it up. At a Montana ranch, boys ride horses into the hills. hunt wild life, and stalk moose. Returning, they discover a bear attempting to invade their camp. A group of boys dive into a river from a small raft, to catch turtles. Youngsters thrill at the chance to feed wild animals at a circus and ride atop the elephants' backs. GOOD. (R14-4).

THE PIKE'S PEAK ARENA. Paramount—Grantland Rice Sportlight. 9m. Colorado Springs, besides being a paradise for sports lovers, is also the site chosen for the U. S. Air Force Academy. A sporting attraction of the Pike's Peak arena is the rink, on which world's champion skater Hayes Jenkins does a few jumps and figures. Expert diving, swimming, and golfing are also seen. The Garden of the Gods, adjacent to Pike's Peak, is lined with equestrian trails. Riders wind up their day with a barbecue and observe jets flying over the Air Academy. FAIR. (R14-5).

THE STRANGE POSITION OF "BINGO"

When we were small and trying hard to learn the basic principles of law and order and good citizenship from our parents, our clergymen, and our school teachers, it seemed to us, that there were definite lines between bad and good, and that the two were as easy to recognize as black and white. Gambling, for example, was positively wrong and black as black could be; and we even remember the day that the "paddy wagon" backed up to a social club in our neighborhood and took away six hard working parents who had the temerity to spend a holiday afternoon in a game of "5-and-10-stud." Morality was a basic and positive thing!

But, as we grew older we couldn't help but notice that black came in a lot of different shades, and bad things were not always bad. Take gambling, for example.

Gambling on cards, on dice, and on the spin of the fruit in a "one-armed bandit" is illegal in each of some 47 states and the District of Columbia, but in the state of Nevada such gambling is the major industry and empty pockets, the principal export, with the state government sitting in on a share of the take, so therefore it is legal.

In most other states it is completely illegal, and you are subject to arrest and imprisonment if you are caught putting a $2 bet on the nose of a nag, even though "the book" is completely amateur and non-racket. But if you can get a syndicate together and spend $5,000,000 on a pari-mutual track, many of those same states will let you take in $1,000,000 or better a day in bets, and charge an admission, if you will just cut the state in for a share "off the top."

And so it goes through a whole series of grays, dictated mainly by political expediency and indicating pretty conclusively that political expediency has no conscience.

So now comes Bingo!

Years ago, when thousands of theatres tried to survive the great depression by introducing Bingo and Bank Night, under dozens of different names, as an added attraction and without any charge other than the basic admission, raids were made and fines and arrests were threatened. Even when theatres offered to let non-admission-paying players participate on the sidewalk where special loud speakers were installed, and enter without charge to collect any prizes they won, they were denied permission. Legal interpretations were recorded, and Bingo was a very black evil indeed!

Through the intervening years, however illegally but quietly, Bingo has supported many a church and volunteer fire company. Able to satisfy consciences that the end justified the means, and with sufficient local influences to have constituted authority turn its back, such operations were furtively conducted.

But now Bingo for church, civic, fraternal, charitable, or educational purposes is going to be legalized. New Jersey passed such a law nearly a year ago, and similar laws are pending in a dozen or more state capitals. Tax free, of course!

Over in New Jersey, Arthur A. Weller, the $10,000 a year executive of the Legalized Games of Chance Commission, states that where about 1000 games of Bingo had been played per year, they are now running at the rate of about 16,700 per year. Raffles or lotteries are up, too, and about the only thing good they can find to say for it is that gangster elements have not yet moved in.

So there is some new competition for the amusement dollar, and it isn't very wholesome competition either. Bingo players are preponderantly the poor or the lower middle class looking for a fast buck, and it is possible for mama at one sitting to lose the family's amusement dollars for a month, and sometimes some of the food.

And once again black is not black, but by association with clergymen, firemen, and others has become a grayish white. We suppose it all depends on the perspective, however, for we note that at least some clergymen still think it is black.

BROTHERHOOD WEEK

There is a certain date, important to each and every one of us, that we shouldn't forget. Brotherhood Week is scheduled this year for February 20 through February 27.

NEW YORK
By Mel Konecoff

PRODUCTION NOTES: Our wanderings last week included a stop at the Hampshire House apartment occupied by Bert Friedlob, in town briefly to arrange for background shooting on his forthcoming production as well as to promote his next release through 20th Century-Fox, "Untamed," an epic about Africa in CinemaScope with Susan Hayward, Tyrone Power, and Richard Egan.

KONECOFF

His next will be "The News Is Made At Night" and is a newspaper type yarn set in New York, in CinemaScope and color, possibly for 20th-Fox. The screen play has been written by Casey Robinson who is also a partner in the project with Friedlob. Two other properties in work for the not-too-distant future are "Maracaibo," a yarn about oil in Venezuela, and "Seven Nights In Paris," which will be shot there (Sacre Bleu). No release or film process has been set for either of these.

Friedlob expressed confidence in the future of the theatre end of the industry by stating that if it were to come to a choice between theatre distribution of his films or showing same via toll-TV, he would rather stick to the 14,000 theatres, which can get maximum returns today for producers whereas toll-TV has yet to be proven.

This doesn't mean that he's not selling his old films to TV. Two of his oldies. "Fireball" and "A Millionaire For Cristy," are being sold to TV in some areas, and he expects to net between 75 and 100 thousand dollars over a period of a few years from this maneuver.

"Untamed," which is booked for a run at the Roxy starting approximately March 11, cost about $3,700,000 and has taken about two years of work to complete. He owned the property originally, but Fox took it over completely and he now owns a piece of it. Following the present-day trend, the film runs about two hours and he expects that it will be played off so that it will get the maximum in attention. He paid tribute to Fox as a distributor, stating that he was well satisfied with the way that company has handled his product in the past.

Other tidbits dropped by Friedlob included the opinions that the public wants intelligent stories but not arty ones. . . . there's a great deal of trouble in casting films properly . . . "The Star," with Bette Davis, has grossed $1,750,000 to date with the cost coming to $675,000 . . . Financing for indies is easy with the proper property and cast or at least he's always found it so . . . Dick Egan will emerge a star as a result of his work in "Untamed."

CINERAMA HOLIDAY: Next on our calendar was a stop at the Warner for a press preview of the new "Cinerama Holiday," and all we can say is that it's still pretty wonderful entertainment with some parts being better than others just as in "This Is Cinerama." The latter, incidentally, played over 122 weeks and was seen by 2,471,538 people over that period on Broadway with a total gross of $4,707,688, to say nothing about it proving a shot in the arm for the business generally with a quick switch to wide screens and CinemaScope. It was also a proven appeal for visitors to the big city.

BROADWAY GROSSES

(As of this Monday)

Blame The Snow

NEW YORK—Business in the Broadway first-run sector almost fell flat on its face over the week-end.

According to usually reliable sources reaching MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR, the breakdown was as follows:

"Battle Cry" (Warners). Paramount dropped to $60,000 for the second week.

"The Racers" (20th-Fox). Roxy was down to $9,874 for Friday through Sunday, with the last five days of the second week anticipated at only $14,800.

"The Bridges At Toko-Ri" (Paramount). Radio City Music Hall fell to $74,000 for Thursday through Sunday, with the fourth and last week expected to hit $110,000.

"The Country Girl" (Paramount). Criterion continued good with the ninth week sure to hit $32,000.

"Bad Day At Black Rock" (MGM). Rivoli reported the second week dropping to $18,000.

"The Far Country" (U-I). Globe anticipated the opening week at $15,000.

"Underwater" (RKO). Mayfair looked toward a good $30,000 first week.

"20,000 Leagues Under The Sea" (Buena Vista-Disney). Astor claimed a good $32,000 for the eighth week.

"Unchained" (Warners). Victoria dropped to $9,000 for the third, and last, week.

"Sign Of The Pagan" (U-I). Loew's State expected the opening session to reach $25,000.

"The Long Gray Line" (Columbia). Capitol reported that the opening week should hit $65,000.

Allied Approves Appeal To Government

Hits High Film Rentals, Product Shortage; Wolff, Rembusch Rap Toll-TV Claims; COMPO Supported

ST. LOUIS—National Allied's board of directors through President Ben Marcus last week announced that it has directed the Emergency Defense Committee to seek the introduction into and passage by Congress of a bill to regulate film prices which was approved by the delegates to Allied's 1954 national convention in Milwaukee.

The interim report of the Emergency Defense Committee based upon a survey made in mid-September was fully considered. The board's decision to seek legislative relief was arrived at reluctantly and in the conviction that all other measures for preserving the theatres have failed and that as of this date no alternative to legislation action is in sight. It is the belief of the Allied leaders that the interest and sympathy of Congress can be gained because the crisis that has arisen in the motion picture industry does not involve merely a dispute between the distributors and the exhibitors over the price of film. It involves arbitrary curtailment of production and the creation of a starved market which enables the film companies to impose upon the theatres film rentals so exorbitant and conditions of license so onerous as to threaten the forced closing of upwards of 5,200 sub-run and small town theatres, with resultant loss to American economy from the destruction of investments and unemployment.

Allied's board considering the Wilbur Snaper report on COMPO gave its approval to all of the actions of COMPO up to this time and indicated that it will continue to support that organization. But it took the position that COMPO in the field of public relations should take a positive stand in support of the fight against toll-TV, regardless of the adverse position taken by its distributor members. It was decided that the Allied representatives on COMPO must insist that it exercise rigid economies in its administration and that the funds in the COMPO treasury be so budgeted, if possible, so that it can cover the entire cost of the audience poll campaign without any additional assessment on the exhibitors.

The Allied board also adopted a resolution that COMPO shall not sanction in its regional units, such as the one in Texas and the new one planned for the Rocky Mountain area, trade practice activities that infringe on the proper functions of Allied and TOA regional units.

The meeting also approved the position of the Southern California Theatre Association with regards to the acquisition of drive-ins by the major theatre chains, and the view was expressed that the Department of Justice should take a firm stand in opposition to any such attempt to get around the consent decree that curtailed the theatre-owning activities of the defendant film companies and their theatrical affiliates.

Marcus Asks Tabling Of Allied Equipment Plan

ST. LOUIS—In a letter to the board of Allied States, Ben Marcus, president, recommended last week that Allied's plan to enter the sound and other equipment manufacturing fields be tabled.

Marcus, who had been appointed a committee of one by the board to investigate the feasibility of the organization's entering upon this activity, reported that in his opinion, a free and competitive market had been established in sound and other equipment during the last few months, and that the necessity of Allied's action no longer existed. He called upon the board, however, to maintain a standing committee to "protect the exhibitor interests if ever again any distributor or manufacturer of motion pictures attempts to impose economic strangulation upon exhibition."

The letter pointed out that 20th-Fox no longer required stereophonic sound with the installation of CinemaScope, and that the prices of anamorphic lenses have fallen to $395 a pair. Marcus believes that the threat that Allied would enter the manufacturing field "is greatly responsible for the changes that have since taken place in the sale and price of this equipment."

The opening session of the second annual National Allied drive-in convention took a firm stand against toll-TV, heading off with the talks by Trueman Rembusch, formerly Allied president and co-chairman, joint committee on toll-TV, and public relations director Wolff on that currently red hot topic.

Later in the day the meeting divided into clinics for the smaller drive-ins and another for those in the larger situations.

A. B. Jefferis, Piedmont, Mo., president, Mid-Central Allied Independent Theatre Owners, and drive-in convention planning committee chairman, presided as the first session started. Seated at the head table were Norman Bialek, Westport, Conn.; Benjamin N. Berger, Minneapolis; Rabbi Samuel Thurman, United Hebrew Temple, St. Louis, who gave the invocation; Marcus; Jefferis, Charlie Bourdelais, Atlanta, national theatre representative, Coca-Cola Company, host at the luncheon

Ruben Shor Succeeds Marcus As President; Lichtman Told Way Is Still Clear For All-Industry Roundtable Talks

ST. LOUIS—Ruben Shor, Cincinnati, treasurer, Allied States Association, was elected by the National Allied board to the presidency last week, succeeding Ben Marcus, Milwaukee, who had declined to accept re-election for another year. Marcus continues as a director.

Other officers named are general counsel and chairman of the board, Abram F. Myers, Washington; secretary, Julius Gordon, Beaumont, Tex.; recording secretary, Bill Carroll, Indianapolis; and treasurer, Irving Dollinger, Linden, N. J.

Named to the caravan committee were Leo Jones, Upper Sandusky; Trueman T. Rembusch, Franklin, Ind.; Elmer Huhnke, Omaha; and Fred Harpst, Kansas City.

Retiring President Marcus was named to the group of Allied representatives on the COMPO executive committee to succeed Lew Whisper, Dallas, while Leon Bach, Baltimore, Md., takes the place of the late Lauritz Garman, Denver. Continuing on that committee are Rembusch, H. A. Cole, Nathan Yamins, Boston; Wilbur Snaper, New Jersey; Benjamin N. Berger, Minneapolis; and Abe Berenson, New Orleans.

The door was swung wide open for distributors and producers to avoid the necessity for National Allied to go through with its scheduled plan to seek Congressional legislation to legalize film rentals and, in effect, placed the film industry in the category of a public utility, with its operations controlled in many ways by the federal government on the basis that it operates in interstate commerce.

Al Lichtman, 20th-Fox vice-president, called Ben Marcus by long distance telephone, after he had learned of the action taken by the Allied board directing its Emergency Defense Committee to proceed with the plans to seek Congressional action for federal control of film rentals, etc.

Lichtman asked if this board action would kill the proposed plan for roundtable discussions at the top level between authorized spokesmen for the distributor-producers and exhibitors to seek a final solution for the industry's film rentals and clearance problems.

Marcus said that he advised Lichtman that "we definitely are willing and ready to sit down to discuss film rentals and clearance with responsible spokesmen for the film companies who have the authority to make the final decisions for the solutions of such problems."

He added that he was sincerely hopeful that such conferences might be possible without delay, since such a solution of the industry's problems at the conference table would then eliminate the necessity of going to Congress for legislative relief. Marcus said the delay in working out a plan for arbitration that had been previously advanced by Lichtman as the reason

Federal Court Adds COMPO, Exhib Groups To 16mm. Anti-Trust Suit

HOLLYWOOD—Federal Judge Harry C. Westover over-rode all defense objections last week and added COMPO, Allied, and four other exhibitor units as co-conspirators in the government's 16mm. anti-trust suit.

The other four named as co-conspirators are Southern California Theatre Owners Association; The Metropolitan Motion Picture Theatre Owners Association and the Independent Theatre Owners Association, both of New York; and the Pacific Coast Conference of Independent Theatre Owners, which is now out of existence.

The original suit was filed in July, 1952, and charges 12 producers and distributors with a conpiracy to prevent 16mm. feature films from being shown on television or at places competing with commercial theatres. At that time, Theatre Owners of America was the only exhibitor group named.

Defense counsel Homer I. Mitchell, representing three major studio defendants, warned the court that the naming of six co-conspirators would necessitate a postponement of the trial date, now set for Sept. 6.

Prosecuting attorney Samuel Flatow stated that the naming of the exhibitor groups as co-conspirators would not change their status at all as far as the trial was concerned, but merely make their records available for the court's scrutiny and would therefore speed up the case.

Loew's To Buy Drive-In

NEW YORK—Loew's Theatres last week won permission from the New York Federal Court to acquire the Twin-Oak Drive-In, Oak Lawn, Ill., thus becoming the first of the divorced circuits to win such approval.

John Murphy, vice-president in charge of out-of-town operations, said that the new acquisition did not indicate any expansion program, but he added that Loew's is now in a position to look into any interesting proposition.

The court noted that the consent decree allows the circuit to buy new theatres if such purchases will not unduly restrain competition.

Negotiations for the Twin-Oak Drive-In are expected to be completed next week. It will be the first drive-in in the Loew Circuit.

1,500 At Communion Breakfast

NEW YORK—Last week's fifth annual corporate Communion Breakfast for motion picture industry employes of the area was attended by approximately 1,500 persons.

The Most Reverend Joseph F. Flannelly, Auxiliary Bishop of New York and Rector of St. Patrick's Cathedral, celebrated the morning Mass, which was followed by breakfast at the Waldorf Astoria.

Toastmaster at the breakfast was Robert W. Coyne, executive director of COMPO, while the Right Reverend Monsignor John J. McClafferty, dean of Catholic University's School of Social Service, delivered the main address.

SCTOA Appeal Rejected By Justice Department

WASHINGTON—Justice Department spokesmen last week rejected the formal charges of the Southern California Theatre Owners Association that monopoly existed in the drive-in field despite the recent consent decrees obtained by the government.

Pointing out that the SCTOA complaint named no names and cited no specific instances, the Department of Justice said that no special investigation was necessary, as it was constantly watching the compliance with the consent decree. The Department noted that four out of five companies had complied with the decree, and that only one company had made application for a new theatre.

Coca-Cola Sponsors MGM Workshops

RICHMOND, VA.—All future luncheons at MGM's Ticket Selling Workshops will be sponsored by Coca-Cola, it was jointly announced by Mike Simons, customer relations director for the film company, and Charles Bourdelais, Coca-Cola national theatres and entertainment representative, at last week's Workshop in session at the Jefferson Hotel here. The local get-together of exhibitors is the seventh in MGM's program of 24 scheduled until mid-June.

Including last week, Coca-Cola will have paid the lunch tab on three ticket selling get-togethers conducted under the joint leadership of Simons and Emery Austin, exploitation head for MGM. Of the 17 more sessions planned, 14 are definitely dated, the next being slated for Feb. 22 at the Statler Hotel, Detroit.

The total attendance at the seven Workshops aggregates close to 2,000. Speakers, in addition to MGM home office executives, included Bob and Melba Walker, Uintah, Fruita, Colo.; Al Reynolds, general manager, Claude Ezell and Associates, operating a chain of drive-ins in Texas; Bernie Hickey, newly appointed publicity and advertising head, Shea Theatres; and William Filer, commercial manager, WRTV, Richmond.

High Court Hears Poster Suit

WASHINGTON—Defending attorney Louis Nizer told the Supreme Court last week that the suit brought against National Screen Service by the Independent Poster Exchange is the same charge that was settled by a consent decree in 1942 and should be thrown out of court.

Francis Anderson, attorney for the plaintiffs, argued that the new suit took up where the old left off, and that the court had not had any evidence presented to it in the first case, but Independent Poster had signed the first decree because it would otherwise have been forced to go out of business.

Levy Tells Ad Club Of Toll-TV Dangers

HARTFORD, CONN.—Herman M. Levy, general counsel, Theatre Owners of America, last week told a meeting of the Advertising Club of Hartford that the arguments used by the proponents of subscription television were "misleading and fallacious."

He called the basic position of toll-TV advocates, that present commercial television is not really free, a foolhardy argument, pointing out that though television is recognized as one of the best advertising mediums, nobody is compelled by advertising to buy anything. He further noted that the 34 million families that have spent 51 million dollars for television in the past did so with the implied understanding of the Federal Communications Commission, the manufacturers of television sets, and the advertisers on television that they would not have to pay a charge for the programs they were to see on their television sets.

Levy stated that if subscription television receives a grant of a channel from the Federal Communications Commission, it will be getting permission to be a monopoly and to compete for the public's time, on the basis of that free grant. He pointed out that through the purchase of paid air carrier service or the use of wires, toll-TV could be put into effect immediately with no necessity to ask for permission from anybody. He further stated that toll-TV would create a preferred list of listeners, those who were willing to pay over $100 for the decoding device and a further coin charge.

Levy further claimed that the large amounts presently spent for television advertising would not be switched to other mediums if toll-TV blacks out commercial TV, and that the inevitable bad effect upon theatres would be reflected in the reduced sales of retailers who would not have people leaving their homes to see pictures.

Walsh Named For Heart Award

NEW YORK—Richard F. Walsh, president, International Alliance of Theatrical and Stage Employes, will be honored at the Second Annual Heart Award Dinner of the Variety Club of New York, Tent 35, on May 2, in the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. The announcement was made jointly last week by Edward L. Fabian, chief barker, and William J. German, president, Variety Club Foundation to Combat Epilepsy.

"As long-time president of IATSE," the announcement said, "Dick Walsh has been a loyal friend to the entire motion picture industry. His unselfish aim has always been the greatest good for the greatest number and his long-range planning has been built upon an intelligent understanding of the needs of both employers and employes."

SAN FRANCISCO—An agreement for Tower Pictures Company to distribute all Astor product in the San Francisco area was signed last week by R. M. Savini, Astor president, and Sam Sobel, head of Tower.

Canadian Exhibs Use More NFB Pictures

TORONTO—Films of the National Film Board continue to be increasingly used by Canadian exhibitors according to its annual report.

The report from the board showed that films produced by the NFB were booked 11,447 times into Canadian theatres, an increase of 2,102 over the previous years. The majority of the bookings, 7,659, was for the Canada Carries On series. The Eye Witness series was second with 3,368 bookings. Total bookings abroad came to 21,505, an increase of 33 per cent over the 1952-53 figure of 16,159.

Sales were $872,962, added to rentals and royalties of $130,795 and $7,751 of miscellaneous income, giving the board a total income of $1,011,508 during the fiscal year ended on March 31, 1954. The cost of operation of the board to the people of Canada was $1,986,020 from a little bit of arithmetic.

In actual production, 181 films of one reel or more were completed, compared to 143 in 1952-53. In addition, newsclips, trailers, and news stories brought the total to 251 films of all types compared to 214 the previous year. Twenty films were completed on contract by private firms, compared to 19 the year before. Thirty-two filmstrips were produced, compared to 90.

The total non-theatrical attendance in Canada was 14,084,322, compared to 13,250,227. Theatrical bookings abroad were 21,505, up 33 per cent from the previous year's 16,159. TV bookings abroad came to 2,019 compared to 1,799. The board produced 66 films for TV.

Canadian Comment

Some big names in the Famous Players organization were added to the 25 Year Club of the company recently, as four top executives received their pins at the Eastern Dinner of the club. The names included such personalities as John J. Fitzgibbons, president; Rube W. Bolstad, vice-president; Morris Stein, eastern manager; and James R. Nairn, head of public relations and advertising. Officiating at the induction ceremonies for Fitzgibbons was Norman Robertson, the company's legal counsel. Then Fitzgibbons officiated at the induction of the other members. Other executives brought into the club included a group from United Amusements Corporation, Montreal, made up of George Ganetakos, president; William G. Lester, second vice-president and general manager; W. H. Giles, son-in-law of Ganetakos and general supervisor; and W. H. Mannard, secretary-treasurer; with John G. Ganetakos, son of the president and first vice-president, absent. Robertson, in inducting Fitzgibbons, said, "We are all Canadians by birth or by choice. Those born here had no choice. John Fitzgibbons is one by choice." Rube Bolstad was described by Fitzgibbons as "an ornament

England

J. Arthur Rank has announced the purchase of 11 theatres in North Ireland, mainly in the Belfast area. The theatres were bought from Irish Theatres, Limited, and are to be operated by a new company, Odeon, (northern Ireland), with George Ledge as managing director. The Rank organization is also restoring nine English houses bombed during the war and building three new theatres, two in Belfast, and one in Harlow, England. When the new theatres are completed, Rank's Circuit Management Association will have 542 theatres, with 450 equipped for CinemaScope or wide-screen.

In London, with Wolfe Cohen, president, Warners International Corporation, in attendance, the Great Britain 1955 sales convention ended in Warner House. Arthur Abeles, Jr., in charge of the Warner interests in the British Isles, planned the three-day meetings attended by Warner executives from England, Scotland, Wales, and Ireland. London home office executives joining Abeles include Louis Lewis, secretary; Carl Stack, sales manager; and Jack Francis and Robert Stannage, directors, respectively, of advertising and publicity. At the conclusion of the convention, Cohen left for business conferences in Paris and other European capitals.

In London, the announcement of MGM last week that it would discontinue the wide-screen versions on all of its product for foreign market after next Jan. 1 was expected to spur the installation of anamorphic equipment in those British theatres without it. The large circuits in Britain, J. Arthur Rank, Esoldo, Granada, and Associated British Cinemas all claimed that their remaining houses not equipped with CinemaScope would be so by the end of the year, but a strong reaction was expected from the smaller independent theatres. Up to 75 per cent of the theatres here are equipped for a 1.75 to 1 ratio and a recent technical survey showed that these houses are best suited to that ratio or something near it.

A Loew's office spokesman stated that they would not require the purchase of stereophonic sound in the world market, nor of any particular brand of screen or any other specific manufacturer.

Mexico

At the request of J. R. Grainger, president, RKO, Joseph Tushinsky was in Mexico City for conferences with Michael Havas, RKO sales supervisor for Latin America. Meetings were arranged with Mexican producers at Churubusco Studios and with leading exhibitors, at which Tushinsky was to explain and demonstrate the Superscope lens. The trip enabled Tushinsky to acquaint the Mexican film industry with the Superscope widescreen process in advance of playdates of RKO's first Superscope movie to play Latin America, Howard Hughes' "Underwater!"

Marcus Loew, at 36, decided to change his penny arcades into nickelodeons, and the public flocked to these early Loew's Theatres, where they found moderate priced entertainment including movie reels and a few acts of vaudeville. Seen at right is one of the earliest Loew's theatres.

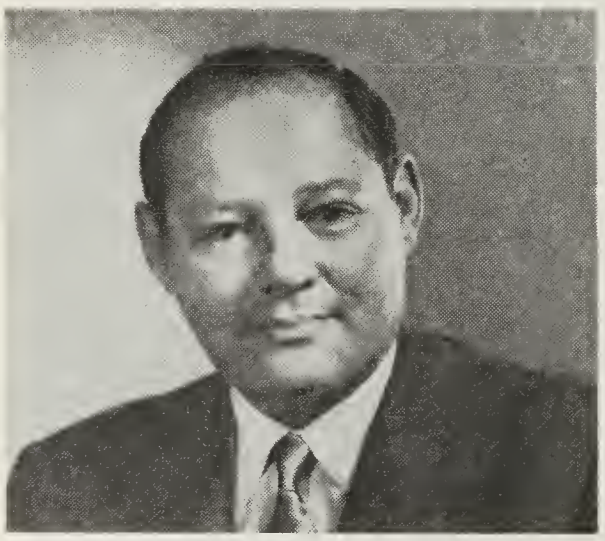
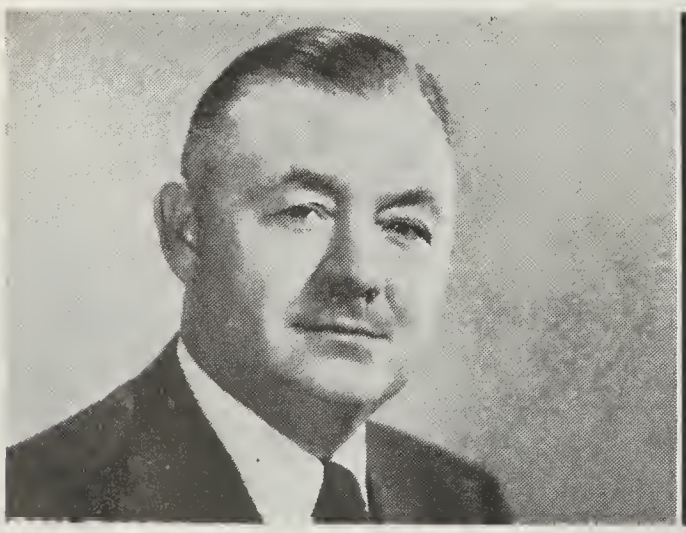
Golden Days—Both Past And Future

ANY golden anniversary is a wonderful time for celebration, an excellent reason for a party, and no time to be alone. This applies to those lucky couples who have passed a half century mark as husband and wife, and, oddly enough, it applies also to something as seemingly impersonal as a corporation. When the two celebrants get together, happy two-somes and corporation, its an unusual event.



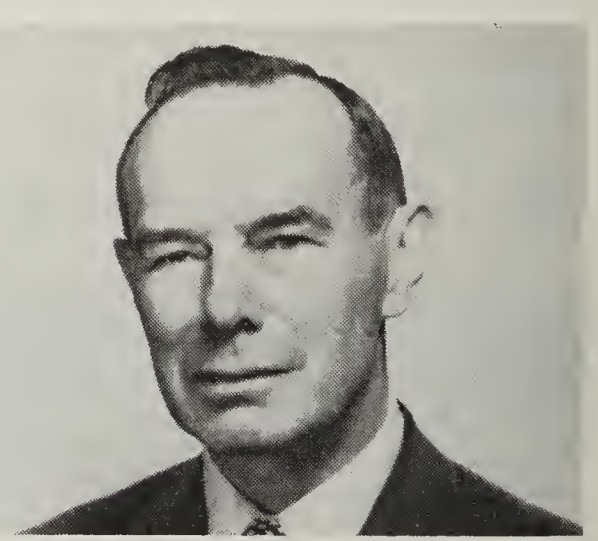
This all leads up to congratulating Loew's Theatres, founded more than five decades ago by the late Marcus Loew, on its Golden Jubilee. The most recent event in the observance saw 268 couples married more than 50 years celebrating at Loew's expense at a golden jubilee party.

The Jubilee began a while back as a motorcade comprised of floats representing the top Hollywood hits set to play Loew's houses took off from Times Square to visit all theatres in the circuit. Also prominently featured was a motion picture museum created by the George Eastman House, Rochester, N. Y.



Under the direction of Ernest Emerling, Loew's advertising and publicity director, and his staff, an extensive promotional campaign stressing the fine quality of films set for release during the Jubilee period went into operation via newspapers, radio, television, theatre screens, and other media.

All Loew's houses were specially decorated for the festive birthday celebration and had on hand the traditional birthday cakes, ablaze with 50 candles. Keeping pace with the half-century story of the theatre circuit, the traveling museum traced the history of motion picture entertainment, with original projection equipment dating back to before the turn of the 20th century.



Here indeed is the culmination of 50 wonderful years in an industry whose greatest achievements are still to come. Led by executives of the calibre of Joseph R. Vogel, presidnt; vice-presidents Eugene Picker, John Murphy, Leopold Friedman, and Harold J. Cleary, and many others, Loew's Theatres, Inc., descendant of the nickelodeon, will certainly be on hand to contribute to and share in the industry's future successes as well as its past glories.

Eugene Picker,
vice-president heading New York operations.

Three more of Loew's vice-presidents, from left to right, are John Murphy, in charge of out of town theatre operations in the U. S. and Canada; Leopold Friedman, treasurer; and Harold J. Cleary, comptroller and also a director of the company, which is currently celebrating a "jubilee."

Three floats and the George Eastman equipped mobile Motion Picture Museum start a tour of New York to honor Loew's Golden Jubilee, celebrating the company's 50th anniversary. Pretty girls decorated the floats, which depicted top product due to play Loew's houses during celebration.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bowman re-enact their honeymoon of 50 years ago on a bicycle built for two at the Jubilee celebration.

The couples married the longest are Mr. and Mrs. H. Goldsmith, 61 years; Mr. and Mrs. C. Taylor, 63 years; and Mr. and Mrs. F. Herhammer, 59 years.

Grandpa's Diaper Derby features competitors Karl Rusche, Irvin Moss and Sam Forman as Loew's hosted those married 50 years or more.

An old-fashioned jig by actor Pat Rooney, Mrs. Belle Bloom, M. C. Joey Adams and Mrs. Frank Simon liven up the party for oldsters.

Two of the colorful floats and their attractive riders are seen, while, in the center, Times Square crowds pour into the museum trailer equipped by the George Eastman House of Rachester for the celebration. The event is gathering a considerable amount of public interest.

French Film Censor Fight Goes To Court

NEW YORK—Times Film Corporation has instituted suit in the Baltimore City Court against the Maryland State Board of Motion Picture Censors, appealing the latter's rejection of the prize-winning French motion picture, "The Game Of Love," in its entirety as "obscene" and demanding that that Board authorize the exhibition of the film in its entirety in that state, it was announced last week by Jean Goldwurm, president of the distributing company.

Attorney Felix Bilgrey's brief challenges the constitutionality of the law under which the film was rejected on the grounds that it is "a prior restraint upon freedom of speech and press" which violates the Maryland Declaration of Rights and the First and Fourteenth Amendments of the United States Constitution. It also points out that the Colette novel, "Le Ble en Herbe," from which the film was adapted, together with all other works of the famous French author, is "on file and freely circulated at the Public Library in Baltimore."

A similar rejection of the picture in its entirety by the Pennsylvania State Censors Board is now on appeal to the administrative body, Goldwurm also revealed. If the rejection is reaffirmed, Times Film Corporation is prepared to institute similar legal action in the Philadelphia Court of Common Pleas.

N. Y. Exhibs Fight Tax Appeal

NEW YORK—Local theatremen opposed a move last week to appeal immediately the recent decision of the appellate court in which the collecting of breakage by the New York City tax collection board was branded as illegal.

Theatre attorneys, headed by Edward C. Raftery, agreed that the appellate rule was not a final order, and that the case would have to be returned to Queens Supreme Court for trial on all the issues. They contend that an appeal at this time would be only a partial revue of the case.

The new entry has thrills, chills, cute scenes, and fair sequences, but the whole emerges as impressive entertainment Especially noteworthy are scenes of a plane and camera hovering over the Swiss Alps, a thrill-packed bobsled ride, jazz in New Orleans, a fair in New England, a ski run in Switzerland, the streets of Paris, a puppet show for youngsters, and a ride in a navy jet plane.

BATHING SUITS: The next day United Artists' press agent Burt Sloan calls and the conversation runs something like this:

Him: "How'd you like to see some pretty girls in bathing suits?" (Pause.)

Us: "We'd have to think about it. Uh, how soon do we have to meet you and where?"

The result was we wound up at the Park Central Hotel to watch judges Russell Patterson, Harry Greenman, managing director, Capitol, TV star Ernie Kovacs, and disc jockeys Bill Williams, Rhoda Brown, and Brad Phillips watch over a score of gals in all sizes and shapes parading hither and yon in various poses until they finally selected a Brooklyn gal as the winner.

It has something to do with "Vera Cruz" in that this winner will compete with others selected in other cities with the winning winner winning loot, a contract, a bathing suit, a screen test, and the right to an introduction to Earl Wilson.

WORTHY SHORT NOTE: Next on our calendar, we see we went to a screening and world premiere of "Assignment Children," Danny Kaye's 20-minute Technicolor short highlighting his recent overseas trip on behalf of the United Nations Children's Fund. In the audience at the huge assembly hall in the UN building were press representatives, delegation members, etc., and following salutes to Kaye and to Paramount Pictures, which is releasing and distributing the film with all monies going to the Children's Fund. by Secretary-General Dag Hammarskjold and others as well as a few remarks from Kaye via radio from Hollywood, where a similar premiere was taking place, the multitude viewed the film.

It's entertaining as well as instructional and what's important entertainment-wise is that it has Danny Kaye and youngsters of all shapes and sizes who provide some heartwarming and touching moments as well as some fun. It's a film exhibitors should feel free and proud to play.

THE METROPOLITAN SCENE: Darryl F. Zanuck and 20th-Fox were warmly commended by the editorial page of The Daily News last week for their announced program of productions totalling 50 millions. It bids the public and exhibitors alike to watch and wait for the results which should be pretty good. . . . Bill Moclair, managing director, Roxy, plays Cupid this week by permitting any gentleman to take in any lady on his ticket gratis to see the show at that house on St. Valentine's Day. The same Moclair also played host to a party of United Nations delegates to see Walt Disney's "Siam," which is part of the program currently at the theatre.

Making the brave bulls beautiful

In black and white, scenes like this are no trick for skilled technicians. Basically, they're easy to take, easy to process.

In color, though—that's another story. Then each finished film is the sum total of individual color-component films, each color-balanced and superimposed. With Eastman, this means constant sensitometric control at both film manufacturing and processing levels.

To co-operate in all phases of production, processing and distribution, Kodak maintains the Eastman Technical Service for Motion Picture Film. Branches at strategic centers. Inquiries invited.

served in conjunction with the session; Wolff, Ruben Shor, Cincinnati; Morris Finkel, Pittsburgh; Abe Berenson, New Orleans; and Ed Lider, Boston, alternate for Nathan Yamins.

President Marcus then took charge of the business session and in his opening remarks stressed the fact that National Allied was the first to recognize the very important place of the drive-in operator in the industry.

He declared that Allied was the first organization to recognize that drive-in owners have a legitimate place in the motion picture industry. He added, "Not only do they think so, but, judging by their gross receipts, it is apparent that Americans also think so." He added that the drive-in has been accepted as a great medium of entertainment throughout the United States. He said that since the drive-in "has grown up" it is entitled to the same consideration as the conventional theatre.

The board voted to authorize Marcus to appoint a sub-committee to confer with a similar committee representing the Theatre Owners of America to endeavor to solve the mutual problems of exhibitors, especially those in the smaller situation.

This sub-committee includes Marcus, Jack Kirsch, Chicago; Benjamin N. Berger, Minneapolis; and Abram F. Myers, general counsel and chairman of the board.

Marcus said it is probable that the Allied and TOA committees will meet very shortly in New York City, perhaps immediately after the TOA meeting.

A wire from Pat McGee, president-treasurer, Colorado Association of Theatre Owners, an affiliate of TOA, was received by Marcus at the Park Plaza gathering. It expressed approval of the plan for small committees of the two organizations to hold the conferences and he pledged "sincere and cordial cooperation from our side." Adding, "You will find we, too, are vitally concerned in the small theatre's problems and film rentals," McGee expressed the hope that President E. D. Martin would permit him to serve on that organization's committee.

The EDIC interim report was approved by the gathering of Allied's board, including the plan advocated by the Allied Theatre Owners of New Jersey through its president, Wilbur Snaper, favoring an arrangement in which disputes between the small town exhibitors and the film companies could be "solved in the field." Marcus said he "felt fairly certain that the distributors would accede to such a plan."

20th-Fox Plans TV Production

HOLLYWOOD—Twentieth-Fox is planning to begin production of films for television in addition to renting facilities to independent companies, it was revealed last week.

Plans are being prepared to invest a large amount of money in the enterprise, with a view to ultimately taking over leadership in the TV film production field, it was announced.

Sid Rogell, studio manager, will be in charge of the company's television production.

Schine Defense Seeks Dismissal Of Contempt Suit

BUFFALO—The defendants in the Schine criminal contempt case last week asked the court for a judgment of acquittal, and branded the government's case as a "complete failure."

Claiming that the evidence presented completely establishes the innocence of their clients, defense attorneys stated that to continue the trial further would be pointless. If the case is not dismissed, defense attorneys stated that they would need two weeks to present their side of the case.

The defendants are charged with conspiracy and overt acts in wilfully violating the decree handed down by Judge John Knight as a result of an anti-trust action against Schine.

Allied—Shor

for delaying the proposed roundtable discussions on film rentals and clearances "was not a proper or reasonable reason for delay."

He added that Lichtman had promised that he would exert every effort to accomplish the plan for the roundtable conference as quickly as possible. Marcus said he presumed that the Theatre Owners of America and other national exhibitor groups would sit in on these conferences if and when they are finally arranged.

He stressed, however, that Allied's Emergency Defense Committee is under orders to go ahead with the steps seeking Congressional action.

Shor explained that conditions within the industry have worsened since the Milwaukee national convention of Allied and as a result, "We have been faced with the necessity for this step by EDC that was directed by our board yesterday."

He continued that National Allied will not go into the proposed roundtable discussion except with top level executives, such as presidents and the highest salesmen who have been authorized to act definitely and finally at the conferences. In other words, "we want conferences that will work out an equitable and reasonable solution once they are held."

The convention discussed the 16mm. anti-trust suit in which National Allied has been made co-conspirator, but no action was taken. Marcus explained, "We feel that our position is just and entirely within our constitutional rights of free speech and strictly in accordance with the best traditions of the American system of free enterprise. We can't afford to see films given away free for which we have to charge our patrons when we exhibit them in our theatres."

It was announced that the 1956 annual meeting of National Allied will be held at the new Hilton Statler Hotel, Dallas, in November, 1956. Previously it had been announced that the 1955 meeting will be held Oct. 5-9 at Chicago, Ill. The 1956 National Allied drive-in convention will be held at Cleveland on Feb. 13, 14, and 15, 1956.

The second day's session of the drive-in convention featured forums on drive-in tower construction and widening of existing towers, and on various phases of concessions operations.

About People

NEW YORK—Ira S. Stevens was appointed general manager, National Film Service, Inc., it was reported last week by Chester M. Ross, executive vice-president. He will supervise National Film Services home office, and also sales and liaison with distributors. Stevens, who resigned as treasurer, Cinerama Productions Corporation, will remain as a director of that company.

Gehring Sees Roundtable Near

ST. LOUIS—The belief that the roundtable discussions with top levels of production and distribution sought by Allied will be finally set up within the next three weeks was expressed by William C. Gehring, 20th-Fox assistant general sales manager, in addressing the concluding session of the convention.

He also answered the criticism of past president Ben Marcus of Al Lichtman's belief that arbitration within the industry should be accomplished before undertaking the roundtable conferences, saying that while Allied leaders and members regard arbitration "not important," there are a vast number of other exhibitors who do agree that arbitration is essential and that it would prove of great benefit to the entire film industry. He added that the final draft of the proposed arbitration plan was prepared and that it should obtain the necessary legal clearance for final action early this week.

He won spontaneous applause when he declared that his company would make its pictures available for toll-TV "only when the government forces us to do so."

Referring to the report of Allied's Emergency Defense Committee, he said that he didn't agree with everything in it, adding that his company had settled every exhibitor complaint that has come to its attention since Allied's 1954 national convention at Milwaukee. He denied that there had been any deliberate effort on the part of production and distribution to create an artificial shortage, then pointed out the physical handicaps with respect to providing sufficient prints because a single print can be used only in 11 theatres on the average.

In conclusion, he touched on the threat of new federal laws and the industry litigation they may bring, saying, "Go forth from this meeting to a court if you feel that this is the thing that must be done." Stressing the benefits of CinemaScope, he said that in comparison with the boxoffice results of two top flight flat pictures, CinemaScope pictures had increased receipts from 56.6 per cent to 134 per cent.

Julius Gordon's report revealed that the film clinics had gone on record, without a dissenting voice, to "condemn Paramount" for that company's sales policies, especially on such pictures as "White Christmas" and "Country Girl." It was indicated that there also had been criticism of Warners from some sections of the country.

The meeting concluded with the banquet session, at which George Murphy, MGM, was the master of ceremonies.

"Battle Cry"

Van Heflin, Mona Freeman, and Aldo Ray do exceptionally good acting jobs in this Warner release, which is a fine production for any boxoffice. Based on a best selling novel, it is full of patriotism and good sentimentality. Tieups with the marines should be a cinch. There are not too many battle scenes, but what there are are good. This one should be a sure boxoffice winner.

Hayworth Suit Settled

NEW YORK—The accounting action by Rita Hayworth Haymes against Columbia, Columbia International, and Beckworth Corporation was settled out of court last week. Terms of the settlement were not disclosed, as Federal Judge William Bondy signed an order dismissing the case.

Mrs. Haymes sued as an individual on behalf of the Beckwith Corporation in which she owns a 45 per cent interest. Columbia has 50 per cent and the remaining five per cent is owned by William Morris Agency and Cook and Company.

Action sought an accounting of receipts from Beckworth's Columbia releases, "Affair In Trinidad," "Miss Sadie Thomson," "Salome," and others.

20th-Fox Top Echelon Maps Promotion Plans

NEW YORK—Al Lichtman, 20th-Fox director of distribution, and vice-president Charles Einfeld returned from Hollywood last week following a series of important studio conferences with president Spyros P. Skouras and production head Darryl F. Zanuck.

Talks at the studio centered around the merchandising and promotion of the company's CinemaScope releases for the first quarter of the year as well as to view unfinished prints of attractions slated for exhibition later in the year.

The executives set in motion comprehensive plans for six productions, five in CinemaScope and color, and one in standard dimension, for February through April release. The line-up, highlighted by "A Man Called Peter," the company's Easter holiday picture, includes "The Racers," now at the Roxy and opening in first dates around the country; "White Feather," a February release; "Untamed," due in March; and "Violent Saturday," listed for April.

Panoramic Productions' "A Life In The Balance," the one regular dimension film under discussion, will be offered for April exhibition.

Plans formulated in Hollywood will see some of the largest campaigns in the company's history launched to pre-sell the forthcoming productions. Extensive use of TV and radio, newspapers and magazines, both nationally and on the local level, are planned in overall campaigns.

Variety Judges Named

LOS ANGELES—W. R. Wilkerson, The Hollywood Reporter, was appointed last week by Nathan D. Golden, international heart chairman, Variety Clubs, to serve as chairman, "Charity Citation Board of Judges," for Variety Clubs International convention here on May 4 to 7.

The task of the board is to select the Tent of Variety which, through its accomplishments in carrying out its humanitarian activities, will be the recipient of the 1954 "Charity Citation Award" of Variety Clubs International.

Other trade press representatives who have been invited to serve with Wilkerson are Martin Quigley, Jr., Quigley Publishing Co., Inc.; Ben Shlyen, Boxoffice; Jay Emanuel, MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR; Abel Green, Variety; Hye Bossin, Canadian Film Weekly; Joe Schoenfeld, Daily Variety; and Tom Kennedy, Showmen's Trade Review.

BETTER MANAGEMENT

Valuable Exploitation Keys To Profitable Merchandising

Indicative of the western type exploitation being given United Artists' "Vera Cruz" is that of the soft-top convertible of an earlier day which creaked recently for a street bally cruise in St. Paul, Minn., as manager Jim Eschelman, Strand, got it underway; and the hot tamales which spiced up manager Maurice Druker, Loew's Midland, Kansas City, campaign and were given away by a vendor in Mexican attire for "south of the border" flavor. On the right, a pair of 24-sheets underlining the robust rough stuff in the film made simple and effective mobile advance bally for the picture's opening at Loew's State, St. Louis. Similar stunts in advance of openings in other cities spurred interest in the film.

Huge Promotion Caps "Gray Line" Opening

NEW YORK—The large scale promotion campaign for Columbia's "The Long Gray Line," kicked-off last fortnight with the full-hour salute by Ed Sullivan's nation-wide television show, went into full swing, timed with the gala world premiere in Washington and the New York opening at the Capitol.

Going on display in the balcony lounge of the Capitol was an exhibit of memorabilia and historical material from the museum at West Point which is termed "priceless" by officials of the U. S. Military Academy. The material, formed into a special display for its extended showing in the theatre, will be guarded 24 hours a day by military police and armed special policemen.

Included in the exhibit is a graphic history of the Academy, including mannequins dressed in the various changes of uniform affected at the school since its founding over 150 years ago. Objects used at the Point by cadets over the years are shown, as well as the personal possessions of West Point graduates who went on to glory in the wars of the United States.

The army, cooperating to the fullest extent possible, has arranged for references to "The Long Gray Line" to be made on recruiting A-boards and posters around the country. In addition, the West Point Society is arranging for local groups of Academy graduates to aid in promoting openings of the CinemaScope-Technicolor tribute to their alma mater in their particular areas.

Contests were concluded on seven disc jockey shows on six different radio stations with "The Long Gray Line" as the theme. Six winners from each show, with the disc jockeys involved, were guests at a special breakfast at the Hotel Statler before the opening. After meeting with three members of the cast, Betsy Palmer, Bill Leslie, and Harry Carey, Jr., the disc jockeys and their winning fans rode uptown to the Capitol in a special motorcade.

At the Capitol, a huge banner proclaiming the showing of "The Long Gray Line" extends across Broadway.

A large measure of national newspaper and radio publicity has accrued to "The Long Gray Line" through the efforts of Cappy Wells, brought in specially for the occasion by Columbia. Wells, an Army veteran, was for many years public relations officer at West Point. He arranged to have naticnally syndicated columnists do pieces on Marty Maher, the principal figure in the film.

Also playing a large part in the plans is the impressive advertising campaign, including insertions in Life, Look, Seventeen, Sports Illustrated, TV Guide, Scholastic Roto, and nine fan magazines, as well as 85 Sunday newspapers ranging from This Week and Parade to home-owned supplements; altogether, more than 200 million readers will be reached.

Another interesting sidelight to the New York opening at the capitol was the attendance of a large delegation of cadets from the Point. Maher reviewed them.

This lovely tomato, Mary Murphy, a Paramount starlet, will help promote William Wyler's "The Desperate Hours" and another VistaVision film, "Hell's Island," during the next year in an extraordinary tieup between Paramount and the Tomato Growers of America. Every package of fresh tomatoes distributed in the U. S. will have an insert of Miss Murphy in color with credits for the two pictures. The actress was chosen "Miss Tomato Glamour Queen of 1955" at a contest held in Las Vegas, Nev.

"Senior Citizens" Reap Reade Admission Cut

OAKHURST, N. J.—"Senior Citizens," persons over 65 years of age, will be admitted for a substantially reduced admission price at the Walter Reade Theatres in Plainfield and Freehold, N. J., under a plan being tested by the circuit to encourage people in the older age group to attend the movies.

In both communities special individual discount cards will be distributed to Senior Citizens through welfare agencies, recreational groups, and other organizations who work with older age groups. It is expected most recipients will be in the limited income class.

For the test period, which will be through next Sept. 30, all card holders will be admitted to all Reade Theatres in the two communities anytime but Saturdays, Sundays, and holidays for the child admission price.

Walter Reade, Jr., circuit president, said the test was being undertaken both as a public service, it being his organization's belief that many older people have limited recreational facilities and limited funds for entertainment, and as a means of encouraging people in this age category to attend the theatres more frequently.

If the program is successful in the two communities, it will be extended next fall, he said, to all communities in which the Reade organization has theatres. The idea for the current test, he said, was adapted from a similar program developed by Stanley Sumner, manager, University, Cambridge, Mass.

The Reade Theatres have for many years offered year-round discount cards to students in the 12 to 18 year bracket, and recently extended this privilege to teachers in the 10 communities where the circuit has theatres.

Other circuits are watching the experiment with considerable interest as it could do much to bring back to movie theatres everywhere a part of the so-called lost audience.

The Editor Speaks

I SAID IT before and I'll say it again—a good "weeper" is bound to be a sleeper! Stay with me for a bit, and I'll tell you why.

PAUL MANNING

MY WIFE and teen-aged daughter had missed the trade screening of MGM's "The Last Time I Saw Paris" and were planning to see it at the local neighborhood movie house. The word of mouth had been quite good and they also heard that it had some parts which were really "sob stuff."

WE LIVE in a suburban area of Los Angeles where the public transportation is pretty punk. I promised to drive them to the show. At take-off time I found my car battery deader'n a mackerel. Then, to make matters worse, it started to pour gunboats. Natch, I couldn't get a cab or another battery.

Sooooo, the family was stuck at home and had to watch TV. And also natch, the old man had to watch the fights! A meanie, that's me.

DURING the fifth round of a pretty routine scrap, my young daughter, pretty disgusted with the world by now, groaned, "Gee whiz, why do we have to be here watching these dull fights when we could be sitting in the theatre having ourselves a good cry!"

AND SO, producers, there you have it from the mouth of babes. Make yourself a good weeper, a four handkerchief picture, and brother-oh-brother, you're really in!

Co-producers Irving Allen and A. R. Broccoli, star Richard Widmark, screenwriter John Paxton, and director Mark Robson discuss plans for Warwick's "Prize Of Gold."

Mai Zetterling and Widmark enact a strange and poignant love story set against a dangerous and exotic European background in Columbia release soon to hit the nation's screens.

Allen And Broccoli Make Them For The Boxoffice

Producing duo films its Warwick productions for Columbia all over the world, and a sharp eye toward exploitation possibilities and name values keeps them in the winner's circle.

Irving Allen and A. R. "Cubby" Broccoli, whose Warwick Productions release through Columbia, believe in two and only two principles in making films: Make them good; make them boxoffice. And they think that one is impossble without the other.

That they have been successful in this theory has been amply demonstrated with the first three Warwick films, "Paratrooper," "The Black Knight," and "Hell Below Zero," all starring Alan Ladd and all top-rank at the boxoffice. Coming up for release in May is Richard Widmark in "Prize of Gold."

Set to go into production in March is "Cockleshell Heroes," to be directed by and to star the Academy Award winner, Jose Ferrer. They will follow this with "Safari," to be filmed in Africa with either Gary Cooper or Clark Gable. All will be in Technicolor and wide-screen.

In addition to the work that goes into production, both Allen and Broccoli are great believers in exploitation, promotion, and advertising, both within the trade and for the public. On "Hell Below Zero," whaler Danny Morrison was brought over from England and sent to 18 cities around the country. Producer Broccoli went out to 11 cities, meeting with exhibitors, press, and exchange men in every city. Broccoli followed this up with a similar tour on behalf of "The Black Knight." Present plans call for a tour by Richard Widmark on behalf of "Prize of Gold." A major trade paper advertising campaign has been carried on every production.

All of the Warwick films are distinguished by action in foreign lands. The camera has wandered over Germany, Wales, France, Spain, the Antarctic, and all of England. American stars in American stories make these films of excitement that have a foreign flavor but have none of the problems in obtaining an American audience often associated with pictures filmed abroad.

Alan Ladd, Jill Bennett, and Niall McGinnis, who enact leading roles in Columbia's Warwick production in Technicolor, "Hell Below Zero," discuss a murder clue around the dinner table.

"Prize Of Gold" is a dramatic, action story of a GI who falls in love with a beautiful girl in modern Berlin and attempts to hijack a load of Allied gold bullion so he can turn the money over to the girl. As a Dick Widmark film it has all the qualites that have made Widmark popular with fans. There is love, action, a kind of brutality and violence, plus a solid story line. Mark Robson, whose "Bridges At Toko-Ri" is currently breaking records, directed "Prize Of Gold," with Mai Zetterling as the feminine lead.

Tie-ups were started with Pan-American Airlines and the Messerschmitt Company which will pay off. A song, "Prize Of Gold," was written by Ned Washington and Lester Lee and is already a smash hit in Europe. Recordings have been made by Columbia and Decca Records and will be released soon enough before the release of the film to aid in selling tickets.

Preview audiences who saw "Prize Of Gold" in a sneak showed their appreciation of the quality of the film by the kind of reaction cards that were turned in. An audience of 1,148 people turned in a total of 578 cards, percentage-wise as high as any picture in Hollywood memory. The percentage reaction was excellent and very good, 87 per cent; good and unclassified, 13 per cent. Even in blase Hollywood, this is worth note.

Allen and Broccoli, two veterans of the industry, are here to stay. "We want to make pictures all the rest of our lives and the only way we can do this is by making pictures that make money for everyone—exhibitor, distributor and ourselves. And that's what we're going to do."

You can't knock that for an ambition and a program.—P. M.

Harold Hecht confers with UA's Roger Lewis, advertising manager; Fran Winikus, national advertising, publicity and exploitation head; Mort Nathanson, publicity; and Mori Krushen, exploitation.

A Producer On The Move

TV star Ed Sullivan confers with Hecht and "Vera Cruz" stars Burt Lancaster and Gary Cooper.

Hecht, president, Hecht-Lancaster Productions, and UA vice-president Max Youngstein look over layouts of color ads for national magazines on "Vera Cruz" campaign.

Lige Brien, UA director of special events, shows Hecht colorful merchandising accessories for store window and counter displays all over the country.

Hecht is greeted at the UA home office by Robert Benjamin, chairman of the board.

Hecht and James Hill, "Vera Cruz" producer, wind up a 29,000-mile location jaunt.

HECHT-LANCASTER'S current program of seven important features for United Artists release has made Harold Hecht, president of the fast-growing organization, one of the industry's busiest executives and a seasoned international traveler.

TO PLAN, PRODUCE and promote "Vera Cruz," the Superscope spectacle which is currently coining the greatest grosses in United Artists' history, Hecht racked up more than 29,000 flying miles between UA's New York home office, Hollywood and Mexico, where the big-scale action scenes were filmed.

SANDWICHED BETWEEN the producer's trans-continental shuttle runs were a series of conferences with UA's top-level executives and ad-publicity-exploitation heads that resulted in a no-holds-barred, all-media campaign pegged on a whopping budget of $500,000.

THE DETAILED handling from story idea to subsequent run has paid off handsomely for both Hecht-Lancaster and United Artists. "Apache," first release under the seven-picture package, was the Krim company's top money-maker of 1954. "Vera Cruz" is expected to nose into the neighborhood of $10,000,000 before the end of this year.

WITH TWO big ones in the bag and "The Kentuckian" and "Marty" being readied for UA release, Hecht is on the go again. This time it's Europe, where he's scouting locations for "Trapeze." Italy's Gina Lollobrigida has been set to co-star.

Meet Robert Aldrich

ROBERT ALDRICH

ROBERT ALDRICH brought to his first assignment as full-fledged feature director, MGM's "Big Leaguer," a wealth of experience and valuable know-how in movie-making. At 34, he was a veteran in the motion picture industry.

NOW JUST 37, Aldrich has directed two of the industry's biggest boxoffice successes of the past year, "Apache" and "Vera Cruz," both for United Artists. According to UA, "Vera Cruz" will probably be their all time top grosser.

THIS MONTH, Aldrich completed his first assignment as producer-director, on Parklane's "Kiss Me Deadly," a Mickey Spillane feature with blood, violence, girls, and action. UA has already said that this will probably outgross the two previous Spillanes, both of which topped $2,000,000 in America.

ALDRICH HAS BEEN learning the fundamentals of directing since 1942 as assistant to some of the greatest directors in the industry, and recently directed 22 dramatic films for television. He is also the author of a half-dozen successful screen plays and has been production manager and associate producer for RKO, Republic, Columbia, 20th-Fox, and United Artists.

ALDRICH WAS BORN Aug. 9, 1918, in Evanston, R. I. He is married to the former Harriet Foster, Warwick Neck, R. I. Their home is in Hollywood, overlooking the Wilshire Country Club. They have four children, Adele, 11; Billy McLaughrey, 10; Alida, seven; and Kelly Foster, two.

WHEN HE GRADUATED from Virginia in 1941, he headed straight for Hollywood. His first job was at RKO as production clerk, but he soon moved up a rung to second assistant director.

IN 1944, Aldrich left RKO. During the next three years, he worked with such famed directors as Jean Renoir, Lewis Milestone, William Wellman, and Leslie Fenton.

FROM 1946 TO 1948 he was under contract to Enterprise Studios as assistant director, unit production manager, studio manager, and writer, and continued in these capacities for independent producers in 1949-50, after Enterprise suspended operation. He was associate producer to Harold Hecht in 1951 for two Columbia releases, "Ten Tall Men" and "The First Time," and was assistant director to Charles Chaplin for "Limelight." That same year he wrote three screen plays.

IMPRESSED BY Aldrich's ability to make pictures of good quality inexpensively, a unique talent which is naturally at a premium in Hollywood today, MGM signed him to direct "The Big Leaguer," and this marked his debut as a director of feature films.

ALDRICH'S CAREER is in full swing. On May 15 he will produce and direct Joan Crawford in 'The Way We Are," a screen play he bought and had developed with Joan in mind. And still on the schedule is a second Spillane, "My Gun Is Quick," to be done before the year is out.

GOOD THINGS TO COME FROM HOLLYWOOD . . .

Warners' "East Of Eden"

JOHN STEINBECK'S "East Of Eden" reaches the motion picture screen with dynamic and engrossing power. This is exactly what could have been expected from two such exacting creators as Steinbeck and Elia Kazan. The latter produced and directed the motion picture version of the great novel.

The characters in all of Steinbeck's novels could never be accused of being dull and droopy. Therefore, the people you will see in "East Of Eden," while not exactly resembling your next door neighbors, will nevertheless provide you with a tremendously stimulating evening at the movies. Relentless, searching, and utterly honest, this picture has a hard hitting and penetrating quality which you will not easily dismiss. It stays with you.

Once again, Kazan, in the same honesty of purpose as his past triumphs, "Streetcar Named Desire" and "On The Waterfront," has painted a most daring canvas, across which move deeply interesting, often violent personalities. I repeat, "East Of Eden" is straight-from-the-shoulder, no-holds-barred movie fare. Many will find its very directness of thought quite revolutionary. But, in the final analysis, all should feel the magnetism of the experience. To me, it is an example of truly fine movie making.

Perfectly cast, splendidly acted (to the smallest bit part), superbly directed, and magnificently photographed, "East Of Eden" is an important motion picture which will be long remembered by all who see it.—P.M.

Warners Launches Star Hunt

BURBANK, CAL.—A vigorous new personal scouting plant is being launched by Warners to intensify the drive for fresh motion picture personalities which the company has carried on throughout its history.

The new plan, being put into effect with the authorization and guidance of Jack L. Warner, executive producer, will send Solly Baiano, studio casting head, on a nation-wide talent hunt, and will keep him in the field for an indefinite period of several months.

Mitchell Wolfson, co-owner, Wometco Theatres, recently received the Nathan W. Collier Meritorious Civic Achievement Award for outstanding humanitarian service, which was presented by Dr. Royal W. Puryear, president, Florida Normal and Industrial Memorial College, St. Augustine, Fla.

In, Ft. Lauderdale, Fla. . . . The Gables, Coral Gables, Fla., invited all Japanese war brides in the area to free admittance one evening during their run of "Bridges of Toko-Ri." . . . Drive-In church services at the Lauderdale Drive-In, Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., were televised over NBC's national "Home" show. . . . Don Tilzer, publicist, Claughton Theatres, had book marks located in various libraries about town plugging "Bad Day at Black Rock." . . . Wometco Circuit acquired the Sunset, South Miami, Fla., with the following managerial shifts resulting: Dick Treccase was transferred from manager, Surf, Miami Beach, Fla., to be manager, Sunset; Bill Goller was transferred from manager, Tower, to manager, Surf; Flynn Stubblefield, formerly manager, Center, was transferred to be manager, Tower, and James Frazier was appointed manager, Center.

The Capitol was the scene of a benefit midnight performance for the NAACP with local club stars performing, including film actress Louise Beavers. . . . If Broadway playgoers can pay $100 for a first night ticket to a prospective hit musical, Sonny Shepherd, Wometco district manager in charge of the forthcoming Variety Hospital benefit Show of Shows, feels that there must be similar free-spenders in the area who'll pay $100 for a ringside $20 ticket to the Variety Club-sponsored show. As an incentive, Variety will list such purchasers on its Committee of 1,000. This is a group of persons and firms which have contributed $100 toward the hospital's $100,000 fund campaign. Arthur Godfrey will be master of ceremonies and the show will feature a number of cafe and show stars, including Terry Moore.

"MovieRama of 1955" is to open at the Olympia. This unusual innovation presents in advance of general release dates scenes from major Hollywood productions. Admission was to be free—the first time any movie theatre has permitted free admission for the public to see coming attractions. Some of the scenes scheduled to be shown were from "Battle Cry," "Country Girl," "Bridges at Toko-Ri," The public was invited to voice their comments on the new idea.

City Council Lines Up Favoring Censorship

CLEVELAND — A resolution favoring the enactment of state censorship of motion pictures workable under the Supreme Court ruling was passed by the Cleveland City Council. The vote was 30 to 2. The resolution had previously been unanimously passed by the council welfare committee. The two opponents called for defeat of the measure as an infringement of freedom of democracy and freedom of free enterprise," and pointed out that present laws provided for the arrest and fair trial of offenders of decency. They were overwhelmingly voted down to the applause of some 300 people, mostly women, present in the council chamber. Although there was no debate on the measure, several proponents of movie censorship explained their vote proclaiming film censorship a "protection against shock and vulger entertainment" while another regretted the resolution did not include television.

Mount Vernon

George Cameron, Schine's Vernon, for his engagement of "20,000 Leagues Under The Sea," had a window display with Kresge's consisting of an aquarium with four different colored fish in it. One side of the tank was called "Kresge's Aquarium," the other side, "20,000 Leagues Under The Sea." Between the two sides was a dividing line made with a piece of tin. A hole was cut in the tin, but was taped until at a specified time it was opened. The object of this was that the first 10 persons guessing what color fish would enter the "20,000 League" side first got a free ticket to see the picture. Guesses were left at the pet counter. Over 200 guesses plus plenty of good advertising and a lot of laughs, resulted from the idea, which got excellent results.

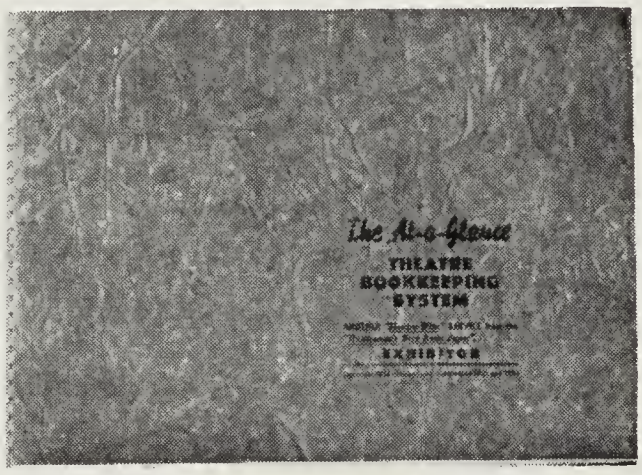
He was president, Grove City Safety Council and headed the local committee for the President's Drive Safely Day, when the city received a plaque for no fatal accidents as well as a citation for its efforts in the "Slow Down and Live" campaign.

Catholic Editorial Defends Censors

COLUMBUS, O. — "Weak-willed people" must be "protected from themselves," said The Catholic Times editorially in calling for enactment of a stronger Ohio censorship law. The Times is the official publication of the Columbus diocese.

Censorship "to weed out the filth from the movies and every sort of entertainment" is but the "practical application of the commandments given by an all-wise and loving Father to His children for their own good," said the editorial, titled "Freedom For The Movies."

The newspaper, contending that censorship is needed "for the protection of the morals of youth," said that basic issue is whether the state's control of examining and licensing of films and the prohibition of "obscene, immoral films" constitute a violation of our rights of freedom of speech and expression.



"Is not the pure heart of the child to be protected against the filth now current on the movie house screen and on television?" asked the editorial. "The inability of the youth of today to restrain the sexual urge is due to the fact that they have already indulged too long and too frequently. Molestings, rape, and crimes of every sort which have their origin in sexual passion are already so numerous as to make one wonder whether ours is a Christian and civilized society. Intelligent people ought to understand this. Unfortunately, too many advise being open and frank in sex matters. Indulgence, they tell us, is normal; restraint is abnormal. Such tommyrot! These same people would prohibit all use of alcohol and are staunch defenders of the narcotics laws.

"License is not freedom. It could be expected that educated and intelligent people would understand this. Men have an even greater obligation to protect themselves against moral disease than they have to prevent bodily decay. Almighty God gave us the Ten Commandments. He did not ask us whether or not we wanted them. And no one thinks of Him as thereby denying us our freedom. God knew what was best for weak human nature."

A lone bandit held up the Keith Memorial, while the house was playing the prison film "Six Bridgs To Cross," and escaped with $28, after flourishing a toy gun at the cashier. The bandit later was apprehended near the Metropolitan as he was discovered by police looking over the layout at that theatre. Police found the $28 in silver and the toy gun on his person and took him to headquarters. . . . In Fitchburg, Mass., a masked gunman carrying a revolver held up the Saxon and made his escape with the day's receipts. An unusual angle on this holdup was the fact that the bandit was wearing 3-D polaroid glasses.

Cleo Moore, featured in Columbia's "Women's Prison" was in town for press and radio interviews and appeared twice at the Pilgrim, where she sold tickets and signed autographs. . . . "Romeo and Juliet," at the Beacon Hill, played to a group of 40 teen-age pupils of the Perkins Institute For The Blind in Watertown, Mass., who were driven in buses to the theatre.

On March 1, Independent Exhibitors, Inc., of New England, a unit of National Allied, is holding its annual meeting and election of officers. There will be a board meeting in the morning, a luncheon, and the meeting, all at the Hotel Bradford. A highlight of the discussion period will be toll-TV. This local unit is soliciting members and all independent theatre owners in this area for funds to be sent to the Allied-TOA toll-TV committee, with the money to be used to present the case to the public, Congress, and the FCC. Irving A. Isaacs, president, IENE, will preside over the meeting.

When Ralph Iannuzzi, recently promoted to division manager, and Bill Kumins, promoted to branch manager, arrived in their offices to start their new posts, a huge basket of roses was in each office, the gifts of the Warners employees. At noon on his first day as division manager, Iannuzzi hopped a plane for Buffalo for his first visit to that city under the new setup. Another change in the office is the transfer of Herbert Gaines from the Buffalo exchange. He is coming in to be assistant branch manager under Kumins. Jack Hill and Bill Horan will continue as salesmen.

Separate Story New England Ed.

Boston — Independent Exhibitors, Inc., and Drive-In Theatre Association of New England reminds exhibitors that toll-TV can be the biggest problem that exhibition has ever encountered in the way of competition.

Ray Feeley, executive secretary, said, "However it might be engineered, it could be the most menancing monster, putting out of business every theatre other than the first-run cities in our entire country."

Accordingly exhibition has formed a joint committee on TV. This committee has met, mapped a program, and has set up a financial budget to take care of representing exhibition's case to the public, Congress and the Federal Communications Commission.

Each exhibitor is being requested to contribute the same amount as he gave to COMPO on the tax fight. For conventional theatres the schedule is: up to 500 seats, $7.50; up to 750 seats, $11.25; up to 1,000 seats, $18.75; up to 2,500 seats, $37.50; and over 2,500 seats, $75. For drive-ins it is: up to 300 cars, $7.50; up to 500 cars, $11.25; up to 600 cars, $18.75; and over 600 cars, $37.50.

"There is no organization available to solicit personally or to 'sell' you on this need," Feeley said. "But your stake in the motion picture business is seriously threatened, and in addition to promptly sending in your own contribution you should also remind every other exhibitor you contact to do his share. Checks should be sent to Independent Exhibitors, Inc., 36 Melrose Street, Boston 16, Mass., and your theatre will be credited and the money immediately forwarded to the Joint Committee on Toll TV."

Glenn Norris, 20th-Fox eastern sales manager, was in for a meeting at the local exchange.

Robert S. Wolff, RKO's managing director for the United Kingdom, arrived from London. He will hold sales talks with home office executives concerning British dates on forthcoming RKO product.

Harvey Sears, chief projectionist, Republic home office, became a grandfather for the second time when his daughter Anita Rubin gave birth to a girl, Ronnie Lynn.

The Long Gray Line of the Corps of Cadets of the U. S. Military Academy at West Point invaded New York to see a performance of Columbia's tribute to their school, John Ford's "The Long Gray Line" at the Capitol.

Calling attention to the search for "Miss Racer of 1955," lovely Ina Anders and Valerie Witalis, recently pulled up at the Roxy, where 20th-Fox's "The Racers" is current and were greeted by William Mechlair, managing director of the theatre; and Fred Pittera, president, Universal Travel and Sports Bureau, sponsoring a show at Madison Square Garden. Miss Anders is featured in the new picture, while Miss Witalis is considered the most beautiful racing driver in America.

The Great White Way became even brighter when the five-story-high illuminated lucite cut-out of Jane Russell in Howard Hughes' "Underwater!" was lighted over Brandt's Mayfair, where the Superscope-Technicolor film opened. The lighting of the largest Broadway advertising sign for a motion picture in over a decade was covered by photographers from Wide World, Associated Press, United Press-Acme, International News Photos, all of the New York daily newspapers and local and network TV news programs. The construction and erection of the mammoth sign also received press breaks in news and feature stories and photos from local newspapers, wire services, magazines, radio and television.

Frank A. Ungro, financial manager, Westrex Corporation, left for London, Brussels, Amsterdam, Copenhagen, and Stockholm.

Italian Films Export and IFE Releasing Corporation moved into new quarters in the Paramount Building at 1501 Broadway. Various departments, formerly divided between the 18th and 15th floors of the same address, now occupy the entire 14th floor. Business continues uninterrupted with the executive, sales, publicity, promotion, advertising, television, and talent staffs working in the new larger quarters. Telephone numbers and mailing address remain unchanged.

Albany

WTRI-TV, in which Stanley Warner Theatre Corporation held a 50 percent interest, ceased operations on Jan. 31, a victim of competition from the long established VHF station, WRGB, Schenectady, owned by General Electric Company, and from loss of its limited alternate affiliation with CBS-TV network to the other Albany UHF outlet, WROW. The latter, in which Lowell Thomas, Frank M. Smith, his business manager, former state tax Commission President Alger B. Chapman, and others recently purchased an 83 per cent share, held on to ABC and DuMont web associations, also. This left WTRI, on the air since Feb. 28, 1954, with no national service, and therefore unable to compete for an audience and for advertisers. General manager Richard B. Wheeler declared in a six-page statement peppered with criticisms of the Columbia system for alleged favoritism to its long-time news commentator, and for Thomas, unfairness to WTRI; WRGV for "monopolization" of top programs from the four networks; and the Federal Communications Commission for permitting both conditions to exist. WTRI was said to represent an investment of around one million dollars, including new $150,000 studio-offices here.

Spyros P. Skouras, 20th-Fox president, is one of the 17 trustees of the non-stock, non-profit educational corporation, the American Museum of Immigration, recently chartered by the Board of Regents to operate on Bedloe's Island in New York harbor, at the foot of the Statue of Liberty. A State Education Department publicity release on the chartering of the Museum explained that it is "proposed as a national monument to the many different peoples, immigrants all, who realized their dream of unity and freedom in this country." The new national shrine will be built "through the donations of citizens all over the United States," and will eventually be administered by the National Park Service of U. S. Department of Interior.

A ban on comic books, obscene, indecent, immoral, inhuman, sacrilegious, or tending to corrupt morals or inciting to crime, is coupled with a requirement that they must first be submitted to the motion picture division, State Education Department, for licensing "in the same manner as motion pictures," or "in such manner as may be prescribed by the board of regents or the commissioner of education," under terms of a bill introduced by Assemblyman Charles H. Henderson of Steuben County. Measure would take effect immediately.

Charles A. Smakwitz, Stanley Warner zone manager in Newark, commutes to his local home on many weekends. . . . Joseph Liss, supervising SW theatres in Albany, Troy, and Utica since Smakwitz was promoted, checked in from Boston. . . . Sam Slotnick, Syracuse exhibitor, who operates the Lyric, Waterford, was among recent Film Row callers. . . . Andrew Roy, manager, Stanley, Utica, N. Y., has a new woman assistant. His former bower, Mrs. Ottilie Fearing, now manages the Avon in that city. . . . Trim and erect in Air Force blue, Tom Mahar, ex-Strand doorman, paid several calls on staffers.

Edward L. Fabian, in Albany for a periodic conference with division manager Saul J. Ullman and for an inspection of theatres here, Schenectady, Troy, and Cohoes, classified "The Bridges At Toko-Ri," "Battle Cry" and "The Long Gray Line" as three strong grossers. The first-named clicked at the Palace. That house's Mrs. Jane King, matron, underwent a finger amputation in St. Peter's Hospital. . . . Maneuvering on crutches after a skiing mishap was Paul Jacobson, son-in-law of Si Fabian, and treasurer, Van Curler Broadcasting Co.

As temperature plummeted throughout New York state in the winter's severest freeze, grosses correspondingly dipped. Albany's lowest was 18 degrees below zero, followed by a minus-8 day. Saranac Lake registered a minus-36. Twenty belows were recorded in several communities of the local exchange district. Don Gilson, on a visit here, said there was about a foot of the white stuff on the ground in Massena. . . . Harry Lamont, vacationing with Mrs. Lamont and Mr. and Mrs. John Gardner, Turnpike Drive-In, Westmere, at Key West, Fla., is expected back. The foursome had a fine weather break in the south. An early-winter visitor to Havana was Jack Hamilton, Berlo Vending Company manager.

Charles Rossi, Schroon Lake exhibitor, returned from a visit to New York. He is wintering here. Brother John, who also operates a Schroon Lake summer situation, is driving a truck in Hoboken, N. J., during the off-season.

Frank Quinn, center, film critic, Daily Mirror, New York, and chairman, New York Film Critics, recently presented that group's awards for excellence at the annual awards party held at Sardi's. Left to right are Eva Marie Saint, who accepted Marlon Brando's best actor award for his work in "On The Waterfront"; Sam Spiegel, producer, Columbia's "On The Waterfront," best picture; Grace Kelly, selected best actress for her work in Paramount's "The Country Girl" and other films; and Elia Kazan, best director for "On The Waterfront."

The long pending anti-trust suit of Norris Amusement Company, Norristown, Pa., against 20th-Fox, Paramount, RKO, Warners, Columbia, U-I, and MGM got under way last week in U. S. District Court with the first day's proceedings not over at press time. The Sablosky owned company seeks $5,775,000 in treble damages alleging that the distributors violated an agreement under which the Norris Amusement Company was to get major product 30 days after showing in downtown Philadelphia. Actually, it is alleged, the pictures are made available to them long after their popular appeal is gone, and the plaintiffs claim they had to close two theatres because of this. The case is being heard before Judge Allan K. Grim.

Allied Artists held an invitational preview of "Tonight's The Night" at Sley's Locust.

The SW Commodore has returned to a regular policy following an art house attempt. This leaves the Lane alone in this field for SW. . . . A highway express driver discovered a fire at the Belmont. The rear of the house and the screen were burned out.

James E. Myers, Myers Music, has set "Rock Around The Clock" with MGM for their forthcoming release, "Black Board Jungle." The number was Bill Haley and his Comets first hit on Decca Records and it is this recording which will be used throughout the picture, which should start the recording on its way all over again. Myers Music, MGM, and Decca are setting a big promotion to exploit the picture and record.

Harry Waxman, popular Atlantic City, N. J., exhibitor, has become a grandpop again. He is now grandsire to two girls and two boys, the latest, Stephen Allen Chasen, arriving on Feb. 2. All Vine Street is invited to an open house Waxman and Chasen are holding on Feb. 20.

The boys at Screen Guild were happy over their area distribution deal on two new features, "Gangbusters" and "The Immortal City."

The local branch of the Colosseum of Motion Picture Salesmen held a meeting at the Vine Street Screening Room and discussed current problems.

Jack Harris, Exploitation Productions, Inc., has acquired "Davy Crockett, Indian Scout" for distribution in this exchange territory.

Leon Serin, left, recently succeeded Jay Wren, right, as film buyer and city manager, AB-Paramount's Philadelphia theatres. Wren has been appointed general manager and film buyer of the Viking and Locust, Philadelphia, for Harry Sley, and will assume his duties on March 1. Serin comes to Philadelphia from Buffalo, N. Y., where he was manager, Paramount's Center.

District of Columbia

Washington

The world premiere of Columbia's "The Long Gray Line," RKO Keith's, took place before a celebrity-studded audience, including government leaders, top military commanders, important members of the diplomatic corps and outstanding personalities of Washington society. Also present for the full-dress premiere, with kleig-lights, bands, lobby TV, and radio interviews, and other special features, were industry leaders, including top Columbia executives and six members of the cast of the film, Maureen O'Hara, Robert Francis, Donald Crisp, Phil Carey, William Leslie, and Harry Carey, Jr. A special guest was retired Sergeant Marty Maher. Heading the list of the country's great whom Maher knew as cadets is President Dwight D. Eisenhower. The opening was sponsored by the Wives of the Officers of the Technical Services of the United States Army. Complete coverage by the NBC television cameras recorded the event on film for rebroadcast on the Dave Garroway "Today" show the following morning and on other network programs. Newsreel representatives and still photographers from the leading news services were present. Radio interview shows, both live and taped, were conducted in the lobby before the show. At the conclusion of the screening, NBC's Steve Allen "Tonight" video program emanated from Keith's with many of the notables in the theatre audience participating. Columbia Pictures executives, headed by executive vice-president Jack Cohn, attended along with A. Schneider, vice-president and treasurer; A. Montague, vice-president and general sales manager; Paul N. Lazarus, Jr., vice-president in charge of advertising and publicity; Rube Jackter, assistant general sales manager; Louis Astor, George Josephs, and Vincent Borrelli, circuit account executives; Hortense Schorr, publicity manager; Howard LeSieur, director of advertising and publicity; Raymond Bell, public relations executive; Al Rylander, exploitation manager; and publicists George Ettinger, Joseph Hyams, and Ray Murray. At the conclusion of the film, General Matthew B. Ridgway, Army Chief of Staff, and one of the thousands of men whom Maher helped train at West Point, presented a citation to Columbia. From the Association of Graduates of West Point, the citation hailed the studio, director John Ford, stars Tyrone Power and Maureen O'Hara and the other creative artists involved in the filming, for their contribution in bringing the traditions and glories of West Point forcefully and entertainingly to the attention of the American public.

Revision of the powers of the Maryland State Board of Motion Picture Censors to approve and license motion pictures films was set forth in a bill recently passed by the Maryland State Senate now in session at Annapolis. In accordance with regular procedure, the bill has been forwarded to the Judiciary Committee of the House. Should the committee return a favorable recommendation on the bill it will be put up for vote before the House of Delegates. In passing through the State Senate the bill, which deletes the words "sacrilegious" and "indecent, inhuman, or immoral" from the present law, did not undergo any change or revision. At present, however, it is being reexamined, after a formal protest filed by a newsreel exhibitor. He contends that processing of newsreels by the Censor Board would require so much time as to detract from the film's timeliness. As a matter of fact, however, newsreels have been licensed for many years in Maryland.

In promoting Warners' "The Silver Chalice" at the SW Stanley, Philadelphia, recently, newsstand tieup was arranged, plugging the picture and book from which the film was taken. United News trucks carried posters announcing the opening, as shown.

At the second meeting of the new bingo parlor operators' association, held in Wyomissing, Pa., with Francis C. Bensinger presiding, the enrollment of 26 members was announced. People's Club is the name adopted. For the present the chief objective of the club is to see that the game is played for entertainment and for merchandise prizes, not for cash prizes. The association will combat, however, any legislation proposed at Harrisburg inimical to bingo or any movement to label it as gambling.

Including some 35 old time photos of greats in the stage and film world of long ago, Paul E. THINGS YOU SHOULD KNOW —about this service— THE CHECK-UP

This every-second-week regular department is NOT just an index as published in many other trade papers.

THE CHECK-UP is an exclusive EXHIBITOR service. Started many years ago, it represents a complete, unmatchable . . .

CAPSULE SUMMARY

. . . of ALL Features and of ALL Shorts that have been released and reviewed during the last 8 Months, . . . PLUS information on all that are in production for early release.

WITH THE CHECK-UP AT HAND—

. . . it is NOT necessary to go to your file or to look up a complete Review in order to find:

1. TITLE
2. TYPE OF SHOW
3. COLOR or BLACK AND WHITE
4. LEADING PLAYERS
5. ONE-LINE CRITICISM
6. RUNNING TIME
7. PRODUCTION NUMBER
8. DATE OF COMPLETE REVIEW
9. LEGION OF DECENCY RATING

They are all right here in THE CHECK-UP. And you need only save it for two weeks,— for it will be up-to-date the next time issued.

IN YOUR HANDS NOW—

you are holding the only—

HITTING THE NAIL ON THE HEAD

FROM TIME TO TIME we have been honestly critical of some of the policies and proclamations of the Allied States exhibitors. Just as honestly, and possibly even more frequently in view of the more docile role they play, we have criticized the TOA exhibitors. As an independent trade paper, published for the best interests of all exhibitors, rather than for the relative percentages of the whole that belong to any one or another exhibitor association, we believe this to be our right, our privilege, and our duty.

By the same token, we believe that we have a duty to honestly praise, and to direct the spotlight of publicity on any policy or proclamation of one group that is for the best interest of all exhibitors, or of the industry as a whole. An example of this latter can be found in the interim report of Allied's Emergency Defense Committee as directed recently to the mid-winter meeting of the Allicd States board of directors in St. Louis.

Speaking of the currcnt high and inflexible film prices and the need to include some consideration of sales policies in any industry conferencc, the EDC had this to say:

"The sales heads cannot take a detachcd view of the policies and practices which they have themselves devised, nor shed their indifference to ultimate harmful results to all concerned, so long as their companies' earnings remain high.

"First things should come first and EDC leaders are convinced that compared to working out fair and equitable methods of licensing films, based upon the ability of exhibitors to pay, so-called trade practices are but pinpricks and should not stand in the way of a prompt solution of the basic problem of film rentals. The first concern of the industry should be the sub-run or small town exhibitor who is required to pay 50 per cent of his gross receipts in order to show a picturc that has already run for eight weeks in the nearest key theatre. The entire subject of film prices should have the immcdiate, dispassionate consideration of men with the vision to see that the motion picture business cannot have a future unless health is restored to all its parts."

To further confirm the opinion that film prices based on whim and inflexible national policy that do not leave the retailer room for normal profit are doing more to constrict and eliminate the small town and subsequent run theatre than any other one industry problem, the EDC conducted a survey of its membership in some 15 different states and areas, and relates the following:

"The familiar complaint that sub-runs and small town theatres cannot make a profit on top pictures because of the exorbitant terms demanded, runs through the replies like a scarlet thread. The small exhibitors assert that they cannot pay 50 per cent of their receipts for any picture and come out whole; that they are forced to pass up great attractions in order to avoid a loss. Their claim is borne out in part by the fact that many memorable pictures released in recent years were not exhibited in thousands of the smaller theatres. Deduct the repeat engagements from the total engagements on any outstanding picture and the result will reveal how far short of the distribution potential the picture fell.

"From the information available to us, we can only conclude that the blow to a sales manager's vanity resulting from the acceptance of any terms less than 50 per cent on such pictures is more painful than the monetary loss incident to passing up the account. But the loss to the exhibitor both in money and prestige is very great; and the entire industry suffers the loss of valuable good will when large segments of the public are denied the privilege of seeing the most publicized, and the best, pictures."

From our own contacts with nearly 10,000 subscribers, who operate many more than that number of theatres across the nation, we can concur with the EDC on the national importance of this problem. We also believe that it has becomc of prime importance to the current well-being and to the future success of this industry. Certain it is that the importance of motion pictures, as an industry, as an art, and as a form of popular entertainment, must be judged by the millions-of-attendancc totals and not by the astronomical dollar totals possible through high-dollar-admissioned first-runs.

We thank this committee of the Allied States exhibitors for contributing this portion of their report to the best thinking of the industry. They have hit the nail on the head!

AWARD FROM THE HEART: Last week saw the local Variety Club meet at the first luncheon session of the year to inaugurate its new method of programming, to elect a new slate of officers, and to award a citation to actress Suzan Ball "for her great heart that enabled her to carry on under circumstances that would have ended the career of a less stalwart person." Miss Ball lost a leg during an operation some time back but has continued her career as a U-I star, appearing in that company's soon-to-be-seen release "Chief Crazy Horse."

KONECOFF

Leonard Goldenson, president, United Paramount Theatres-American Broadcasting Company, paid tribute to Miss Ball and presented her with the citation before some 200 attendees at the Toots Schor restaurant. Martin Levine and outgoing chief barker Edward Fabian also addressed the gathering. Aboard the dais were Charles Feldman, general sales manager, Universal - International, and actor Richard Long, Miss Ball's husband.

William J. German was elected chief barker; Edward Fabian, first assistant, Larry Morris, second assistant; Martin Levine, property master; Jack Hoffberg, dough guy. Canvasmen named were George W. Brandt, Bernie Brooks, Emil Friedlander, Leonard Gruenberg, Harold J. Klein, Ira Mienhardt, Maurice J. Miller, Charles L. Okun, Harold Rinzler, Jack Rosenfeld, Morris Sanders, Al Schwalberg, Cy Seymour, Spyros S. Skouras, David Snaper, Sol Strausberg, Mort Sunshine, Saul Trauner, George Waldman, William Westphal, and Max E. Youngstein.

FONDUE SECTION: Recently that public relations consultant of distinction, Lynn Farnol, insisted that we drop in and sample some Swiss Fondue alongside the ice skating rink at Rockefeller Plaza at a party thrown in honor of the arrival of "Cinerama Holiday" at the Warner. We arrived there in time to sample the mixture of melted Swiss cheese, kirchwasser, white wine, etc., as well as to have Barbara Troller, one of the stars of the film, show us how to sop up the delicacy on little hunks of bread.

She said it was the custom for a pretty girl to kiss anyone who spilled any of the goo betwixt plate and mouth whereupon we were dripping like crazy but to no avail. Our recollections at this point are that the fondue, Farnol, Mrs. Troller, the ice skaters, "Cinerama Holiday," and the cheese makers of Switzerland are all wonderful, and that the kirchwasser is powerful stuff. Hic.

OPENING HULLABALOO: At the crack of dawn the other day we joined a host of Columbia press agents atop the Hotel Statler, who in turn joined a load of disc jockeys, who in turn joined a lot of people who were selected as winners in some sort of contest involving "The Long Gray Line." Some day we must find out what kind of contests these were, but that morning no one was volunteering and we weren't asking.

Columbia went through this routine on "From Here To Eternity" and on "The Caine Mutiny" so they figured why not

BROADWAY GROSSES

(As of this Monday)

Some Good, Some Not So

NEW YORK—Business in the Broadway first-runs was fluctuating last weekend.

According to usually reliable sources reaching MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR, the break-down was as follows:

"White Feather" (20th-Fox). Roxy reported $13,627 for Wednesday through Sunday, with the first, and only, week expected to top $16,000.

"Jupiter's Darling" (MGM). Radio City Music Hall, with stage show, tallied $86,000 for Thursday through Sunday, with the first session heading toward $146,000.

"The Country Girl" (Paramount). Criterion did well with $41,000 on the 10th week.

"Bad Day At Black Rock" (MGM). Rivoli was down to $16,000 on the third week.

"The Far Country" (U-I). Globe anticipated the second week at $14,000.

"Underwater" (RKO). Mayfair looked toward $22,500 for the second week.

"20,000 Leagues Under The Sea" (Buena - Vista - Disney). Astor claimed $266,400 for the ninth week.

"New York Confidential" (Warners). Victoria opened to a good $30,000 first week.

"Sign Of The Pagan" (U-I). Loew's State dropped to $18,000 on the second week.

"The Long Gray Line" (Columbia). Capitol reported $64,000 for the second week.

"Battle Cry" (Warners). Paramount reported $66,000 for the third week.

TOA Board Approves Arbitration Plan

Urges Inclusion Of Rentals At Roundtable Discussions; No Action Taken On Allied Bill For Federal Regulation

WASHINGTON—Theatre Owners of America's board of directors last week approved and adopted in principle a proposed draft of an arbitration system submitted to it by the committee of distribution and exhibition which was working on the problem.

The board also approved the sending of representatives to the forthcoming industry roundtable conference, but warned that if film rentals were not placed high on the agenda, the meeting would be a waste of time.

Other important developments at the board meeting at the Mayflower Hotel included the voting of the board to throw the full weight of the organization behind the fight on toll-TV which is shaping up before the FCC, the announcement of the first stockholders' meeting of Exhibitors Film Financial Corporation; and the querying of Justice Department officials as to the legality of the divorced circuits investing in EFFG.

TOA officials revealed no details of the plan for arbitration, beyond saying that it provides for a conciliation service which would attempt to solve grievances on a local level, and that it lists all arbitrable subjects and provides for complete methods for organization and operation of the system. According to Herman Levy, general counsel, the proposal covers more ground than the 1952 suggestion, and although TOA's delegates are instructed to work with the committee to clarify a few points, there appeared to be no insurmountable details which would prevent the arbitration scheme from being adopted quickly.

In connection with the fight on toll-TV, the board recommended that the joint committee prepare kits to send to all theatre owners, so that they could be "alerted to expose on the local level the inherent fallacy of subscription television's claims." They also recommended that speakers be trained to expose these claims through the formation of national clinics.

The resolution passed by the board authorizing delegates to the industry conference stated that "these delegates will be instructed to have designated for top agenda importance, the obtaining of relief from prohibitive film rentals and other inequitable conditions of licensing films." Levy explained that "other inequitable conditions" included extended runs and price floors.

The first stockholders' meeting of EFFG was scheduled for March 15, at which time the Justice Department has promised to reach a decision on the legality of the divorced circuits investing in the group.

Board chairman Walter Reade, Jr., stated that no discussion was held regarding Allied States' bill for federal regulation of the film industry. "When we know what they mean, and what they are going to do," said Reade, "then we'll be able to discuss what we're going to do."

TOA representatives and Defense Department officials moved closer to an agreement on the problems of theatres near military installations. A. Julian Brylawski, spokesman for TOA, revealed certain plans that had been submitted to the Defense Department to relieve the situation. They include the proposal that first-runs be made available to post theatres 14 days after their opening or release date, provided the picture is played by a civilian theatre within the post area within 30 days after it is shown in key cities in the region. If no civilian theatre is going to show the picture in 30 days, the post would not have to wait at all.

Allied, TOA Meeting Temporarily Postponed

WASHINGTON—The first meeting between representatives of Theatre Owners of America and National Allied committees to advance the common interests of the two groups and iron out the differences between them was postponed last week to permit Rube Shor, new president, National Allied, to sit in at the session. He was resting following the Allied board meeting and drive-in convention in St. Louis last fortnight.

TOA president E. D. Martin said that he was happy that Shor planned to participate in the meeting, which would discuss all problems affecting both TOA and Allied members.

No date was set for the new meeting. The conference will discuss such topics as to whether TOA will go along with Allied in supporting Allied's Emergency Defense Committee, and will include the question of arbitration.

Goldenson Sees Rise In Film Production

NEW YORK—Leonard H. Goldenson, president, American Broadcasting-Paramount Theatres, returing from a recent three-week visit to the Coast, claims that he found producers encouraged by the recent business upswing, and expecting good grosses on good pictures.

Goldenson expects that such an atmosphere will lead to the production of more pictures, for it will make producers more inclined to "gamble."

Pointing to the growing recognition of TV boxoffice potential in Hollywood, Goldenson urged that TV be used to develop new stars and to make them familiar to the present large crop of youngsters in America, so that they will grow up with the new stars, according to Goldenson, the 21,000,000 children who will become 12 years old in the next five years can form the backbone of the industry in years to come.

He maintained that TV should become the testing ground for new talent of all types, supplanting the "B" picture, and he argued that the TV approach is not costly.

Goldenson predicted that all studios would eventually engage in TV production along the lines adopted by Columbia and its subsidiary, Screen Gems. He is hopeful that an industry TV show can be put on the air.

Goldenson proposed an intermediate price scale for teen-agers. Pointing out that it's an expensive proposition when a teen-ager wants to take his girl to the theatre today, the AB-PT president stressed the importance of installing the film going habit in the youth of America.

ACLU Asks Censorship Ban

WASHINGTON—The American Civil Liberties Union last week asked the Supreme Court to declare unconstitutional all state and local laws requiring film censorship prior to public showing.

The matter came before the Supreme Court in connection with a case challenging the validity of Chicago's city ordinance prohibiting public exhibition of films without a permit from the police commissioner and requiring the commissioner to determine that the picture is neither immoral nor obscene.

Charles Leibman sought a permit to show "The Miracle," which was refused. A lower court found the Chicago licensing system unconstitutional, but the Illinois Supreme Court held that it did not violate the constitution.

Brandt Suit Settled

NEW YORK—A settlement was reached out of court last week in the $400,000 suit against circuit operator Harry Brandt, charging that he had not lived up to his agreement to lease a theatre built for him by Lujacks, Inc., a Florida real estate company. Terms of the settlement were not revealed.

FCC Asks For Written Comments On Toll-TV Approval Question

WASHINGTON—The Federal Communications Commission last week set May 9 as the deadline for public comments to be filed on whether it should approve subscription television.

The commission indicated that after it gets the written comments it would decide whether to hold public hearings on the question or whether to issue proposed rules authorizing toll-TV without any formal hearing.

FCC chairman McConnaughey and commissioners Hyde, Webster, Doerfer, Lee, and Bartley favored the commission action. Commissioner Hennock dissented, asking for a public hearing without delay. At least two commissioners have said that they feel that public hearings at any stage of the investigation would be too time consuming, and that at the most there should be oral argument at a later stage on proposed rules. In her dissent, Hennock said, "The Commission should not arrive at well founded conclusions on so far reaching and basic a change in American broadcasting methods on the basis of written comments alone. Since hearings would be necessary in any event, it would be preferable to hold them without delay."

The Commission asked for comment on more than two dozen questions relating to law, facts, and public interest. One question asks specifically for information "disclosing the role to be played by the motion picture industry in subscription TV."

Questions involving points of law revolve around whether subscription TV is "broadcasting" under the communications act and the authority of the FCC to allocate to it channels used for TV broadcasting, and if the FCC has no authority over it, what amendments to the act must be made to give it that authority.

The cost of equipment, the possibility of interference with regular TV, adverse effects on TV receivers now in the hands of the public, patent control, licensing arrangements, types of programs to be available, and who will control their production and distribution, additional revenue for TV broadcasters, and other questions of fact are listed for comment by the commission.

Questions involving the public interest include the impact on toll-TV on advertiser-sponsored broadcasting; its effect on broadcast news and diverse views on controversial issues; and safeguards to insure that such broadcasting will continue to be available to the public without charge.

Both Sides Applaud Commission Action

NEW YORK—The decision of the FCC to conduct a full-scale public investigation into the pros and cons of subscription television was applauded last week by Trueman Rembusch and Alfred Starr, co-chairman, Joint Committee on Toll-TV. "Such an investigation will disclose the tremendous latent opposition on the part of the public as television set-owners, the television industry, Hollywood, and other interested parties," the co-chairmen declared.

"The FCC's refusal of Zenith's request for immediate sanction without public hearings seems evidence that the commissioners feel the issues of the public interest should be investigated thoroughly and broadly before serious consideration is given to such a radical change in the traditional philosophy of free broadcasting. The FCC members are to be congratulated on their democratic approach to a controversial and little-understood issue."

As an example of the public interest issues involved, the co-chairmen asserted that the public air would be turned into a commodity and sold to set-owners if toll-TV were sanctioned. "You cannot broadcast free television and toll-TV simultaneously over the same channel—one eliminates the other."

In Chicago, Commander E. F. McDonald, Jr., president, Zenith Radio Corporation, stated that he, too, is delighted with the FCC action.

"In taking this acion," McDonald said, "the commission followed one of the three alternative procedures suggested in the Zenith petition filed last November." McDonald said.

McDonald said that this procedure will enable those interested to show the commission and the American public, with a minimum of delay, that subscription television can bring right into the American living room the great entertainment which is not now available except in the theatre or stadium.

Rosenberg Sees Sub-Runs Affected By Subscription-TV

NEW YORK—Frank P. Rosenberg, Warners' contract producer, stated recently that toll-TV will never replace the first and second-run theatre in providing a source of amusement to the American public. "The general public tends to seek its entertainment away from home," he said.

The subscription TV medium will affect the third, subsequent, and smaller situations around the country, according to Rosenberg. He predicted that 1955 motion picture business will be great, owing to the abundance of good product to be released.

Lux Dismissed In Schine Suit

BUFFALO—Elmer F. Lux, president, Buffalo City Council, was dropped from the list of defendants in the government's contempt trial of the Schine Theatres last week.

Judge John Knight ruled that the government had not presented sufficient evidence in the case of Lux to support the charges against him, but he refused defense motions to drop the charges against the other five individual defendants or the nine corporation defendants.

Lux is president, Elmart Theatres, Inc., described by the government as a Schine subsidiary. He formerly was general manager and vice-president, Darnell Theatre, Inc., also a defendant in the Schine trial.

Columbia Announces Record Net Profit

NEW YORK—Columbia last week announced the greatest six-months earnings, in the company's history, in a statement issued by Harry Cohn, president.

Reflecting the sharp upward turn in the motion picture industry, Columbia's statement showed a net profit of $5,153,000 before taxes for the six month period ending Dec. 25, 1954. The net profit after estimating federal, state, and foreign taxes was given as $2,823,000. This also was a new high for the corporation, as was the $3.40 earned per share of common stock.

The earnings for the first six months of Columbia's fiscal year thus showed a substantial gain over the similar period for 1953-54, a record year in which the company hit a high of over $80,000,000 in gross income. The comparative figures for the first six months of last year showed $4,759,000 in net profit before taxes, $1,910,000 net profit after taxes and $2.24 earned per share of common stock. For both years, the earnings per share were based on the 794,236 shares of common stock which were outstanding on Dec. 25, 1954.

Kaye Film Honored

NEW YORK—The Brotherhood Award, highest honor of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, has been bestowed on Danny Kaye's "Assignment Children," Kaye's widely acclaimed film record of his recent trip to Asia on behalf of the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund.

"Assignment Children," which had its world premiere for UN and international notables at UN headquarters last fortnight, was selected for the 1954 award by the N.C.C.J. commission on mass communications from among scores of films under consideration.

In addition to this Brotherhood Award, Kaye and Paramount have received the warmest praise and tribute from the UN and UNICEF officials, including Dag Hammarskjold, secretary-general.

16mm. Complaint Amended

HOLLYWOOD—The government last week ammended paragraph 31 of the original complaint in the 16mm. anti-trust suit, which was recently expanded to include six exhibitor groups as co-conspirators, to charge that the "defendants have maintained an intricate system to police and enforce, and, with the assistance of co-conspirators, have policed and enforced license restrictions upon exhibitors of 16mm. feature films, and have blacklisted or boycotted exhibitors who disregard such restrictions."

House Okehs Fine Boost

WASHINGTON—The House judiciary committee last week approved a bill to boost the maximum Sherman Anti-Trust Act fine from $5,000 to $50,000. The administration approved measure has passed the house twice in recent congresses, but could not get by the Senate. The outlook for Senate action this year is said to be very good.

20th-Fox Board Okehs TV, Production Plans

NEW YORK—Twentieth Century-Fox last week announced the allocation of several million dollars for the complete re-tooling of its Western Avenue studios in Hollywood to television production, following unanimous approval of its board of directors.

The move sets into immediate motion plans for transforming the lot into one of the most modern and complete studios for the production of films for television with re-tooling slated to begin shortly.

Sid Rogell, executive producer, will head the project which will see 10 stages and theatre geared for full video production.

At the same time, the board unanimously approved plans for production head Darryl F. Zanuck to increase from 16 to 22 the number of CinemaScope productions to be made at the studio this year. The entire line-up will be in color. Zanuck came to New York from Los Angeles expressly for the meeting to present plans for the nearly 40 per cent stepped up production schedule.

The approval will see $50,000,000 earmarked for the 22 pictures, an increase of $13,000,000 over the 16-picture slate previously planned.

N. Y. Wins Appeal Right

NEW YORK—The appelate division has granted New York City permission to appeal its decision on the local admissions tax to the court of appeals in Albany.

Theatre attorneys opposed the city's move to appeal to Albany, contending that the appelate rule was not a final order and that the case would have to be returned to Queens Supreme Court for trial on all the issues.

Assistant Corporation Counsel Stanley Buchsbaum hopes to get the case heard in Albany in the first week in March, when he will argue that the city's ruling on breakage calls for the "practical" method employed in business and banking.

The final report of Dr. Frederick Bird, head, temporary commission on fiscal affairs, completely ignored the question of the admissions tax.

It was learned that the commission, which was ordered by Governor Dewey last June to undertake a study of the tax, had made a special report on the subject, but no official statement has been made on the subject. Exhibitors hoped that the report would support their claims that they were unable to pay the tax.

Todd-AO To Collect Royalties

NEW YORK—The Todd-AO Corporation will be paid a royalty of five cents a person for all persons viewing "Oklahoma" in the United States and Canada, it was disclosed last week in a prospectus released by United Artists Theatre Circuit.

The royalty abroad will be at the rate of 3.5 cents a person. It will be the policy to charge a similar royalty on additional productions, such as the Michael Todd Company's "Eighty Days Around The World."

This information was released by UATC because of that company's heavy investment in Magna Theatre Corporation.

David O. Selznick is about to become associated with MGM once again, with an agreement to be signed calling for MGM's financing, release, and partnership in two large-scale films to be made by the Selznick Company, and personally produced by him.

Lardner Appeal Refused

WASHINGTON—The Supreme Court refused last week to intervene in the case of screen writer Ring Lardner's suspension from 20th-Fox under the morals clause of his contract for refusing to answer the questions of the House Un-American Activities Committee. Lardner was appealing a Ninth Circuit Court decision which upheld the company's right to fire him. The circuit court decision reversed a previous decision in Lardner's favor by a district court. The case is expected to act as a precedent for deciding similar suits by other industry workers who were fired when they refused to answer the committee's questions as to whether or not they were Communists.

McGee Answers Allied On COMPO Activities

NEW YORK—Replying last week to a resolution passed by the Allied States board of directors to the effect that COMPO should not permit the use of its name in connection with state organizations or units, Pat McGee, president, Rocky Mountain COMPO, emphasized that his organization was not out to replace any exhibitor organization or to precipitate raids on their membership.

He pointed out that the board of Rocky Mountain COMPO includes members of both TOA and Allied, and urged that exhibitors in his group should continue their support of either or both, as their preference dictated.

Tracing the growth of his organization, McGee noted that it had started as a purely exhibitor organization, the Colorado Association of Theatres, but in emulation of Texas COMPO, had broadened its membership to include supply houses, buyers and bookers of cooperative groups, film salesmen, and other segments of the industry. McGee stressed the belief of his group that all interested parties should be organized in a single group.

LOS ANGELES—Reporting that the downward trend of first quarter business in National Theatres is being offset in the second quarter due to high quality motion pictures now showing, Elmer C. Rhoden, president, in addressing stockholders at the company's annual meeting last week, voiced confidence in the circuit's as well as the industry's future prospects, with special emphasis placed on the high quality of forthcoming product.

Rhoden said the first seven weeks of the second quarter showed an increase in gross of 4.2 per cent and estimated profits before federal taxes, 12 per cent greater than in the same period last year. It is hoped, he said, the improved trend will be sufficient to overcome the first quarter decrease of $103,000 from the comparable quarter last year.

Rhoden based his optimism about the future months on a large inventory of high quality entertainment that he estimated to number 14 important attractions compared to eight in the comparable 1954 period. He also called a group of forthcoming releases as "the strongest array of films we have had in a long, long time, all of which should swell the grosses of the motion picture theatres throughout the country."

As a result of the company's compliance with the government's consent judgment and its divestiture of 105 theatres, Rhoden said National Theatres was now in a position to embark upon a program of expanding its earnings.

Rhoden said the management's program to this end calls for investment in additional theatres and allied phases of the amusement industry; stimulating attendance at theatres through comprehensive advertising and sales research and experimentation; liquidation of unproductive properties; and introduction of new techniques in motion picture presentation such as the Todd-AO process to be first shown to the public in "Oklahoma."

The stockholders re-elected as directors Gregson Bautzer, John B. Bertero, Peter Colefax, B. F. Giles, Earle G. Hines, Willard W. Keith, Alan May, Richard W. Millar, Elmer C. Rhoden, F. H. Ricketson, Jr., and Graham L. Sterling, Jr. Elected as a new member of the board was George H. Heyman, Jr., partner in Abraham and Company, member firm of the New York Stock Exchange. The stockholders also approved by a vote of 1,932,322 to 54,799 a stock option plan which will permit 20 key executives to acquire National Theatres stock at 95 per cent of a given market price.

Immediately following the stockholders meeting the board met and re-elected the following officers, Elmer C. Rhoden, president; F. H. Ricketson, Jr., vice-president; John B. Bertero, vice-president and counsel; E. F. Zabel, vice-president; Alan May, vice-president and treasurer; T. H. Sword, secretary; Laurence A. Peters, assistant secretary; Paul F. Scherer, assistant treasurer and assistant secretary; and A. M. Ahlskog, assistant treasurer. The firm of Lybrand, Ross Brothers and Montgomery was again selected by the stockholders as auditors.

Theatres Map Fight On Music Royalties

TORONTO—Long a contentious issue, that of payment of royalties for music to the Composers, Authors, and Publishers Association of Canada Ltd., is to be fought by theatres on two fronts. First gun to be fired will come from the Musical Protective Society of Canada, representing the users of copyright music in Canada, at the Ottawa hearing of the Royal Commission on Patents, Copyrights, Trade Mark, and Industrial Designs. This will be followed by opposition from the Motion Picture Theatres Association of Ontario at the Copyright Appeal Board a week later.

The Protective Society in its brief contended that CAPAC is as much the representative of publishers as it is composers and that its methods have been criticized by a Royal commission in 1935 and in the USA by the Supreme Court.

Certain recommendations were made by the Society for what it considered a more equitable tariff and a more democratic method. It asked, among other things, that the Copyright Appeal Board, which fixes fees, should have on it representatives of those interested in its considerations.

The MPTAO does not object to the present fees of CAPAC, since CAPAC does not intend to raise them, but opposed the principle of any fee on the ground that there exists double payment.

The MPTAO committee contends that music in motion pictures is paid for through a fee charged the producers. Payment of a scale of fees according to the number of seats and size of theatre, as practiced in Canada, was eliminated in USA some years ago by anti-trust legislation.

Canadian Comment

A leading benefactor of Variety Village, the pet charity of Toronto's Variety Club, Jack Kent Cooke, was honored by his fellow-barkers in a meeting dedicated to express the club's appreciation of his efforts. Cooke, who owns the Toronto Maple Leaf Baseball Club, assured fellow-members of the undying devotion of himself and associates to the famed project for Ontario's handicapped youth. Tangible recognition of Cooke's interest was given him through presentation of diamond cuff links by John J. Fitzgibbons. The meeting was described by Chief Barker Harry S. Mandell as the "finest" meeting in the history of the tent. He said it was fitting that it should be so, since that night tribute was being paid to a man who had done so much for Variety Village. During the meeting, Doug Patterson, accompanied by Bob Harvey and Lorne Moore, presented a check for $1,770 for the North Bay Theatre Managers, being the proceeds of a recent show for the Village. It was announced that the annual graduation dinner for the students of Variety Village will take place this year on Feb. 24. The Variety Club's Heart Fund will benefit through a tour by George Formby, famed English comedian. He will make six appearances in Canada, opening May 9 at the Maple Leaf Gardens in Toronto. The Variety Club will also present His Majesty's Scots Guards, also in the Gardens. Arrangements are being made by Ernest Rawley and Jack Fitzgibbons. A total of $13,603 has been contributed to Variety Village through the efforts of George Altman's Mavety Film Delivery, which has hauled 510,000 pounds of salvage materials.

Sophia Loren recently presented in Rome a special citation to E. R. Zorgniotti, representing IFE, from the Italian Motion Picture Newspapermen's Guild as a tribute to IFE's activities in promoting Italian films in the United States. The presentation was at the Gala Cinema Ball, where Miss Loren was also cited as "Italy's most exciting personality of 1954."

J. R. Grainger, president, RKO, and Mrs. Grainger, were met at the Mexico City airport during their recent sales trip there. From left to right are Michael Havas, RKO's Latin American supervisor; Mrs. Grainger, Grainger, Mrs. Havas, Ramon Fernandez, RKO sales manager for Mexico; and Eugenie Serrano, publicist.

No sign of the expected end of the Amusement Tax on tickets in Ontario under 50 cents was in the Speech From The Throne of the Ontario Legislature. Although forecast in a story in The Telegram, Toronto, the expected reduction did not come about although some representations were made by The Motion Picture Theatres Association of Ontario.

The Association of Motion Picture Producers and Laboratories of Canada will make representations to the Federal Government on the matter of the handicap placed on Canadian commercial motion picture production by present taxes, providing imported subjects with a price advantage under some conditions. The all-day session elected Pierre Harwood, Omega Productions, Inc., Montreal, president, as successor to W. J. Singleton, Associated Screen News, Montreal, who did not run again. Grame Fraser, Crawley Films, Ottawa, was made vice-president, and Donald M. McClymont, Ottawa, was reappointed secretary-treasurer.

CINE CHATTER: Following the resignation of Rex Shale from Perkins Electric as their Toronto manager, A. A. Richardson has taken over the managership. Shale has gone on an extended holiday, and will announce his plans on his return. Richardson was with Perkins Electric for the past two and a half years. . . . There were a total of 25 inductees into the Canadian Picture Pioneers from various parts of the country. The largest group of 16 came from Toronto, with others coming from such centers as Hamilton, St. Catherines, Montreal, Peterboro, and Ottawa. . . . E. D. Rowe purchased the Capitol, Meaford, from Phillip Fingold. . . . Bruce Yeo, prominent motion picture exhibitor in Prince Edward Island, has been returned for the third time in a row as mayor of his town. . . . M. C. Healy sold his interest in the Swift Current Amusement Company to F. J. Lundholm, thus ending a partnership formed over 28 years ago. Although the partnership has been dissolved, there is no change in the name of the company, of which Vic Phaneuf is manager. The company operates the Eagle and Lyric, Swift Current. Theatre operator for more than 50 years in Toronto, Jacob Smith, 74, died at his home of a heart attack. He operated the Kum-C, Toronto, for 45 years. . . . A special performance at the Hollywood, Toronto, aided the Boy Scouts in sending some 40 of their members to the World Jamboree. . . . A full house greeted the special benefit show of the Hamilton Theatre Managers Association for the Variety Club at the Tivoli. Other shows are being held by the Belleville Theatre Managers, the St. Catherines group, and the Ottawa managers. Variety Dough Guy Dan Krendel recently announced that to date such shows have brought Variety $30,312, to which must be added the recent North Bay contribution, $1,770. . . . A new house, the Oasis, Radville, Sask., was opened by Shibley Enterprises, Ltd., featuring a large screen, a cry room, and "lovers seats" for two persons in each row.

20th-Fox And Famous Players Sign Film Pact

NEW YORK—A major three-year exhibition deal, estimated as resulting in excess of $10,000,000 in film rentals for the years 1955-1957, has been consummated between Famous Players Canadian Corporation, Ltd., and 20th-Fox Film Corporation, it was announced last week.

The agreement, in which the theatre company will exhibit the producing company's features and short subjects, is the largest deal ever worked out on 20th-Fox CinemaScope product.

Details of the huge deal were worked out by president John J. Fitzgibbons, Rube Bolstad, and Ben Geldsaler of the theatre organization; representing 20th-Fox were Al Lichtman, director of distribution; Arthur Silverstone, assistant general sales manager; and Peter Myers, Canadian division manager.

Famous Players Canadian controls and operates nearly 200 theatres ranging from Newfoundland on the east to Victoria, B. C., on the Pacific. It is the largest circuit in the Dominion, with headquarters in Toronto.

DCA Directors Elected

NEW YORK—The first annual stockholders meeting of Distributors Corporation of America last week elected seven men to the board of directors.

Those elected were Joseph M. Seider, James P. McCalister, Leslie R. Schwartz, Charles Boasberg, Irving Wormser, Frank Milton, and Fred J. Schwartz.

The new directors will shortly meet to elect officers. The company is reported to be planning to set up a subsidiary to handle product to fill the second half of double features. The new firm is to be named Spartan Pictures. DCA's states rights distributors will handle Spartan films, the first of which is reported to be "Devil Girl From Mars."

IATSE Sued

CHICAGO—Trebled damages of $315,000 and an injunction are sought by IPE film distributors in an action filed in federal district court against IATSE Local 110, projectionists; Eugene Atkinson, business agent; Clarence Jalas, secretary-treasurer; and Dudley Howell and Louis Cleppe, operators. The suit alleges that the defendants failed to show the picture, "Salt Of The Earth," at the Cinema Annex recently despite an agreement to do so.

SMPTE Award Group Named

HOLLYWOOD—Dr. John G. Frayne, president, Society of Motion Picture and Television Engineers, announced last week the appointment of a five-man committee to select the 1955 winner of the Society's Progress Medal Award. It was last awarded, in 1953, to Fred Waller, inventor of Cinerama, "for putting to practical use the peripheral vision phenomenon."

The committee will be under the chairmanship of Dr. Otto Sandvik, assistant division head, Physics Department, Kodak Research Laboratories in Rochester, N. Y. Dr. Sandvik's committee will be composed of Glenn L. Dimmick, development engineer, RCA, Camden, N. J.; Raymond L. Garman, vice-president, General Precision Laboratories, Inc., Pleasantville, N. J.; Hollis W. Moyse, photographic products department, E. I. du Pont de Nemours, Hollywood; and Arthur V. Loughren, director of research, Hazeltine Corporation, Little Neck, N. Y.

Presentation of the award will be made at the 78th semi-annual convention of the SMPTE, Oct. 3-7, Lake Placid, N. Y.

Directors Honored

HOLLYWOOD—Academy Award nominee Elia Kazan was hailed last week by the members of the Screen Directors' Guild, receiving a silver plaque for "outstanding directorial achievements for 1954." Others so honored were William Wellman, Alfred Hitchcock, Billy Wilder, and George Seaton.

Allied '55 Convention With TESMA, TEDA, IPA

ST. LOUIS—It was learned at the National Allied board meeting and drive-in convention last fortnight that the 1955 national convention and trade show will be held in conjunction with Theatre Equipment and Supply Manufacturers Association, Theatre Equipment Dealers Association, and the International Popcorn Association.

Signing the contracts for the organizations were Jack Kirsch, president, Illinois Allied; Fred C. Matthews, TESMA president; Ray Colvin, TEDA executive director; and Thomas J. Sullivan, executive vice-president and counsel, IPA.

The conventions and trade show are scheduled to take place in the Morrison Hotel, Chicago, on Nov. 6-9 inclusive.

UA Welcomes New Producers To Fold

NEW YORK—In the most concentrated and far-reaching series of production deals in the company's history, United Artists has concluded agreements with seven film-making organizations during the past six weeks that will add a minimum of 25 important features to the company's roster of upcoming releases, it was revealed last week.

The producers and organizations figuring in the UA expansion program are Kirk Douglas, Joseph L. Mankiewicz, Crown Productions, Pine and Thomas, Sabre Productions, Norman Krasna, and Henry Fonda.

Douglas' newly-formed Bryna Productions will deliver six films to the Arthur Krim company in the lead-off deal of the program, which marks the star's producing bow. The first three features, which will star Douglas, are "The Indian Fighter," "Viking Raiders," and "Van Gogh."

Mankiewicz's Figaro, Inc., productions has signed to make four films for UA, two of which will be written and directed by the four-time Academy Award winner. The first is "The Story Of Goya," a big-budget biographical drama about the great Spanish artist, which will be lensed on location in Spain after Mankiewicz completes "Guys And Dolls."

Crown Productions, headed by Robert L. Jacks, Robert Goldstein, Spyros S. Skouras, and Plato Skouras, will kick off filming by their new organization with "A Killer Is Loose," to start in March, and "A Kiss Before Dying," slated to roll in June.

The Pine and Thomas agreement, following their 14-year association with Paramount, involves a program of top-budget features for United Artists distribution. The first two of three films planned for this year are "Lincoln McKeever" and "Mountains Have No Shadows," screen versions of popular novels.

Two adventure dramas, "Flight From Hong Kong" and "Mr. Tex," will be delivered to UA this year by Sabre Productions, headed by Victor M. Orsatti, Frank Seltzer, and Joseph M. Newman.

Academy Award winner Krasna will write, produce, and direct two features for UA's upcoming product slate, "The Ambassador's Daughter" and also "Red Roses."

Fonda launches his producing career with six films set for United Artists release over the next three years. Fonda will star in at least three of the features to be turned out by the newly-formed independent organization.

Trans-Lux Sets Renown Releases

NEW YORK—Trans-Lux Corporation has recently finalized transactions on three productions of Renown Pictures, in accordance with their recent deal with that company to handle all of their releases in this country.

"Trilby," starring Hildegarde Neff, will be released by MGM; "The Adventures Of Sadie" will be handled by 20th-Fox; and "Grand National Night" through United Artists. "Dance Little Lady" has not been set as yet.

Variety Convention To Attract Over 1200

LOS ANGELES—More than 1,200 delegates and their wives will attend the 19th annual Variety Clubs International four-day convention which will open on May 4 at the Ambassador Hotel, it was announced last week by Ezra E. Stern, chief barker, Tent 25, Variety Club of Southern California, host for the event for which elaborate plans now are being made by 15 committees.

In addition to delegates from throughout the United States, representatives will attend from Dublin, Tokyo, London, Paris, Bombay, Hamburg, Toronto, Rio De Janeiro, Mexico City, and Buenos Aires.

The convention theme this year will be based on the slogan, "And A Little Child Shall Lead Us." The world-wide charitable organization, comprising members in all branches of the entertainment industry, now boasts 45 tents with 10,000 members all over the world, supporting worthwhile projects primarily for needy children.

One of the convention highlights will be the presentation of the annual Humanitarian Award to the individual to be named by the organization as having made the most outstanding contribution to humanity in the past year.

In past years, the award has been given to Helen Keller, Paul G. Hoffman, Bernard Baruch, Herbert Hoover, George C. Marshall, James F. Byrnes, General Evangeline Booth, Cordell Hull, Sister Elizabeth Kenny, George Washington Carver, and Father Flanagan.

Columbia Fights "Bamboo" Ban

MEMPHIS — Columbia announced plans last week to appeal the Memphis ban on "The Bamboo Prison" if the "censors do not realize their mistake and correct it." The film was reported banned because it portrays a "progressive" as a hero, but Columbia contends that it is made clear to the audience at the beginning of the film that he is a spy.

J. Raymond Bell, Columbia censorship department, has asked for the names of city officials to whom an appeal of the ban may be made if the censors do not reverse their decision.

Brotherhood Kits Distributed

NEW YORK—Distribution of 19,000 Brotherhood Week campaign books and promotion kits to every exhibitor in the country got under way last week, it was announced by John H. Harris, national chairman, amusement industry's Brotherhood Drive for 1955.

The promotional material, prepared by the advertising and publicity committee under the chairmanship of Francis M. Winikus, will help showmen bring their entire community into the Brotherhood Week effort, Feb. 20-28.

The kits, which are being serviced to theatre owners and exhibitors by National Screen Service under the direction of Herman Robbins, chairman, accessories committee, contain posters, display cards, and Brotherhood membership cards.

Cal. Theatres Change Hands

HOLLYWOOD—Metropolitan Theatres Corporation last fortnight acquired ownership and operation of the Stanley Warner Theatre Circuit interests in Santa Barbara, Cal.

The completion of negotiations, which began last fall, was announced by Metropolitan president Sherrill C. Corwin, who stated that his company would take over operation late this month. Metropolitan plans complete modernization of all properties, which include the 1,700 seat Granada, the 900 seat California, and the eight story Granada office and store building.

U-I Adopts Perspecta For All Productions

NEW YORK—As the fourth major American company to choose Perspecta stereophonic sound, Universal-International has completed negotiations to use the Perspecta system of optical stereophonic sound in all its productions, it was announced last week by Perspecta Sound, Inc.

Universal-International thus joins MGM, Paramount, and Warners in adoption of Perspecta, thereby considerably increasing the number of pictures carrying Perspecta stereophonic sound tracks immediately available to exhibitors in both the United States and international markets.

It was also revealed that negotiations for use of Perspecta are actively under way with other American companies, including Columbia.

Important Universal-International pictures that will be released with Perspecta Stereophonic Sound include "The Black Shield Of Falworth," "Sign Of The Pagan," "Captain Lightfoot," "The Shrike," "The Purple Mask," "Kiss Of Fire," "Ain't Misbehavin'," "One Desire," "To Hell And Back," "All That Heaven Allows," "The Spoilers," and "Chief Crazy Horse."

Texas "Oscar" Promotion Spreads

DALLAS—Theatres outside of Texas will be able to use the "Oscar Race" promotion campaign devised by Texas COMPO, it was announced last week by Kyle Rorex, executive director.

The promotion is a planned six weeks' campaign to cash in on the public interest created by the nominations for the academy award, which were carried on television this year in addition to being reported in the press and on radio.

The plan calls for persons attending a theatre to select from the list of nominations, the six which he thinks will win the awards. The prize will be a season pass to the theatre. Promotional material, trailers, etc., for the contest, which is copyrighted by Texas COMPO, is available. The contest will run from Thursday, March 3, until the Academy Award winners are announced on Wednesday, March 30.

S. Z. Sakall Dies

HOLLYWOOD—S. Z. (Cuddles) Sakall, 67, veteran character actor, died last week of heart disease. He is survived by his widow.

repeat a good thing. We're all for it as this means Columbia buys us breakfast at least once a year. Following the eating, everybody piled into new promoted Pontiacs for a motorcade up to the Capitol where a line of paying customers and a group of nervous executives waited.

TIE-UP CELEBRATION: Two local exhibitor associations, the Independent Theatre Owners Association and the Metropolitan Motion Picture Theatres Association, celebrated the closing of another movie contest with The New York Journal American at a cocktail party and reception in the executive suite of the Roxy with managing director Bill Moclair acting as genial host. The industry was well represented in the glamour and business departments.

Among those present were Richard Conte, Rita Gam, Eva Marie Saint, Pearl Bailey, Thelma Ritter, Janis Paige, Russell Downing, Manny Frisch, Bob Shapiro, Marty Levine, Phil Gerard, Fred Lynch, Jim O'Connor, Mort Sunshine, D. John Phillips, Bob Coyne, Dick Brandt, John Bolte, Larry Kurtiss, Sol Strausberg, Ray Rhone, Bill Heineman, Stanley Kolbert, Ernie Emerling, Si Seadler, Oscar Doob, Gene Picker, Sam Rosen, Arthur Rosen, Pat McGee, Ed Thorne, Norman Elson, Ira Tulipan, Leo Pillot, Rhoda Kallio, and many others.

BON VOYAGE: We journeyed to the docks and aboard the USS Constitution for a shipboard interview with director King Vidor prior to his leaving for Europe where he will prepare for the filming of "War And Peace" to be filmed partially in Italy, Yugoslavia, Finland, and possibly Spain. The Ponti de Laurentiis production will be filmed in Technicolor and in VistaVision, with Paramount distributing the film in the U.S.

Expected to have a top cast, the production is expected to cost about four-and-a-half million dollars (double that if it were made here) and is expected to run about four hours. It is expected to be roadshown here in the spring of 1956 and will be shot in English. It is also expected that by the time the film is ready, more horizontal VistaVision projectors and large-sized screens will be installed and available, although this is not a requisite for running the film. There was no estimate as to how long after the film is roadshown it would be ready for general release, if ever.

Vidor opined that his film will be the first out although the property is supposedly also the production schedules of Mike Todd, David Selznick, and Columbia Broadcasting Company. It was reported that one of these had approached de Laurentiis on the possibility of merging productions.

The director was an advocate of wide-screen presentations, having filmed a production for MGM back in the '30's called "Billy The Kid" in a 70mm. process called Grandeur. Actual filming with principals of "War And Peace" will get under way in June or July and Vidor reported that Tito of Yugoslavia has extended any cooperation desired to him or anyone else desiring to make the film in his country, contrary to exclusivity reports issued by producer Todd.

COMPO Chides Press For Burying Film News

NEW YORK—The 37th COMPO advertisement in Editor and Publisher took a dig at the tendency of newspapers to bury constructive motion picture industry news in the back pages.

Reprinting a paragraph from a recent issue of The New York Times that told of the help Hollywood personalities had given worthy causes, the ad carries the headline, "Just A Stick Of Type On Page 28 . . . "

The paragraph was in the Hollywood news column in the Times and quoted figures of personal appearances made by Hollywood people at national and local patriotic and public service activities.

NOTE: Dear Mel: Herewith are copies of three FE pressbooks ("Aida," "Theodora, Slave Empress," and "Bread, Love And Dreams") on our current releases which I thought you might like to see. As you will notice, we have aimed these campaigns directly at the boxoffice and I think that the books are of a high standard and quality. I hope you agree. Sincerely, Fred Goldberg, publicity manager.

Dear Fred: Yessiree. Thank you for letting us see same. Best. MK.

"Them" Leads To Suit

NEW YORK—A $200,000 damage action was filed last week against Warners by Dr. John B. Grant. Grant charged in Federal Court that his personal and professional dignity was damaged as a result of the picture, "Them." A doctor of medicine and of public health at the Rockefeller Institute, Grant claims that his professional activities were shown in the picture without his consent.

Grace Kelly recently received the award of the New York Film Critics for the "best performance by an actress in 1954" in Paramount's "The Country Girl." Frank Quinn, president of the group, is seen making the presentation at special ceremonies held at Sardi's Restaurant, New York.

$6,000,000 Case Settled

HOLLYWOOD—Following 11 weeks of trial, an out of court settlement last fortnight ended the $6,291,718 suit filed by Edwards Theatre Circuit and Cirstrand Theatres, Ltd., in Federal Court here in July.

The settlement was reached after the payment of a "substantial" but undisclosed sum of money. Defendants in the suit were 20th-Fox, National Theatres, Fox West Coast Theatres, Warners, United Artists, Paramount, RKO-Radio, Columbia, Loew's, and Universal.

Exhibitors alleged that they could not get films until they ran in neighboring suburban communities.

Skouras Reports On Israel Project

NEW YORK—An International Cultural Center serving as a focal point for interfaith work with youth in Israel will be constructed in Jerusalem as a major project of Children to Palestine, it was announced last week by Spyros P. Skouras, president, 20th-Fox.

Skouras paid tribute to Dorothy Silverstone, producer and director, "The Magnetic Tide," who, as a member of the National Committee of Children to Palestine and committee chairman, International Cultural Center for Youth, produced the film in color of the Holy Land.

Smith Succeeded By East As Paramount Western Head

NEW YORK—A. W. Schwalberg, president, Paramount Film Distributing Corporation, last week announced the retirement of George A. Smith, western sales manager. Smith, a veteran of 33 years service with Paramount, is retiring as of March 1, 1955.

Schwalberg stated, "It is with great regret indeed that I have accepted the decision of George Smith to retire. His many, many years of loyal service to Paramount have been an inspiration to all of us who work with him. George Smith is one of the finest film men I have known. He commanded the respect of both his customers and his associates. We will miss him at Paramount."

At the same time, Schwalberg announced the promotion of Neal East, assistant western division manager, to succeed Smith. East, another Paramount veteran, started with the company in 1921.

Columbia Sales Drive Matches Exchanges

NEW YORK—Columbia's Sales Salute, currently underway among the company's thirty-three domestic branches, will run through June 23, 1955, general sales manager A. Montague announced last week. The drive which will involve every division manager, branch manager, salesman, booker, and office manager in the domestic Columbia organization, will have cash awards as prizes, the sales manager revealed.

All of the 33 branches have been paired off in the branch vs. branch competition, with the brand new Houston office teaming with Dallas in opposing Atlanta. The other 15 pairings, with the winner in each case earning cash awards for its sales force members, are New York vs. Philadelphia; Washington vs. Boston; Milwaukee vs. New Haven; Cleveland vs. Pittsburgh; Cincinnati vs. Charlotte; Memphis vs. Oklahoma City; Portland vs. Seattle; Detroit vs. Chicago; Des Moines vs. Omaha; Buffalo vs. Albany; Denver vs. Salt Lake City; Los Angeles vs. San Francisco; Jacksonville vs. New Orleans; Kansas City vs. Minneapolis; and Indianapolis vs. St. Louis.

In judging the contest, each branch will have its general performance in relation to shorts, serials, reissues, special productions, and other factors weighted along with its sales and liquidation record against its quota. The top awards will go to the sales force of the winning branches which score over 100 per cent of quota. Lesser awards will go to winning branches which score between 95 and 100 per cent and those which win in the dual competition but finish with less than 95 per cent of quota. Branches which exceed 95 per cent of quota but fail to win in competition with the opposing branch will win special awards for its sales personnel.

Walsh Favors Union Merger

NEW YORK—Richard Walsh, international president, IATSE, stated last week that he regards the proposed merger of the AFL and CIO as being "beneficial" to the film industry's unions and to the United States labor movement in general.

Walsh is attending the midwinter conference of the IATSE general executive board, which has not placed the proposed merger on its agenda, for both unions must study the proposal further before submitting it to their fall conventions for ratification. According to Walsh, the merger would entail "some amalgamation of labor groups to strengthen bargaining." Only a few labor unions in the industry are affiliated with the CIO, most being members of the AFL.

Loew's Aids Hospital Fund

NEW YORK—Loew's Theatres, Inc., nationally, in making a 10th payment of $4,711.43 lobby donations to the Will Rogers Memorial Hospital last week, brought that circuit's total contributions since the lobby plan has been in effect to $33,402.13. Largest collections in the Loew group were made by Loew's-Poli, Worcester, Mass., $2,205.70; Loew's, Rochester, N. Y., $1,832.43; and Loew's Jersey City, $1,831.56. Average collections have been $260 per theatre.

BETTER MANAGEMENT

Valuable Exploitation Keys To Profitable Merchandising

The most elaborote and costly movie sign on Broadway in a decade wos erected recently obove the Moyfoir by Artcraft-Strouss Compony for RKO's "Underwoter." A 50-foot high color tronsparency of Jone Russell in a bothing suit was projected from a colored bockground of the oceon, 85 feet wide and 81 feet high. The sign cost more than $50,000 to ossemble ond is covered with a point developed especially for the display to render vividly on illusion of the oceon depths. It took 10 days of preparatory and octuol work to assemble the 10-port king-size lucite cut-out of Miss Russell. From left to right are seen Artcroft-Strouss workmen in the sign studios; a portion of the heod being delivered ot the sign site; the background of the sign, showing the heod being hoisted into place; and, right, the figure neorly completed, with another section, this time on arm, going up.

Brooklyn Brunette Wins "Vera Cruz" Test

NEW YORK—A 19-year-old Brooklyn brunette has been selected by a panel of professional and part-time students of feminine geography as the New York area winner in United Artists' $75,000 "Vera Cruz" exquisite form national beauty contest.

The competition, which was run in conjunction with the Capitol engagement of the film, earned banner newspaper, radio and TV support and drew 30 finalists for the run-off at the Tropical Room of the Park-Sheraton Hotel. The judges, who selected co-ed Ann Hanly as tops in topography in the Gotham edition of the coast-to-coast co-op, were headed by noted illustrator Russell Patterson and included Harry Greenman, manager, Capitol; TV star Ernie Kovacs; and disc jockeys Bill Williams, Rhoda Brown, and Brad Phillips.

The parade of shapely New Yorkers strutting their stuff for a $10,000 modeling contract and 200 additional prizes ranging from air conditioners to sewing machines, was covered by newspapers, newsreels, and TV cameramen.

The local winner, who qualifies for the national finals that will be judged by "Vera Cruz" stars Gary Cooper and Burt Lancaster, began a whirlwind round of local video and radio network appearances.

Sponsored jointly by UA and the Exquisite Form Bra Company, the "Gateway To Stardom" promotion is backing both key engagements and subsequent runs of the film throughout the country. In addition to the $75,000 prize boodle, $4,000 in U. S. Savings Bonds will be awarded to theatre owners and managers mounting the best contest promotions.

The contest has aided the film in both first-run and following bookings and is one part of the clever promotion campaign conducted by UA that promises to make "Vera Cruz" one of the company's top money-making films.

You Scratch My Back . . .

WASHINGTON—"It is seldom that a theatre calls to the public's attention an attraction playing at a competitive showhouse."

That was the opening paragraph of an "open letter" display ad inserted in The Washington Post and The Washington Star by K-B Theatres. The attraction referred to was Paramount's "The Country Girl" at the Trans-Lux.

"K-B Theatres," the ad stated, "although not privileged to be presenting the first-run of this excellent picture, urge you to see 'The Country Girl.' We are proud to be a part of an industry that can produce such brilliant entertainment."

Win A "Cinerama Holiday"

NEW YORK—A contest on "Why I would like a Cinerama Holiday in Switzerland . . . " with two round-trip all-expense paid trips and many other prizes was launched this week by the Stanley Warner Cinerama Corporation and three NBC-TV network shows.

Ann Hanly, 19-yeor-old Brooklyn, N. Y., co-ed, recently motched curves with 30 well-turned entronts in o beouty contest bocking UA's "Vera Cruz" ond wolked off with title os New York's "Miss Exquisite Form." The local eliminations for $75,000 prize competition spotlighted engagement of the film ot the Copitol on Broodway. Notional coop, sponsored by UA ond Exquisite Form Bro, will oword $10,000 modeling controct ond $65,000 in merchandise to finolists.

Space Suit Tieup Aids Paramount Film

NEW YORK—Paramount last week set for George Pal's Technicolor interplanetary drama, "Conquest of Space," a tieup that is a distinct departure from the usual kind of tieup since ticket sales and purchases of the manufacturer's articles, children's rainsuits, will be directly related.

This merchandising arrangement was established with Double Jay Company, Kansas City, makers of children's Space-O-Rain Suits.

The crux of the promotion is that Double Jay will buy at regular theatre admission prices tickets for all who purchase Space-O-Rain Suits from retailers.

A huge line of colorful store displays and merchandise wraparound bands calling attention to the picture will be used by Double Day in its promotion of the rainsuits. The wraparound band on each Space-O-Rain Suit will carry the message that the band will be accepted at any theatre playing "Conquest Of Space" as payment for one child's admission. The cooperating store then will redeem the band at regular children's admission price, and the manufacturer, in turn, will reimburse the retailer.

Striking local ad campaigns are included among the plans for bringing the tieup to the attention of the public, especially children interested in "Space Suits."

Valentine Contest Held

NEW YORK—A Valentine contest was held last week by the Paramount in which contestants were invited to send a homemade Valentine to any of the nine stars appearing in Warners' "Battle Cry," the Paramount's current attraction.

A $25 U.S. Saving Bond will be awarded to the person sending in the Valentine with the best original design and the most sentimental appeal. In addition, the 25 next best Valentines will win for their makers two free tickets to the Paramount to see "Battle Cry."

Bill Butler, manager, State and Carolina, Shelby, N. C., recently obtained at the State, one of the Stewart and Everett Theatres, an oddity in the nature of a dollar bill with George Washington's portrait on both sides. Local printers were of the opinion that a double bit of printing somehow got by the money checkers in Washington and found its way to Shelby. Local bankers said they never saw a similar error. Butler says in his 10 years with the company he never noticed any such bills and he has counted, probably, a million dollars in his career as theatre manager. He adds that any collectors of rare coins or bills will have to raise the ante if they want to get it, as he intends to keep it himself.

Miami

Florida State Theatres in Fort Lauderdale and Miami effected a tieup in cooperation with Channel 23, WGBS-TV, with a 23-cartoon show for 23 cents, at nine of the chain's houses. . . . A new motion picture theatre in the south Miami area, originally to be built at Sunset Drive and Red Road, will be erected instead on Dixie Highway, a block north of Red Road, according to an announcement from Monrad R. Thue, attorney for Sunred Corporation. The Sunred Corporation has agreed to lease the land and a theatre to be built there for A. Longo and Sons. The attorney reported that the theatre, with equipment, will represent a total investment of $350,000. It will have 1,300 seats. There will be 400,000 square feet of property adjoining the theatre for parking purposes, he said. The original site was abandoned for the theatre site after it became apparent that it would be impossible to obtain enough off-street parking space nearby.

The entire staff of Claughton Theatres assembled for the first annual presentation of Gold Service Awards. The Gold Service Awards will be presented annually to Claughton's most outstanding employees, with selection based on efficiency, appearance, general ability, and courtesy to patrons. The meeting was preceded by a showing of Filmack's "Courtesy is Contagious." Mrs. Lillian C. Claughton, circuit owner, felt that this film played an important part in aiding the staffs of the various theatres to give prompt and courteous service to patrons.

The Variety Women's committee is now headed by Mrs. Gilbert Chaplin. Barbara Warren, past president, is on the advisory board, as well as Mesdames Tracy Hare, Hal Hopplin, and E. N. Claughton. tive session. Bill provided a fee of $3 per 1,000-foot reel, with funds so raised to go into the state's general fund. The Schneider bill uses the identical language of the present Ohio law, declared inoperative by the courts. It says, "Only such films as are, in the judgment and discretion of the Department of Education, of a moral, educational, or amusing and harmless character shall be passed and approved by such department." Previous censorship bills, designed to strengthen censorship, were introduced by Representative Andrew Putka and by Representatives John J. Conway, James P. Kilbane, Jess Yoder, and Charles Whalen, Jr. Senator Charles Mosher introduced a bill to abolish all film censorship.

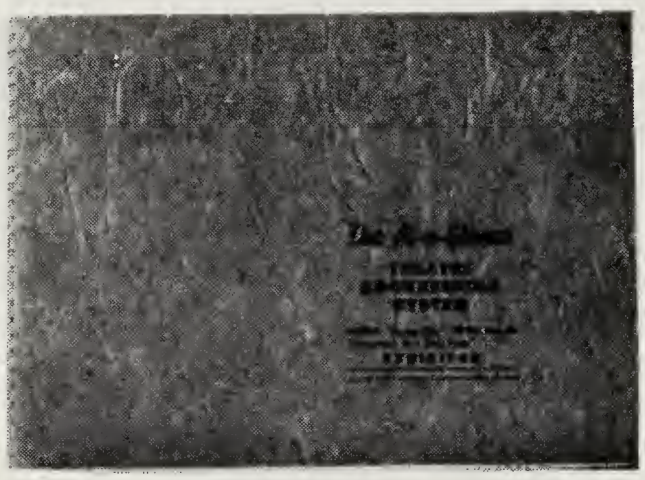
Village council of suburban Worthington voted to order the police force to enforce the anti-gambling laws. Although the ordinance does not mention bingo, that is the game most played by several church groups. Several Franklin County theatremen who are ex-servicemen are reported interested in the $7500-per-year post as manager, Franklin County Veterans' Memorial Auditorium, which will open this fall. Film projection equipment and full stage facilities are being installed in the 4000-seat auditorium.

The projected Broad and High underground parking garage seems on the way to approval by the Ohio Legislature following a favorable recommendation by an Ohio Senate committee that the state appoint a commission to construct the 1200-car facility, which will be partially under the State House yard. The garage would afford relief in the critical parking situation for all downtown theatres.

Herbert J. Yates, Republic president, right, recently signed a multiple-picture releasing contract with R. John Hugh, president, Empire Studios, Inc., Orlando, Fla. Hugh's first production, "Yellowneck," to be released by Republic, is slated for a dual world premiere at the Astor, Orlando, Fla., in March and the State, St, Petersburg, Fla., at the same time. The new contract calls for three pictures to be delivered by the young company.

Cleo Moore, seen in Columbia's "Women's Prison," cooperated with the Columbus Fire Department and the Heart Fund in a stunt to raise money for the fund. She was placed in a fake prison cell erected in front of Loew's Ohio and freed by a lucky key holder. Keys were sold by firefighters for the Heart Fund. Winner got a dinner date with Miss Moore. Ira Sidelle, Columbia publicity representative, was here to promote Miss Moore's local appearance.



In Portsmouth, O., Scioto County Prosecutor William H. Harsha, Jr., ruled that bingo games operated for charitable purposes do not appear to be in violation of Ohio's criminal statutes. The opinion was requested by Sheriff Burl Justice in connection with games operated here by several fraternal groups, and at nearby Wheelersburg. Harsha said he still plans to ask the May term of the grand jury whether it wants to investigate the bingo games. The new ruling came in the wake of a threat by Governor Frank J. Lausche to close up Scioto County's bingo places if the local law enforcement officers don't do it. Lausche asked Attorney General William O'Neill about the legal aspects of the state bringing padlock proceedings. Lausche indicated that he would not wait until the May grand jury meeting if O'Neill's opinion allows him to go ahead and try to padlock the games.

The combined convention of Independent Theatre Owners of Ohio and an MGM Ticket Selling Workshop is scheduled for Feb. 28 and March 1, with the workshop scheduled for the second day and the annual banquet in the evening. Speakers expected to be present are William C. Gehring, 20th-Fox; Maurice Bergman, U-I; A. F. Myers, Allied States general counsel; and Merlin Lewis, executive secretary, TESMA. An additional feature of the first day will be the preview of a new picture in the evening.

Roger Grauman, president, Grauman Studios, for several years, joined Kling Studios as vice-president.

Judge Thomas E. Kluczynski, Cook County Court, believes that if the proposed censorship of films in the unincorporated areas just outside Chicago should be enacted, that but one board should operate for the outlying districts and Chicago. He said, "Censorship would thus be uniform and the confusion of conflicting opinions would be eliminated." The judge said he hopes the owners of drive-ins will cooperate in a censorship plan which is under consideration by the Cook County board of commissioners. He made it clear that he does not want to see the theatre business injured. He added, however, "if the present high rate of juvenile delinquency is to be eradicated, or toned down at least, everyone, including drive-ins, where some questionable deportment among teenagers is unfortunately prevalent, should willingly give thought to the problem."

Mae Savage, widow of the late Jimmy Savage, B & K publicity department and finally a noted columnist, was wed to Howard Mayer, a leading publicity man. . . . Stanford Kohlberg, operator, Park Avenue Cinema, affords patrons free parking adjacent to the theatre.

Ralph J. Batschelet, former theatre executive here, now heads the United Western Sales Company, which handles distribution of a cold sterilizer for use by doctors, dentists, and scientists.

Evidently one of the most enterprising exhibitors to attend the MGM Workshops is Russell Allen, Allen Theatres, in the Rocky Mountain territory, judging from the results based on ideas discussed at the Denver Ticket Selling meeting which he attended. Following his return to Farmington, N. M., where he makes his headquarters at the Totah, Allen got in touch with The Farmington Daily Times and talked over a couple of ideas, one of which resulted in a full-page story with photographs on the history of the Allen family in the motion picture business since Frank B. Allen founded the circuit back in 1912. The Allen Theatres now represents the oldest theatre group in the Rocky Mountain area, the article and pictures pointing up many facets of the operation and persons identified with it, photographs of the theatres, and goes so far as to show and compare projectors used in the 1920's and the modern projector employed today. Allen, in the article, also explains how motion pictures are bought, booked and advertised.

Des Moines

A bill to prohibit the showing of immoral movies in Iowa was brought out by the House safety and law enforcement committee in the Iowa legislature and placed on the House calendar for consideration. The safely committee is composed of 26 house members. Chairman C. A. Scheerer, Boone, said the bill was designed to strengthen the law against the showing of immoral pictures. Some courts, he said, have held that moving pictures are not included in the present state law that defines immoral plays, exhibitions, and entertainment. The bill would include immoral movies in the section prohibiting immoral plays, etc., and as a result would carry a fine of not more than $1,000 or a year jail sentence, or both, for conviction on a violation.

A bill that permits one-man operation of the projection room of local motion picture theatres was passed by the Board of Aldermen at its regular weekly session, Feb. 4. It is anticipated that Mayor Raymond F. Tucker will sign the measure at a very early date. An existing city ordinance passed in the 1930's requires that two operators be on duty on each shift when more than one projector is being used. The bill passed was agreeable to both the officers and members of Local No. 143 of the Moving Picture Machine Operators Union, an affiliate of the IATSE, and the owners of the motion picture theatres operating in the city. Several months ago the union and theatres owners agreed on a new wage scale and working agreements that provide for one-man operation in a number of the smaller theatres of St. Louis and St. Louis County immediately while some other theatres will also go to one-man operation on September 1, 1955. This new contract, which runs for five years, provides that the deluxe first run houses will continue to employ two union projectionists. The new agreement also provided for a retirement fund for the projectionists with the theatres paying five per cent of the worker's wages into the retirement fund, the details of which are presently being worked out by representatives of the union and the theatre owners.

It is reported in local film circles that the Southway, which has been dark for many months, may soon be reopened by new lessees. The 600-seat theatre had been under lease to the Fred Wehrenberg Circuit, Inc. . . . In Neoga, Ill., Mr. and Mrs. Kermit Bushur, managers of the Neoga, admitted all Neoga Boy Scouts, from Cubs to Eagles, free so they could see "The Scoutmaster," as guests of the management.

In Greenfield, Ill., the fear that it would become necessary to close the Lyric, 428 seater, because of poor business was averted at a recent meeting of a group of local business men with the officers and directors of the theatre company. Plans were perfected under which the theatre will continue in operation. Earl Dawson has been reelected president of the theatre company; Byron Hill, Jr., vice president; Frank Greer, secretary, and Dr. O. J. Bott, treasurer. Greer also is manager of the theatre. . . . The finishing touches are being made to the second side of the Wehrenberg circuit's South Twin Drive-In, just off the Lemay Ferry Road at the Buckley road in the southeastern part of St Louis county. One side of the twin drive-in has been in operation since Nov. 18, 1954, using in-a-car heaters for the winter months. With the two sides in operation the drive-in will have accommodations for more than 1,000 cars.

South St. Louisians are being offered limited free rides on the South Broadway park-ride express bus route that operates between the Broadway Drive-In and the downtown business district.

The film, a historical one, is being made by Republic and when completed will be given its world premiere showing here in the city.

Two burros from Laredo, Tex., are going Hollywood. Screen actress Grace Kelly wanted to give Clark Gable a burro on his birthday. She asked Paramount studios to help her. Paramount in turn got in touch with George Spence, Laredo theatre executive. He in turn contacted a local importer of burros. Then the president of Paramount, Barney Balaban, decided he wanted a burro, so another one was selected and shipped to Hollywood.

San Francisco

R. M. Savini, president, Astor Pictures Corporation and Sam Sobel, head, Tower Pictures Company, San Francisco, completed a distribution agreement, whereby Tower Pictures Company will handle and distribute all Astor product exclusively in the San Francisco territory. Sobel has spent 20 years in the distribution end of the motion picture industry, and started by owning the state right company known as All Star Features Distributors. He gave up this business when he purchased the PRC Pictures franchise which then changed to Eagle Lion Films. This Eagle Lion Films franchise was then sold to the parent company when they decided to own their own exchanges nationally. Sobel then joined the northern California office of the Hollywood Advertising Company as manager and remained with them for three years, at which time he left to go into the independent distribution business once again. On March 1, 1954, he took over the Tower Pictures Company. Upon completion of the Astor distribution agreement, Sobel immediately closed a deal with the Fox West Coast Theatre Circuit to play Astor's "The Sleeping Tiger."

Seattle

Film Row visitors included Jr. Mercy, Yakima, Wash., and Glen Spencer, Proter and Tacoma, Wash.

NEWS OF THE Territory

Boston Crosstown

His Excellency, Archbishop Cushing appeared before the group of 150 Grand Knights and members of the Knights of Columbus recently and complimented them on their positive action by establishing the Catholic Film Distribution Plan of the Knights of Columbus in the State of Massachusetts to maintain clean programs. The Archbishop cautioned the Grand Knights and district deputies to present a positive, rather than a negative approach to their effort in raising the standard of better and cleaner motion pictures. He maintained that theatre men in the most part are sound business men who truly respond to and cooperate with every worth while community activity. Therefore, the action the Knights of Columbus are taking should be far-reaching in its effect.

Joseph Sadur, manager, Olympia, Chelsea, Mass., took top honors in the New England Theatres, Inc., managerial drive which was recently completed after a three-month campaign. Called the "Profit and Prestige" drive, cash awards were given to the winners. Others receiving prizes in the exciting contest were James Davis, Paramount, Lynn; Larry Burke, Capitol, Pittsfield; Morris Sims, Olympia, New Bedford, all in Mass.; and Francis Gooch, Temple, Houlton, Me.; Mrs. Marjorie LeTarte, Paramount, Fort Fairfield, Me.; and James Darby, Paramount, New Haven, Conn. The judges were Martin J. Mullin, president of the circuit, and the district managers Hy Fine, Robert Sternburg, Harry Browning, Chester Stoddard, and the head buyer and booker, Jerry Govan.

Stanley Sumner, who has been managing director, University, Cambridge, Mass., since October, 1926, has given up the active management. He has not announced his future plans. Sumner is a co-owner of the theatre with Lindsay Hooper. Nick Lavidor, new managing director, University, has resigned from the E. M. Loew Theatres, where he was a district manager. For several years, Lavidor operated the Center, Boston, for the E. M. Loew interests.

The Lexington, Lexington, Mass., is under agreement to Ernest Warren for a long term lease starting March 1. In taking over this theatre, Warren, who also operates the Paramount, Needham, Mass., and the Strand, Canton, Mass., will put in CinemaScope equipment with full stereophonic sound. He is considering changing the name of the house to the Minute Man or the Lex. He will remodel the front and redecorate the inside. This 490-seat house, the only theatre in the town, was for years operated by the late William Viano and later by members of his family. At one time, Stanley Eilenberg handled the theatre but closed it last spring.

Seated recently in a sports car outside the Paramount, Boston, were James Connolly, northeast division manager, 20th-Fox, and Hy Fine, district manager, New England Theatres, Inc., at wheel, as part of the promotion for the New England premiere of 20th-Fox's "The Racers."

The automatic telephone answering service has been installed in four theatres in this area, starting with the University, Cambridge, Mass., when managing director Stanley Sumner became the pioneer in this type of service. Other theatres which have installed the unit from the New England Telephone Company are the Norwood, Norwood, Mass.; Embassy, Waltham, Mass.; and the Paramount, Needham, Mass.

Additional contracts for the use of the advertising medium Goodwill Award by Roy E. Heffner Company have been signed by Arthur Viano, Teele Square, Somerville, Mass., and his Regent, Arlington, Mass., with all four of his theatres now using this plan; Louis Richmond, Uptown, Lynn, Mass.; Melvin Safner, Bijou, Woonsocket, Mass.; the Lafayette, Central Falls, R. I.; and American Theatres Corporation for the Marlboro, Marlboro, Mass.

An appeal to Williams College students to support their local theatre, Cal King's Walden, Williamstown, Mass., was sounded in a Williams Record editorial, decrying the tendency for students to jump into cars or thumb rides to nearby North Adams or Pittsfield to see films slightly earlier. "The trend away from the Walden to nearby towns and cities, said Bill Quillen in his editorial, "is a dangerous one if it is not checked in the near future. It is not inconceivable that Williams men and Williamstown residents will awake some dreary morning to find that the old reliable theatre on Spring Street has shut its doors permanently. It is difficult to imagine college without the Walden, the only social life that exists in this God's country of ours. The advantages of waiting a week or two to see a movie far outnumber the disadvantages. If Williams men would make an effort to support Cal King's presentations, it would be a fitting tribute to a civic minded gentleman who has always gone out of his way to bring Williamstown the finest motion picture entertainment. Cal King is the type of theatre owner who always accepts advice on what shows and short subjects he should present. He has been more than generous to Williams students and he deserves our wholehearted support."

Marie Bruno, Empire, Manchester, N. H., was hospitalized for a routine checkup. . . . Charles Wilcox, Orleans, Orleans, Mass., was in Massachusetts Memorial Hospital for a checkup. . . . David Zerinsky, Plaza, Derry, N. H., is home from the hospital after a minor operation. . . . Doris Mollica, Opera House, Lebanon, N. H., is planning her vacation to take in the exhibition games of her favorite baseball team, the Boston Red Sox, at Sarasota, Fla., early in March.

Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Feldman, Capitol, Winchenden, Mass., announced the arrival of their first son and second child, Bernard Shawn Feldman, by attractive and unusual cards sent to their industry friends. . . . Flames scorched the Champ, Spencer, Mass., owned by Al Davis, when a fire broke out in a store in the same block. The theatre was closed at the time.

Joe Longo, RKO tub thumper, is hitting Connecticut, western Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and New Hampshire for the campaign on the Jane Russell film, "Underwater," which will play the Keith Memorial. . . . The People's, Maynard, Mass., operated by Burt Coughlan, took advantage of the school vacation week by opening the theatre at 5:45 p. m. and 8:15 p. m. each day of the week. The theatre is on a weekend policy ordinarily. The People's is using three changes appealing to the youngsters.

Smith Management Company has taken a long term lease on a drive-in in Hartford, Conn., which is now under construction by A. J. Bronstein and Associates. The theatre will accommodate 2,000 cars when it is ready for a late spring opening. This drive-in marks the second new one under the Smith banner for the 1955 season. William Riseman Associates, Boston, is building a huge ozoner in Jersey City, N. J., for the company.

The Francis O'Neils, Barre, Vt., are receiving congratulations on the birth of their second son and third child. Father is the manager, Paramount, Barre, for New England Theatres, Inc. O'Neil, by the way, is being transferred from the Paramount, Barre, to the Paramount, Rutland, Vt. His post in Barre is to be taken by William Murphy, formerly at the Allyn, Hartford, Conn. Harry Browning is the district manager for the circuit.

A decision of the Glastonbury Zoning Board of Appeals that the building inspector had erred in refusing to grant a building permit for an outdoor theatre in Glastonbury, Conn., has been appealed to Common Pleas Court. The action, returnable on first Tuesday of March, is brought by Walter B. Dostman and Sigmund Herman, Glastonbury, through their attorney, Morris S. Falk, East Hartford. Jack Leitao, East Hartford businessman, had sought a building permit to construct a drive-in and was denied the permit by the building inspector. Through attorney Walter F. Foley, Glastonbury, the building inspector's action was appealed to the Zoning Board of Appeals. The Appeals Board held a public hearing and later ruled that the building inspector erred in failing to grant the permit, thus paving the way for construction of the facility. Dostman and Herman were among opponents of the theatre. The writ, served against Robert E. Goodrich, chairman of the Appeals Board, and Leitao, claims that the Appeals Board acted "illegally, arbitrarily and in abuse of the discretion nouncement of Max Fried, chairman. The show is "The Desperate Hours" at the Ethel Barrymore theatre.

Eugene Pleshette, managing director, Brooklyn, N. Y., Paramount, has completed arrangements for one of the biggest promotions in the history of the house. He tied in with the Mrs. America Contest, on all levels, of this nationwide promotion. Working with the Brooklyn Union Gas Company, local sponsors of the contest, Pleshette has started the ball rolling by giving a $400 range away to the woman patron who most clearly identifies the "ideal Mrs. America." Entrants in the Mrs. Brooklyn Paramount Contest, win or lose, are eligible to compete in the Mrs. Brooklyn or Mrs. Queens contests. These borough contests culminate in the Battle of the Boroughs and the New York State finals, which will be held on the stage of the theatre with the competition televised from the stage. Winners receive a $400 range, a $1,200 kitchen, and a free trip to Florida accompanied by her husband. All of this is to be done without cost to the theatre. The local sponsor has its own TV show which ties the theatre in with all its contest promotion. In addition, the Brooklyn Eagle, the Long Island Press, Grand Union Stores, and Better Living Magazine all are tied in with the promotion, with accompanying publicity always crediting the theatre. The Brooklyn Chamber of Commerce also has pledged its support to the Brooklyn candidate, with appropriate cooperation from local merchants. "The total impact of this promotion," says Pleshette, "has untold benefits to the theatre in publicity and community relations."

Mori Krushen, UA exploitation manager, left for Miami, Jacksonville and St. Petersburg to confer with circuit heads, exhibitors, UA branch staffs and field men on top-gear campaigns that will feature heavy pre-selling via TV, radio, newspapers and merchant support exploiting national advertised co-ops on UA spring releases.

Myron Josephson, MGM's special service department, became the proud father of a second girl, Robin, born in Crown Heights Hospital, Brooklyn.

James A. Johnson, executive vice-president, Walt Disney Music Company, arrived from the coast to make arrangements for the recordings of the songs from "Lady and the Tramp," Walt Disney's forthcoming full-length cartoon in CinemaScope.

Jack Cutting, Walt Disney Studio production executive, left for Europe to make arrangements for dubbing for exhibition overseas of "20,000 Leagues Under the Sea," and the forthcoming full-length CinemaScope cartoon, "Lady and the Tramp."

Cinema Lodge of B'nai B'rith presented a special audience participation program and panel discussion on the subject, "Are We At War With the Teenager?" at its meeting at the Hotel Sheraton Astor. Dr. Daniel Raylesberg, who directs the activities of the B'nai B'rith youth organizations in this area, serves as moderator.

Margaret Back, executive secretary to the president, Transfilm, married Peter Schlenker, former treasurer. . . . Kerry Smith, Transfilm's publicity department, announced her engagement to Dick Stukas, Harold Oram public relations firm. They will be married in Italy in July.

Spyros P. Skouras, president, Twentieth Century Fox, has accepted the chairmanship of the Greater New York Red Cross Motion Picture Committee for the March 1955 Campaign for Members and Funds of that organization. Skouras will head the solicitation of individuals, firms and corporations in all branches of the city's motion picture industries for Red Cross support. He is planning a meeting of executives of the industry and related fields, including theatres and circuits, producers and distributors, and equipment and service firms to enlist their aid in obtaining contributions toward the work of Red Cross for the Armed Services here and abroad, its collection of blood for civilian ill and injured, and its disaster relief and preparedness program. The city-wide goal of the campaign is $5,730,000.

Spyros S. Skouras, right, New York area exhibitor chairman, Brotherhood Week, recently received the first theatre promotion kits for the inter-faith effort from Francis M. Winikus, advertising and publicity chairman for the drive, Feb. 20-28.

Skouras' Ward, Bronx, held a special musical tribute to Irving Berlin recently in conjunction with his showing of "There's No Business Like Show Business." A 50-piece national champion band from the Elliott Rose Accordion Studios was featured in the tiein.

Reverberations from the exhibition of the Marciano-Charles fight picture at Sylvan Leff's Town, Watertown, N. Y., and its parallel showing at Schine's Avon, that city, were heard in a Supreme Court action instituted here by Leff against United Artists Corporation for breach of contract and against Schine Service Corporation for alleged illegal and improper interference with Leff's right as exclusive first-run licensee. He asked damages of $10,163.35 from UA. He demanded equal damages against Schine Service Corporation, plus "exemplary and punitive damages," because Schine defendant "caused, suffered, and permitted" the unlicensed exhibition of the film at the Avon, and did so "with malice and intent to injure the plaintiff." The call for exemplary damages might mean the set figure would be trebled. Leff claimed that he suffered "great financial loss" and "great loss of reputation and prestige" by reason of Avon's infringement on his sole, exclusive first-run license. Leff charged that United Artists did nothing to prevent exhibition of the fight picture at Avon, despite the fact he notified the distributor of the license infringement. Lewis A. appeared for UA after the complaint had been served on the Secretary of State as designated agent for the foreign corporation. UA was given an extension of time to file an answer.

The second "King and Queen for a Day" dinner honoring a branch manager and his top woman aide threw the spotlight on Raymond Smith and Mrs. Carrie Rodgers, Warners. Seated at the head table with Chief Barker George H. Schenck, former Chief Barker Leo Rosen, now manager, Schine-owned radio station WPTR; and Bill Hickok, a recent part-time addition to WPTR staff, Smith and Mrs. Rodgers spoke briefly. Smith presented Mrs. Rodgers with a string necklace, "in a Warner envelope," he commented with a smile. A shorts screening was held. Introduced and making brief talks were Don Gilson, who operates drive-ins at Canton, Massena, and Alexandria Bay, and an indoor house in Alexandria Bay; Tony Scalise, a partner in the Alexandria Bay Enterprises; and Hickok, zany disc jockey and quipster. Others present included Jim Evans, Harry Aranove, Jimmy Moore, and Harry LaVine, Warners; Ralph Ripps and Arthur Horn, MGM; Norman Jackter, Columbia; Norman Weitman, Universal-International; Alan V. Iselin, Auto-Vision, East Greenbush, N. Y.; attorney Lewis A. Sumberg, Variety Club property master; and Leonard Berns, camera store proprietor.

Moving to Niskayuna, near Schenectady, N. Y., were Mr. and Mrs. Norman Jackter and family. The Columbia manager said his new home was a pleasant one, 16 miles from Albany. His eight-year-old daughter entered a Schenectady primary school, and a five-year-old son will do so in September. Another branch manager living a distance from Albany is Dan Houlihan, Paramount. Charles Stiefel Dies; Was Pioneer Showman

PHILADELPHIA — Charles Stiefel, 65, partner in Stiefel and Blumberg Theatres, 1237 Vine Street, died suddenly last fortnight in the Bellevue-Stratford Hotel.

One of the better liked members of the local film fraternity, and a veteran exhibitor, Stiefel had been on Vine Street the day of his death; had gone to the clubrooms of Variety Club, Tent 13, and feeling ill asked that a room be obtained for him with a call left at the desk for seven p. m. Unable to arouse him at that hour, the bell captain of the hotel located Mickey Lewis, National Theatre Supply Company, and property master of the Club, and Stiefel's partner, Sol Blumberg, in the clubrooms. They called a doctor and police and the unconscious Stiefel was taken to Hahnemann Hospital, where he was pronounced dead upon arrival.

Stiefel is survived by his wife, who has been ill for a considerable time, a married daughter, and two sons, one of whom just returned from service with the Armed Forces in Korea. He was a member of VC Tent 13.

In Annapolis, Md., chairman Sidney R. Traub, Maryland State Board of Motion Picture Censors, declared that the normal quality of recent motion pictures, especially foreign films, has touched "a pretty low ebb." Traub was scheduled to appear before the House Judiciary Committee considering a bill revising the state's film censor statute. Although the bill eliminates some categories under which the board could disapprove a picture, it retains the board's powers to censor pictures that are obscene or "tend, in the judgment of the board, to debase or corrupt morals or incite to crimes." Chairman Traub said, before the hearing, that he and the board "stand 100 percent behind the bill. I have no desire to get into any controversy over what they have dropped from the law. It is our purpose to keep salacious movies out of Maryland. Lately, we have had some of the most morally corrupt pictures before the board that I have ever seen."

An amendment exempting newsreels from motion picture censorship has been passed by the House of Delegates by a two-vote margin. The bill now goes to the Senate. Delegate Jerome Robinson stated that a continuation of censorship of newsreels amounts to "an abridgement of the freedom of the press under the First Amendement in the Constitution." He said the only argument advanced for the continuation was that it would cost the Maryland State Board of Motion Picture Censors $10,000 annually in revenues. "We don't sell constitutional guarantees in Maryland for $10,000," he declared. "Let us not, for a paltry $10,000, bargain away a principle that has come down to us through the years." Sidney Lust, Washington exhibitor, came over for the hearing.

Wesley John Jenkins has joined the managerial staff of the Mayfair. . . . Jimmy Gladfelter, who moved from the Cinema to the Playhouse, has been succeeded at the former by Johnny Williams, who was manager, General Pulkasi Highway Drive-In. . . . Louis Sieber, president, Motion Picture Operators Local 181, is confined to his home through illness.

Frank "Ham" Durkee, Jr., and Sam Temple, both of Durkee Enterprises, attended the National Allied drive-in convention at St. Louis. . . . Roy Knight, Stanley Warner sound engineer, was in town on business. . . . The daughter of Jack Sidney, Century manager, celebrated her eighth birthday.

Six film companies have started suit in Northampton County Court against William D. Beck, Berlinsville, Pa., owner of a drive-in there, whom they accuse of falsifying reports on percentage engagements of product. Plaintiffs are U-I, 20th-Fox, Loew's, Inc., RKO, Paramount, and Warners. The companies contend that Beck's reports of admission were false, showing less than he actually received, and as a result they received fees substantially less than were due. The amounts they should have gotten are unknown to them, the plaintiffs say, so they ask that Beck be compelled to account for his receipts. They also ask that the court order a judgement against him for any sums due to them, and that he be ordered to pay punitive damages.

William Lewis, Harold S. Eskin's Strand, is having success with a give-away each Wednesday night in cooperation with a local tailor shop. This is in the nature of a $25 gift certificate. He explains that this give-away appeals to men since in the Strand situation a great number of males are catered to due to an overwhelming majority of men at the college. However, if a lady should win, the certificate can be transferred to her husband, brother, or boy friend. Besides, the women's attendance has not been forgotten. In March, Lewis has a give-away set with a furniture store with a five-piece chrome dinette set. Both merchants are cooperating in newspaper ads plus buying trailers. . . . A bi-partisan bill introduced in the Senate calls for a statewide referendum on the question of legalizing horse race betting in Pennsylvania. The issue has been debated in the Legislature for years with nothing being done about it. Church forces long have opposed the legislation. Said Senator Anthony J. DiSilvestro one of the sponsors, "I'm sick and tired of hearing talk about this. Let's leave it up to the people." Meanwhile, the House received another bill, which would appropriate five million dollars for a three-man racing commission to establish three tracks, one each in eastern, central, and western Pennsylvania. Before pari-mutuel betting could be permitted, residents of the counties where tracks are located would have to approve in a referendum. Ten percent of the total betting plus breakage would be retained by the commission as the state tax.

Theatre managers here are interested in arguments coming out of Harrisburg over legalized betting at horse races through a law to be proposed this year in the state legislature. Reading has the largest racing fair in Pennsylvania, but high officials in the fair here are doubtful of prospects of the bill being enacted into law.

Statements mailed to Reading Fair stockholders, in both corporations, owning and operating companies, show that the fair operated in the red last year. The operating company, loss $4,505.37, had $242,860.29 income and expenditures were $247,365.66. Salaries and wages took more than $70,000. Rain spoiled three of the fair's eight days in 1954, Wednesday, Thursday, and closing Sunday. The Reading Fair Company, owning corporation, has lent the operating company $100,318.44, according to the report.

The Big Combo (5508)

MELODRAMA
89M.

ESTIMATE: Interesting meller has names and angles.

CAST: Cornel Wilde, Richard Conte, Brian Donlevy, Jean Wallace, Robert Middleton, Lee Van Cleef, Earl Holliman, Helen Walker, Jay Adler, John Hoyt, Ted De Corsia, Helene Stanton, Roy Gordon, Whit Bissell, Steve Mitchell. Produced by Sidney Harmon; directed by Joseph Lewis.

STORY: For several years, detective lieutenant Cornel Wilde has been out to get Richard Conte, head of a crime syndicate, who has been able to keep within the law. Wilde's superior, Captain Robert Middleton, has a tough time trying to explain the expenditures involved in Wilde's attempts to break Conte. Jean Wallace, attractive girl friend of Conte, has been tailed by detective Jay Adler, as well as protectively guarded by Conte's hoodlums, Lee Van Cleef and Earl Holliman. From former gangster Ted De Corsia he learns that Conte murdered the former head of the syndicate and took over. Conte's wife, Helen Walker, is located in a sanitarium where she has kept quiet about the murder for many years. When Conte's assistant, Brian Donlevy, tries to take over, he is killed by Van Cleef and Holliman. When Van Cleef and Holliman are forced to go into hiding, Conte tries to kill them with a bomb; but one is able to talk and swear out a statement charging Conte with murder. Conte tries to get away but Wilde, assisted by Wallace, whom he loves, are able to trap him until other police show up and drag him off for proper punishment.

X-RAY: There's a goodly amount of suspense and action to be found in this entry which has a number of angles that can be used in the selling and which should receive an assist marqueewise from the names of Wilde, Conte, and Donlevy. The story is interesting, the atmosphere properly intriguing, the cast is efficient, and the direction and production okeh. It should fit on the program with most meller fans being satisfied. The screen play was written by Philip Yordan.

AD LINES: "He Had A Way With Women And Money"; "A Determined Cop With A Job To Do Wrecks A Big-Time Crime Syndicate"; "Action . . . Suspense . . . Thrills . . . And Murder Are A Big Combo To Beat."

Murder Is My Beat (5510)

MYSTERY
77M.

ESTIMATE: For the lower half.

CAST: Paul Langton, Barbara Payton, Robert Shayne, Tracey Roberts, Roy Gordon, Selena Royle. Produced by Aubrey Wisberg; directed by Edgar G. Ulmer.

STORY: A man is found dead in his apartment, his face burned beyond recognition. The case is turned over to detective Paul Langton. Langton learns that an acquaintance of the murdered man, Barbara Payton, has fled. He locates her and she is convicted of the crime. Payton is sent by train to prison with Langton accompanying her. As the train passes a station, she sees the supposedly murdered man on the platform. Playing a hunch, they secretly leave the train. Langton discovers that Tracey Roberts, Payton's former roommate, is in town. Returning to his lodgings, Langton discovers Payton gone. Shortly thereafter, Langton's police partner, Robert Shayne, comes to arrest him. Langton pleads for 24 more hours to work on the case and Shayne agrees to help him. They locate Roy Gordon, the supposedly murdered man, who had fallen in love with Payton. The slain man was a private detective Gordon had hired to keep an eye on her, who had been slain by Gordon after threatening blackmail. Robert's body is found in her hotel room, she being slain by Gordon's wife in another blackmail try. Payton, who had given herself up, is freed and joins Langton, with marriage a certainty.

X-RAY: An average lower-half entry this has a fair story, a minimum of action, and an unimaginative plot. The cast is average, as is the direction and production. The screen play is by Aubrey Wisberg from a story by Aubrey Wisberg and Martin Field. The title is saleable and it can support on the lower half.

AD LINES: "A Thrilling Murder Mystery"; "Barbara Payton—Her Life At Stake And A Killer At Large"; "A Race Against Time . . . And The Electric Chair."

CAST: David Niven, Yvonne De Carlo, Barry Fitzgerald, Robert Urquhart, George Cole, Eddie Byrne, A. E. Matthews, Noelle Middleton, Anthony Nicholls, Liam Redmond, Michael Shepley, Joseph Tomelty. Produced and directed by Mario Zampi.

STORY: A. E. Matthews, lineal owner of the Great House, the hunting estate, and the village at Rathbarney, South Ireland, and greatly beloved by all of his "subjects," dies at 83 after a ludicrous attempt to make his annual ride to the hounds. They all grieve his passing. Eventually, David Niven, Matthews' nephew, unaware that Matthews had made a death-bed will, arrives from England to take over the estate. with jail; collecting taxes and rents long overdue, etc. Leader of the "hate brigade" is Barry Fitzgerald, Matthews' elderly servant. The only one with a kindly eye for Niven is Yvonne De Carlo, recently widowed member of the family, who has returned on a visit and sees in Niven a chance to grab from under the noses of doctor Robert Urquhart, his fiancee, Noelle Middleton. Comes traditional O'Leary Night, when the ghost of the first O'Leary, in the person of impersonator Urquhart, walks the halls of the Great House and bedlam breaks loose as all the plots of Fitzgeraldites are attempted and backfire. These include such gentle things as many attempts on Niven's life, a beheading plan, a dynamiting scheme, etc. At the height of all the confusion, Niven learns of the existence of a new will and tries to burn down the great house in revenge. The villagers and the others, however, as a volunteer fire company make short order; it is ruled that Niven has failed in the O'Leary traditions as he makes his getaway with De Carlo; and for a blackout, the real O'Leary ghost appears, smiling benignly as he walks through a wall.

X-RAY: Charming all the way with its authentic Irish settings and wit, this romp is one of the funniest imports in a long, long time with Barry Fitzgerald carrying off all honors, although Niven and all the others put him in fast acting company. The type casting is excellent, and the film should do well in the class and art spots. Elsewhere it is a question, but it does have names. When things get going there is one howl after another and laughs and interest never lag throughout the beautifully Technicolored film. There is one song, "My Heart Is Irish." The original story and screen play is by Jack Davies and Michael Pertwee.

MYSTERY MELODRAMA 77M.

(English-made)

ESTIMATE: Okeh programmer for duallers.

CAST: Wayne Morris, Tilda Thamar, Norman Wooland, Mary Mackenzie, Arnold Bekl, Marjorie Stewart, Laurie Main, Frederick Schrecker, Seymour Green, Lucienne Hill, Alan Tilvern, John Gabriel, Richard Marner. Produced by Charles A. Leeds; directed by Hugh Raker.

STORY: Secret information seems to be leaking out of headquarters of a combined military operation in Europe and outsider Wayne Morris is called in by security officer Norman Wooland, a former associate. He shows him the secret files after introducing him to secretary Mary Mackenzie and his fiancee, Tilda Thamar. When Wooland leaves on a trip, he asks Thamar to look after Morris. Morris passes out at a bar and recovers in the office of a doctor who forcibly gives him an injection. When Wooland returns, Mackenzie tells him something seems to be wrong with Morris. Wooland decides to investigate, listens to Morris answer the phone almost hypnotically and then sees him photograph secret papers. Confronted, Morris is ill and dazed. Wooland covers up for him with the general. Unguarded, Morris is target for a sniper through the window and wounded after placing the exposed microfilm in a cigarette lighter and leaving it in Mackenzie's desk. Wooland, with the general's approval, sets a trap for several suspected staffers with fiancee Thamar caught switching lighters.

X-RAY: This has a number of moments of suspense especially at the climax and enough intrigue to keep interest throughout the film. The cast is okeh as is the direction and production, and the entry should do well as part of the program. The original story is by Harold Bratt and has been adapted by Donald Bull with the screen play by Hugh Raker.

AD LINES: "Formerly Labeled 'Top Secret' The True Story Can Now Be Told For The First Time"; "They Were Experts At Getting Information"; "A Spy Story Loaded With Suspense And Intrigue."

New Orleans Uncensored (730)

MELODRAMA 76M.

ESTIMATE: Okeh programmer.

CAST: Arthur Franz, Beverly Garland, Helene Stanton, Michael Ansara, Stacy Harris, Mike Mazurki, William Henry, Michael Granger, Frankie Ray, Edwin Stafford Nelson, Ralph Dupas, Pete Herman, Judge Walter B. Hamlin, Al Chittenden. Produced by Sam Katzman; directed by William Castle.

STORY: Navy vet Arthur Franz finds a government surplus vessel to transport lumber up and down the Mississippi in a New Orleans junk yard. He intends to fix her, and at the same time tries to get a job on the waterfront to help with the payments. Through Helene Stanton, he gets a job on the pier run by Bill Henry and he becomes friendly with Henry, his wife, Beverly Garland, and Stacy Harris. He learns that Michael Ansara, a racketeer, is rapidly gaining control of the waterfront using all kinds of tactics and that Henry is forced to go along with him. When Henry wants to break with Ansara and go into business for himself, Ansara has him killed by Mike Mazurki. Suspicion points at Ansara but there is no proof. Franz gets a better job. Harris is suspected of talking too much and his death is engineered accidentally. Franz offers to help the authorities and legitimate union leaders and obtains evidence that Ansara and his mob are guilty of theft and murder, but not before Franz is wounded. He recuperates, and he and Garland plan to fix and work his boat together.

X-RAY: There's a goodly amount of action plus actual New Orleans and area footage which help out with the story and setting. Coupled with a fair story that holds interest pretty well, okeh performances, direction, and production, this is in the average program category. The screen play is by Orville H. Hampton and Lewis Meltzer, based on a story by Hampton.

AD LINES: "Filmed Where It Happened . . . In New Orleans"; "When Racketeers Take Over The New Orleans Waterfront Anything Can Happen"; "A Hard-Hitting Expose Of Waterfront Rackets."

(Italian-made) (English titles)

ESTIMATE: Okeh import for art and specialty spots.

CAST: Silvana Pampanini, Aroldo Tieri, Luigi Pavese, Ave Ninchi, Eva Vanicsek, Carlo Dapporto, Aldo Bufi Landi, Franco Coop, Ernesto Calindri, Franco Pesce, Marilyn Buferd. Produced by Giuseppe Amato; directed by Pietro Germi.

STORY: In a small French town, entertainer Silvana Pampanini finds Tribunal Judge Arnoldo Tieri in her dressing room. Sent there to investigate Pampanini's scant costume, Tieri instead goes to her dwelling. In the morning, Tieri confesses his actions to Tribunal President Luigi Pavese. Pavese orders Pampanini out of town, but instead of leaving she invades his rooms clad only in a negligee. Pavese's wife is out of town and when Justice Minister Carlo Dapporto arrives, Pavese introduces Pampanini as the Mrs. Pampanini and Dapporto become very close, and when he returns to Paris arrangements are made for having Pavese stationed in the capital so that the minister will have easy access to Pampanini. She arrives but is followed by the real wife, Ave Ninchi. Pampanini is divested of her clothes and Dapporto, in search of a dress, orders Ninchi, who he has mistaken for the cleaning woman, to disrobe. Pavese arrives. Pampanini has fled and Ninchi is being attacked by Dapporto's former mistress. Order reigns when Dapporto invents a story that pleases everyone. Pavese gets a promotion and his wife back, Dapporto gets Pampanini, and peace is once again restored.

X-RAY: The film should have appeal to those who like their comedies spiced with continental sexiness and flavor. Slated for the art and specialty spots, it should have mild success. It is adequately handled in every respect. It is also possible to exploit the physical attributes of Pampanini and the spicy story for a wider audience attraction. Screen play is by Aldo De Benedetti, from a novel by Maurice Hennequin and Pierre Weber.

AD LINES: "A Naughty Dish Of Humor"; "A Rollicking Farce"; "Guaranteed To Tickle The Funny-bone."

MUSICAL FANTASY 94M.

(Eastman Color)

ESTIMATE: Entertaining entry.

CAST: Leslie Caron, Michael Wilding, Keenan Wynn, Estelle Winwood, Elsa Lanchester, Barry Jones, Amanda Blake, Lisa Daniels, Lurene Tuttle, Liliane Montevecchi and the Ballet de Paris. Directed by Charles Walters; produced by Edwin H. Knopf.

STORY: A long time ago in a small kingdom somewhere in Europe, Prince Michael Wilding returns in time for a festival and a ball. All of the invitees are preparing including Amanda Blake, Lisa Daniels, and their mother, Elsa Lanchester, while step-daughter Leslie Caron has no hopes of going. She is rejected by everyone in her ragged and cinder-covered dress. She seeks solace in a hiding place at the side of a peaceful pool where she meets old, queer, but friendly Estelle Winwood, who lives alone in the woods and who becomes her friend. She also meets Wilding and his friend, Keenan Wynn, and they become friendly with Wilding posing as the son of a cook in the palace. He gives her an invitation to the ball and teaches her to dance. A kiss sends her home full of dreams. After the others leave for the ball, Winwood arrives with a dress, a pair of glass slippers, and a carriage, warning her that she must leave at midnight. She is the hit of the ball and dances with Wilding until she leaves. She loses a glass slipper. The next morning, Caron hears Wilding is to marry a princess and decides to run away, stopping at the pool. Here Wilding finds her, fits the missing slipper to her foot, and they ride off towards the palace to live happily ever after.

X-RAY: A wonderfully charming picturization of the famed story of Cinderella, this entry is entertaining all the way with much to offer both youngsters and oldsters. The settings are attractive and the cast, especially Caron, Wilding, and Winwood, are very fine in their roles, with the direction and production in the better category. On the order of the successful "Lili," this, too, is off-beat and an entertainment natural. The story is of course familiar and well-done with interest on high pretty much throughout. The ballet librettos, lyrics, and screen play are by Helen Deutsch, with the ballets by Roland Petit. Tunes heard include "Take My Love" and "Son Of The Cook."

AD LINES: "A Thrilling Screen Experience For Young And Old Alike"; "A Wonderful Romantic Tale Of Cinderella And Her Glass Slipper"; "An Entertainment Treat . . . A Delight To The Eye And The Ear."

ESTIMATE: Well-made Indian yarn.

CAST: Robert Wagner, John Lund, Debra Paget, Jeffrey Hunter, Eduard Franz, Noah Beery, Virginia Leith, Emile Meyer, Hugh O'Brien, Milburn Stone. Executive producer Leonard Goldstein; produced by Robert L. Jacks; directed by Robert Webb.

STORY: Young surveyor Robert Wagner arrives in northern Wyoming in 1877 when the cavalry is trying to effect a peace with the various Indian tribes while gold-hungry prospectors await a chance to scour the streams and hills for gold. All of the tribes except the Cheyennes are agreeable to signing a treaty and move south. While out riding with storekeeper's daughter Virginia Leith, Wagner is surrounded by a small band of Cheyennes led by Jeffrey Hunter and Hugh O'Brien. His calm manner, fearless attitude, and a desire to be friends permits them to emerge unharmed. Hunter later rides to the fort with his sister, Debra Paget, and invites Wagner to visit him at the village. The visit leads to stronger friendship, a budding romance with Paget, and a meeting with the tribe chief, Eduard Franz. The latter agrees to sign the treaty, instructing Wagner to bring Colonel John Lund and the papers, but Hunter refuses to join in the submission. Paget comes to the fort to stay with Wagner which infuriates O'Brien so that he tries to kill him and is imprisoned. Hunter frees him. Franz signs the treaty, but Hunter and O'Brien challenge the entire cavalry. Under the eyes of the entire tribe and nervous young warriors, Hunter and O'Brien try to goad the soldiers into shooting, but tempers are held. O'Brien is killed by Franz, while Hunter is shot down by troopers after wounding one. Peace reigns and as the tribe starts to move south, Wagner and Paget go off by themselves to start life afresh as man and wife.

X-RAY: With the sweeping width of of CinemaScope to assist in the presentation and colorful settings, this entry contains an interest-holding yarn, good performances, better direction and production, and loads of action which should please the younger set as well as those adults who like this type of action entry. The story is slightly off-beat and presents more of the story from the Indian side. It comes off quite effectively. The screen play is by Delmer Daves and Leo Townsend, based on a story by John Prebble.

AD LINES: "A Bold Adventure Of Indians Who Refused To Bow To Their Conquerors"; "Action Aplenty As The Cheyennes Sweep Across The CinemaScope Screen Into Thrilling Adventure."

ESTIMATE: Interesting action meller.

CAST: Rock Hudson, Barbara Rush, Jeff Morrow, Kathleen Ryan, Finlay Currie, Denis O'Dea, Geoffrey Toone, Shay O'Gorman, Robert Bernal, Nigel Fitzgerald, Chris Casson, Kenneth MacDonald, James Devlin. Produced by Ross Hunter; directed by Douglas Sirk.

STORY: In 1815, Ireland seethed under British rule and everywhere groups formed to fight them underground while more daring men acted forcefully to aid the cause. Two of the latter, Rock Hudson and friend Shay O'Gorman, play highwaymen to get money for the cause, but the takings are slim so Hudson decides to hold up the area's tax collector and turns the proceeds over to the local society. He is recognized and forced to flee. He is aided by Jeff Morrow in a clergyman's costume, who later turns out to be one of the most famous rebels. He takes Hudson in hand and appoints him second in command after introducing him to Kathleen Ryan, his fiancee, and his daughter, Barbara Rush. Part of Morrow's funds come from a gambling establishment overseen by Ryan. Morrow is wounded during an escapade, and Hudson takes over to keep things running and even indulges in a duel in which he is victorious. Morrow is taken a prisoner when his hiding place is unwittingly revealed by Rush. He is freed by a ruse, but Hudson, not knowing he is free, tries to get him out of jail and is himself caught to be tried for his initial theft unless he betrays Morrow, which he refuses to do. Morrow, aided by the local rebels, helps Hudson escape from jail. He is reunited with Rush and they plan to wed and carry on the fight for freedom, while Morrow leaves for France with Ryan to recuperate.

X-RAY: Filmed in Ireland and containing a number of action sequences plus an interesting yarn plus capable performances and okeh direction and production, this entry shapes up as pleasing program fare. The pace is a rapid one and the settings and backgrounds make for effective aids in getting the yarn across with authentic atmosphere touches. The screen play is by W. R. Burnett and Oscar Brodney, based on a story by Burnett.

TIP ON BIDDING: Better program rates.

ESTIMATE: Satisfactory Indian vs. Cavalry action entry.

CAST: Victor Mature, Suzan Ball, John Lund, Ray Danton, Keith Larsen, James Millican, David Janssen, Robert Warwick, Paul Guilfoyle, Morris Ankrum. Produced by William Alland; directed by George Sherman.

STORY: In 1854, chief Morris Ankrum dies in battle with white soldiers and predicts a great leader. Victor Mature sees a vision which leads him to believe he is the chosen one. Mature wins the hand of maiden Suzan Ball in marriage with the aid of trapper John Lund, whose life they save after he's been wounded by other Indians. Disappointed suitor Ray Danton spreads word of gold in the hills and causes much friction between prospectors and the Indians, joining the soldiers as a scout. Mature is made a chief, defeats the soldiers in battle. He wipes out Custer and his men. The various tribes separate to seek food for the winter and illness and starvation set in. Mature surrenders and comes into the fort. Peace reigns, but, Danton, using a pretext, kills Mature.

X-RAY: Action and a sympathetic yarn favoring the Indians is to be found in this entry which can do quite well with youngsters as well as oldsters who go for the Indians vs. Cavalry yarns. With a little more meat than most, this could wind up in the good column with capable performances by the entire cast and smooth, efficient direction and production. Interest is held on high. The screen play is by Franklin Coen and Gerald Drayson Adams based on a story by Adams.

TIP ON BIDDING: Better program rates.

DRAMA 115M.

(WarnerColor) (CinemaScope)
(Print by Technicolor)

ESTIMATE: High rating drama.

CAST: Julie Harris, James Dean, Raymond Massey, Burl Ives, Richard Davalos, Jo Van Fleet, Albert Dekker, Lois Smith, Harold Gordon, Timothy Carey, Mario Siletti, Lonny Chapman, Nick Dennis. Directed by Elia Kazan.

STORY: In Monterey, Cal., in 1917, James Dean, a youth in his late teens, follows the town madam, Jo Van Fleet, and then returns home in nearby Salinas where he finds brother Richard Davalos and his girl friend, Julie Harris, concerned over his lengthy absence. They see their father, Raymond Massey, close a deal for an ice house which he hopes to use to preserve vegetables so that they would arrive fresh and edible after a long train trip east. It is evident that Davalos is Massey's favorite. Dean admits he is bad and probably takes after his mother, whom Massey has always maintained is dead, but now admits is alive. He again goes to see Van Fleet, and sheriff Burl Ives admits Dean's suspicion that Van Fleet is his mother. Dean tries to win his father's love by working hard on the lettuce project, but his savings are wiped out when the train loaded with lettuce is halted by a snow slide and the vegetable spoils. Dean talks Van Fleet into loaning him money to go into a deal with Albert Dekker involving food speculation. War is declared with Davalos objecting as a pacifist. Dean and Harris are thrown together and the brothers tangle over this and other incidents. At a birthday party for Massey engineered by Dean, Davalos announces his engagement to Harris without her consent, which gives Massey much pleasure. Dean presents the profits from his speculation deal which Massey spurns as war profiteering. Dean is vengeful and takes Davalos to Monterey where he reveals the existence of Van Fleet and introduces Davalos to her. A completely changed and drunken Davalos leaves on a troop train to join the wars. Massey suffers a stroke and paralysis. Harris explains Dean's need for love to Massey who finally sees the light and asks Dean to care for him during his illness, with Dean and Harris admitting their love.

X-RAY: A finely-made drama, this entry is a stirring emotional experience, one not easily forgotten once viewed. It is intriguing throughout, made all the better by excellent performances by a highly-competent cast and outstanding direction on the part of Elia Kazan. The result is one that should stir viewers either for or against the film. It could very well emerge as a wonderful "critics' picture," with many audiences going along with the feeling that true quality in adult entertainment is to be found here. On the other hand, some basic mass audiences may not appreciate the psychological involvements nor the off-beat situations and characterizations. This is something that time and audiences will determine. There is no set pattern that can be followed in the judging of this entry, but instead it must be dealt with on an individual basis. It should also be noted that the production has been tastefully presented on the screen. The screen play is by Paul Osborn, based on the work by John Steinbeck.

TIP ON BIDDING: Higher rates.

AD LINES: "An Emotional Experience For Adults"; "A Great John Steinbeck Work Brought To The Screen By A Great Director, Elia Kazan, In WarnerColor And In CinemaScope"; "A Thrilling Screen Experience Seldom Viewed By Adult Audiences."

CAST: Broderick Crawford, Richard Conte, Marilyn Maxwell, Anne Bancroft, J. Carrol Naish, Onslow Stevens, Barry Kelley, Mike Mazurki, Celia Lovsky, Herbert Heyes, Steven Geray, Bill Phillips, Henry Kulky, Nestor Paiva, Joe Vitale, William Forrest. Produced by Clarence Greene; directed by Russell Rouse.

STORY: The syndicate operates on a national as well as international scale in both legitimate and not so legitimate business, with the control being held by Broderick Crawford operating out of New York and assisted by a mysterious character calling every so often from Italy. When one mobster kills another over a personal matter and innocent citizens are involved, it endangers the activities of the organization. The offender is shot down by hoodlum Richard Conte, imported from Chicago. Crawford is impressed with him and orders him to remain as his general assistant. Crawford's daughter, Anne Bancroft, is fed up with being called a gangster's daughter and tries to live a life of her own by disappearing. Conte finds her and agrees not to give her away to Crawford. Marilyn Maxwell, Crawford's girl, makes a play for Conte, but he's loyal to the boss and passes up her attentions. When an international oil deal is blown sky-high by the double cross of Washington lobbyist William Forrest, the latter is ordered killed by the syndicate, which has lost millions. Mike Mazurki and two others are assigned to the job. They kill him but have difficulty getting away. Conte is ordered to kill all three so they won't talk. Mazurki gets away and offers to talk, implicating Crawford, who is forced into hiding. Bancroft, fed up, drives her car into a tree and is killed. Crawford offers to make a deal with the FBI and Conte is ordered to kill him, which he does along with Maxwell, after which Conte is himself killed to seal his lips.

X-RAY: There's a good deal of action, suspense, and underworld intrigue to be found in this entry which might be labeled as an attempted expose of racketeers in action on a big scale. A competent cast does a good job in following the better direction and production of the team of Rouse and Greene and the result is a taut, interesting meller which should do okeh as part of the program. The original screen play is also by Rouse and Greene.

TIP ON BIDDING: Fair program rate.

AD LINES: "A Thrill-Packed Expose Of The Organized Underworld In Action"; "They Had To Kill To Keep Things Quiet"; "He Had Orders To Kill Anyone Who Stood In The Way Of The Syndicate."

FOREIGN

Holiday For Henrietta

COMEDY 103M.

(Ardee Films)
(French-made) (English titles)

ESTIMATE: Amusing import.

CAST: Dany Robin, Hildegard Neff, Michel Auclair, Michel Roux, Louis Seigner, Henri Cremieux, Daniel Ivernel. Produced and directed by Julien Duvivier.

STORY: Writers Louis Seigner and Henri Cremieux are plotting a screen play. The story decided upon takes place in Paris. Magazine photographer Michel Roux visits girlfriend Dany Robin and they make plans for Robin's birthday. They are to meet at a cafe, but Roux is covering a newspaper assignment and is delayed. When he finally arrives, he has another appointment with bareback rider Hildegarde Neff, makes an excuse to Robin, and leaves. Robin meets Michel Auclair, a charming thief who had planned a burglary that is shortly to take place. Auclair takes Robin to the scene of the crime. There he is met by cronies disguised as policemen. Robin and Auclair enter the deserted mansion, Robin thinking it belongs to him. The burglary takes place and the couple journey to a cafe, where Roux is supposed to meet Robin. She tells Auclair that she will go away with him if Roux doesn't show up at the appointed time. Roux, having had an affair with Neff, hastens to this rendezvous with Robin. At the cafe, Auclair, who throughout the day had been followed by a detective, is finally arrested and taken into custody. Roux arrives on the scene and is reunited with Robin.

X-RAY: A different narrative technique betters this film and the result an amusing entry. A charming story plus a fine presentation makes it well suited for the art and specialty spots. Screen play is by Henri Jeanson and Julien Duvivier.

AD LINES: "A Gay And Carefree Comedy"; "A Robust Holiday In Gay Paree"; "A Film With The Charm Of A Paris Fling."

The Intruder

MELODRAMA 84M.

(Associated Artists)
(Made in England)

ESTIMATE: Mildly interesting import.

CAST: Jack Hawkins, Hugh Williams, Michael Medwin, George Cole, Dennis Price, Duncan Lamont, Arthur Howard. Produced by Ivan Foxwell; directed by Guy Hamilton.

STORY: Jack Hawkins, ex-colonel of a tank regiment, returns home one evening and finds Michael Medwin, a brave trooper under his wartime command, rifling his desk. The burglar flees, and Hawkins, in an effort to discover why the man has turned criminal, tries to locate him through old army friends. The first one, George Cole, who was a close friend of the fugitive during the war, is now sheltering him. Hawkins arrives too late to speak to the fleeing Medwin. Hawkins then goes to see Dennis Price, a coward during the war. The now prosperous and egotistical Price reprimands Hawkins for not calling the police when the attempted robbery was discovered. The next stop for Hawkins is a boys' school where Arthur Howard is headmaster. Howard recounts an embarrassing experience during the war, but is unable to cast light upon the whereabouts of the boy. Hawkins, still in pursuit, visits the farm of Duncan Lamont, a wartime sergeant. There he finds Medwin hiding out and finally gets a chance to talk to him. The facts come out as to Medwin's life after his discharge from the army, his return to a cruel uncle, the death of his kid brother, his imprisonment on manslaughter charges when he kills the uncle in a fit of rage, and finally his escape from prison. With the police closing in, Medwin is talked into surrendering himself to the authorities and consequently returning to prison, with hope for a new and honest life when his sentence is completed.

X-RAY: The film is well constructed and moves along at an okeh pace. Mildly interesting, at times it is graced with light amusement. Dramatic and realistically handled war sequences add moments of excitement. The production will fit best into art and specialty spots. The screen play is by Robin Maugham and John Hunter.

AD LINES: "What Makes A Man Go Bad?"; "All Hope Gone . . . And The Police Closing In"; "A Search To Save A Man From Destruction."

The Wages Of Fear

MELODRAMA 106M.

(International Affiliates)
(French-made) (English titles)

ESTIMATE: Superior export for the art spots.

CAST: Yves Montand, Charles Vanel, Peter Van Eyck, Folco Lulli, Vera Clouzot, William Tubbs, Centa, Mario Moreno, Jo Dest. Produced and directed by H. G. Clouzot.

STORY: In a South American oil town live a group of down-and-outers including bricklayer Folco Lulli, young Yves Montand, girl friend Vera Clouzot, and new arrival Charles Vanel. Three hundred miles up-country, where an oil company is drilling, a well explodes. To put out the fire, the well must be blown up, but the drillers are without explosives. Company manager William Tubbs decides to send trucks loaded with nitro-glycerin into the mountains, to be driven on bad roads that could blow sky-high the truck and driver. Selected to drive the trucks at $2,000 each are teams Montand-Vanel and Lulli-Peter Van Eyck. The drive starts off at a snail's pace with Montand and Vanel a half hour ahead of the second truck. One obstacle after another delays the trucks, but each is overcome by the perseverance and ingenuity of the drivers. The silent threat of the nitro-glycerine takes a telling toll on Vanel's nerves, which slowly shatter as the trip progresses. Lulli's truck has now taken the lead when a sudden explosion reveals that Montand and Vanel are alone on the road. When they reach the place where the other truck was blown up, there is a giant crater rapidly filling with oil from a broken pipe. Vanel wades into the pool in order to guide the truck and trips, causing Montand to drive blindly over him. The truck overcomes the obstacle and continues the journey, with now dying Vanel in the cab. When the burning oil field is finally reached, Vanel is dead. The next day, Montand, having rested from the oreal, begins the return journey. In high spirits, he plays reckless with his truck, causing it to plunge over a cliff to his death.

X-RAY: A vivid and exciting melodrama, the production has an element of high tension. The film is endowed with sharp characterization, superior acting, along with a spine-tingling story. The care given staging and production is clearly indicated in the smooth flowing story, putting an added accent on realism. It should do fine in art and specialty spots. Screen play is by H. G. Clouzot, based upon a novel by George Arnaud.

AD LINES: "Winner Of The Grand Prix At The 1953 Cannes Film Festival"; "Internationally Acclaimed"; "Guaranteed To Keep You On The Edge Of Your Seat."

MISCELLANEOUS

Cinerama Holiday

NOVELTY 119M.

(Stanley Warner-Cinerama Corporation)
(Color by Technicolor)
(Filmed in Europe and the U.S.)

ESTIMATE: Highly attractive second Cinerama novelty.

CREDITS: Betty and John Marsh, Kansas City, and Beatrice and Fred Troller, Zurich, Switzerland. Produced by Louis de Rochemont; directed by Robert Bendick and Phillipe de Lacy. Narration by John Stuart Martin.

STORY: Two non-professional couples who had traveled little and who had never acted before were selected for the leads. The Trollers from Switzerland were to tour the U.S. while the Marshes from Kansas City were to see Switzerland and other parts of Europe with the Cinerama cameras tailing along. Thus the audience gets a chance to view with them and also experience visits to the Swiss Alps, a bobsled run down the slopes of St. Moritz, an ice skating show, Las Vegas with its colorful sights, the wide open spaces of the west and Indian ranchers, scenes from an open roofed-train, New Orleans jazz as well as a Negro procession returning from a burial at a cemetery to the tunes of a jazz band with the mourners keeping time, a fair at Deerfield, N. H., a brief visit at Dartmouth College, a run down an Alpine ski course, high mass at Notre Dame in Paris, a visit to a Swiss inn, the streets of Paris, art treasures, a Parisian night club, a ball for art students, a children's puppet show, a brief look at Washington monuments, the New York City skyline, a flight in a navy jet plane, and some fireworks over Alton Bay, N. H.

X-RAY: Following in the pattern laid down by its predecessor "This Is Cinerama," this entry, too, is a travelogue with a thin story line thrown in via the couples who explore each other's country. There are quite a few thrills as well as some slow spots but on the whole this will probably make out as well financially or close to the initial entry. Where it can play, it should do a first rate job entertaining viewers. The photography is good and the overall effect is enhanced via the use of color by Technicolor. Again, the widespread image gives spectators the feeling that they are participating in the events taking place for extra thrills. The plot is based in part on "America Through A French Looking Glass" by Renee and Pierre Gosset and was adapted by Otis Carney and Louis de Rochemont, III. The couples in the leads are pleasant and attractive, and following them around is no hardship.

AD LINES: "Another Thrilling Experience In Different Entertainment"; "You Are Invited To Take A 'Cinerama Holiday' And Live Adventurously"; "Hold Your Breath As You Experience New Thrills In Entertainment."

The Stranger's Hand

MELODRAMA 86M.

(DCA)
(Filmed in Italy)

ESTIMATE: Interesting suspense meller.

CAST: Richard Basehart, Trevor Howard, Alida Valli, Eduardo Cianelli, Richard O'Sullivan, Stephen Murray. Produced by John Stafford and Peter Moore, in association with Graham Greene; directed by Mario Soldati.

STORY: Schoolboy Richard O'Sullivan arrives in Venice to meet his father, Major Trevor Howard, whom the boy hasn't seen in three years. Howard spots a man he once knew evidently in the custody of others and when he displays recognition, he, too, is made a prisoner with the object being eventual transportation behind the Iron Curtain. O'Sullivan enlists the aid of employe Alida Valli to assist in the search. O'Sullivan makes friends with Doctor Eduardo Cianelli, enemy agent responsible for the kidnapping, a fact of which O'Sullivan is unaware. The police search his flat, but the boy is unable to recognize Howard, bearded and unkempt. He later recalls it was him. Richard Basehart, Valli's boy friend, is enlisted in the search and he learns that several prisoners are aboard a foreign freighter due to leave shortly. He sets fire to the freighter, permitting Italian authorities to board the vessel and effect the rescue, reuniting Howard and O'Sullivan while Cianelli is killed saving Howard's life.

X-RAY: There is some suspense to be found in this entry which is aided by authentic surroundings. The story is okeh and the acting, direction, and production average. It should satisfy as a supporting entry on the program or in the art and specialty spots, where, with a little extra selling, it might do well. The screen play is by Guy Elmes and Georgio Bassani, based on the novel by Greene.

AD LINES: "Mystery And Murder In Venice"; "A Young Boy's Father Disappears In A Plot Involving International Intrigue"; "Spies . . . Intrigue . . . Mystery . . . Murder . . . High Adventure And 'The Stranger's Hand'."

The Short Parade

TWO REEL

Comedy

HALF-WAY TO HOLLYWOOD. Columbia — Assorted Favorites Reissues. 18½m. When first reviewed in THE SERVISECTION of May, 1938, it was said, "Tom Kennedy is an insurance office worker, who gets in bad with his boss. Johnny Arthur is a would-be scenarist. Kennedy's son is an amateur cameraman, so they get together on an Arthur scenario, a burlesque of the boss. The picture is screened for the boss, but the day is saved when a fake disability claimant is unexpectedly revealed. FAIR." (7424).

HIS PEST FRIEND. Columbia—All-Star Comedies. 16m. Eddie Quillan's no good brother-in-law, Wally Vernon, arrives for a visit. The wife goes to visit her mother, leaving the men alone. Wally disrupts Eddie at every task, and when a new television set arrives Wally decides to erect the aerial himself and use the money saved to throw a party. He wrecks the house in putting up the aerial but has his party anyway. Eddie's wife walks in on the party and raises the roof. FAIR. (7413).

Musical

KEEP IT COOL. U-I—Musical Featurette. 16m. Tony Pastor and his orchestra supply the background music and start the revue off with "Universal Stomp." The Villenaves do a cycling act to the tunes of "Bring On The Broads" and "You're A Lucky Fellow Mr. Smith." Barbara Ruick vocalizes with "That's Him Over There" and "Mambo On My Mind." Other vocals include Red Norvo Trio singing "How Am I To Know," the Cheerleaders harmonizing with "Sugar Blues," and Tony Pastor doing "Don't Worry About Strangers." FAIR. (1304).

LES BROWN GOES TO TOWN. U-I—Musical Featurette. 15m. Les Brown's Orchestra plays "Rain." The Lancers sing "Mister Sandman" and "Rock Island Shuffle," while the Bell Sisters vocalize with "Bermuda" and "Drink To Me Only With Thine Eyes." Jack Smith sings a medley which includes "Civilization," "If I Had My Way," "Cry," and "When You're Smiling." GOOD. (1305).

THE ROBINS SING. U-I—Musical Featurette. 15m. Leighton Noble and his orchestra supply the music in this film, with Noble singing "Little Girl." George Tapps and his dancers perform "Waltz In Tapps Time" and "Stompin' At The Savoy." Fred Darian sings "She Was A Dancer" and the Robins harmonize in "I Must Be Dreaming" and "Loop De Loop Mambo." GOOD. (1303).

STRICTLY INFORMAL. U-I—Musical Featurette. 16m. The Harmonicats play to the tunes of "Harmonica Boogie" and "Over The Rainbow," the latter number being an accompaniment for the vocalizing of the King Sisters. The sisters also harmonize with "Walk It On Down." The Gaylords sing "Love I You" and "From The Vine Came The Grapes." Fay Dewitt serenades the audience with "Mimi." GOOD. (1306).

Color Novelty

A WORLD OF BEAUTY. U-I—Special. 17m. Featured in Technicolor are Miss Universe contest winners of 1955. Pete Rugolo and his orchestra play "Early Stan" and "Come Back Little Rocket." "Jingle Bells Mambo" and "This Is The End" are danced by Nita Bieber. Vocalists include June Christy singing "Something Cool" and Rose Murphy singing "I Can't Give You Anything But Love, Baby." GOOD. (1300).

Serial

PANTHER GIRL OF THE KONGO. Republic serial. 12 chapters. Phyllis Coates, Myron Healey, Arthur Space, John Day, Mike Ragan, Morris Buchanan,

Roy Glenn, Sr., Archie Savage, Ramsay Hill. Associate producer and director Franklin Adreon; written by Ronald Davidson. Chapter one—"The Claw Monster," 18m. A scientist develops a giant claw monster, which he uses to frighten natives away from his illegal diamond mine. "Panther Girl" Phyllis Coates discovers the monster while she is engaged in photographing wild animals. In order to track down the beast, she enlists the aid of big game hunter, Myron Healey. They start on the hunt and are attacked by hostile natives. While Healey is tangling with the attackers, Coates has fallen into the jaws of the crawfish monster. This has enough action and excitement for serial requirements. FAIR. (5483).

ONE REEL

Color Art

ITALIAN RAINBOW: MASTERPIECES IN FLORENCE. IFE. Color. 8m. In Florence, Italy, hang some of the masterpieces of the world of art. These are shown in all their beauty and brilliant craftsmanship. We have glimpses of the old masters down through the ages, Europe's greatest paintings and murals. GOOD.

CinemaScope Color Cartoon

NO HUNTING. RKO—Walt Disney CinemaScope Cartoons. 6m. Donald Duck and his grandpa prepare for the opening of the hunting season. They head for the hunting grounds where they find hoards of hunters entering the woods. Grandpa and Donald get into scrapes with other hunters. Grandpa cannot stand the heat of battle and digs out. The forest ranger station collapses, ending the battle. Men come marching wearily from the fray, all without game, except for grandpa, who is dragging a cow behind him. EXCELLENT. (54103).

Color Cartoons

CRAZY MIXED UP PUP. U-I—Walter Lantz Technicolor Cartune. 6m. Sam and wife Maggie each have a dog. Sam and his dog are hit by a car and an ambulance attendant gives Sam dog plasma and the dog human plasma. The result is that Sam returns home acting like a dog while the dog acts like Sam. Maggie, being driven crazy, leaves home with her dog. She too is struck by a car and the same mistake made. This straightens things out with Sam and Maggie acting like dogs and the dogs acting like humans. GOOD. (1323).

DESTINATION MAGOO. Columbia—Mr. Magoo Cartoons. 6½m. Magoo visits a professor who has a rocket ship he claims can go to the moon. Magoo gets in the ship and takes off, landing at Coney Island, where he has a series of adventures in the amusement center. After going on several rides, he floats back to earth on the parachute jump. EXCELLENT. (7701).

THE LEGEND OF ROCK-A-BYE POINT. U-I—Walter Lantz Cartune. 6m. The captain of a trawler tells a tale of a happening 20 years ago, when his ship was in Arctic waters hauling fish. A polar bear and a penguin attempted to steal the fish, being guarded by a bull dog. The bear was able to lull the dog to sleep. The penguin made continual attempts to awaken the dog but the bear kept putting him to sleep with the song, "Rock-A-Bye Baby," until the situation wound up with the bear on an iceberg, rocking the dog. GOOD. (1325).

MAGOO'S CHECK-UP. Columbia—Mr. Magoo. 6½m. Mr. Magoo is told by the lady next door that he ought to have a physical check-up and see if he needs a new pair of glasses. He finally agrees and his nearsighted orbs take him into a television repair shop, which he mistakes for the doctor's office. He mistakes the various equipment for medical accessories and a TV exercise instructor for the doctor. Nearly exhausted, he wanders into a dress shop next door and creates a near-panic. But all straightens itself out and he returns home convinced he is in the pink of condition. EXCELLENT. (7702).

SPARE THE CHILD. Columbia—UPA Assorted Cartoons. 6½m. A small boy gets his wish to change places with his domineering father. He then begins to make his father's life miserable while the father has adopted some of the boy's old mannerisms. The boy takes over the family bookkeeping and then he realizes that size is not enough. The boy finally throws a fit that changes him back to his normal size. EXCELLENT. (7502).

WITCH CRAFTY. U-I—Walter Lantz Technicolor Cartune. 6m. A witch breaks her broom handle and goes to a broom factory for a replacement. Woody Woodpecker, the watchman, makes a new handle for her but she refuses to pay for it. A scuffle develops, Woody outwitting the witch at every turn. The witch consents to pay and while she is searching for her broom, Woody takes off and flies away. FAIR. (1324).

Novelty

CAMERA CRAZY. RKO—Pathe Screenliners. 8m. Shown is an intimate view of the camera club, devotees who have found that developing and printing their own photographs is the best way. Other scenes disclose a camera field trip, indoor model photography, and a bathroom convertible darkroom. FAIR. (54206).

SPORTS TRIX. MGM—Pete Smith Specialties. 9m. Some of the unusual endeavors in sports are seen, most of the action taken outdoors on ice, where there are trick skaters and skiers. They have their own bag of stunts. These are supplemented by golf, billiards, and other difficult endeavors for a lot of exciting entertainment. GOOD.

TROUBLE BRUIN. U-I—Variety View. 9m. Three raccoons are frisking around as two bear cubs are also playing. A dog comes after them, but they manage to elude him by climbing trees. Two raccoons get caught in a cage and the other manages to rescue them. Meanwhile, the bruin cubs mix it up with a deer, a turtle, a possum family, and a skunk family. GOOD. (1341).

Sports

FLYING MALLETS. Columbia—World of Sports. 10m. The difficult and colorful Argentinean brand of polo is shown, performed at the famed Hurlingham Club. Seen are games between top players and ponies, and the detailed training necessary to perfect the pony's technique. After showing the care and training of the animals, the film shows the basic strokes and moves and then some practice and real games. FAIR. (7805).

SKI SAGA. RKO—Sportscopes. 8m. A reconstruction of how it might have been in a Tyrolean village when skiing was in its infancy, the development of the sport, the perfection of the Arlberg technique are shown. Also shown are downhill races at the Kandahar course at St. Anton. GOOD. (54306).

Color Travel

THE FOUNTAINS OF ROME. IFE—Technicolor. 9m. The film is an artistic study of the numerous and varied Roman fountains, harmoniously blended with Respighi's music, "The Fountains Of Rome." The fountains depicted assume unusual sizes and shapes, and seen with their tumbling and spraying water they sometimes afford the viewer an unorthodox if not picturesque sight. FAIR.

IRELAND. Republic—This World of Ours. 9m. This Trucolor travelogue of Ireland shows scenes of Dublin streets, the kissing of the Blarney Stone, Irish monuments, and the Bank of Ireland. Irish sports are reviewed, including football, yacht racing, hurling, and a horse show. Also seen are Irish bands parading in colorful costumes. GOOD.

MARCH 2, 1955

SCIENTIFIC DATA ON "COCKLEBURRS"

WE ARE QUITE CERTAIN that never, in the 37 year history of this independent theatreman's trade paper, did the publisher or his staff expect to contribute to scientific research. It is, therefore, a pleasant surprise to learn that, through some efforts of ours, a never before known pathological discovery has been added to the scientific data on the atom bomb, the hydrogen bomb, and the skid-row bomb.

It has to do with the festering time of imaginary cockleburrs.

In our editorial "ABOUT OLD WAR HORSES AND COCKLEBURRS" (M.P.E.—Jan. 26, 1955) we attempted to diagnose, across thousands of miles, what ailment had struck our old friend Pete Harrison, who now headquarters on the west coast, and caused what we jokingly referred to as a "tantrum" in the form of "BARNEY BALABAN'S PIPE DREAM" (Harrison's Report—Jan. 8, 1955). Due mainly to a friendship that has existed since Pete entered this business almost 36 years ago, we kindly referred to this "tantrum" as "thinking . . . that isn't well thought out"; and suggested the similarity to "an old war horse that he is, catching a cockleburr under his rear extremity where he can't get at it, so he goes charging about all over the place kicking and flailing at everything."

Since that time we have kept a constant vigil awaiting the fulminatory blast that would indicate whether the imaginary cockleburrs had reached the festering stage. It happened on Saturday, Feb. 19th!

Pete's editorial, "ATTENTION: JAY EMANUEL" (Harrison's Reports—Feb. 19, 1955), continued the "tantrum," but records an increasing temperature to the tune of two more uses of "deceit" and the addition of the word "avariciousness." Among other things it charges us with prejudice, because we did not reprint his full remarks believing they "would serve no useful purpose, for any impartial judge could only come to the conclusion that Pete is out to 'get' Barney Balaban."

While we still repeat that it "would serve no useful purpose"; and that a careful reading will only produce our same conviction that "Pete is out to 'get' Barney Balaban"; we are devoting considerable space on page 19 of this issue to a complete verbatim reprint of Pete's first "tantrum." When Pete reprints in his publication our editorial, "ABOUT OLD WAR HORSES etc," we promise we will reciprocate with a verbatim reprint of his follow-up dated Feb. 19. Fair enough?

This should put an end to the matter! But we do feel we owe it to our nearly 10,000 subscribers to report that a careful tally of the letters, wires, and phone calls relating to this incident showed that industry opinion backed the M.P.E. position to the tune of 33 to one.

Most important scientific development: Imaginary cockleburrs take exactly six weeks between time of insertion and time of festeration (Jan. 4 to Feb. 19).

CHRISTMAS FOR SIX FULL MONTHS

WHILE "VERA CRUZ" seems to have been handled very smartly by UA, and is starting off so powerfully in its first-runs that it doesn't need much help, that is quite a prize contest with which it is being backed between now and the end of July.

Sponsored by UA in conjunction with Exquisite Form Brassieres, the search is for the girl with the most exquisite form in the nation. First prize is a $10,000 contract for one year of movie, T-V, and modeling work, and 200 runners-up prizes valued at $65,000. There is $4,000 more in prize money for the theatremen who make the best tieups with the contest. $79,000 is a nice tidy sum to talk about and it certainly should get attention in any league.

As UA is usually referred to as the company with young ideas and young ownership, it is interesting to speculate on which vice-presidents will serve as judges for this contest. We don't expect that ad-director Winikus will have too much trouble getting the cooperation of the top brass on this. And we just wonder what rules or forms such judging takes?

Corporate

Loew's stockholders are told that the corporation's income comes mostly from production activities (page 14).

Distribution

The proposed all-industry roundtable conference appears set for postponement as snags arise in arbitration negotiations (page 7).

Alfred Crown, former president, Moulin Productions, joins AA as vice-president and special studio representative (page 12).

RKO gets distribution rights for Latin America and the Far East on four Disney films (page 14).

Exhibition

Stanley Warner sells its Atlantic City theatre interests to the Hamid organization (page 6).

Wilbur Snaper, New Jersey Allied president, blames the current increase in underreporting on unfair distributor sales policies (page 7).

Exhibitor donations spur the fight against toll-TV as help from organizations outside the industry aids (page 7).

Financial

Allied Artists net income dips slightly for a 26 week period (page 7).

Republic's 1954 net income increases to $804,000 (page 12).

Paramount earnings are also up for 1954 (page 18).

International

"On The Waterfront" and Marlon Brando are honored in Canada; the Canadian Pioneers elect directors; UA's branch in Brazil wins an international sales drive (page 16).

Legal

Pennsylvania censors pass the French-made "Game Of Love" (page 12).

Mel Konecoff

A meeting with muscular Gordon Scott, new Tarzan; an anecdote concerning kissable Cleo Moore; an usher's rise in the world; a few suggestions from U-I's Pete Dana on reducing; and assorted trivia comprise a week in the big city (pages 6 and 20).

Organizations

COMPO reports that active theatres are increasing in number since the federal tax cut (page 12).

Production

Rita Hayworth and Dick Haymes form Crystal Bay Productions, Inc., to make two for UA release (page 12).

The battle concerning production of "War And Peace" becomes even more confusing (page 14).

Technical

The Paramount, New York, announces plans to convert to horizontal VistaVision and the world's largest screen (page 14).

Gordon Scott, the screen's new Tarzan, with his first film being "Tarzan's Hidden Jungle," an RKO release, and MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR associate editor Mel Konecoff recently met in New York City and tried to outstare each other.

NEW YORK
By Mel Konecoff

GORDON SCOTT, latest actor to play "Tarzan," was in town recently to begin the national promotion of his first film, "Tarzan's Hidden Jungle," and he appeared on radio, TV, and had meetings with press representatives in the various categories. We even saw him at breakfast the other morning in his hotel.

KONECOFF

We expected him to greet us in loin cloth and say, "Me Tarzan," but, instead, we found a young, personable chap in smart sports coat and looking extraordinarily healthy so early in the morning. As a matter of fact, he looked even healthier after a breakfast of prune juice, corn flakes, three eggs, and coffee (his not ours). He said he had been working out at a local club while in town to keep in shape and had been getting to bed early nights. Oh well.

Anyway, between him and Don Gillin, sales manager for Sol Lesser Productions, were dropped such words of wisdom like Scott is off on a tour of the south to meet local exhibitors, press, radio and TV representatives to tie in with local openings of the film, which is approximately the 15th to be made by Lesser since he took the series over in 1942. . . . The plots of this and future films will revert more to the original story lines laid down by Edgar Rice Burroughs in that there will be more action and less of a steady romantic entanglement in the life of Tarzan. In other words, no Jane. . . . Grosses on the series are big as well as consistent, especially overseas where Tarzan is one of the most popular figures on or off the screen. . . . He's a big hit in Russia, 'tis reported, with prints being stolen or bootlegged so that they could be exhibited there. . . . Estimates on the number of dates on an average release in the U. S. and Canada ran to 17,000 with many repeat runs. . . . 'Twas reported that more people see a Tarzan epic than any

Downward Trend Prevails

NEW YORK—Business continued on a downward trend last weekend with a few exceptions.

According to usually reliable sources reaching MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR, the breakdown was as follows:

"Battle Cry" (Warners). Paramount was headed toward a $55,000 fourth week.

"Three For The Show" (Columbia) Roxy reported $25,700 for Thursday through Sunday, with the opening week expected to reach $37,700.

"Jupiter's Darling" (MGM). Radio City Music Hall, with stage show, tallied $75,000 for Thursday through Sunday, with the second and last week anticipated at $108,000.

"The Country Girl" (Paramount). Criterion did $32,500 on the 11th week.

"Bad Day At Black Rock" (MGM). Rivoli claimed the fourth week would reach $15,000.

"The Far Country" (U-I). Globe anticipated the third week at $12,000.

"Underwater" (RKO). Mayfair looked toward $17,500 for the third week.

"20,000 Leagues Under The Sea" (Buena Vista-Disney). Astor claimed $23,000 for the 10th week.

"New York Confidential" (Warners). Victoria rose to $35,000 on the second week.

"Sign Of The Pagan" (U-I). Loew's State was down to $14,000 on the third week.

"The Long Gray Line" (Columbia). Capitol reported $55,000 for the third week.

SW Sells Four To Hamid

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.—In a deal finalized last week and confirmed by Sam Rosen, vice-president, Stanley Warner Theatres, and the George A. Hamid office, SW relinquished to Hamid its interests in four Absecon Island theatres. Hamid and his son and partner, George A., Jr., thus become the biggest operators of motion picture theatres at this shore resort. Financial details were not announced, but it was stated that the properties involved "represent real estate assessments in excess of $1,000,000."

The Warner and the Colonial were sold outright by Albert M. Greenfield and Company for the Stanley Company. The Hamids acquired the lease-hold control rights to the two other houses, the Stanley and the Virginia. The Stanley and its adjoining shops were owned by the estates of George and James Bew. The Colonial was owned by the Friedberg Brothers, owners, Presidential Hotel.

The Hamids also gained control of a block of six stores adjoining the Stanley and of five stores on either side of the Colonial. Already owning Steel Pier, which has three motion picture theatres, and the Hollywood, Shore, and Astor theatres, the acquision makes the Hamids the largest single operator of film theatres in the city. The deal, likewise, marks the end of Stanley Warner operation in the Atlantic Coast resort, long termed by those in the Philadelphia area as a four-month summer operation.

Arbitration Snag Holds Up Roundtable Meet

Financing Of Plan Stymies Committee; Also Pre-Releases, Damages Unsettled. Government Okehs All-Industry Conference But Warns Of Anti-Trust Ban Violations

NEW YORK—Although a meeting of the joint committee on arbitration held last fortnight ended with all persons concerned optimistic as to final success in reaching an agreement, it was reported that snags might delay final agreement on the proposal. This would mean the all-industry conference might be delayed until April.

One of the stumbling blocks to immediate agreement on the arbitration issue, the proposed draft of which was approved in principle by TOA earlier, is reported to be who shall pick up the bill for the arbitration system, estimated at $150,000 per year. Distribution is reported to be willing to match all funds contributed by exhibition, but exhibition is reported reluctant to pick up the $75,000 annual tab. Other areas of dispute are said to include areas involving damages and pre-releases.

The proposed roundtable conference would be postponed because distribution and TOA both insist that the arbitration issue be settled before the conference is held. William C. Gehring, assistant general sales manager, 20th-Fox, had predicted at the national drive-in convention in St. Louis that last week's meeting would bring final agreement on the question, which would leave distribution free for a conference "within three weeks," but this prophecy seems doomed to failure. One committee member said that two or three meetings may settle the issue, or that it might take a series of meetings. He explained that there is no telling when either side may be willing to compromise on issues.

Both exhibition and distribution hope to keep the arbitration fees as low as possible to encourage exhibitors to use the system.

Meanwhile, an official of the Justice Department was quoted as saying that they could see no reason why exhibitors and distributors could not discuss film prices at such a conference, but warned that any collective action on pricing taken by distribution would run afoul of anti-trust laws which insist on each company conducting its business individually.

Distribs Win Underreporting Suit

NEW ORLEANS—Judgments were signed in favor of the distributor-plaintiffs in five percentage actions by Judges F. J. Stich, Civil District Court for the Parish of Orleans here last week. The judgments were the outcome of actions for percentage underreporting brought by RKO, Paramount, U-I, Loew's, and 20th-Fox against Bailey-Calamia Theatrical Interests, Harold H. Bailey, and I. Roy Calamia, operators, suburban Gentilly.

AA Net Dips Slightly For 26-Week Period

HOLLYWOOD—Announcement was made today by Steve Broidy, president, that the operations of Allied Artists Pictures Corporation and its wholly owned subsidiaries for the 26 weeks ended Jan. 1, 1955, as shown by the books without audit, resulted in a net profit before federal income taxes of $352,696 as compared with $361,871 for the corresponding period in the previous year.

In the 26 weeks, a reserve was set up for federal income taxes of $178,000. This reserve for the corresponding period in the previous year amounted to $181,000. The net profit for the period after this provision for federal income taxes, amounted to $174,696 as compared with $180,871 for the corresponding period in the previous year.

The gross income for the current 26 week period amounted to $5,786,784 as compared with $5,359,196 for the same period of the previous year.

Snaper Raps Sales Policies

NEW YORK—Wilbur Snaper, president, Allied Theatre Owners of New Jersey, last week issued a bulletin for the information of its members, which places the blame for rumored increase in false boxoffice reporting on the sales policies of distribution.

Although the bulletin states that the practice is "not to be condoned," it is "certainly understandable." The report asserts that "when a man's livelihood is threatened and his family's security is threatened by the wilful practices of a few men, he will fight with every means at his command."

Pointing up the necessity of carrying exhibition's fight against these sales policies to the heads of each company personally, the bulletin continues, "Many people say the presidents of the film companies have no idea of what is going on in relation to the small exhibitors. This is hard to believe. It might be wise, however, to find each president and discuss the welfare of his customers. Certainly, up to now, it has been of little avail to speak with sales managers."

Toll-TV Fight Spurred By Exhib Donations

NEW YORK—Emanuel Frisch, president, Metropolitan Motion Picture Theatre Association, acting as spokesman for the joint committee on toll-TV, expressed gratification last week at the rate in which contributions are being received from both large and small theatremen. Frisch said that what was impressive was not the size of the contributions, but the number of them.

The meeting of the committee was unable to reach any decision on the matters on the agenda, largely because of the absence of many of the members.

Trueman Rembusch and Alfred Starr, co-chairmen, were absent, Rembusch being on vacation in Florida, and Starr because his wife has suffered a shoulder injury in an accident.

The committee received a report by public relations counsel Harold Wolff setting forth a program designed to offset the propaganda of the proponents of toll-TV.

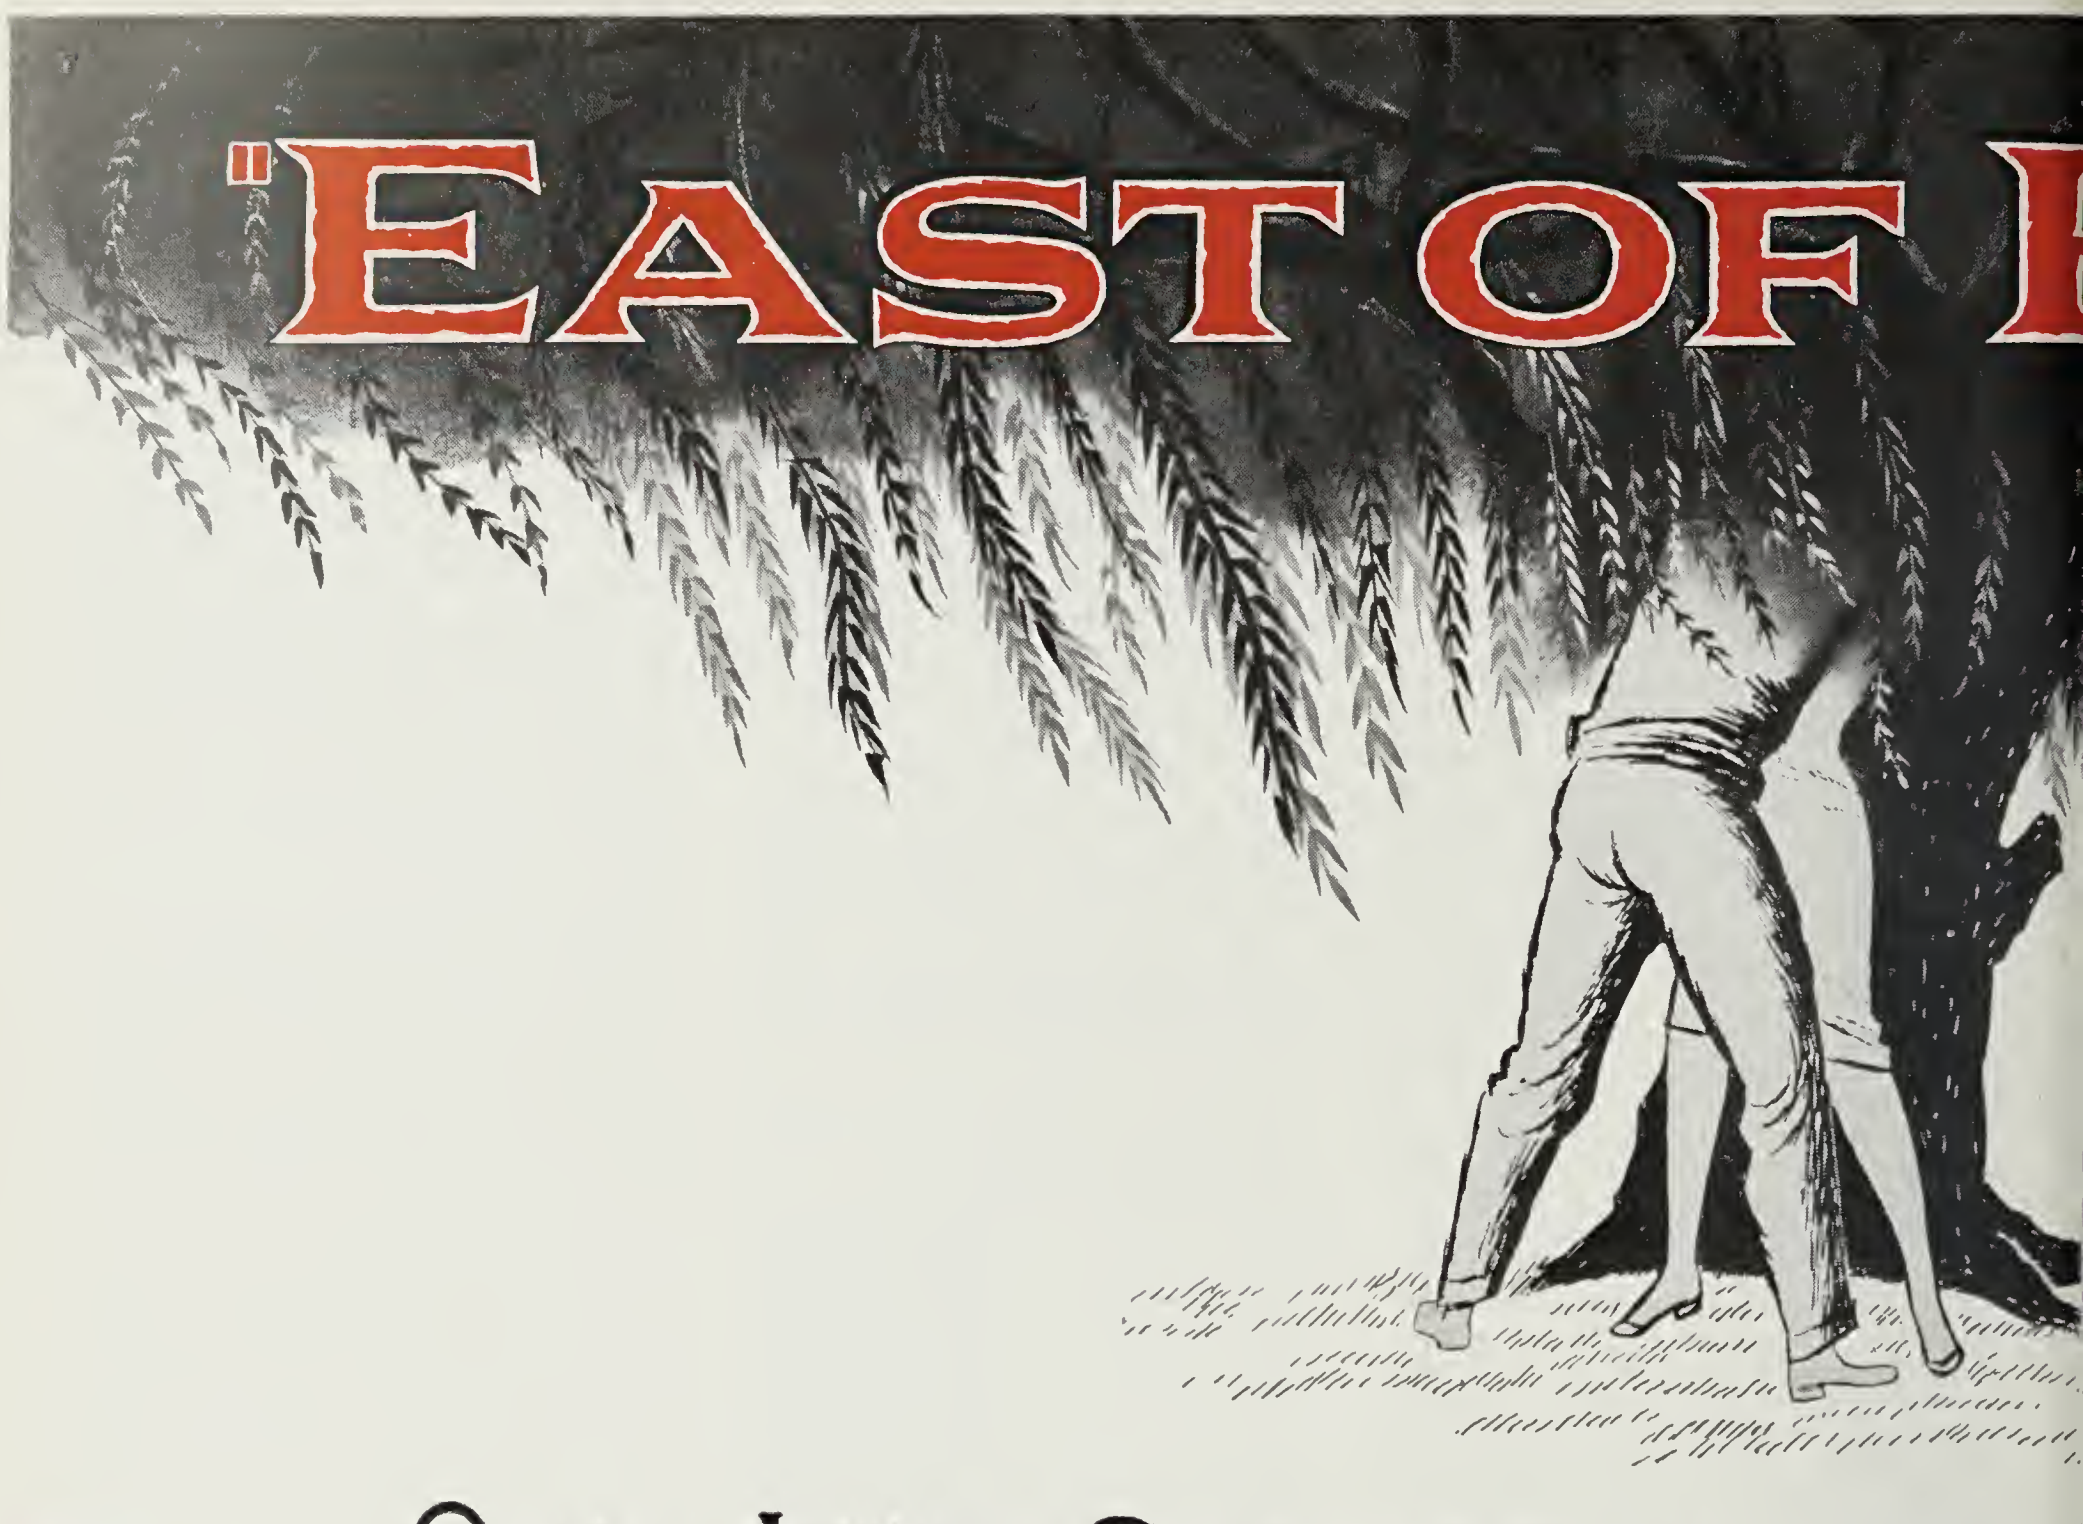
Besides Frisch, those present at the meeting included Solomon M. Strausberg, Phil Harling, and D. John Phillips, Metropolitan Motion Picture Theatres Association; Max Cohen and Mort Sunshine, Independent Theatres Association of New York; Wilbur Snaper, Allied; and Ralph McClenhan, Kentucky Drive-In Theatre Owners Association.

Outside Aid Helps

NEW YORK—The joint committee on toll-TV announced last week that it has received communications from many interests outside of the motion picture industry expressing a desire to join in the fight against toll-TV.

Groups and individuals in the fields of radio, television, advertising, and sports have shown their interest in the question, and the committee reported that it was virtually certain that some of these groups would be used to further the fight to bring the issue before the public and the FCC. The committee spokesman said that the drive has been "immensely strengthened" by this outside support.

The committee met this week to discuss the situation and plan how to use this outside support in the best way, as well as to discuss activities of the past few months.



The committee is planning to stage public debates on the question, both in forums and in publications. The fund raising campaign is reported to be progressing.

Pathe Ups Two

NEW YORK—Walter G. Prusiewicz and Burton H. Bastede were appointed assistant treasurers of Pathe Laboratories, Inc., it was announced last week by James L. Wolcott, president.

Prusiewicz has been chief accountant of the lab since 1951, while Bastede came to Pathe from Chesapeake Industries, where he was controller.

Mike Simons, MGM customer relations director, addresses a luncheon at Green Bay, Wis., launching the new theatre celebration.

The Orpheum, Green Bay, was one of the two theatres taking part in the promotion. It featured MGM's "Green Fire" as part of the dual premiere.

The Bay, participating in MGM's drive, shows "Bad Day At Black Rock" to a night crowd.

Leo Captures Green Bay

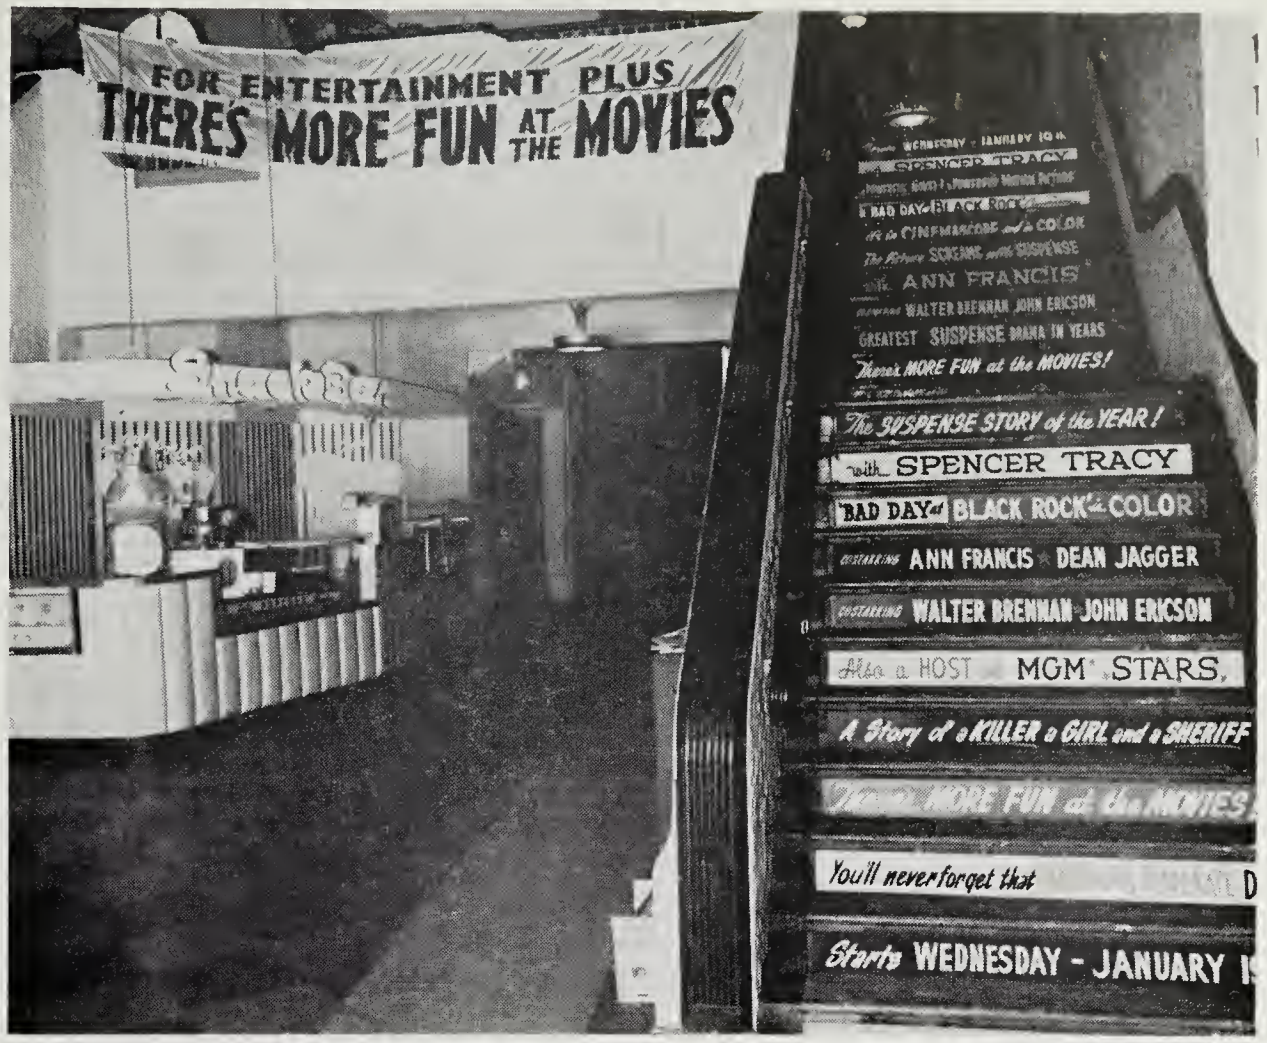
MGM'S Ticket Selling Workshop at Green Bay, Wis., got the benefit of seeing an all-out showmanship campaign in action when the company began its huge motion picture theatre celebration in that city with simultaneous premieres of "Bad Day At Black Rock," at the Bay, and "Green Fire," at the Orpheum. All avenues of publicity and exploitation were used to the fullest extent in this campaign.

Managed by MGM's district and field press representatives, Ivan Fuldauer and Louis Orlove; Elmer Brennan, district manager, Standard Theatres; and Harold Klika and Russel Leddy, managers, Bay and Orpheum, respectively, the campaign opened with the proclamation by Mayor Dominic Olejniczak that January was "There's more fun at the movies" month.

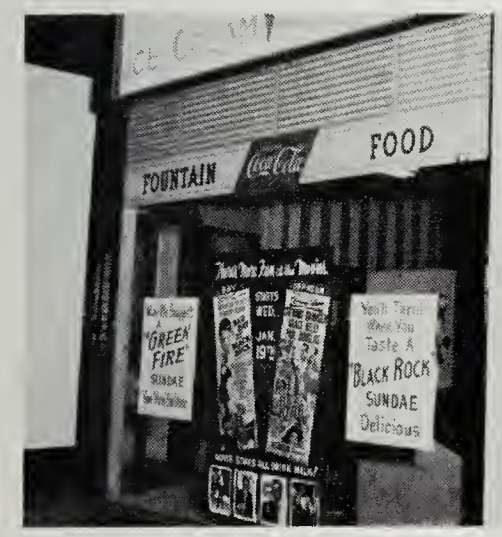
Eleven separate publicity breaks were obtained in the Green Bay Post Gazette in seven days; 900 lines of advertising were used, in addition to tieups with local merchants and H. C. Prange, Green Bay's largest department store; spot announcements were used on all four radio stations, and spot station breaks were arranged using special recordings by stars from the pictures; and interviews were arranged for theatre managers over WJPG. Fuldauer spent 90 minutes on the air with popular disk jockey Bill Walters. A testimonial dinner given for the theatre managers by the Chamber of Commerce was covered by WBAY-TV, on the opening day of the pictures. Other radio and TV time was arranged for also. Nineteen window displays used every possible merchant tieup with the two pictures, restaurants had napkins carrying celebration copy, and 16,000 heralds were distributed in the Sunday issue of The Milwaukee Sentinel, reaching half the homes in Green Bay.

This is only the beginning of this MGM campaign. It would be interesting to see what could be accomplished in raising attendance if all theatre owners were to expend as much effort on getting their product before the public.

A drug store with a key counter display of pictures from the two films and theatres add to the town's festive decor.



Another store window ballys the two pictures in as neat a premiere tieup as was ever seen.



Russell Leddy, manager, Orpheum, receives a desk set from Hearly MacDonald.

Harold Klika, manager, Orpheum, is also honored by the Commerce Association head.

The Bay lobby showed good use of an 18' valance and staircards, getting across the ideas of MGM's theatre celebration to residents from miles around.

A printing company turns over its full window to the display. Celebrities abounded and MGM apparently captured Wisconsin.

A camera store window catches the public's eye with posters for the two theatres, as all of Green Bay agrees that movies are fun.

COMPO Report Shows Increase In Active Theatres Since Tax Slice

NEW YORK—The number of active motion picture theatres in the United States totaled 19,101 at the end of 1954, a gain of 1,637 from the low point reached last March just prior to the granting of federal tax relief, it was revealed last week in a revised theatre tabulation made public by the Council of Motion Picture Organizations.

At the end of 1954, there were 15,039 active four-wall theatres and 4,062 drive-ins. Between the end of 1953 and 1954, there had been a net increase of 1,136 theatres of which 271 were drive-ins and 865 were four-wall theatres. At the March, 1954, low point, there were 13,553 four-wall theatres and 3,911 drive-ins.

On March 1, 1954 when Congress was still considering the admission tax, there were 6,280 closed theatres in the United States. At the end of 1954, the number of closed theatres had dropped to 5,651, a shift of 665 theatres. Eleven states, including New York, had more closed theatres at the end of 1954 than at the end of 1953, but the net changes in all such cases were small.

The tabulation shows that the total at the end of 1954 was within five theatres of the high point of 19,106 reached at the end of 1950.

The theatre census, prepared for COMPO by Sindlinger and Company, research analysts, includes as an "active" operation any theatre which closes only seasonally, such as a four-wall theatre at a summer resort or certain drive-ins which close two to five months a year.

AO Creates Film Division

SOUTHBRIDGE, MASS.—American Optical Company has created a new division to handle its motion picture products business, it was reported last week.

The new division will be headed by William F. Peck, who formerly managed the AO instrument division at Buffalo. The new division will be responsible for the exploitation and application of all company products made for the motion picture industry, and for all company activities relating to the commercial phases of the Todd-AO project.

Republic '54 Net Income Increased To $804,000

NEW YORK—Republic's net profit for the year ended Oct. 30, 1954, was up $106,985 over the same period in the previous 12 months, it was reported last week by President Herbert J. Yates.

Net profit after income taxes for the recent fiscal year was $804,202. Gross revenues amounted to $37,962,359, compared to $37,265,035. Bank indebtedness amounted to $2,259,771, as against $3,066,099 last year.

Yates reported to stockholders that progress was being made by the company's television subsidiaries, Hollywood Television Service and Studio City Television Productions, and anticipated that arrangements would be made soon to release the Gene Autry and Roy Rogers films to TV.

Two More Workshops Set

NEW YORK—Two more Ticket Selling Workshops have been added to the company's schedule, according to Mike Simons, customer relations head, who returned last week from Detroit, where he held the latest get-together of exhibitors gathered to hear MGM's various plans for hypoing business.

The first of these will be conducted May 6 at the Savory Hotel, Des Moines, in connection with the annual spring convention of the Allied Theatre Owners of Iowa and Nebraska. Arrangements were completed yesterday with Al Myrick, president.

MGM's San Francisco branch manager Sam Gardner completed arrangements for a Workshop in that city at the St. Francis Hotel on June 20.

Kahn Dies

NEW YORK—Henry W. Kahn, 67, president, Henry W. Kahn Enterprises, died last week at his home in Forest Hills. Kahn, who has long been associated with the export and import end of the motion picture industry, is survived by his widow and a daughter.

Penna. Censors Pass French "Game Of Love"

PHILADELPHIA—After rejecting the film in its entirety three times, the Pennsylvania censors last fortnight finally passed "The Game Of Love," prize-winning French motion picture based on a famous Colette novel, it was announced by Felix Bilgrey, attorney for Times Film Corporation. At the same time, vice-president William Shelton revealed that the scheduled first-run engagement of the film at the Lower Mall, a Cleveland art theatre, had been cancelled when the newspapers refused to carry advertisements mentioning the picture.

The Pennsylvania censors' reversal of their previously confirmed position calling for only a few minor deletions forestalls filing of a lawsuit challenging the constitutionality of the Pennsylvania censorship statute which has been in preparation by Bilgrey. Such a brief is already on file in the Baltimore City Court appealing the Maryland State Board of Motion Picture Censors' rejection of "The Game Of Love" and challenging the constitutionality of Section 66A of the Annotate Code of Maryland as a violation of the first and 14th amendments of the U. S. Constitution and of the Maryland Declaration of Rights.

Crown Joins AA

HOLLYWOOD—Alfred Crown, formerly president, Moulin Productions, has joined Allied Artists as a vice-president and special studio representative, it was announced last week by Steve Broidy, president, Allied Artists.

At the same time, it was revealed that Crown will serve Moulin Productions in an advisory capacity on the liquidation of those projects he has been supervising.

Crown will make his headquarters at the Allied Artists New York office, but will spend considerable time at the studio and make periodic trips to Europe on company production affairs. He will function as the studio's representative, both with American and foreign independent producers making films for Allied Artists release, and as the studio's liaison with the company's world-wide distribution offices.

G. Ralph Branton, Allied Artists vice-president, has returned to his office following 10 days in Honolulu, T. H.

Hayworth, Haymes To UA

NEW YORK—Rita Hayworth and Dick Haymes have formed their own motion picture producing company, Crystal Bay Productions, Inc., which will release its initial two pictures through United Artists, it was revealed last week.

Arrangements entered into with Arthur B. Krim, president, United Artists, call for the financing and distribution by the releasing company of the first two Crystal Bay productions starring Miss Hayworth with Haymes acting as producer. Both Miss Hayworth and Haymes also contemplate finding a story that will serve as a co-starring vehicle.

Production plans for the two films will follow immediately upon completion of Miss Hayworth's two-picture obligation to Columbia.

Added product will be top bracket pix based on legiter, recently purchased "Anastasia," as well as best-selling tomes such as "Katherine" and "View from Pompey's Head."

"War And Peace" Confusion Rife As Todd Wins Initial Skirmish

NEW YORK—At a press conference last week, producers Carlo Ponti and Dino deLaurentiis disclosed production plans for the film extravaganza, "War And Peace." Shooting is to start in a few weeks. In April, Finland is to be the locale for snow scenes and exterior action. Starting in June, interior sequences will be shot at the Roman studios. Through July and August, more exteriors will be filmed in Yugoslavia, and the shooting script will end in September in Rome. Plans call for the reconstruction and burning of Moscow and spectacular scenes containing the entire Yugoslav cavalry

In regard to the use of Yugoslav troops, a discrepancy seems to be present as to Marshal Tito's specific committments to deLaurentiis. While deLaurentiis unequivocally states that Tito has given his support to his version of the Tolstoy classic and cites a cable from Louigi deLaurentiis which tells of an authorization from Tito for the Yugoslav army to be used in the film, word from the Yugoslav consulate in New York contradicts this, designating Mike Todd as the maker of the authorized version.

A vagueness is also present as to the financial contribution Paramount will give to the VistaVision epic. With a tab of 4½ million set on the production, the producers declined to comment upon the financial arrangement between their group and Paramount affiliates, the only statement made being that U. S. money will be spent only when necessary for American technology and talent.

Horizontal VV For Paramount

NEW YORK—The Paramount, Times Square showplace and flagship of the nationwide ABC-Paramount Theatre chain, last week announced plans for a conversion program which will bring the theatre the largest screen in the world, according to Edward L. Hyman, AB-PT vice-president.

The reconstruction project will enable the Paramount to take advantage of the new horizontal projection VistaVision process which was developed by Paramount technical experts. Hyman revealed that the decision was made by himself and his associates following a recent visit to the Paramount studios in Hollywood, where they witnessed extensive demonstrations of new horizontal VistaVision.

Century Projector Corporation of New York is making the new projectors for the Paramount. First picture to be presented following the conversion will be Paramount's VistaVision Technicolor feature "Strategic Air Command."

Dudley Forms New Company

HOLLYWOOD—As part of its program of international expansion, the Dudley Picture Corporation last week announced formation of a wholly-owned subsidiary in Britain. The new company, which will handle future Dudley product in Europe, is Dudley Pictures International (G.B.), Ltd., with offices in London. Directors are Carl Dudley, C. Bruce Newbery, and Eric P. Hanney.

Four Disney Films To RKO For Latin America, Far East

HOLLYWOOD—A distribution deal whereby RKO will handle a quartet of Walt Disney's current properties throughout all Latin America and the Far East was jointly announced last week by Roy O. Disney, president, Walt Disney Productions, and J. R. Grainger, president, RKO, and Walter Branson, world-wide sales manager.

Pictures involved are "20,000 Leagues Under The Sea," "The Vanishing Prairie," "Toot, Whistle, Plunk and Boom," first CinemaScope cartoon, and "Willie, The Operatic Whale," 20-minute musical featurette.

Closing the deal, along with Roy Disney, Grainger, and Branson, was Leo Samuels, general sales manager for Disney's Buena Vista distributing company.

UA Buys Out Chaplin

NEW YORK—Robert Benjamin, United Artists board chairman, announced early this week that the UA management had purchased Charles Chaplin's 25 per cent interest in the corporation. This development leaves as sole holders of stock Mary Pickford, one of the founders of the company, who owns 33⅓ per cent of remainder, and the Benjamin-Arthur Krim management, which owns the balance of stock.

The company was founded in 1919 and the present management took over in 1951. Since that time, UA's annual gross has risen from $19,900,000 to a record figure in 1954 of $43,100,000. Original founders included Chaplin, Miss Pickford, Douglas Fairbanks, and famed director David Ward Griffith.

U-I Reissues Big Business

HOLLYWOOD—Over $7,000,000 has been paid by the Realart Corporation in the last seven years for U-I reissues, it was reported last week by Jack Broder, president, Realart. This figure is more than double the $3,250,000 figure mentioned in the original 10-year contract, signed in 1947. It is possible that the total for 10 years will triple the original figure.

For her unfailing cooperation and courtesy with the photographic press corps through the years, film star Joan Crawford was recently presented with the first annual "Golden Shutter Award" of the Los Angeles Press Photographers Association. From left to right are seen Sam Israel, U-I studio publicity director; Miss Crawford; Phil Bath, president of the association; and Jack Diamond, assistant studio publicity director.

Loew's Income Mostly From Production End

NEW YORK—Stockholders at Loew's annual meeting last week reelected all directors, although management was criticized by minority holders on many counts. Officers, led by President Nicholas M. Schenck, were also reelected.

Charles C. Moskowitz, vice-president and treasurer, predicted that Loew's, Inc., earnings for the second quarter would be less than the same period last year. Howard Dietz, vice-president and MGM director of advertising, publicity, and exploitation, predicted that, on the whole, business would be better during the whole year, pointing out that good pictures were doing good business all over the country, and that "Hit The Deck," "Glass Slipper," "Interrupted Melody," and "Blackboard Jungle" were to be released soon. Moskowitz, replying to a question from the floor, stated that the ratio of earnings between the picture company, engaged in production and distribution, and the theatre circuit was 60 to 40.

General topics of criticism from minority stockholders were the level of officer salaries, small stockholdings by some directors, employment contract provisions, the working of the company's retirement fund, and others.

James Fuller, Coral Gables, Fla., introduced a resolution calling on the board to give careful consideration to the engaging of independent appraisers to survey all company properties valued at over $500,000. Although the motion was defeated, Moskowitz, who acted as chairman of the stormy session, said that the board would give it consideration.

Saul E. Rogers, vice-president and general counsel, old Fox Film Corporation, made four proposals, place the retirement fund on a participation basis; make a general survey of financial operations, cutting expenses and salaries to raise earnings; a further review of the Mayer and Rubin settlement; and outside representation on the board, for which he nominated Judge Louis Goldstein, who declined after criticizing management.

Silverstone On Tour

NEW YORK—Murray Silverstone, president, 20th-Fox International and Inter-American Corporations, arrived in Mexico City last week on the first leg of a two months flying tour of Latin and South America. His trip is in conjunction with the international organizations' current sales drive and to discuss in person with the territorial staffs plans for capital premieres of "A Man Called Peter" and the progress of CinemaScope installations.

In addition to visiting every country in Latin and South America, Silverstone will address regional conventions in Mexico, Peru, Argentina, Brazil, and Venezuela before returning to New York on April 14.

Fortune Expands Lineup

NEW YORK—Jules B. Wiell, president, Fortune Features, announced last week that he will offer the industry a minimum of 10 features a year, half of them in color. Weill left for Europe last week to look for films to add to his lineup.

"Waterfront," Brando Win Critics Award

TORONTO—Columbia's "On The Waterfront" was chosen by Canadian critics as the best film of 1954. The critics also chose Marlon Brando, the picture's star, as the best actor of the year.

In a poll among the critics conducted by The Canadian Film Weekly, the bulk of the top 10 pictures were from MGM, with three, followed by Columbia and Paramount, each with two, while J. Arthur Rank, Universal-International, and Associated British each had one.

The top picture was followed in order by "Rear Window," "The Little Kidnappers," "The Caine Mutiny," "Seven Brides For Seven Brothers," "The Glenn Miller Story," "Hobson's Choice," "Executive Suite," "Sabrina," and "Julius Caesar."

In order of choice, the rest of the stars were Humphrey Bogart, James Stewart, Grace Kelly, William Holden, Audrey Hepburn, Vincent Winter, Gregory Peck, Eva Marie Saint, and John Wayne.

Four of the 10 films were in color, while only one, "Seven Brides For Seven Brothers," was in CinemaScope. A total of 80 were voted by the critics from an eligible list of 157 features.

Meantime, the theatre-going public is being asked to pick their favorites in a contest for 1954's best film, best actor, and the best actress, with the prize a seven-day all-expense-paid trip to Hollywood for two persons. The contest ends March 5.

Many of the theatres in the country are cooperating by putting up posters on the contest in their lobby and decals on their boxoffice windows. The theatres consider it an important hypo for business with newspaper stories every day helping to spur interest.

Entrants are required to name their choice of 1954's best 10 films in order of preference, along with an actor and an actress as their selections in the best performances category. With the ballot must go an explanatory note of 500 words.

At the end of the contest, a master ballot will be prepared from the selections. The person whose entry most closely approximates this master ballot will be the winner. In the case of a tie, a panel of experts will then vote for logic and clarity.

Canadian Comment

The Canadian Picture Pioneers picked five new directors for the board this year at the recent annual meeting in Toronto. The five new men include George Oullahan, Frank O'Byrne, Harry Lester, Charles Dentlebeck, and George Altman. The others elected were Morris Stein, Harold Pfaff, Dan Krendel, Tom Daley, and Clare Appel, with Nathan A. Taylor elected as president to serve a fourth term. Morris Stein is vice-president, and Tom S. Daley is secretary-treasurer. Charles Dentlebeck heads membership, Harold Pfaff sick and welfare, Clare Appel public relations, and

Dan Krendel the golf tournament. The 11 men were elected from among 20 nominees. The Ontario directors constitute the senior board of the national organization, and the officers they choose from among themselves have national authority, which the other Pioneer branches in different parts of the country accept. The Board of Directors has ratified a proposal made at the meeting by Charlie Stephenson, one of those honored at the last Award Dinner, that Will McLaughlin, Ottawa film columnist who was also honored, be made an honorary member.

The motion picture industry under the chairmanship of Gordon Lightstone, general manager, Paramount in Canada, again is cooperating to help put over Brotherhood Week in Canada, with local theatres helping in their own communities. Brotherhood Week is sponsored by the Canadian Council of Christians and Jews, of which Richard D. Jones, Toronto, is executive director.

Bob Knevels, Tivoli, Windsor, heads the newly-reorganized Essex County Theatres Association, which will take the place of the Essex, Kent, and Lambton Theatres Association for those members in Essex County. It was found that insufficient cooperation was forthcoming from the other counties, except for Chatham. Head of the old association was Edward C. Lamoueux, who did not run again.

Less was spent on theatre construction in Canada in 1954 than in 1953. It was a drop of .2 per cent from the $3,075,300 of the previous year. Although the decline is negligible, it is the reverse of the trend of all construction in Canada which rose 6.8 per cent during the same period. The dollar value was less, but numerically, there was a gain of seven over 1953 for a total of 71 contracts awarded. Since wartime restrictions were lifted in 1946, 811 theatre contracts valued at $45,540,600 have been let.

A national tieup between Liberty Magazine and Odeon Theatres (Canada), Ltd., for the film, "Chance Meeting," based on the theme of the feature, has been arranged. The contest calls for entries from couples, married or single, who had many obstacles to overcome during their romance. It is known as "Liberty's Chance Meeting Contest." Winners will receive an all-expense paid holiday to the Hotel Hana Maui in Hawaii via Pan American. The couple will also receive a complete summer wardrobe and luggage.

Paramount Earnings Up From Last Year

NEW YORK—Barney Balaban, president, Paramount, reported last week that estimated earnings of the corporation and its consolidated domestic and Canadian subsidiaries for the fourth quarter ended Jan. 1, 1955, were $2,613,000 after provision for United States and Canadian income taxes. These estimated earnings represent $1.19 per share on the 2,195,027 shares outstanding and in the hands of the public as of that date, as compared with consolidated earnings for the corresponding quarter last year of $1,783,000 or 80 cents per share on the 2,217,051 shares then outstanding.

Consolidated earnings for the year ended Jan. 1, 1955, after taxes are estimated at $9,003,000. These earnings include net profit on sale and adjustment of investments in subsidiary and affiliated companies of approximately $832,000, after deducting applicable income taxes. These estimated earnings, including such net profit on sales of investments represent $4.10 per share and, excluding such net profit, $3.72 per share, as compared with consolidated earnings for the year 1953 of $6,779,563 or $3.06 per share on the shares then outstanding.

The board voted a quarterly dividend of 50 cents per share on the common stock payable March 15 to holders of record on March 4.

GPE Profits Soar

NEW YORK—Net profit after federal taxes reported last week by General Precision Equipment Corporation for 1954 was $5,488,089.

This amounts to $6.49 per share of common stock, compared to $5.09 per share in 1953, when the net profit was $3,436,349. Net sales last year amounted to $123,322,634, compared with $87,763,925 in 1953. Profit before federal taxes was $11,725,089, against $7,840,349.

TV Rule Reversed

WASHINGTON—The United States Court of Appeals last week unanimously declared that the Federal Communications Commission rule limiting the ownership of any person or corporation to seven TV stations (two of which must be UHF), was invalid.

The court said that "the selection of a number, beyond which no multiple owner will be permitted to go, regardless of what he may be able to show in his own behalf," is contrary to the Federal Communications Act. An appeal to the Supreme Court is likely.

The court acted to uphold a request by Storer Broadcasting Company that an FCC denial of their application for a station in Miami should be voided. The FCC had denied Storer Broadcasting Company's application on the grounds that Storer already had an interest in five such stations.

The court also ruled that since the Commission had not granted a hearing to Storer, it had denied to the broadcasting company the benefits of due process of law.

Survey Shows Rise In Theatre Operations

WASHINGTON—The Department of Commerce last week issued a survey showing that the number of motion picture theatres operating in the world has risen to 108,537, an increase of nine per cent since 1951, when the number was listed as 99,543.

The survey, conducted by Nathan D. Golden and Earl H. Young, scientific, motion picture, and photographic division, Business and Defense Services Administration, Department of Commerce, revealed that though the United States has experienced a sharp decline in the number of four-wall theatres, the number of drive-ins has increased substantially.

Competition from foreign made films has increased during 1951-55, the survey indicates, estimating that in 1951 74 per cent of the feature films shown throughout the free world were made in the United States, while only 68 per cent are now made here.

The theatre building boom in Canada has added 330 theatres since 1951, 160 of them being drive-ins. At the end of 1954, 36 drive-ins and 49 conventional theatres were under construction by our northern neighbor. Indications are that the boom will continue.

Atlas Buys More RKO Stock

WASHINGTON—The Atlas Corporation purchased 115,100 shares of RKO Pictures Corporation common stock during the month of December, a Securities and Exchange Commission report revealed last week. This will increase the holdings of Atlas in RKO to an even million shares.

The Commission also reported that Edward J. Noble had given 200,000 shares of common stock in American Broadcasting-Paramount Theatres, Inc., to the Edward John Noble Foundation, leaving his holdings at 8,949 shares.

Other transactions reported in December were Theodore R. Colborn, 200 shares of RKO common, his total holdings; Preston Davie sold 100 shares of Universal Pictures Company, leaving himself 9 shares; Howard Dietz, Charles M. Reagan, and Benjamin Melnicker each bought 100 shares of Loew's common, making their holdings 115 shares, 100 shares, and 300 shares, respectively.

Officers Reelected

HOLLYWOOD—All officers of AMPP and Central Casting Corporation were reelected last week at the annual meeting of the two organizations.

Officers of AMPP are Eric A. Johnston, president; Y. Frank Freeman, board chairman; Lewis K. Sidney, vice-president; B. B. Kahane, vice-president; Charles Boren, vice-president in charge of industrial relations; and James S. Howie, secretary-treasurer.

Officers of Central Casting Coporation are Freedman, president; Fred S. Myers, vice-president and board chairman; Boren, vice-president and general manager; and Howie, secretary-treasurer. Members of the AMPP and Central Casting boards are unchanged with the exception of the addition of Steve Broidy to the board of AMPP.

BARNEY BALABAN'S PIPE DREAM (Harrison's Reports—January 8, 1955)

In a four-page advertisement inserted in this week's trade papers, Barney Balaban, president of Paramount Pictures, has this to say, partly, in a statement:

"It is important at this time, I believe, to review what Paramount's development of the Horizontal VistaVision Camera means —and will continue to mean—to exhibitors in terms of increased theatre admissions and to the future of our industry.

"Paramount's first VistaVision picture, 'White Christmas,' has now played widely to solid top grosses, in many cases to all-time record-breaking results.

"More important—'White Christmas' proves the wisdom of Paramount's policy as regards the wide screen.

"From the start our company was unwilling to rush into adopting any wide screen system technically not yet perfected and which would place an undue economic burden on our customer, the exhibitor.

"With faith in our studio's fine scientific department, Y. Frank Freeman and I authorized expenditures of several millions of dollars in the efforts to develop to perfection a system of photography and projection which would furnish to exhibitors everywhere the best photographed pictures in the ideal 2-to-1 proportion on the largest possible screen at the least possible expense to the theatres."

Balaban then goes on to say that Paramount has produced a special 20-minute featurette containing the highlights of ten completed VistaVision pictures made by the company, and that it will furnish prints of this short subject to the theatres without charge for the entertainment of their audiences.

He concludes his statement with these remarks: "I sincerely believe that this is a most important film. I think that, seeing it, you will visualize for the first time a new world in motion pictures and its vast potentialities. I am confident that, having seen it, you will agree that the real technical and financial future of our industry rests upon the ultimate photographing and projecting of motion pictures standardized on the principles of the Horizontal VistaVision Camera."

From what Balaban has to say, it is apparent that he is trying desperately to convince the exhibitors that VistaVision is of itself a drawing factor at the boxoffice, and as proof of it he points to the outstanding business being done by "White Christmas."

In pointing to the top grosses earned by "White Christmas" as proof that VistaVision means something "in terms of increased theatre admissions," Balaban is either kidding himself or insulting the intelligence of the exhibitors. He gives no credit to the name of Irving Berlin and the very wide popularity of the song "White Christmas," nor does he mention the undeniable drawing power of Bing Crosby and Danny Kaye, the principal stars of the picture.

As an entertainment, "White Christmas" is only fair, and the majority of the nation's movie critics gave the picture no more than such a rating in their reviews. A number of them have, in fact, panned the picture for its weak story and have pointed out that it wastes the talents of such fine performers as Crosby and Kaye. The picture, however, is doing top business, despite the adverse reviews, and the logical reason, as any usher knows, is the commercial value of the title and the drawing power of the stars.

As has been pointed out in these columns from time to time, Paramount, ever since it introduced VistaVision to the trade last March, has consistently practiced deceit in trying to build it up as being something more than the mere photographic process that it is. There is no need to recount specific examples of this deceit, for they have been cited by this paper and are well known to its readers. Suffice it to say that Balaban's current effort to use the boxoffice success of "White Christmas" to convince the exhibitors that VistaVision is a drawing factor at the boxoffice is another example of this deceit, and it certainly has all the earmarks of the opening gun in a campaign to persuade the exhibitors to come through with higher rentals for pictures that have been photographed in VistaVision.

But it is doubtful if the exhibitors who have seen VistaVision, as well as those who have played "White Christmas," will be taken in by this deceit, for they now know, as this paper has pointed out from the start, that the process offers no more than a picture of the conventional wide-screen type, except that it is somewhat sharper and brighter. And they know also that the improvement in the photography is not noticeable enough to the average moviegoer to make any difference at the boxoffice.

To get back to Balaban's statement, he points out that, from the start, his company "was unwilling to rush into adopting any wide-screen system technically not yet perfected and which would place an undue economic burden on our customer, the exhibitor." It does not take a mastermind to understand that Balaban is referring to CinemaScope. Let us, however, take a look at the record to see if his effort to knock CinemaScope while boosting VistaVision can stand up in face of the facts.

As of today, there are more than 14,000 theatres throughout the world that are equipped to show CinemaScope productions. Of this total, 10,500 are in the United States and Canada, and 3,500 in foreign countries. At the rate of current installations, it is estimated that, by the end of July, more than 13,000 domestic theatres will be equipped, with the figure in foreign countries reaching 7,500.

Production-wise, the record shows that, with the exception of Paramount and Republic, all the American film companies as well as many foreign producers are making CinemaScope pictures, and it is estimated that 125 such pictures will be produced during 1955.

These statistics provide the irrefutable proof that CinemaScope, which has been on the market for only fifteen months, has earned world-wide acceptance and acclaim. Moreover, it is generally agreed within the industry that CinemaScope, more than any other factor, rekindled the public's interest in the movies and was responsible for the industry's comeback in 1954.

As to VistaVision, that process was introduced to the trade in March of 1954, and in the ten months that have passed not one American producing company, other than Paramount itself, has either utilized the process to date or announced its intention to use it on a specific picture. Overseas, the only foreign producer to take up VistaVision is J. Arthur Rank, and in his case there is a question as to whether he was motivated by a sincere belief in the value of the process or by a desire to combat 20th Century-Fox in his continuing conflict with that company over CinemaScope.

In his statement, Balaban points out that he is confident that "the real technical and financial future of our industry rests upon the ultimate photographing and projecting of motion pictures standardized on the principles of the horizontal VistaVision camera," but it is apparent from the record that, aside from himself, and possibly, J. Arthur Rank, other production executives are not of the same mind, for they seem to be ignoring VistaVision even though it is being hailed by Balaban as "Paramount's gift to the industry." And if Balaban thinks that high-sounding phrases and high-powered ballyhoo are enough to convince the exhibitors that VistaVision itself is a plus factor at the boxoffice, he will soon learn that he is fooling no one but himself.

THE KISS BIT: Cleo Moore, known for her kisses and other physical characteristics, was in Philadelphia doing some publicity for Columbia's "Woman's Prison" as well as to raise some dough for the March of Dimes. At TV station WPTZ, she was to kiss someone who would then proceed to turn handsprings right out of the studio.

The only physically-equipped volunteer was the show's director who has experience with flips but not with Moore, who kissed him and at the same time lifted ten bucks from said director for the campaign. We never did get to find out if he really "flipped his lid" afterwards or not.

ADVANCEMENT NOTE: One minute you're leading patrons to their seats at the Trans-Lux 85th Street and the next thing you know you're one of the stars in Warners' forthcoming dramatic triumph, "East Of Eden," by John Steinbeck. Or at least that's what Warners claims happened to Richard Davalos a few months ago. Nobody bothered to supply any of the gory in-between details.

DOUGH DEPARTMENT: Peter Dana, connoisseur of food and eastern district manager, Universal-International, has a wonderful mailing piece out plugging company product which he swears will make for a bulging boxoffice. After properly getting fat on a U-I diet, Pete then urges that weight be taken off and obligingly provides a calorie chart.

Well, we can't complain of a bulging boxoffice but those other bulges, wowie. That calorie thing might come in handy some day.

THE METROPOLITAN SCENE: Columbia moving their home office to 711 Fifth Avenue in April??? . . . Print of "Oklahoma" (CinemaScope version) was supposed to have been sneaked in a suburban house with very good reaction. . . . 20th Century-Fox and McGraw-Hill Books concentrating on a joint drive to publicize both the picture and book on "A Man Called Peter," with newspapers the country over, book stores, department stores, etc., getting ads, display material, etc. Dealers are urged to get together with exhibitors on a local level. There's a special movie edition off the presses tagged at $1.98. . . . Wherever "Cinerama Holiday" opens, there shall a special rug be spread. Thus it was written in a Lynn Farnol press release that a firm has been commissioned to weave a magnificent carpet of red and gold and containing a "CH" monogram in its exact center. Said rug is to usher audiences into flights of fancy and magic travel. Away we go. . . . If any of you movie or TV producers want to use the Palisades Amusement Park for backdrops it can very easily be arranged. They'll even throw in the facilities available. . . . Okeh pressbooks are out on "The Racers" and "Romeo And Juliet." . . . Catherine Marshall, whose "A Man Called Peter" has been a best seller, will make a special tour to New York from her Washington home to see the first screening of the filmization of the story at the Fox home office.

Tushinsky Names Italian Superscope Distributors

HOLLYWOOD—Joseph and Irving Tushinsky have appointed Nicole Bezzaro and Castelli and Company as Italian distributors of lenses and to handle deals for Superscope process with producers, it was reported last week.

The deal followed reports that 25 Italian film producers will make approximately 50 features in Superscope in the next 12 months.

The new distributors have formed a company to handle Superscope interests which will be known as Societa Italiana Superscope, with home offices in Rome, and branch offices in eight other cities. Branches will be located in Bolobna, Milan, Florence, Venice, Naples, and Genoa, and also on the islands of Sicily and Sardinia. The first shipment of lenses has already been made to the new company.

UA Drive Nears Close

NEW YORK—As United Artists' Bob Benjamin Drive rolls toward the March 5 wind-up and distribution of $50,000 in cash prizes, the Washington, Cleveland, and New Haven exchanges have moved into the lead in the overall standings it was announced last week by co-captains William J. Heineman, vice-president in charge of distribution, and B. G. Kranze, general sales manager.

The front-running branches in the six-month salute to UA's board chairman are headed by Sidney Cooper, Washington; Dave Rosenthal, Cleveland; and Irving Mendelson, New Haven.

Murphy Speaks On Product

NEW YORK—George Murphy, MGM studio public relations head, told a luncheon of the Film Estimate Board of National Organizations that the major motion picture studios of Hollywood are striving to find the proper level in providing enough product to utilize all available playing time in theatres.

Murphy told the gathering of 200 film reviewers that the motion picture industry depends on the public's acceptance and good will, and that the reactions of unbiased film reviewers give producers an idea of what the public wants for entertainment.

About People

NEW YORK—B. B. Kreisler, head, International Film Associates Corporation, left last week on a four-week trip to the film centers in each of the countries of South America. His first stop is Caracas, Venezuela. Kreisler will follow through the preliminary negotiations for the distribution in each country of the Italian feature, "High Time," and the French feature, "Paris Affair," which IFA holds for South America. This also includes the American feature, "Garden Of Eden," for Argentina and Brazil. South American pictures considered favorable for the United States market after screening in each film center will be negotiated for IFA handling.

NEW YORK—Phil Reisman, president, Michael Todd Productions, has accepted the co-chairmanship of the motion pictures committee for the 1955 premiere of the Ringling Brothers and Barnum and Bailey Circus to be held at Madison Square Garden on March 30 for the benefit of the New York Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation, it was announced last week by Richard C. Patterson, Jr., former United States Ambassador, who is general chairman of the benefit. Reisman's committee will cooperate by selling blocks of tickets for the event which it is hoped will be identified that evening as the "Motion Picture Section."

NEW YORK—Jeraldine Cooper has been retained by Continental Distributing, Inc., for special exploitation and promotional work on the American premiere of "To Paris With Love," Frank Kassler, Continental president, disclosed last week. Kassler said Miss Cooper will develop national tie-ins and special New York promotions for the film which is scheduled to premiere at the Fine Arts in early April.

NEW YORK—Harry Cohn, Columbia president, last week announced the assignment of Walter Shenson to London and the appointment of Robert Joseph to be studio contact for the home office exploitation and advertising staff.

Shenson will co-ordinate publicity and exploitation for Columbia films produced in Europe. Joseph resigned as Kling Studios' publicity director to accept the Columbia position.

HOLLYWOOD—Harold Lewis last week was appointed studio manager of 20th-Fox's Western Avenue studios which are being converted and retooled for television production, according to an announcement by Sid Rogell, studio executive production manager. Lewis, formerly manager, Pathe studios. and head, RKO location department, will assume his new duties immediately.

NEW YORK—Paul J. Quinn, formerly with Donovan, Leisure, Newton, and Irvine, has been appointed attorney in charge of litigation for RKO, the position previously held by Peter F. Pugliese, who resigned to join Bell Telephone of Pennsylvania as its general attorney, it was announced last week by J. Miller Walker, vice-president and general counsel for RKO.

Schwalberg Leaves Paramount; May Join Gregory-Goldman

NEW YORK—The resignation of A. W. Schwalberg as president of Paramount Film Distributing Coporation was announced last week by Barney Balaban, president, Paramount Pictures Corporation.

Schwalberg has headed the organization since 1950. He first joined the company in 1948 as executive assistant to the general sales manager.

Schwalberg's resignation will not take place until after the world premiere of "Strategic Air Command," due in mid-April.

Balaban said he announced the resignation "with a deep sense of regret, both personally and from the standpoint of the company." He added that Schwalberg would announce his new affiliation shortly.

It was reported that Schwalberg would become the new producer's representative for Lopert Films and Gregory-Goldman Enterprises. Schwalberg declined to comment, but it was said that he would "handle distribution of a select group of important motion pictures."

Movie News Widely Read

NEW YORK—The 38th in the series of COMPO ads in Editor and Publisher, which appeared last week prints the results of a newspaper survey which shows that movie news tops news of television-radio, sports, and food in reader interest. The findings were made by the Daniel Starch organization, an independent research outfit, on a basis of three separate issues (one a month) of "a great metropolitan newspaper."

While interest in sports attracted a slightly larger percentage of men readers and the food page a slightly larger percentage of women readers, the overall interest in movies was the highest of all four classifications studied.

"To become crassly commercial," the ad says, "only two of the classifications are to any important degree revenue producing: food and movies. But aside from that, it should be obvious that a good movie department commands wide readership."

Good Fourth Quarter Hypos E-K Earnings

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—Paced by a good fourth quarter, consolidated net sales of Eastman Kodak Company for 1954 amounted to $633,457,838, almost equal to the 1953 record sales of $633,668,918, Thomas J. Hargrave, chairman, and Albert K. Chapman, president, reported in the annual statement last week.

Fourth quarter consolidated net sales rose to $202,610,846, a four per cent increase above the corresponding 1953 amount of $194,327,992, the previous fourth quarter record. Hargrave and Chapman said that 1954 was one of the company's best years.

Kodak's photographic business, including an increased demand for color products, helped produce the high sales volume.

The Kodak executives also reported that pre-tax earnings as well as earnings after taxes were the best the company has had. Earnings before taxes were $144,968,534, an increase of nine per cent over the 1953 total of $133,449,168, the previous record. Net earnings were $69,821,719, up 39 per cent over the previous year's $50,171,153. Earnings amounted to $3.99 per share on the 17,402,784 shares of common stock outstanding compared to $2.86 per share earned in 1953 on 17,400,217 shares. The 1954 net amounted to 11 per cent of sales.

Cash dividends declared on common stock in 1954 amounted to $2.05 per share or $35,674,206, compared with $1.85 or $31,821,408 in 1953. In 1954 the company marked its 53rd consecutive year of dividend payments.

Travelers Aid Lauds Cinerama

NEW YORK—Simon H. Fabian, pesident, Stanley Warner Corporation, and Louis de Rochemont, producer of "Cinerama Holiday," were each presented with citations by the Travelers Aid Society, sponsors of the "Cinerama Holiday" world premiere, at a special ceremony held last week during an after-theatre reception in the home of Mrs. Ellen Lehman McCluskey.

In making the presentations, Richard C. Patterson, city commissioner of public events, noted that the Cinerama medium had done so much to stimulated travel and that the premiere of "Cinerama Holiday" was a "most appropriate way to launch Travelers Aid Society's Golden Anniversary."

Mexico Sees Superscope

HOLLYWOOD—The Mexican motion picture industry will definitely go anamorphic on its 1955 product. That is the report of Superscope President Joseph Tushinsky upon returning last week from Mexico City where he demonstrated his Superscope process before top-level members of the Mexican cinema world.

Tushinsky revealed that Mexican producers and exhibitors delegated Cesar Santos Galindo, leading figure in Mexico's film industry, and James Fields, general manager, Churubusco Studios, to come to Hollywood to further confer on converting Mexican production this year to Superscope.

BETTER MANAGEMENT

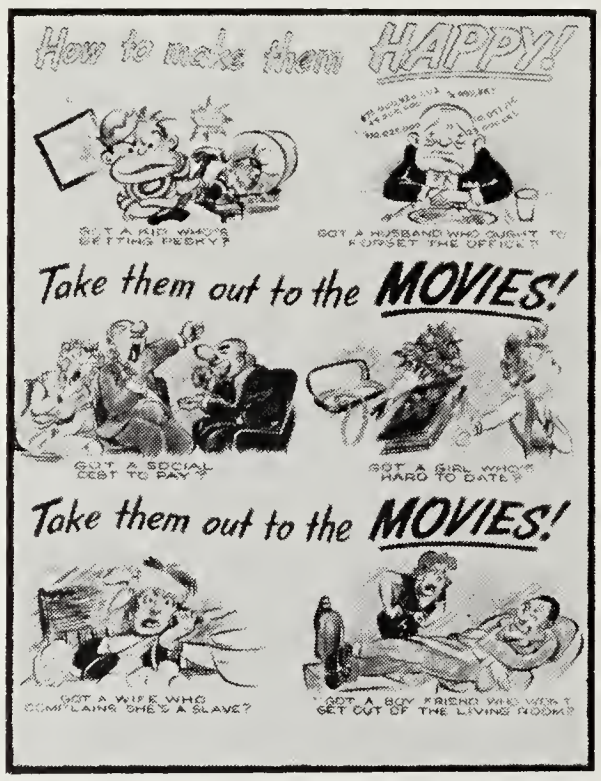
Valuable Exploitation Keys To Profitable Merchandising

Among the tours projected by MGM to publicize its celebration and product as its "Go To The Movies" campaign, Dorothy, the baby elephant from "Jupiter's Darling" was sent out on a visit to a number of key cities, with her trainers, The Widamans, going along to supervise the agenda in each city. In New Orleans, Dorothy got a big reception performing her bag of tricks at various points of interest, much to the delight of Jay Houch, Panorama, where the picture is set to open following the pachyderm's visit. Seen are Acting Mayor Victor Schiro presenting Dorothy with a key to the city and honorary citizenship as the trainers look on; in the lobby of the Panorama, where Dorothy's heart is lightened by the beautiful poster on "Jupiter's Darling"; and Dorothy on a visit to the New Orleans MGM exchange where she is seen with Ruth Buchmann, office manager's secretary; Ethel DeFraites, contact clerk; Waddy Jones, booker, Joy Theatres; Mrs. Widaman; Shirley Harris, biller; H. P. Mosley, salesman; Joann Mara, clerk-typist; Fay Boyd, contract clerk; Rose Buffet, booking clerk; Armand Portie, booker; Widaman; Louise Harper, booker; and Lynn Strain, clerk.

"Man Called Peter" Gets Church Backing

NEW YORK—In one of the most extensive public relations programs ever undertaken for a motion picture, 20th-Fox's "A Man Called Peter" will be previewed in 60 key cities during the week of March 21 for leading clergymen, prominent lay members of churches, and important opinion makers.

The program of advance showings of the film, scheduled for Easter holiday release nationally, will be effected through the cooperation and assistance of the National Council of the Churches of Christ in the United States, who will sponsor the special previews.



The 60-city showings for thousands of community and religious leaders will initiate unprecedented word-of-mouth campaigns for the romantic drama as well as to launch full-scale local-level campaigns with theatremen and the 20th-Fox field organization.

Announcement of the screening plan is contained in a letter written by W. P. Buckwalter, Jr., central department of field administration, National Council of Churches. In the letter which has been sent to key leaders in all denominational offices of the organization, Buckwalter writes, "Here is a distinct service that you can render to your constituency and through your leaders in the religious forces by arranging a preview for the key leaders in your community."

Cities where screenings have been arranged are New York, Buffalo, Rochester, Albany, Syracuse, Boston, Providence, New Haven, Hartford, Springfield, Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, Washington, Richmond, Harrisburg, Baltimore, Cincinnati, Detroit, Columbus, Dayton, Chicago, Indianapolis, Louisville, Milwaukee, Des Moines, and Kansas City.

Also Wichita, Minneapolis, Omaha, St. Louis, St. Paul, Lincoln, Atlanta, Birmingham, Nashville, Charlotte, Dallas, Ft. Worth, Houston, San Antonio, Jacksonville, Miami, St. Petersburg, Memphis, New Orleans, Oklahoma City, Tulsa, Denver, Los Angeles, Portland, San Francisco, Seattle, and San Diego. Previews in five other cities are currently being set up to bring the number to sixty.

The film company's field organization has been fully alerted and are contacting regional and local executives and representatives of the National Council of Churches to work out details for the opinion-makers previews. Plans call for theatre showings in the morning before the start of regular performances, with audiences of from 1,000 to 2,000.

Here are the cartoon characters of National Screen Service's new and unusual 30 x 40 and 40 x 60 full-color displays now being offered to theatres to boost the "Take Them Out to the Movies" habit. Clever comedy art combined with to-the-point movie selling copy make for a pair of the most unusual institutional posters yet offered exploitation-minded theatremen interested in building boxoffice.

NSS Cartoon Posters To Boost Moviegoing

NEW YORK—"How to Make Them Happy —Take Them Out to the Movies!" is the ticket-selling theme of a pair of new and unusual 30 x 40 and 40 x 60 full-color displays created by National Screen Service to stimulate movie attendance, it was announced last week by George F. Dembow, vice-president in charge of sales.

Designed with eye-catching cartoon comedy art and copy, these bright, colorful, and novel displays were developed for out-front and away-from-theatre exploitation to capture passerby attention. They can be used with window and inside-store displays for specific film attractions, with contests, as institutional displays by cooperative merchants seeking an eye-stopping poster, and in and around the theatre itself. Real-life situations of familiar everyday problems, amusingly caricatured, and logically answered by "Take Them Out to the Movies" give exhibitors a display message that should do much to boost the "Go to the Movies" habit.

"We have taken situations familiar to everyone," said Dembow, "and lampooned them with laugh-provoking cartoons that are certain not only to stop the viewer but compel him to look and read. Six hilarious scenes are presented in these cartoons, on both the 30 x 40 and 40 x 60 displays. The pesky kid, a nuisance around the house; the husband who brings his office worries home; the wife who complains she's a drudge; the boring couple from next door who are killing your evenings; the girl who is hard to date; and the boy friend who parks in the parlor night after night, all of them down-to-earth characters, are drawn for laughs. These full-color displays are a natural and inexpensive tool for exhibitors alive to the exploitation possibilities for building local good-will and the moviegoing habit."

PHYSICAL THEATRE

The modern drive-in of today has come to mean much more than just a place to see motion pictures. An outdoor theatre must now also provide such things as patios, complete concession facilities and large playgrounds for the children. This issue is devoted to a discussion of some of these practices.

Devoted exclusively to the theatre structure, its design, construction, furnishings, maintenance, and specialized equipment, with a special section for drive-ins, devoted to their design and operation.

THE MOST EFFECTIVE, LOWEST COST ADVERTISING MEDIUM FOR ANY THEATRE!

Wagner

ATTRACTION PANELS AND LETTERS

SHOWN IS AN INSTALLATION FOR THE MIRACLE MILE DRIVE-IN, TOLEDO, OHIO, MADE BY THE DISKEY ADVERTISING SERVICE, MARION, IND.

That's why more theatres install Wagner panels and letters than all other makes! Wagner offers panels which are large enough for plenty of powerful sales copy—letters in a variety of sizes and colors which permit more attractive displays and proper emphasis of features. Wagner alone offers frames and glass units which can be built without limitation of size and which can be economically serviced through open windows and without removing frames. They're stronger, and can be installed before installing the glass.

The exclusive tapered slotting of Wagner Translucent Plastic Letters causes them to "lock" on the mounting bar. Yet, they're the easiest to change of all letters. Only Wagner plastic letters can be stacked in storage without danger of warping. 5 sizes, 5 gorgeous colors . . . the widest range made.

NEVIOL

A MEANS OF BUILDING INCREASED PATRONAGE IS NOW AVAILABLE IN THE USE OF THE REVOLUTIONARY NEW WAGNER—

FLUORESCENT PLASTIC CHANGEABLE COPY LETTERS

(Neviol U. S. Pat. No. 2486859. Other patents pending).

—an entirely different type of letter, exclusive with Wagner and adaptable with economical modifications to all existing Wagner frames. Formed in clear plastic and processed with a newly developed and patented process fluorescent material, each of these letters, by the use of "black light" becomes a separate, actual light source not dependent on transmitted visible light or the translucence of the sign face. They Create Colored Light Rather Than Lighted Color.

DISTANT READABILITY WITHOUT GLARE

The extreme brightness and strikingly DIFFERENT colors, impossible with other letters, make them especially ideal for installations which are "hedged in" by an abundance of competing light. They are also unusually effective by natural daylight. The black light affords uniformity of illumination of every letter, virtually impossible with previous types of lighting.

GUARANTEED LONG LIFE

Not to be confused with signs which employed front illuminated fluorescent materials, these new letters are processed on the back and will not pass the ultra-violet rays of the sun. They are accordingly extremely fade-resistant.

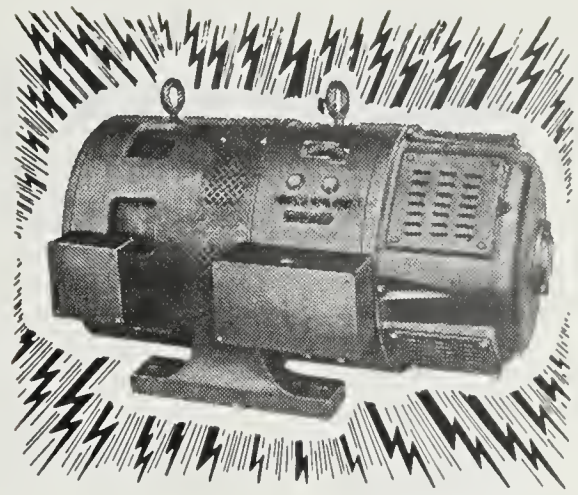
On The Line

The Ugly Duckling

By now the fact that drive-in theatres are still being constructed at a hot and heavy pace is no longer news. What is news, however, is that the outdoor theatre of today bears only a faint resemblance to the early operations. The differences are more than physical, for the entire conception of drive-in theatres has undergone a major change. As a result of this evolution the modern outdoor theatre is more and more taking on the appearance of a community center. A place which the public is learning to look to for many forms of entertainment and recreation in addition to the viewing of motion pictures.



It is no longer unusual for a drive-in to furnish its patrons with such things as full-sized playgrounds filled with manual and mechanical equipment, and under the watchful eyes of trained personnel. Concession buildings costing hundreds of thousands of dollars to construct and equip are capable of serving the patron anything from a cup of coffee to a regular meal. Landscaped terraces and colorful chairs and tables are also supplied in an atmosphere not unlike that of a country club. A few drive-ins have installed swimming pools, providing still another service to the customer. It is no longer uncommon for drive-in operators to turn over their theatres for church services. The list of things and services to be found in the drive-in of today is long and wonderfully varied. But the important thing to remember is that this branch of exhibition is becoming integrated into the very fabric of community life.

What started out as a rather unsavory ugly duckling has truly developed into a beautiful swan, as can be seen by the high esteen in which many operators of drive-in theatres are held, and their participation in many civic affairs. This form of exhibition has earned the respect of the public by doing everything possible to establish itself as as progressive and cooperative medium of entertainment.

The ever growing complexity of drive-in operation can be seen by the variety of articles found in this issue devoted entirely to the subject. Such things as new construction, wide screen towers, playground equipment, in-car speakers, etc., are just of the few factors to be considered.

While never losing sight of its primary objective, the showing of motion pictures, the drive-in shows every indication of continuing to widen its scope, and remain the exciting, animated form of exhibition that it has become today.

Thus, the screen light is ALWAYS of the same color, without variations from white to either blue or brown.

The arc is stabilized by a stream of air which prevents the hot tail flame of the arc from reaching the reflector, supplies enough oxygen so that no black soot is produced, and keeps white soot from collecting on the reflector in such quantity as to absorb heat which would cause breakage.

Drive-Ins And WIDE SCREENS

Leading Manufacturers and Engineers Offer Many Important Suggestions and Theories

PHYSICAL THEATRE

Vol. 10, No. 3 March 2, 1955

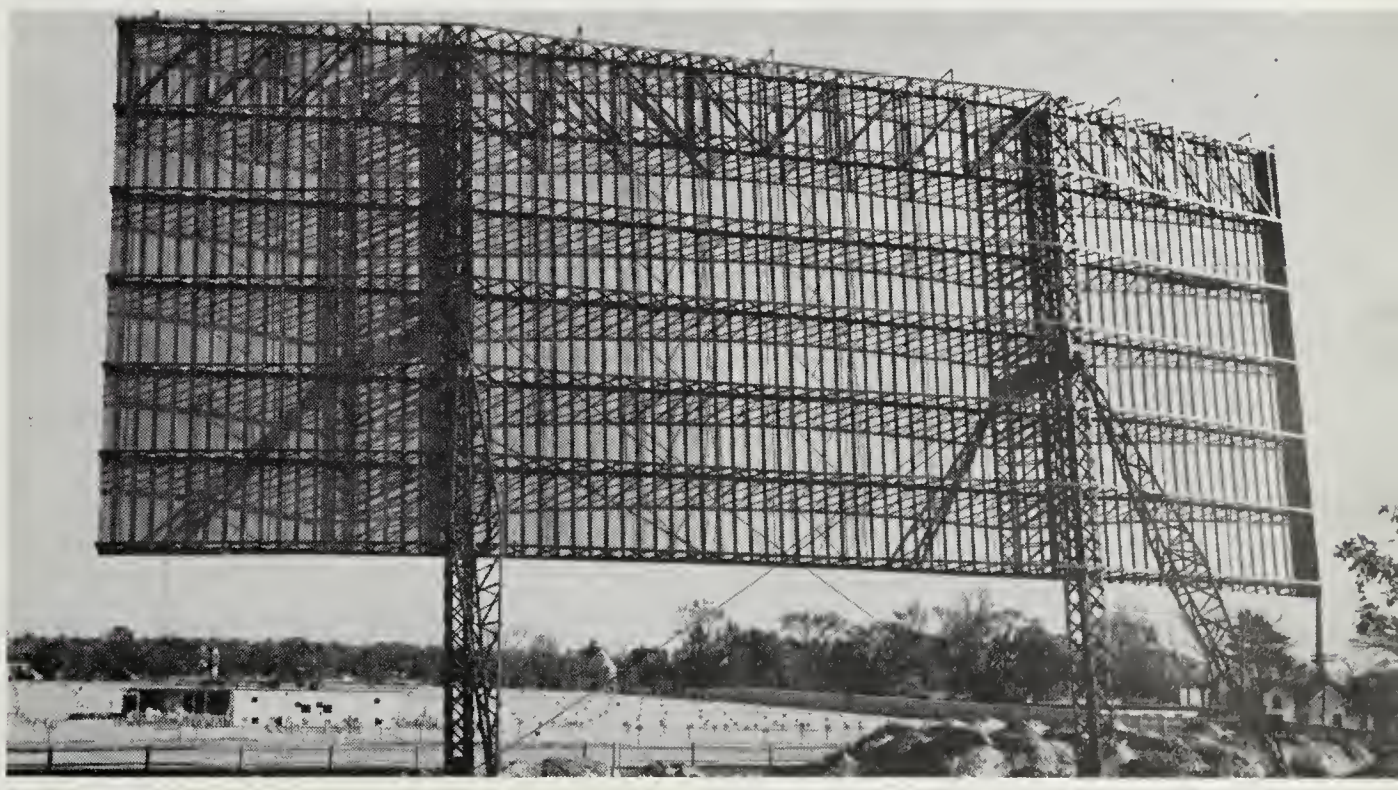
THE problem facing the great majority of drive-in operators today is that of installing the equipment necessary for the showing of CinemaScope, VistaVision and other wide screen offerings. At the heart of this problem is the screen tower. The exhibitor must ask himself whether it pays to widen his existing tower or put in a new tower, must it be of steel construction, what about facings, should it be curved, should it be tilted, etc.

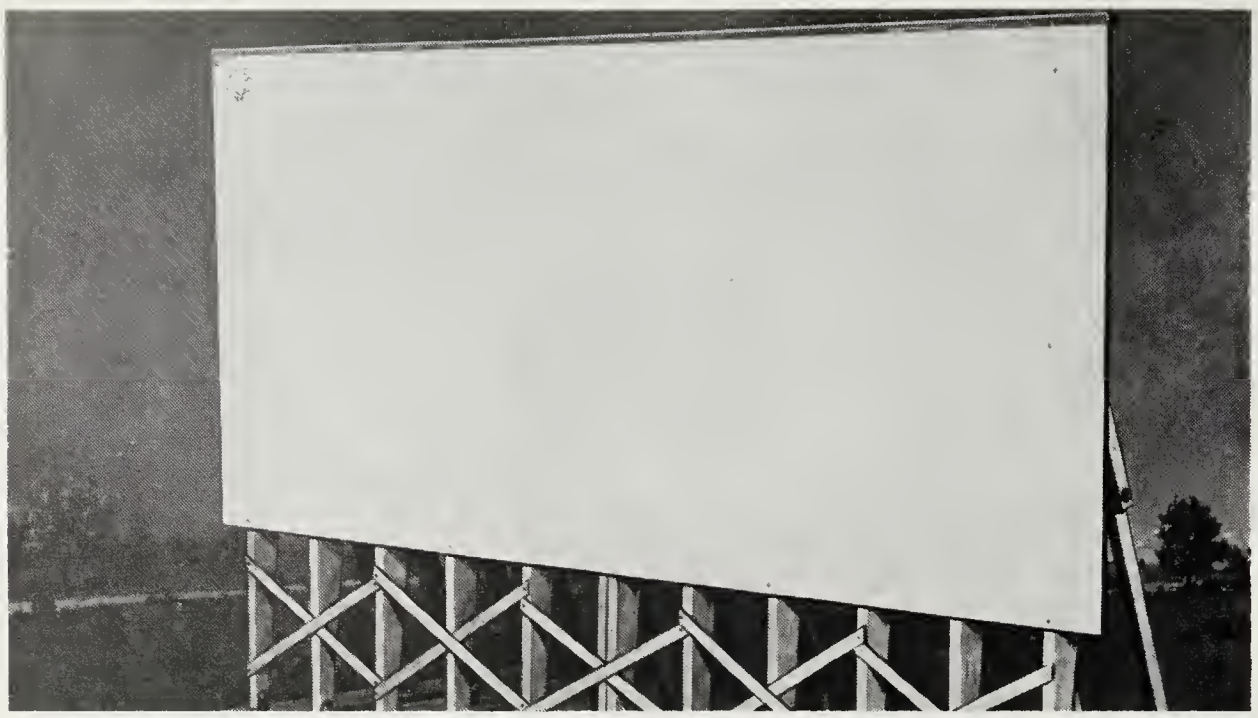
Naturally, there is no ONE answer to all of these questions. In almost every instance the answer will depend upon the individual theatre and local conditions.

In order to aid the reader in learning what the various screen manufacturers have been doing about the wide screen, and what they have to offer the outdcor theatre operator, we have requested that they supply us with their latest information on this very important subject. The following material, therefore, represents the opinions and recommendations of these manufacturers, and may be used as a guide for further investigation and personal consultation.

SIGNS, INC.



Modern cantilevered methods make it possible to design a screen tower with only two front columns, instead of the convention nine or 11 to do the same job. This feature eliminates what we think is an unsightly cross patch of framing and lends itself to a sleek design, and only requires four foundation piers instead of 18 or 22.



The use of the clevis pin or hinge arrangement at the base of the column has a number of advantages. If one drive-in has a projection booth 250 feet from the screen and another 400 feet from the screen, it is very simple to tilt the tower forward or backward on the hinge to be able to adjust the screen to the most accurate measure of degree. With this feature, the exhibitor can take advantage of every light gain offered by having the incident of light returned directly into the theatre.

As a result of our research and experience we believe that the curved screen has a number of advantages over the flat. The design we have developed has the curve fabricated into the steel structure, eliminating any hit or miss method of placing main trusses around the radius. Since this method of steel fabrication costs no more, the exhibitor should certainly take advantage of the many gains the curved screen has to offer. Some of these include excellent focus, maximum light gain, excellent distribution to the extreme ends, and an illusion of depth.

The ease of maintenance is an interesting feature. Since the horizontal trusses are only seven feet six inches apart, a man can walk up the laced columns, go about painting or servicing the structure without the use of scaffolding or rigging, as each truss acts as a staging platform. Outriggers are provided for servicing the screen face.

Regarding the surfacing of this screen no wood or vertical framing of any kind is necessary. There are no bolts or screws used on the picture face of the screen. The inter-locking systems provides its own vertical rib.

The finish, rolled and stipled on the background, gives a wonderful white matte finish, and also retains its whiteness for a longer length of time due to its unusual flaking action.

New Development

For those parts of the country which are subject to very severe wind storms, we have developed a system to definitely prevent the towers from being damaged. We have put in a tower at a Wometco drive-in, in Florida, which allows for the removal of a pin at the base of the tower, and by using a winch the entire tower may be lowered to the ground. Therefore, with advance warning of a major hurricane the exhibitor can lower the tower and raise it when the danger is past. We would like to stress, however, that this action would only be necessary for a major wind storm, as these towers are so constructed that they will withstand almost any weather disturbance.

BALLANTYNE COMPANY

The new type of Boyer EZ-Erect prefabricated sectional screen tower, which was developed by drive-in theatre engineers who are specialists in the field, has extreme strength and unlimited flexibility.

Realizing the importance of public safety, the new restrictions being placed by insurance companies, and the new state codes and regulations which are going into effect, this tower has been designed to withstand 35 pounds of wind pressure per square foot.

Another item foremost in thought during the design of this new tower was the high expense involved in the erection. Accordingly, this tower is so designed that it can be entirely assembled and painted on the ground, and then raised into position. The pressure laminated reinforced leg trusses are made in two sections so that they can first be handled by manual labor, eliminating the cost of renting equipment for unloading and placing trusses into position. Also, the trusses can be shipped by common carrier, affording a large savings in shipping charges.

A view of an all-steel tower erected by DIT-MCO. This firm has found the most efficient aspect ratio for drive-ins converting to CinemaScope and other wide screen systems to be 2 to 1 or 2.55 to 1.

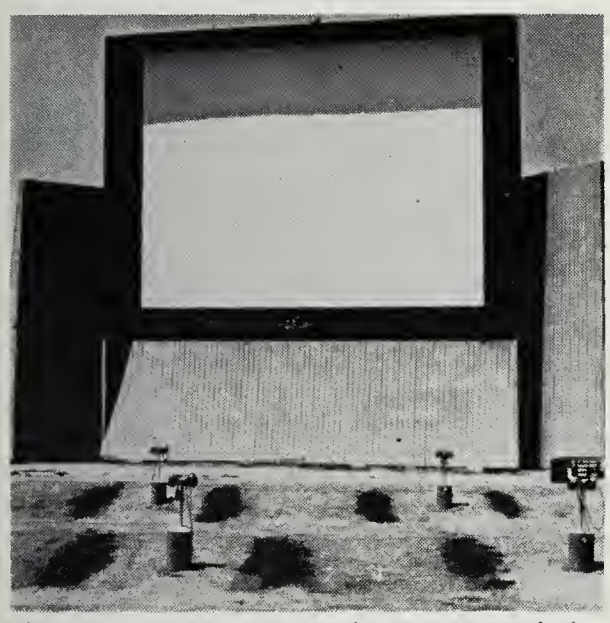
Suitable For Extensions

This type truss is also adaptable for perfect extension of present towers. Designed for erection up to 10 feet on centers, facing can be extended as much as 28 feet by using only two trusses. One truss is placed 10 feet from the edge of the present tower and the surfaced four feet resulting in a 14-foot extension. Applied to both sides of the tower total extension is, of course, 28 feet. The total width of the extensions are unlimited, inasmuch as trusses can be placed on any center desired up to 10 feet and surfacing can be extended any amount desired up to four feet.

Method Of Purchasing

One of the highlights of the new tower or extension is the manner in which it can be purchased. Many exhibitors in order to create local good will prefer to buy as much material as possible from local sources. In order to permit the exhibitor to take advantage of this, the tower is so designed that the exhibitor can purchase complete trusses only, purchasing the balance of materials locally. For those who desire to buy a complete unit, we, of course, will supply the tower in its entirety. If trusses only are purchased, we will supply complete assembly drawings with the truss, complete concrete footing details with all necessary iron sheer plates, and necessary hardware. For those exhibitors who wish to purchase the surface material locally, we will supply complete material lists along with erection details.

Rilco Laminated Products, Inc., makes laminated trusses to form drive-in screen framing members.



Listed below is a table showing basic screen widths and screen widths obtainable with extensions. At the bottom of the chart, the number of trusses needed in each instance are shown. Maximum screen height is 64 feet.

DIT-MCO

The drive-in theatre has joined the march to multi-purpose screens, so they too may effectively present CinemaScope and wide presentation of standard prints, and the new ratios of other releases. Such conversion demands careful study by the engineer and exhibitor, for both the new drive-in and existing drive-ins who plan to widen their present towers. In the case of the latter, we strongly urge the exhibitor to only widen his tower and not attempt to increase height. The foundation of your present tower is calculated for the weight and stresses of that tower. Increasing height naturally adds to the weight and therefore will weaken the calculated resistance of your present tower. Height can be increased, but it is a costly procedure, to have the resistance required by state codes and insurance companies.

Today it is an established fact that the drive-in screen tower cannot be considered just another structure that any local mechanic can throw together with little or no thought. State building codes have become more stringent, realizing the importance of public safety. Insurance companies, after replacing many towers of cheap design, are revising their requirements and rates. The recent chain of events, the three hurricanes, wide screens and CinemaScope, have proved beyond the question of doubt, the economies of having a steel screen tower in the drive-in theatre.

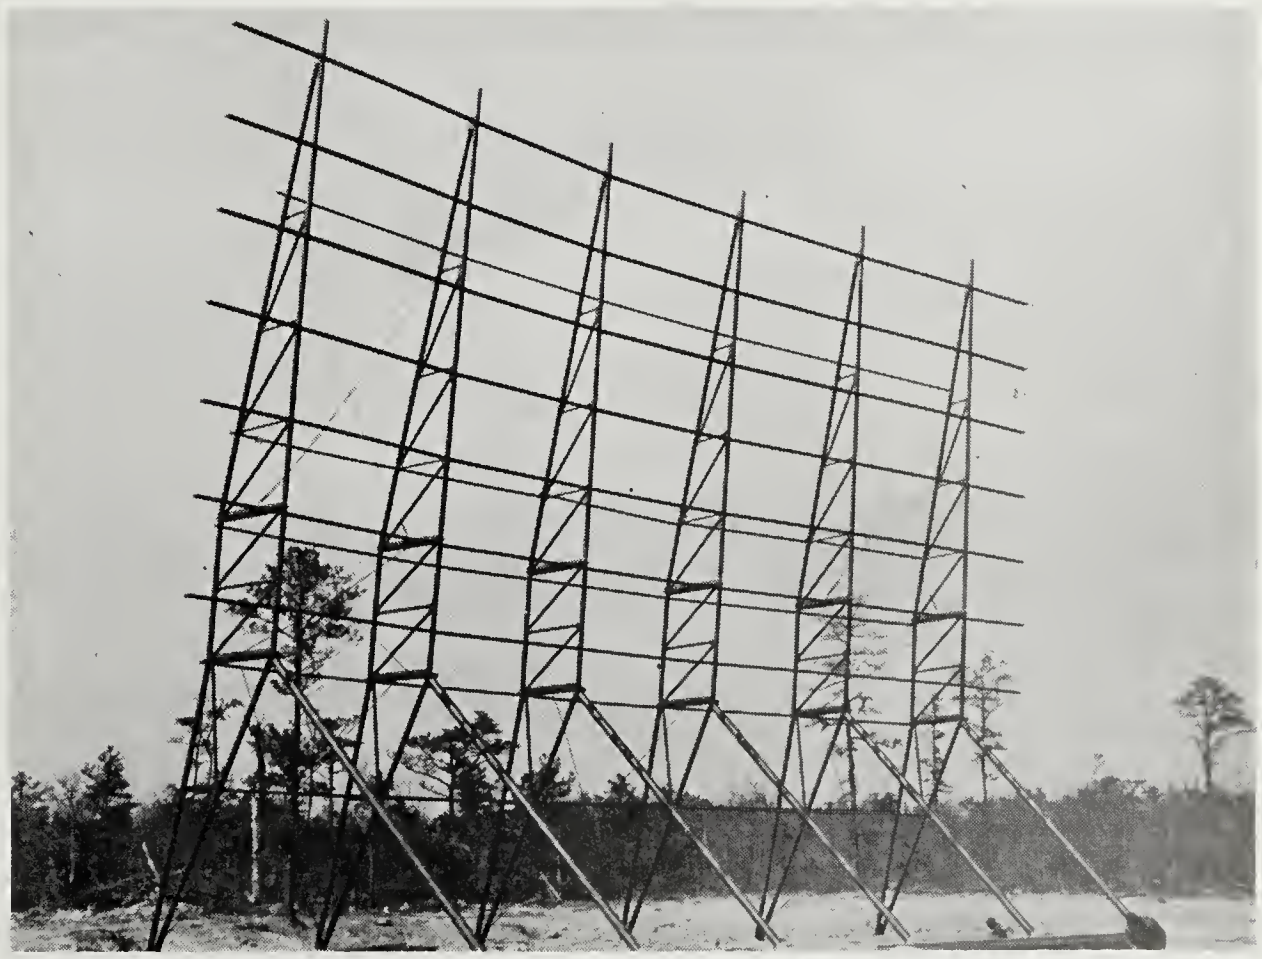
The Kawneer Company produces a screen facing material that is said to give very good results.

In two states, the recent hurricanes made over 75 drive-in theatres inoperative, due to the cheaper type towers not being able to withstand the stresses imposed. Also several drive-ins were recently closed, due to their towers having been destroyed by fire. Many exhibitors are finding that it is too costly to extend their present towers, due to inadequate foundation and tower design, and are putting in a completely new tower.

An Individual Problem

The design and calculation of each tower and foundation should be on an individual basis and not on a production basis, where one model is supposed to fit all occasions. Before a tower is designed, many all important questions must be answered. Topography deserves every consideration; equipment limitations; the number of cars; projection throw; maximum viewing distance; sight lines, and efficient positioning of screen for maximum brilliance of picture, are all very important pre-determining factors. The design of drive-in towers should be done only by competent engineers who are specialists in their field, having designed towers for several years.

The Manco-Vision screen was developed by the Motion Picture Research Council and is made of extruded aluminum panels. This screen is said to positively deliver a 300 per cent light increase.



To withstand the actual force exerted upon vertical surfaces of screen towers, by winds of various velocities, our steel towers are designed for a minimum of 30 pounds to the square foot with an ample addition of safety factor. The foundation design is such, to accommodate not only the calculated weight of the tower, facing and boxing, and to hold on extreme wind stresses, but also has ample safety factors added. These towers employ only I beam and angle iron steel members and do not use other types of tubular members, thus adding to the rigidity and endurance of their towers. A steel screen tower designed for your individual theatre is your assurance of continued operation, low insurance rates and minimum maintenance costs.

The steel screen tower in the new drive-in at Somerville, N. J., furnished by us, is one of the largest in the country, having a picture size of 50 by 120 feet and an overall size of 75 by 120 feet. The tower was designed for this theatre by John and Drew Eberson, nationally known theatre architects and engineers, of New York City. Working closely with Eberson and Harry Appleman, owner, our engineers produced a tower to their specifications. This tower stood untouched by the recent storms.

Ratio Recommendations

For new drive-ins or those converting for the wide screen ratios and CinemaScope, our experience across the country has shown the most efficient ratio to consider is 2 to 1 or 2.25 to 1. Our recommendations are based on consultations with theatre engineers, architects and purchasing agents from every section of the country. For example, if the present picture size of a tower is 40 by 54, at 2 to 1, the suggested size would be 40 by 80, or at 2.25 to 1 it would be 40 by 90. This will

A Leading Expert Explains Exactly How The Drive-In Speaker Brought

Sound Outdoors

By DAVE WOLF
President, Dawo Corp.

BEFORE World War II the applications for loudspeakers for outdoor theatre operation were extremely limited and for the most part those applications were of a nature that could tolerate expensive design and relatively poor response characteristics. The problem of producing low cost speakers which would give long service in the field under constant exposure to the elements, was presented to the loudspeaker industry after World War II when outdoor theatres became extremely popular. In the early phases of the expansion of the outdoor theatre industry, speakers which had been designed for use in radio receivers were used, but their life in the field was short and the theatre operators suffered from the cost of frequent replacement and the embarrassment of frequent failure during programs.

Causes of Failure

Failures for the most part were due to:

1. The rusting of surfaces around the voice coil which impeded and sometimes prevented movement of the coil.
2. The weakening or destruction of the paper cone and other parts by insects and fungi.
3. Mechanical damage through more punishing treatment than that encountered in home receivers.
4. Inadequate dustproofing.
5. Distortion and deterioration of the cone and voice coil.

A great deal of progress toward the elimination of these failures has been made in the past six or seven years. None of the problems would have been difficult except, as is so often the case in design engineering, corrections had to be made without increasing the cost beyond the ability of the theatre operator to pay, and without degrading performance below the standard of the radio receiver in the listener's home. The speaker had to faithfully reproduce frequencies up to 8000 cycles as some of the programs in the theatre were musical. If only voice range had been required the problem would have been much simpler.

Present Speakers

Speakers presently are giving service up to two to three years under the most adverse conditions and the cost of the speakers is little above that of the ordinary speaker which does not have to endure the punishment of outdoor use. This improvement has been achieved by the following measures:

1. Air gap surfaces are either double plated, or in the case of those used in the Dawo Acousticraft speakers, are plated and then painted with a varnish in which is suspended aluminum particles. This aluminum finish is fired at temperatures of 400 degrees Fahrenheidt. Among other advantages, it has the quality of flowing into and sealing any punctures in the plating. Rust or any other corrosion except in the air gap is not worrisome as it will not cause any impairment or failure in the operation of the unit.

2. All parts which might be deemed edible by a passing insect or strain of fungi are either eliminated or given a proper preventive treatment. As a case in point, it was discovered early in the game that the felt disk ordinarily used to seal the voice coil against dust was extremely appetizing to many insects, so this part has been replaced by a paper piece which is treated with a fungicidal solution.

3. Since speakers are more often than not dropped by the theatre patron from car window height to the hard surface of the theatre the magnet and pole piece must be soldered into the structure in such a way that the speaker will take the conventional four foot drop test without altering the alignment of the parts. Furthermore, the voice coil should be perfectly positioned in the magnetic gap at the time of manufacture so that a slight distortion of the metal frame can be tolerated.

4. Dustproofing as accomplished for speakers used in the home is not adequate. A filler must be applied around any joint which is even suspected of not being completely sealed. In the case of the Dawo Acousticraft speakers this seal is accomplished through the use of the aluminum varnish which flows into even the slightest crevice. Here again, the use of the paper disk instead of the felt disk is advantageous because felt is coarsely woven and will pass fine particles which accumulate and cause an impairment of performance.

5. The cone must be given a treatment which will cause it to resist the absorption of moisture. This treatment necessarily represents a compromise because a too extensive application of the solution has an adverse effect on sensitivity and response characteristics. If the treatment is properly made, moisture absorption is held to a minimum and a high quality of performance is preserved. A fungicidal agent is incorporated in the moisture resistant treatment. Here again, a means of adjusting the position of the voice coil in the magnetic gap proves of great advantage. If the coil is precisely positioned by the loudspeaker manufacturer slight lateral movement of the coil due to moisture absorption and subsequent expulsion will not cause it to rub against the sides of the gap.

Efficiency Factors

The relative efficiency of a speaker depends upon the maintaining of a minimum weight of the voice coil and the cone, and the flexibility of movement of the cone, these factors being necessary in order to overcome inertia, which is the process of the starting and the stopping of the speaker cone in the completion of the sine wave constructed by the frequency being transmitted. Therefore, since it is good practice in the construction of the speaker to let the mass weight of the cone equal the mass weight of the voice coil, any addition to the speaker which would throw this ratio out of balance, or would add weight to either the voice coil or the cone would have a detrimental effect on the efficinecy of the speaker.

From time to time plastic covers, perforated materials or other additives for the theoretical protection of the speaker have been added to drive-in theatre speakers, and have tended to decrease the efficiency of the speaker by interruption of the air column. This has made it necessary to increase the weight of the magnet of the speaker in order to overcome the additional back pressures which then creates an additional cost without increasing the efficiency. A speaker operates primarily by the projection of sound waves in an air column. This column which originates at the speaker cone carries the sound waves, and the less obstruction and the less additives used naturally will allow the speaker to operate at a much greater efficiency. However, at the same time that we maintain the air column at the front of the speaker cone we must relieve the pressure of the air at the back of the cone. Since air is compressable and has the tendency to back pressure itself, this can be accomplished in several ways, primarily by having a large acoustical chamber properly designed, which is the speaker case, or in the design of the drive-in theatre speaker where the size of the case is limited it is necessary to have pressure relief holes in the case in order to overcome the back pressure generated by the speaker. Basically this means that the air

PERFECT LIGHT MAINTAINED WITHOUT MANUAL ADJUSTMENTS!

Strong's exclusive Lightronic crater-positioning system automatically maintains the correct arc gap length and the position of the positive arc crater at the EXACT focal point of the reflector. No manual adjustments are necessary. A perfect light is maintained at the screen . . . a powerful light, evenly distributed, of constant intensity, and unchanging color value.

Burning 10 mm "Hitex" carbons at 135 amperes, or 11 mm regular carbons at 120 amperes, impartial foot-candle-meter tests prove the Strong "Super 135"

THE MOST POWERFUL OF ALL PROJECTION LAMPS!

The Infra-Ban Beam Cooler Unit diverts the heat rays away from the aperture, making possible a tremendous increase in usable light without a corresponding increase in heat at the aperture.

A stream of air directed just above the arc stabilizes its burning and prevents the deposit of soot on the reflector.

PEOPLE GO MORE OFTEN TO THE THEATRE WHICH HAS GOOD PROJECTION

Do you have an UNUSUAL problem in screen lighting? Be governed by experience, not speculation. Here's an invitation to information and helpful service that will in no way obligate you. We're at the right hand of the biggest buyers of theatre equipment—advising them, helping them iron out their projection lighting problems. We'll be glad to get on the job for you, too. Don't guess—put your problems up to specialists.

As the only lamps produced complete within one factory, Strong lamps can be screen-engineered for maximum efficiencies. That's why more dealers sell and more theatres buy Strong-made projection arc lamps than any other make.

All the theatres in the world today would be needed to accommodate the installation of all the projection arcs that have been built by Strong. And their popularity continues to grow like wildfire!

When the lamps are STRONG the picture is bright!

Strong has also developed new rectifiers with a range of from 90 to 135 amperes to fill the power requirements of all the systems of screen presentation.

AN ARTIST'S SKETCH SHOWING WHAT THE COMPLETED HOLIDAY DRIVE-IN WILL LOOK LIKE WHEN IT OPENS. IT WILL HAVE A 1000-CAR CAPACITY.

Presently Under Construction, The Holiday Represents

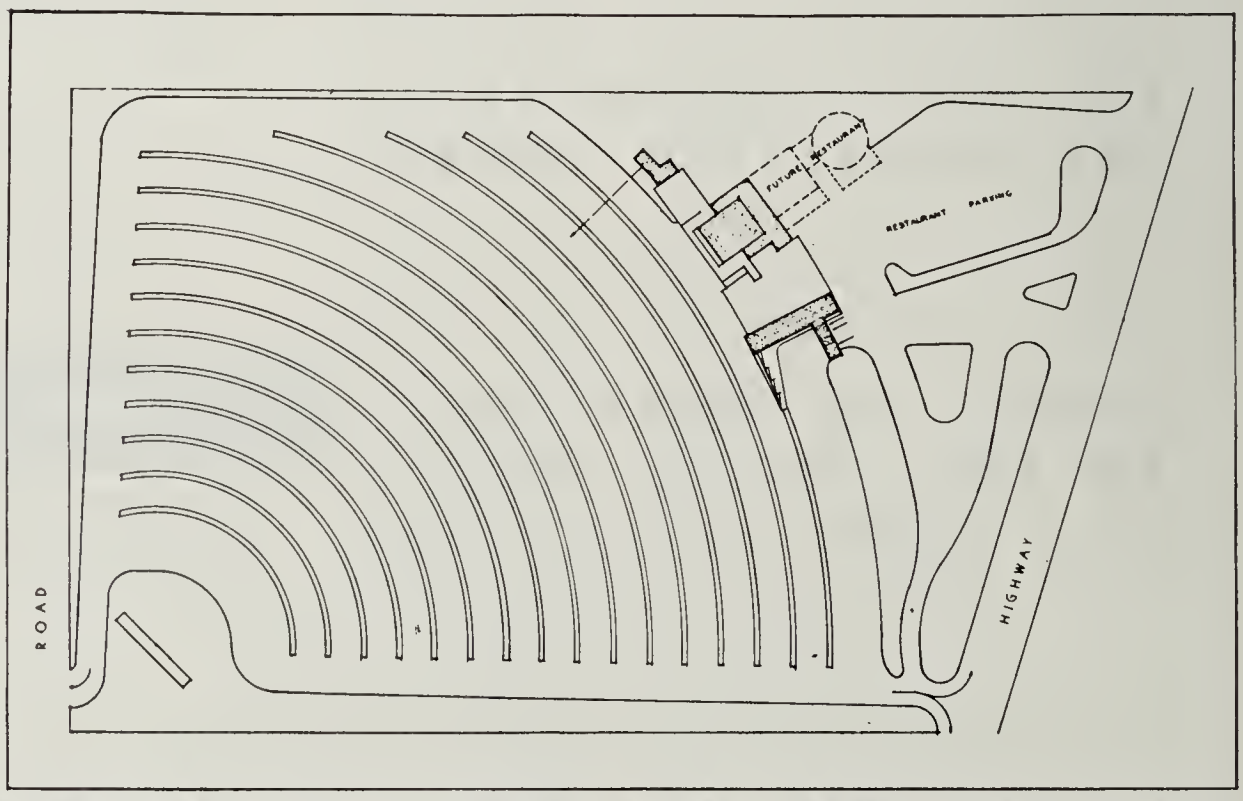
A Drive-In With A Future

THE New Holiday Drive-In, designed to be one of the finest and most modern drive-in motion picture theatres, now under construction and scheduled for completion early next spring, will make available to the St. Louis area theatre-going public something unique in year around outdoor recreation and entertainment.

The project, which will cost in excess of $450,000, will be owned and operated by the Jablonow-Komm Theatres, veteran operators of drive-ins and a chain of conventional motion picture theatres in St. Louis.

The Holiday Drive-In designed by Gerhardt Kramer Associates, is planned to accommodate approximately 1000 cars with a single panoramic screen 62 feet high and 102 feet wide. This screen with an A frame and plywood surfacing, tongue and groove, will be built by Timber Structures, Inc., while electric car heaters will be provided for 500 cars for the all-winter operation, thereby eliminating the dangerous practice of the patrons using their automobile heaters.

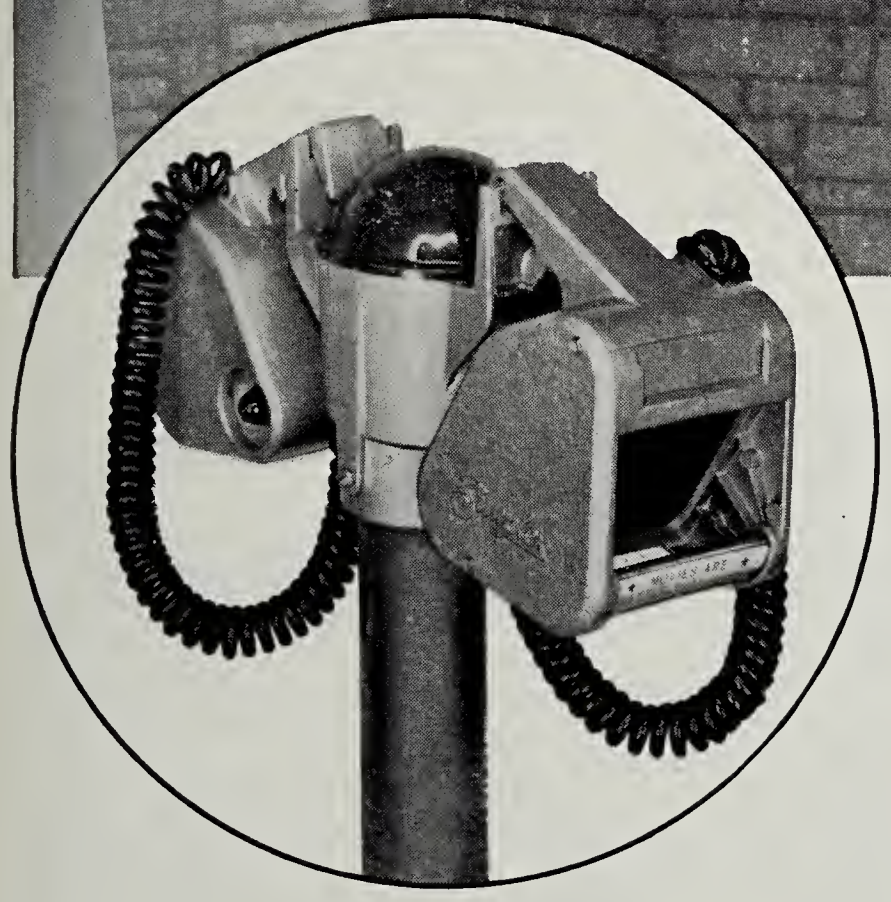
In design and conception the Holiday represents a great step forward in the drive-in field. All of the buildings—the concession section, projection room, restaurant (planned for the future), garage, offices, ticket booths, as well as the playground—are grouped on the 16th ramp.



The restaurant, which would have its own parking facilities and a direct access from Page Avenue, is not included in the construction now in progress, but is definitely planned for the future.

Patron Services

The air-conditioned concession building is designed to serve as a massive observation balcony for the patrons, and it will contain four self-service counters to assure speedy service even where there are capacity crowds. A large number of dining tables will be provided so that patrons may view the motion picture screen as they eat their food. Entrance and exit doors of the concession building will be controlled by Magic Carpet equipment. For summer comfort, tables will be provided on a landscaped terrace on one side of the concession building, matched on the opposite side with a playground conceived in a holiday spirit, for the entertainment of the children. This playground can be operated during the entire motion picture program since its colorful lights will be installed so they will not affect the audience seated in the ramped automobiles. Patrons will be privileged to drop off their children in the playground immediately after purchasing their attendance tickets, then park their cars at the most advantageous spot to view the show. Later they can return to the playground for the children.



In its completely landscaped surroundings, the Holiday will present a park-like

A Veteran Equipment Manufacturer Offers His Suggestions For

Equipping The D-I For Wide Screen

By FRED C. MATTHEWS
Executive Vice-President, Motiograph, Inc.

DRIVE-IN theatre owners who have increased the width of their screens to 100 feet or more have found that patrons are thrilled with the vast size of the projected picture and, very important, those patrons have expressed their appreciation of this great improvement by coming back over and over again.

Drive-in operators who wish to increase their patronage should make immediate plans to widen and resurface their present screens.

To best present the many splendid current and forthcoming CinemaScope, and other wide screen productions, it is suggested that screens be increased in height and width. For example a present 30 by 40 foot screen should be increased in the proportion of 50 by 100 feet if the theatre is to show a 2 to 1 picture just as wide as a CinemaScope picture. If, however, it is wished to only show CinemaScope pictures to the full width of the screen, the height of the screen need not be increased in proportion above given. The size of the screen and its proportion is to some extent a matter of individual taste. Ask your equipment dealer for his advice on this matter.

Having arrived at the desired size and proportion of your screen, the next problem is to determine what is required in screen surfacing materials and finish.

Most new screens have been resurfaced in "Transite" or plywood and finished with three coats of white paint similar to the paint made by Raytone Screen Company. There also have been a few screens refinished with an undercoat of aluminum paint and a second coat of white paint. The writer has seen screens finished with both types of paint and screen results were quite satisfactory.

Some companies are offering both fibre glass and aluminum screen materials for resurfacing screens. There is somewhat divided opinion on the merits of these materials, but certainly they are worthy of consideration. Your equipment dealer has been observing actual installations of varied screen materials and finishes and can give advice on the selection of the best screen materials and finishes.

Lenses

The change in the size of the picture will require a new set of projection lenses, and if pictures with varied aspect ratios are to be shown, more than one set may be required. It is recommended that fast anti-reflection coated lenses be purchased as the use of cheap slow lenses could nullify some of the light gained from the use of higher amperage arc lamps.

To present CinemaScope pictures you will require anamorphic lenses. There are at least six brands of such lenses available. The lenses to be used should be chosen carefully—selection should not be guided by price, but rather by reputation of the manufacturer and quality of the lenses.

Arc Lamps

The most important item of equipment needed is new arc lamps. Regardless of all claims of the screen reflectivity of any screen surface, it is absolutely essential that arc lamps giving the most screen illumination be purchased.

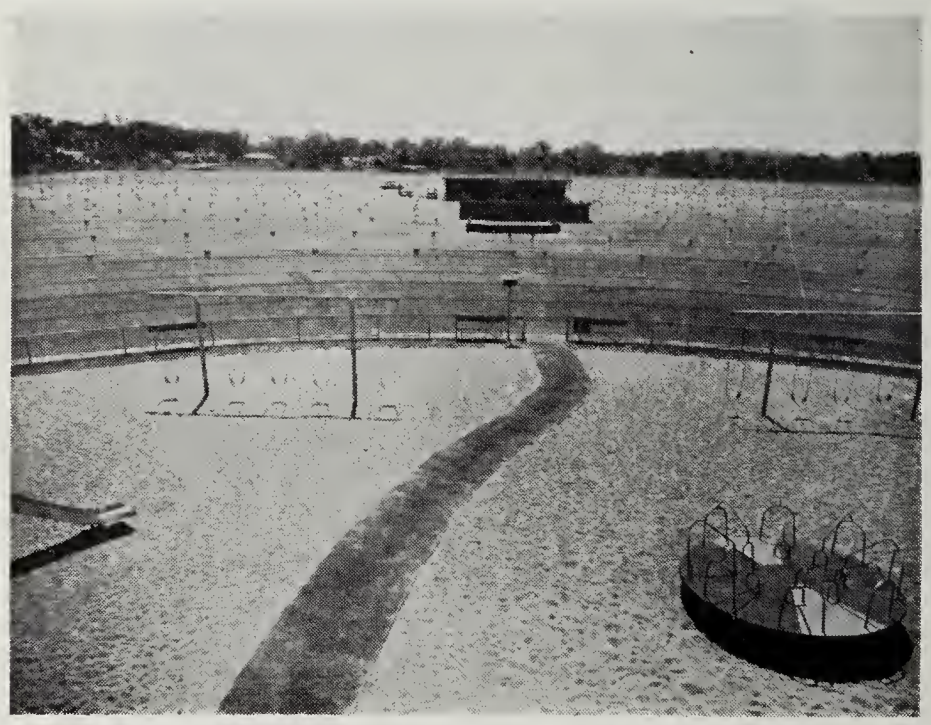
There are only two types of arc lamps that offer anywhere near sufficient screen illumination for screens in excess of 30 feet in width:

1. Reflector-type arc lamps with rotating positive carbon mechanisms operating at 85 to 135 amperes.
2. Condenser-type arc lamps operating at 160 to 180 amperes.

There are at the present time, three companies manufacturing reflector arc lamps of the type mentioned; C. S. Ashcraft Manufacturing Company, Motiograph, Inc., and Strong Electric Company.

These lamps while varying in particular features, components and operation, all are designed to operate as follows:

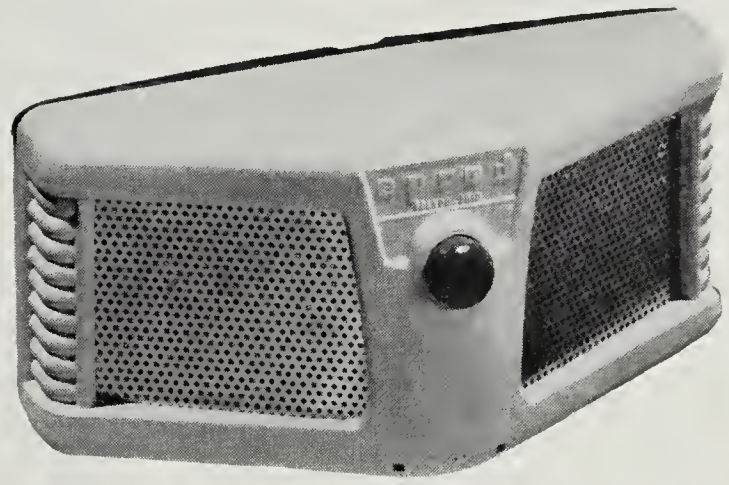
1. Using 9mm. black positive carbons at 85 ampere and 58 arc volts.
2. Using 10mm. black positive carbons at 100 ampere and 60 arc volts.
3. Using 11mm. black positive carbons at 115 ampere and 60 arc volts.
4. Using 10mm. Hitex black positive carbons at 135 ampere and 66 arc volts.



Each successive increase in the operation of lamps as above shown gives more screen illumination. It is, of course, absolutely necessary that the generators or rectifiers in use have not only a sufficient amperage but also proper voltage rating. Considerable disappointment has been expressed in the burning of 10mm. Hitex carbons at 135 amperes, but checks on such operation invariably discloses that rectifiers or generators in use did not have the proper voltage characteristics.

If the theatre already has lamps designed to operate with 9mm. black positive carbons, they may be modified to burn 10mm. or 11mm. carbons. This, of course, entails the change of a portion of the lamp mechanisms and usually the addition of blowers for the lamp house and/or water-cooled carbon jaws, depending upon the make of lamp in use.

J. E. McAuley Manufacturing Company makes the Peerless HyCandescent condenser type arc lamp which operates at 160 amperes and 77 arc voltage using 13.6mm. H.I. carbons and at 180 amperes and 74 arc voltage using 13.6mm. Hitex Super positive carbons.



Modern drive-ins, such as the recently constructed Sundown, Whittier, Calif., have been built with the new wide screen systems in mind. In preparing for the showing of such film presentations, it is extremely important that all the projection and sound equipment be of the best quality available.

FOR THE FINEST IN SOUND at the Lowest Maintenance Cost

EPRAD in-the-car SPEAKERS

"STEREO 2"

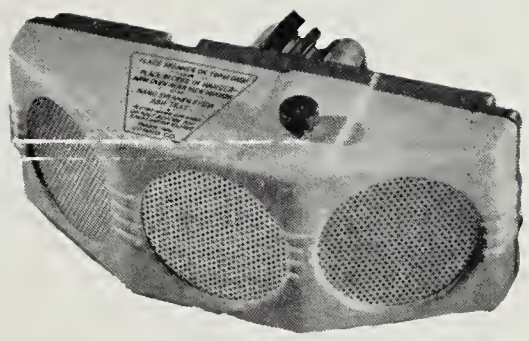
Incorporating a new concept of binaural sound, this speaker brings all three channels through two 3½" cones in one speaker case. Tonal direction is very distinct and of excellent quality. Many drive-ins using single-coned speakers can convert to stereophonic sound without rewiring ramps. Hanger arm fits any junction box. Stereophonically-engineered, reinforced Fibreglas case. Rugged, light, small, economical and trouble-free.

$12.00 per speaker

A MODEL FOR EVERY NEED — EVERY INSTALLATION

"UNIVERSAL"

The world's most popular replacement speaker. Recognized as the best-sounding, most attractive and most trouble-free speaker at any price! By making full use of cavity resonance and a 4-in. driver unit, this speaker gives unmatched bass response, fidelity and dynamic range. Die-cast aluminum case, glass fiber tone filter, beautiful two-tone, extra-tough finish, lifetime transformer, lowest-known maintenance costs.



$7.60 per speaker

"STAR"

An economical speaker that is unsurpassed in beauty and performance. Embodies many of the features of higher-priced models and gives sound of superior quality. Has a 3½" cone and large 1.47-oz. magnet. Fibreglas case with attractive molded-in colors. Fits most junction boxes. Small and compact, it fits the hand. Will give trouble-free service at a low cost.

$5.50 per speaker

"STEREO 3"

The finest in-the-car speaker made! Unsurpassed for TRUE Stereophonic-Sound reproduction. Three driver units, each connected to the proper channel amplifier, bring undistorted sound through three 3½" cones. Tremendous power range. Theatre-type, triple-stacked volume control. Stereophonic-engineered, reinforced Fibreglas housing. Electrically and mechanically fits most systems. A "MUST" for wide-screen, multi-channel sound installations.

$14.75 per speaker

"THE VOICE OF THE DRIVE-IN"

1208 CHERRY STREET — TOLEDO 4, OHIO

It appears from National Carbon Company figures that the total screen lumens delivered by reflector type arc lamps at 115 and 135 amperes are not widely different than the light delivered by condenser type arc lamps at peak operation.

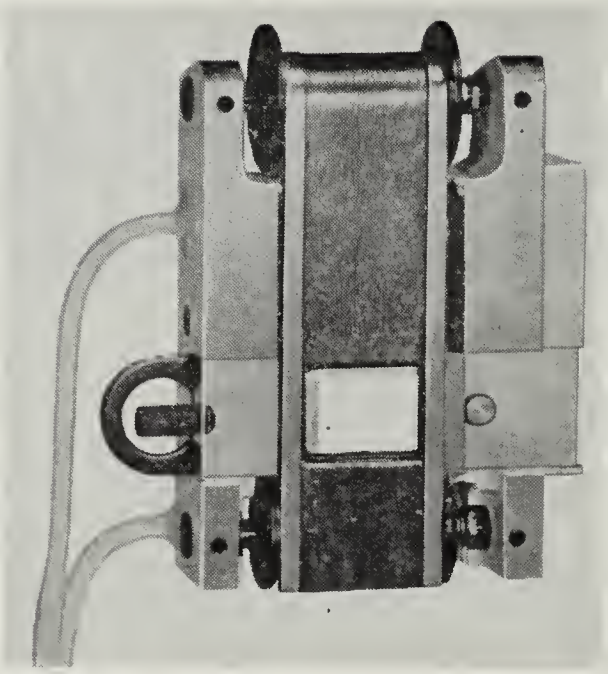
The choice of which type of arc lamp to buy must be guided by the original and operating cost of lamps and their attendant power source. Our figures show that the overall cost of reflector type of arc lamp and attendant power source is far lower than the combination of condenser type arc lamp and generator.

Filters

It is to be noted that if a filter is placed between arc lamp and projector there will be a drop in screen illumination. Thus, an arc lamp operating at 115 amperes without a filter could produce as much net screen illumination as obtainable at 135 ampere operation while using a filter. This fact should be taken into consideration in determining the type of equipment to be purchased and the size of the carbons to be used.

It is to be noted that if the projectors in use are equipped with adequate aperture cooling blowers, and/or water-cooled projector gates, and the arc lamps in use are equipped with blowers to help dissipate the heat within the lamphouses, no filters are necessary at 85, 100 or 115 ampere operation. At 135 ampere operation the use of a filter begins to be desirable and at higher amperages filters are definitely necessary.

Power Source



When a power source for your arc lamps must be purchased, a generator capable of delivering sufficient amperage at the proper voltage is regarded by us as being a better purchase than rectifiers both from an initial and operating cost standpoint. From a long-term wear standpoint the generator is certain to outlast rectifiers by many, many years.

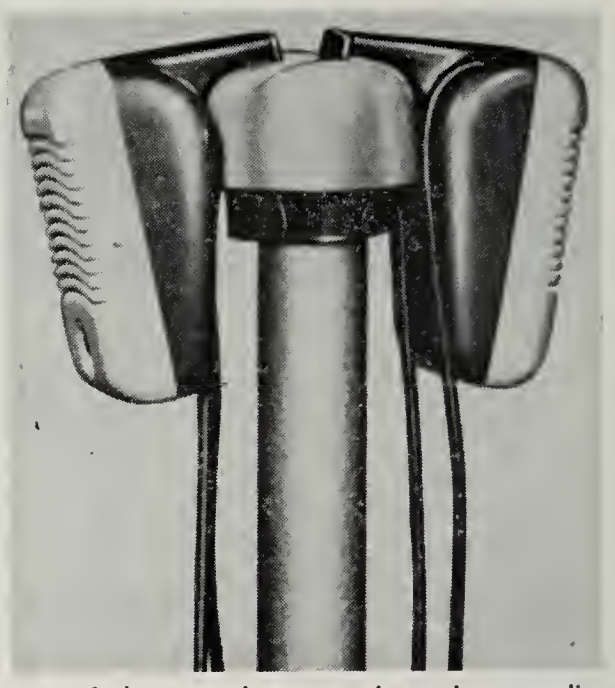
Current Supply

If your theatre is served with single phase current you must obtain 3 phase current if you wish to operate high amperage generators as all except special order, and high cost generators operate at 3 phase current.

Sound Equipment

The various producers of CinemaScope productions have announced that future prints will be available in single optical, single magnetic or 4-track magnetic prints.

A photo of Motiograph's new water cooled gate, so vital in drive-in wide screen projection.



If optical prints are always to be available it is not necessary for the drive-in theatre to install any additional sound equipment to reproduce CinemaScope pictures.

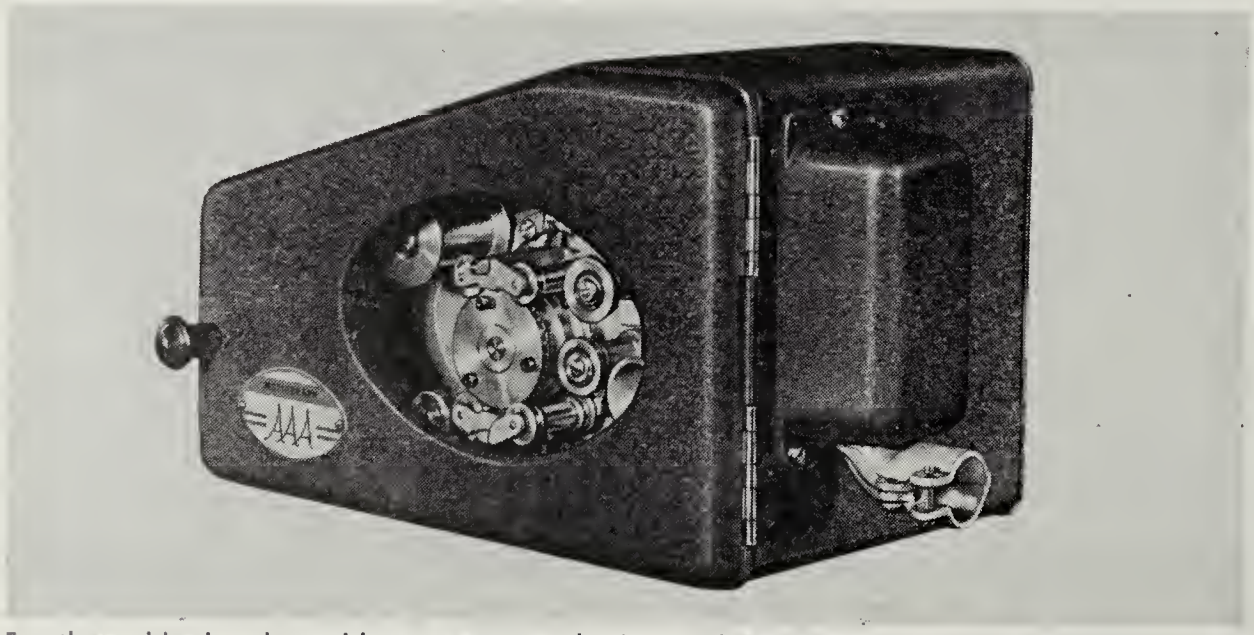
Single optical prints are not always available so many drive-in theatres have found it necessary to install equipment to reproduce four-track magnetic prints.

The sound equipment necessary for such reproduction is simple and low cost. The equipment necessary is a pair of penthouse reproducers, a preamplifier incorporating a power supply, mixing device, changeover and volume control facilities.

Even though the time may come when single optical track prints may become available in quantity we still recommend that the above mentioned sound equipment be installed as magnetic recording and reproduction is far superior to optical recording and reproduction.

Magnetic recording permits a much greater frequency range than optical recording, a higher signal-to-noise-ratio and a much larger volume range. All major studios have used magnetic recording for their original records and have gone to optical methods only in the final stage for release prints. Thus in effect, all studios have by their own actions given evidence that magnetic recording is best. If magnetic recording is best then magnetic reproduction is also best. For the first time the theatre owner can give his patrons the benefit of this great technical advance. It's just as important, in my opinion, as giving the patron a better picture.

One of the most important items is a quality in-car speaker such as this Motiograph model.



Projectors

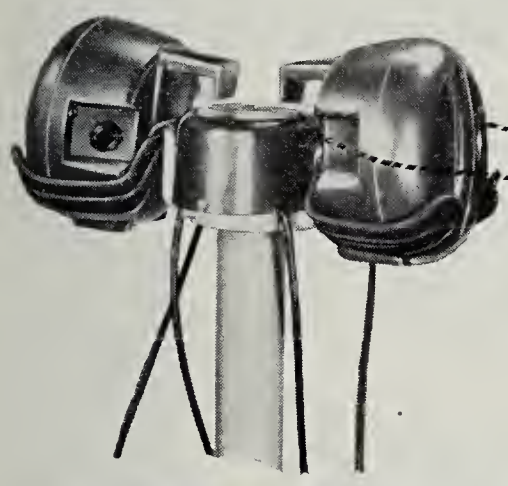
Existing projectors must be modified for CinemaScope operation. Sprockets, apertures, shoes, tracks, rollers, lens holders and lens supports are needed in varying degrees by different makes or models of projector mechanisms. Every projector requires some modification.

Projectors should be equipped with aperture cooling blowers, and/or water-cooled projector gates, to help dissipate the tremendous heat from arc lamps. The heat must be dissipated to insure a picture without an in-and-out focus condition and to also make it possible to thread the projectors soon after use.

If projectors are not now equipped with shutter blades cut down as far as possible, consistent with travel ghost conditions, the blades should be changed. If projector repairs are also needed, the theatre owner might find it more economical to buy new projectors than to modify the old ones.

Dealers are in a position to modify your present projectors or supply you new ones, to modify your present lamps or supply you with new ones, to provide you with new generator or rectifier equipment, with new magnetic sound reproduction equipment. Yes, even provide you with screen paint or new screen materials.

For those drive-ins that wish to use stereophonic sound equipment Motiograph has a kit which includes a mixing unit and everything else necessary to reproduce four channel stereophonic sound.



This projector is designed to show both CinemaScope and standard prints with minor changes.

The World's Oldest Manufacturer of Theatre Equipment

Equipping a drive-in playground with sturdy equipment, and the applying of a bit of showmanship will help bring kids and parents to your theatre. Children can help you sell more tickets.

Proper Equipment And Proper Exploitation Will Help

Playgrounds Sell Tickets

ALTHOUGH the drive-in theatre is a comparatively new form of entertainment in some localities, the novelty is fast wearing off over the nation as a whole. A few years ago very little inducement was needed to bring a capacity crowd most every night. The drive-in theatre was something new, unusual, and different. It was a novel form of entertainment and everybody wanted to experience the thrill of viewing a movie from the comfort of their car. Thus it's easy to understand why even third-rate pictures brought long lines of cars. Today, however, most drive-in theatre managers will agree it takes even more than first-rate pictures to fill their ramps now.

Family Amusement

Yes, the picture has changed considerably. Like everything else, the drive-in theatre has taken its place in the long list of family amusements. This list includes television, which beckons families to remain at home after a long, hard day and be entertained in the comfortable environment of their own living room. This list includes pools, beaches, and public parks which invite families to relax in their pleasant surroundings. This list includes major league, minor league and even little league baseball teams, all urging families to "back the home team." This list includes amusement parks and kiddie-lands which appeal to those families which desire a more active evening's entertainment. Yes, this list covers almost an endless lineup of recreational facilities, all agreed to satisfy a family's need for diversion. Competition for the public's entertainment dollar has never been keener . . . and it will be the far-sighted drive-in theatre managers who get their share.

The Ahrens Manufacturing Company, and their exclusive distributor, the Miracle Equipment Company, both of Grinnell, Iowa, are certain the answer to the problem lies with the children of your community. They claim the minute drive-in theatre managers overlook the children, they're overlooking their best salesmen. "Sell the children—they'll sell their parents" . . . that has been the basis of many a successful advertising campaign and promotional scheme. Every year millions and millions of dollars are directed primarily to the ears and eyes of children. Such phrases as "Ask mom to . . . ," "Get dad to . . . ," or "Bring your parents in . . . " are commonplace nowadays. Naturally, all this time, effort and money would not be expended in this direction if it were not a profitable approach.

Children Persuasive

The phenomenal success of the kiddielands is a perfect example of the inherent qualities of salesmanship possessed by our children. Even though kiddielands hardly ever appeal directly to the parents, every night they are jammed to capacity. The reason is obvious. Once a child has experienced the thrills of a junior amusement park, he is transformed into a salesman . . . a salesman who works hard and takes his job seriously for he knows he'll enjoy the pleasures of his favorite kiddieland once again only through persistence and diligence.

Now consider the tremendous advantage you have over kiddielands. You not only offer juvenile diversion but also adult entertainment. Naturally, parents are going to put up less sales resistance to their children's pleas if they know they can expect some enjoyment, too. Yes, you can employ every child in your community as your salesman, too. However, he'll work for you only if he gets a good return from his efforts. Put yourself in the shoes of your best salesmen and try to analyze your playground from their viewpoint:

1. Is your equipment safe? Regardless of how much enjoyment your equipment affords, you give your junior salesmen an insurmountable task when you ask them to "sell" their parents on dangerous equipment. Most of the time this will bring an emphatic and final "NO!" and before you realize it, your emissaries decide you've sent them out with a very poor product. What would your reaction be if you were in their place?

Before you purchase any equipment, make sure you check its safety features. Contact other drive-in theatre managers who have bought this same equipment and find out if they ever had any serious accidents. A little research on your part will save you a lot of grief in the end.

Look over your present equipment. Try to imagine what reckless, careless children could think of to make it a safety menace. You must constantly be on the alert for

THE PICTURE IS LIGHT... GIVE IT ALL YOU CAN with "NATIONAL" CARBONS

THE NEED FOR MORE and better projection light began with the first "flicker" and grew as the industry grew. From the very beginning, "National" carbons have satisfied projectionists' demands for brighter, whiter light and slower, steadier burning.

SINCE "NICKELODEON" DAYS, the brightness of "National" projector carbons has been increased more than 1000 per cent! And, today, with giant screens becoming almost universal, arc-carbon progress continues to meet the challenge.

FOR EXAMPLE, the new "Suprex" 8mm carbon, latest in a long series of recently improved "National" carbons, provides 15% more light and a higher color temperature than its predecessor — at no increase in cost! Yes, the picture is light...and with "National" carbons you are sure of getting it in fullest measure.

The term "National" is a registered trade-mark of Union Carbide and Carbon Corporation

Allied Drive-In Convention Equipment Highlights

Drive-In Trade Show A Complete Success

ST. LOUIS—As was expected, the trade-show held in conjunction with the second annual convention of the National Allied Drive-In Theatre Association, at the Chase Hotel last month, supplied a wealth of valuable information for the many outdoor theatre exhibitors who attended.

The more than 70 booths filled with an amazing variety of merchandise offered a graphic demonstration of the ever increasing size and complexity of drive-in theatre operation. An exhibitor could have purchased anything from a little gadget to permit patrons to keep their auto doors open without having the lights go on, to signing a contract for the construction of a 120-foot tower.

As would be expected exhibitors gave a good deal of attention to the equipment needed to show the various wide screen systems. The Strong Electric Corporation was showing its Super 135 projection arc lamp equipped with an 18-inch diameter f1.7 reflector. It was explained that this reflector would be made available to theatres with f1.8, f1.7, or f1.5 objective systems, and projectors cleared for these high-speed optical systems. Exhibitors who visited the Strong booth also learned that with this new reflector and matching high speed objective lens system, a total of 31,000 lumens could be projected through a standard .825 by .600 aperture, or 38,000 lumens using a CinemaScope aperture.

Another addition to the Super 135 lamps presented, for the first time at the tradeshow, was a special blower fan for keeping the Strong infra ban beam cooler at a lower operating temperature. The lamp also had the filter mounted on a removable holder for quick removal and ease of cleaning.

The big excitement at the Theatre Specialties booth was the introduction for the first time of the new 24-inch Bevelite plastic letters. Said to be the largest plastic letter presently available, this new addition to the line created quite a bit of interest on the part of the visiting drive-in operators.

A device which many theatremen gave a close inspection was the mechanical ticket-taking system developed by Electronic Signal and Instrument division of Revere Corporation of America.

Although primarily developed for use at bridges, tunnels, turnpikes, and other toll collecting points, the system has been successfully used at a number of drive-ins as means of automatically recording the day's business while eliminating the need for printed tickets.

With almost every drive-in theatre in the country thinking about, or already in the process of widening the screen tower, or replacing it completely in order to project wide screen pictures, it was no surprise to see the large number of exhibits devoted to this subject, or the large number of exhibitors who studied the models and asked for information from the various company representatives. The great variety of screens and extensions that were to be found was proof that the manufacturers were abreast of the times. It further demonstrated the value of holding tradeshows so that a theatreman has the opportunity to survey the entire market at one time, under one roof.

One of the largest and most colorful areas of the tradeshow was the display of playground equipment set-up by the Miracle Whirl Sales Company. The firm's exhibit of miracle whirls, swings, slides, etc., carried out their basic idea of combining showmanship and safety into playground equipment.

A newcomer to the drive-in playground equipment field was the Jamison Manufacturing Company. Exhibiting for the first time at a large industry tradeshow, the company offered an attractive array of swings, slides, and merry-go-rounds, all suitable for drive-in play areas.

At the J. E. Robin, Inc., display was to

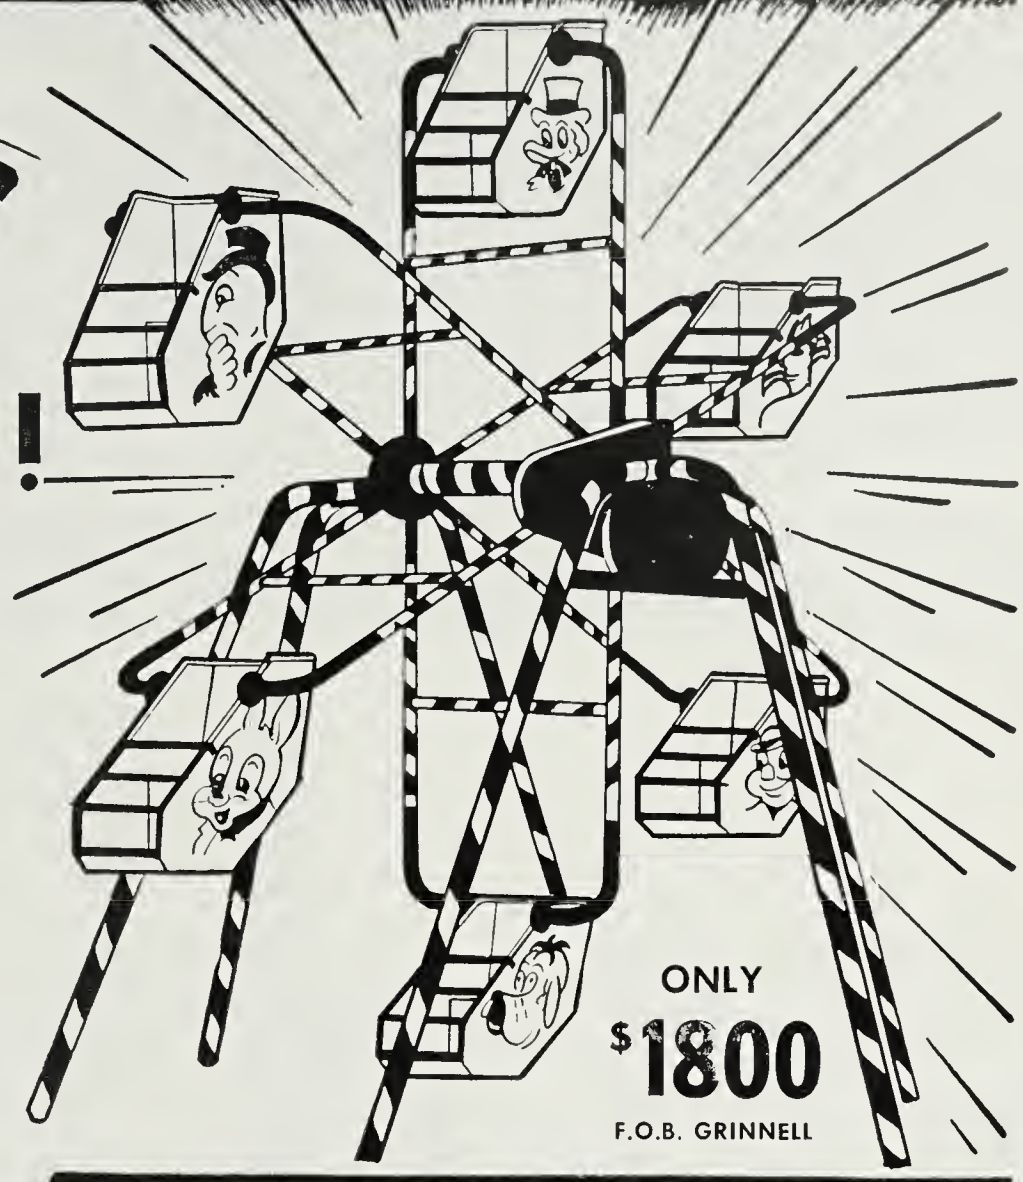
D-I's Accepted Entertainment Form—Marcus

The large attendance at the National Allied Drive-In Theatre Association held in St. Louis last month, "symbolized the arrival of the acceptance of the drive-in as a major contribution of the motion picture industry to the entertainment of our nation," according to Ben D. Marcus, outgoing Allied States Association president.

"The industry," Marcus continued, "for a long time has been quite dubious about the possibilities of this new medium of entertainment. However, the Allied leaders throughout the nation had foresight and realized the great potential of this wonderful outdoor medium of entertainment, adopted the new born baby, and started to nourish and develop it until it reached its present growth."

Marcus said that the National Drive-In Conventions were instituted so that outdoor exhibitors from all over the country, "could attend a seminar which would act as a school and an information bureau where exhibitors could meet for the purpose of exchange of ideas on the proper types of equipment, furnishings, and suggestions for booking the proper pictures.



"The outdoor theatre exhibitors also have a great responsibility to our industry and to the public. They must see that their theatres are properly constructed to insure positive safety for the patron, and equip them with the finest in sound and projection equipment. Also, safe playground equipment should be properly supervised to make their theatres an inviting place to the public for comfort and relaxation," Marcus concluded.

POOLS AND PLAYGROUNDS AT DRIVE-INS

The value of playgrounds at drive-ins have proven themselves in almost every situation. Here we see some of the basic equipment in the play area at the Hilltop Drive-In, Escanaba, Mich., being put to use.

LIKE popcorn is a boon to the indoor theatres, the children's playground is an unfailing business stimulator at the drive-in boxoffice and concession stand.

As one exhibitor put it, the children's playground spells the difference between counting the "take" and taking the count. So, most modern outdoor theatres have installed play areas, where the youngsters can swing, slide and climb before the movies start. As a result, a sizeable new market for playground devices has developed in the last few years.

Parents Relax

Parents bring their children early so they can relax in their cars or on the benches while the youngsters are romping around the playground. In not many minutes, of course, the small fry develops a big appetite and thirst. And, this means bigger sales of hamburgers, hot dogs, popcorn and cokes at the concession stand.

The playground also makes the drive-in theatre a solid, permanent part of the community and builds invaluable public good will.

Examples

Take the case of the Hilltop Drive-In, located in a rural area a couple of miles from Escanaba, Mich. Manager Rex Coulter allows the youngsters in the Five Corners community to enjoy the playground all day long. It's the only playground within miles.

The Hilltop purchased its playground apparatus for less than $600. It consists of primary castle walk, a 12-foot all-steel slide, merry-go-round, two see-saw boards, and two swing sets, one of which is equipped with the chair-type nursery seats for small tots.

Manager Coulter says the Hilltop playground has attracted parents with their children two hours before show time. They fill the front ramps near the playground first, thereby easing the parking problem later.

One of the pioneers in drive-in playgrounds is the Smith Management Company of Boston, which operates about 20 outdoor theatres in the middle west and along the east coast. All the Smith drive-ins are equipped with slides, swings, merry-go-rounds and other equipment installed by the American Playground Device Company.

Arnold Berger of the Smith Management Company recommends that the playgrounds have good lighting and proper supervision. He also favors park benches so parents can sit in comfort and watch their children; which, of course, encourages supervision by the parents, themselves.

The Community Theatres, Inc., of Detroit, also has children's playgrounds at all its open-air theatres in the Detroit area. As Adolph Goldberg of Community Theatres points out: Playgrounds bring the whole family to the show; they solve the baby sitter problem for many folks.

Rugged Equipment

Equipment at the drive-in playgrounds get as much, if not more, use than the apparatus installed at schools and parks. So, the swings, slides, castle towers and other units must be ruggedly built, safe and well-designed. The equipment must be strong enough to withstand for years the use and abuse that healthy, vigorous youngsters give these playground devices. It's a poor investment to install equip-any exposed mechanism, a broken step, a strained part—anything that could cause big tears from small eyes.

Once you and your employes are assured that your equipment is completely safe, then keep it that way. A daily schedule of preventive maintenance is usually all that's required. It doesn't take too much time or effort and it will pay off in big dividends. A squirt of oil here, a new part there, a new coat of paint occasionally—this constant upkeep will help you maintain a spotless safety record.

Remember, your safety factor is the key to a successful playground operation and, ultimately, to a profitable enterprise.

2. Is your playground equipment appealing? Does it possess that indefinable quality known as good showmanship? You cannot expect your pint-size promoters to work for you unless you make it worth their while. Why should they plead with their parents for a night at the drive-in if you don't reward their efforts with an evening filled with fun and laughter? You can correctly assume that almost every child in your playground should get at least some credit for another car in your ramps. Don't you think he deserves a good commission?

Naturally, the number of pieces of equipment in your playground depends upon many factors. However, if you're crowded for space or limited financially, that still does not keep you from displaying good showmanship with the equipment you have on hand or plan to buy. There are swings on the market now which are modern in design and gaily painted like peppermint stick candy. Some of the wooden seats on you present swings can be replaced with safety belts, chairs or even hoppy horse units. One or two animal slides might do wonders in enhancing the appearance of your playground. You can buy multi-colored merry-go-rounds which are self-propelled and handle an amazing number of children.

Of course, a mechanical ride helps tremendously. Pony rides, chair rides, miniature trains . . . there are many good rides from which to choose. However, make sure you exercise good judgment when you make your selection since a mechanical ride is always the center of attraction. Make sure it's bright and colorful . . . make sure it can be easily supervised . . . make sure it will not require a huge amount of expensive upkeep . . . make sure it has mass appeal.

A colorful picket fence enclosing your playground not only makes it more appealing but also helps parents keep track of their small fry. You can increase this appeal even more by mounting some of these Masonite "fairy-tale" characters on your fencing. Yes, there are countless ways to improve the showmanship of your playground . . . but it depends to a large extent upon the imagination of you and your staff.

Above all, always keep the kids in mind! Try to envision every new idea in their eyes. They are the final judges . . . They are the ones you must please. Are they too demanding? Well, maybe . . . but, after all, they're your best salesmen.

Samuel's "Man Of The Year"

ALLENTOWN, PA.—"The Young Man of the Year" in this city is Abram Samuels, president of Automatic Devices Company, makers of curtain tracks and control equipment.

The head of the well known manufacturing firm was awarded the U. S. Junior Chamber of Commerce certificate identifying him a "recipient of the Distinguished Service Award for Outstanding Community Service." President Judge James F. Henninger, of the Lehigh County Courts, presented the award on behalf of the Allentown Junior Chamber of Commerce, with 800 dinner guests looking on.

Samuels is a member of the board of directors of The Pennsylvania Society for Crippled Children and Adults, a past president of the Lehigh County Crippled Children's Society, vice-president of the Allentown Rotary Club, and has been active in many community betterment projects. He is 34. His company is a leading manufacturer of curtain tracks, curtain controls, stage equipment and motor generator sets for theatres, schools, auditoriums, churches, residences, and a wide variety of other installations.

American Optical Company Creates Motion Picture Products Division

SOUTHBRIDGE, MASS.—American Optical Company has created a new division to handle its motion picture products business. William F. Peck, who has headed the AO instrument division, Buffalo, N. Y. will be general manager of the motion picture products division.

This new division will be responsible for the exploitation and commercial application of all company products made for the motion picture industry, and for all company activities relating to the commercial phases of the Todd-AO project.

Peck, who will report to the president of the company, will have his offices in Southbridge. For the duration of the project, the instrument division will be in charge of a management committee.

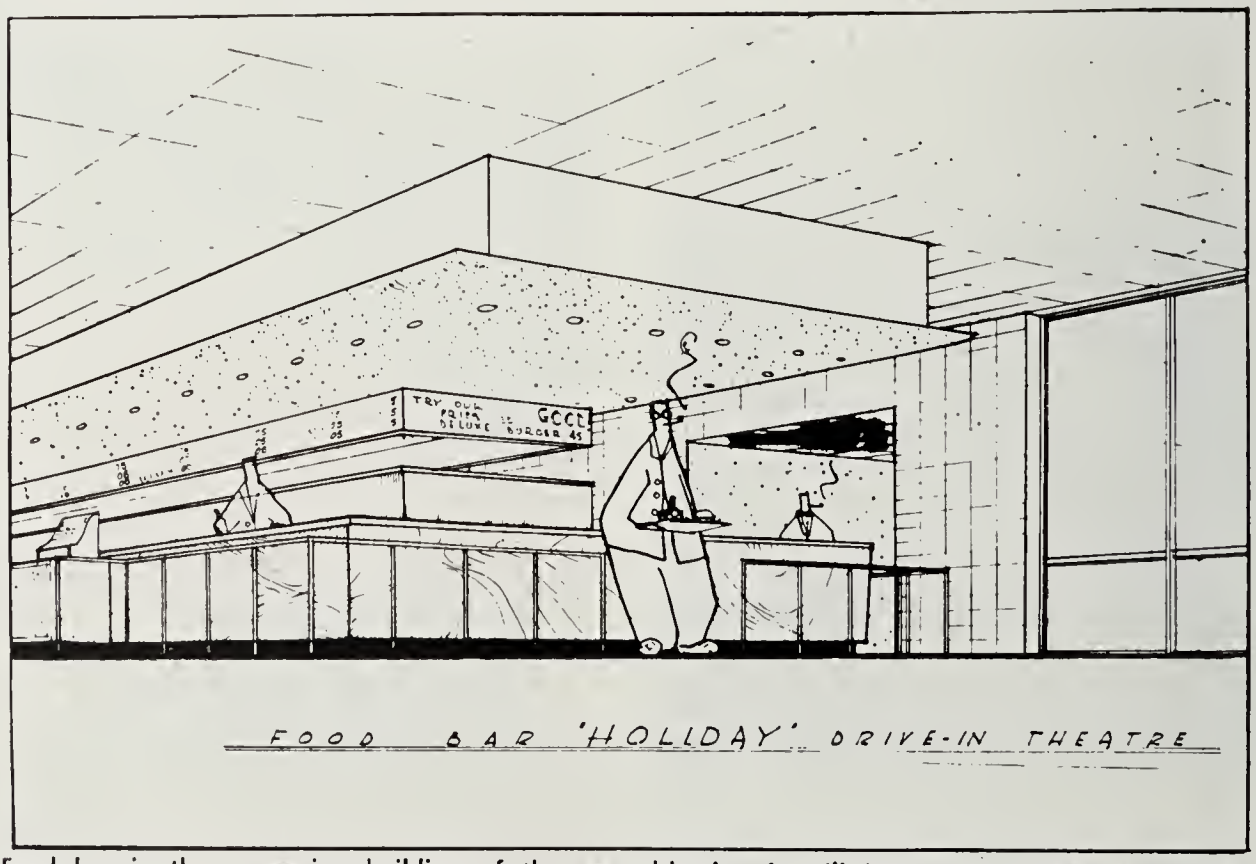
appearance as viewed from Page Avenue, the principal thoroughfare of that section of St. Louis county, making it one of the most appealing amusement centers in the middle west.

The architects state no effort has been spared to put the Holiday years ahead of its time in the field of outdoor entertainment.



The Swan Construction Company, St. Louis County, is the general contractor in charge of the actual construction of the drive-in.

The throw from the projection booth to the 62 by 120 foot screen will be 720 feet. The National Theatre Supply, through its St. Louis Branch, is providing special lenses to provide a perfect picture properly illuminated on the screen. National Theatre Supply will provide the drive-in with the latest type of Simplex projection and sound equipment, Simplex speakers and posts, etc.

Plans for the concession were prepared by Jule Jablonow in cooperation with Paul Garfinkle, specialists in restaurant and cafeteria fixtures, equipment and supplies. The concession equipment alone will cost some $30,000. It will measure 47 by 72 feet, and as indicated is to have four lanes for the convenience of the patrons. The counters will be stainless steel with formica tops, and the equipment is to include Manley popcorn machines, Perlick soft drink dispensers, Nelson ice cream boxes, Buettermats, Hot Point and Toastmaster electrical equipment, etc.

In addition to the Magic Carpet the concession will be provided with terrazzo floors. The walls will be done in pastel shades, in appealing greens, purple, browns, etc.

Since the concession building and the contemplated restaurant will be convenient to Page Avenue, there is a strong probability that the Jablonow-Komm circuit officials may decide to make these facilities available for the convenience of the employes of a large number of industrial and commercial enterprises in the vicinity of the drive-in. The Overland and adjacent Vinita Park and Pagedale areas of St. Louis County is developing into a heavy industrial sector and the quick, convenient service of the drive-in's food dispensing facilities are sure to prove popular with thousands of men and women who work in the near-by industries, etc.

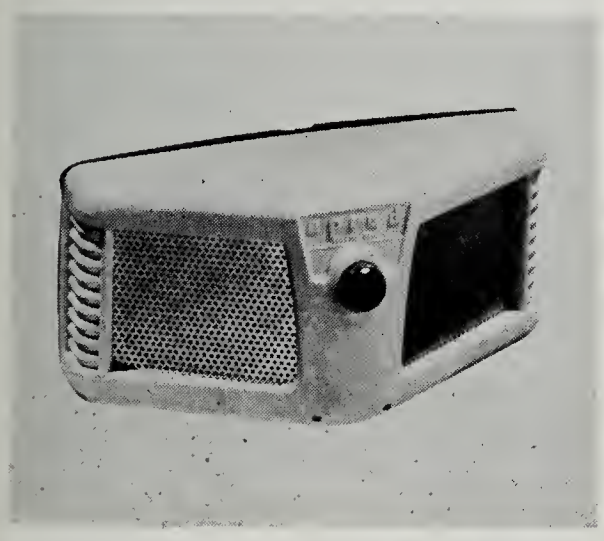
The playground is to be equipped with the latest in the way of mechanical rides and the conventional slides, see-saws, etc., that have so much appeal to the American children. The playground will be efficiently supervised for the protection and entertainment of the youngsters.

In designing the lighting facilities adjacent to the ticket booths, and for the name signs, marquee, etc., and also the hold parking area, the Jablonow-Kamm interests and their architects have cooperated fully with the police of Overland and the Missouri State Highway Department. The hold area, to be fully paved, will provide space for 200 cars in this off-the-highway parking space.

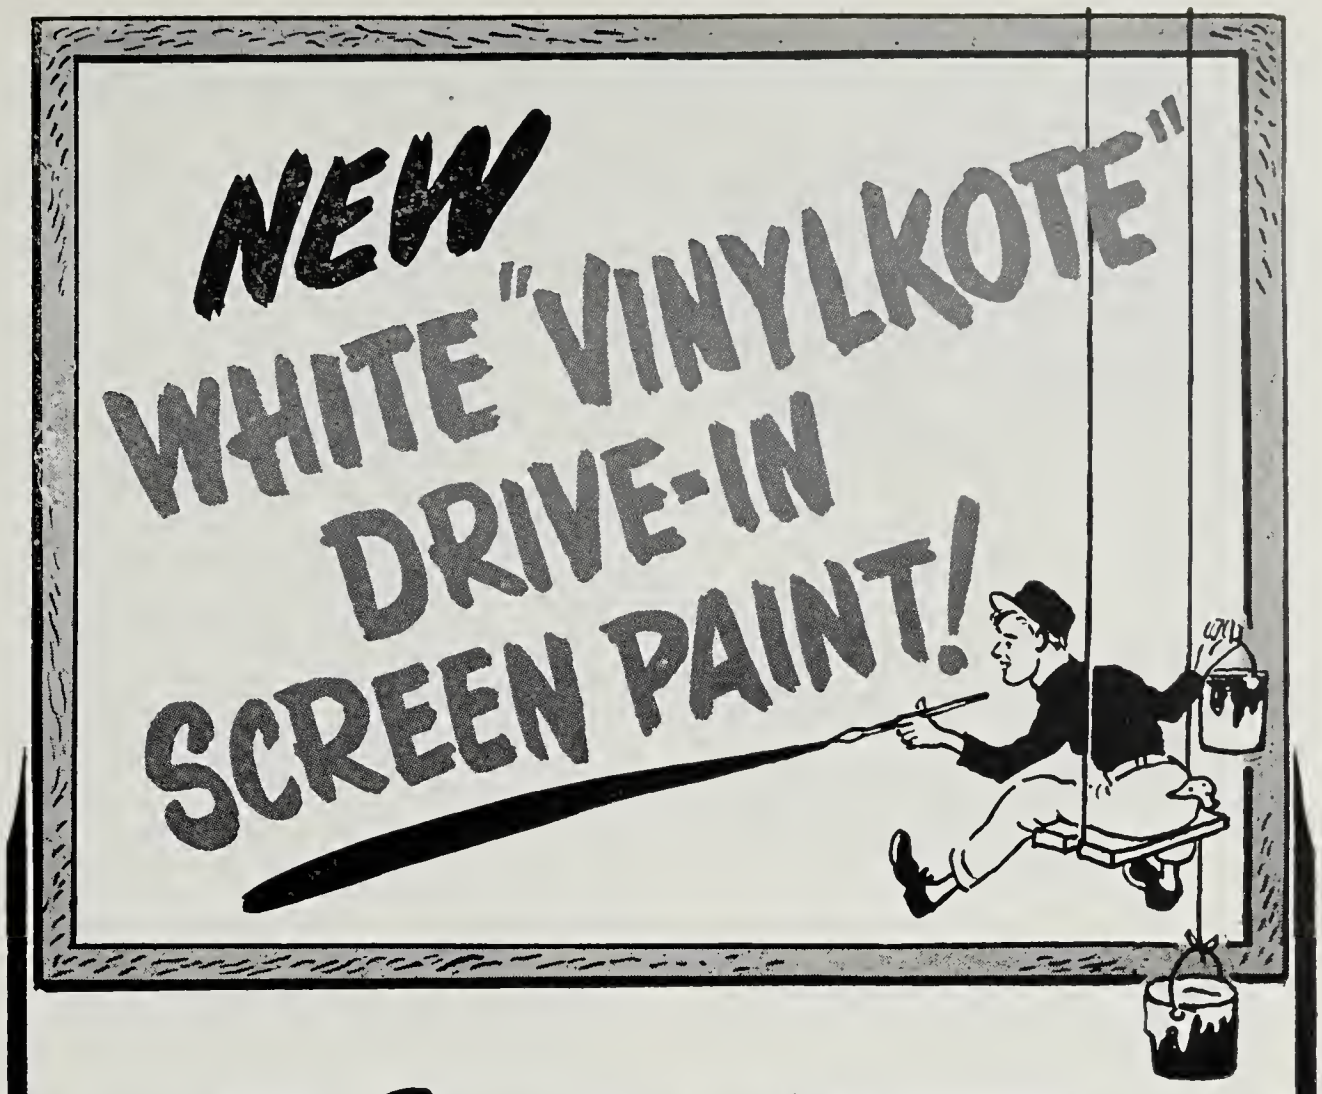
The patio terrace adjacent to the concession building is to have such equipment as summer-type outdoor tables, umbrellas, etc.

The construction schedule calls for the completion of this most modern outdoor theatre and its major facilities for full use early in the spring of 1955.



Eprad Offering Complete Line Of In-Car Speakers

TOLEDO, O.—A complete line of in-car speakers for drive-in theatres, including the new "Stereo 2" for stereophonic sound reproduction, is now being offered by Eprad, Inc.



The "Stereo 2", said to be the most compact and economical stereophonic speaker on the market, uses a new concept of binaural sound bringing all three channels through two 3½ inch cones in one speaker case. This is made possible by using an automatic coupling crossover system perfected by Eprad.

This makes possible savings in speakers, junction boxes, booth equipment and underground wiring. Many drive-ins now using single-coned speakers can convert to stereophonic sound without re-wiring the ramps by installing the "Stereo 2," it is claimed.

Eprad also manufactures the "Stereo 3," a speaker that utilizes three driver units, each connected to the proper channel amplifier, thus bringing the sound from that portion of the screen from which it eminates and reproducing multi-channel sound in its full dynamic range.

Eprad's new "Stereo 2" reproduces three channel stereophonic sound through two cones in one case.

be found that film's line of heavy duty "Robin-Arc" selenium rectifiers. Designed for 3-phase 185-225-volt 50/60 cycle power lines, the rectifiers feature a special transformer with a "built-in ballast" for the proper operation of carbon arc projection lamps.

According to the manufacturer these rectifiers were designed with a large safety margin for heavy duty motion picture operation requirements, such as those to be found in drive-in theatres. In addition to the rectifiers, the J. E. Robin display also included the "Ro-Ro" which can convert a single phase power line into 3-phase power for the operation of projection equipment.

Another outfit making its first appearance at a major industry gathering was the Safeway Sanitation Company who sell the Safeway toilet which is designed and installed to use only one quart of water per flush. This is of particular interest to drive-in operators since their theatres are often located in areas where getting a proper water supply presents a problem. This Safeway toilet is said to eliminate the unsanitary conditions that often prevail during the break period when hundreds of gallons of water are flushed into the drainage field, causing it to flood back-up through the toilets and flood the restrooms.

The Wollensak Optical Company was showing its line of projection lenses. A good deal of interest was shown in the Vari-Focus supplementary lens which that firm produces. Drive-ins, like roofed houses, today find themselves in a position where they have to show films in various aspect ratios, therefore this lens created interest since it is said to produce any wide screen aspect ratio (non-anamorphic) when used in conjunction with the standard projection lens. The company representatives demonstrated how simple it was to install the Vari-Focus, and to make the necessary adjustments.

A trend which has been on the increase in recent years is toward the use of in-car heaters so that drive-ins can lengthen their operating season. Therefore, one booth that was well attended was the Thermolator Corporation's. Some of the features of their "Inker" heaters include an automatic thermostat, a koiled kord to eliminate dragging and tangling in the wheels of the cars, and a heavy duty three-prong plug or post bracket for permanent installation if desired by the exhibitor.

A view of the Strong Super 135 projection arc lamp with its new 18-inch fl.7 reflector. It is said 31,000 lumens can be made with a standard aperture and 33,000 with CinemaScope.

Arvin Industries also exhibited its line of heaters. According to the represen atives of the firm the heater offers complete user safety because of a double fusing system and a special grounding feature. The heater operates on a three-phase system, one lead going into the ground, and uses a fan to circulate the heated air throughout the car so that all the occupants will feel its warmth.

Still another of the hundreds of items which were on display, and which had an application to outdoor theatres, was the National Dryer put out by the National Dryer Corporation. The hand dryer has a porcelain-enamel finish with chrome-plated exterior fittings. The unit contains an automatic circuit breaker which protects the heating elements and eliminates the need to replace fuses. Its drying nozzle pivots a full 360 degrees, thus making it applicable to dry the face as well as the hands.

Of course National Theatre Supply had one of the most extensive and popular display areas. Here the drive-in exhibitor had the opportunity to see, examine, and get demonstrations of almost everything needed for successful running of his theatre.

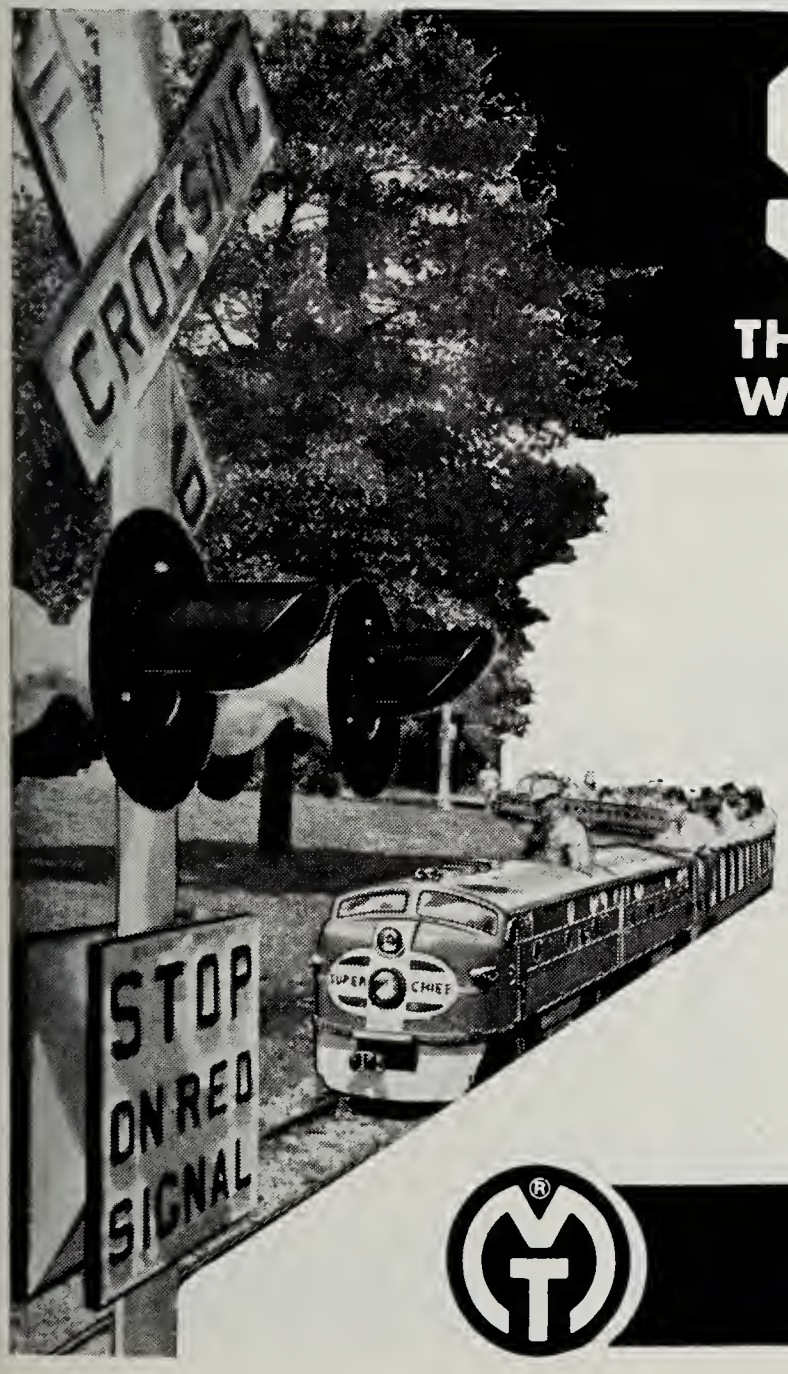
The Crew Cuts, popular signing group, and a pretty little girl, seem to be enjoying the Miracle Whirl display at the tradeshow held in conjunction with the recent Allied drive-in convention.

Other firms who have, through their long years of experience in the field have come to represent the finest in theatre equipment and supplies also participated in the tradeshow. These included Motiograph, Inc., Raytone Screen Company, Projection Optics Company, RCA, Eprad Company, Dawo Speaker Company, Altec Service Corporation, Drive-In Theatre Manufacturing Company, and many others.

There were few who attended who were not impressed by the quantity and quality of the equipment which was displayed. It proved conclusively that the manufacturers and dealers were doing all in their power to furnish drive-in operators with all the things necessary to keep up with the latest advances made in projection and sound techniques, as well as the many special needs common only to the outdoor theatre.

Screen Tower Forum Held

ST. LOUIS—One of the most interesting and important meetings held at the recent Allied Drive-In Convention, at the Chase Hotel, was the drive-in tower forum.



The panelists at the forum were John Selby, Selby Industries, who warned against the economy of "price" in the construction of a tower. Selby pointed to the unfortunate experience of some New England drive-ins which were destroyed by the hurricanes of last year. He advocated the use of curved and tilted tower construction for the best picture results, and for resistance to heavy winds. Selby contended that curved and tilted towers will increase light density "from five to 10 per cent. He also touched on the modern trend toward making the road side of the tower attractive to the public, though the elimination of the old-fashioned boxed effects, and by using bright, warm, appealing colors.

Ted Juhlin, of Timber Structures, Inc., spoke principally on the widening problems to bring the older drive-in up-to-date for CinemaScope, VistaVision, etc. He said that many drive-in owners are spending more money than is necessary, and that the widening should be done at both ends of the screen rather than on one side only because of the difficulties encountered in lining up the center of the picture.

Dave Siegel, Signs, Inc., touched upon the advantages of having steel towers patterned for the project and installed by companies that specialize in that phase of drive-in construction.

One of the highlights of the Allied Drive-In convention and tradeshow was the introduction by Theatre Specialties of its new line of 24-inch Bevelite plastic letters, said to be the largest ones on the market.

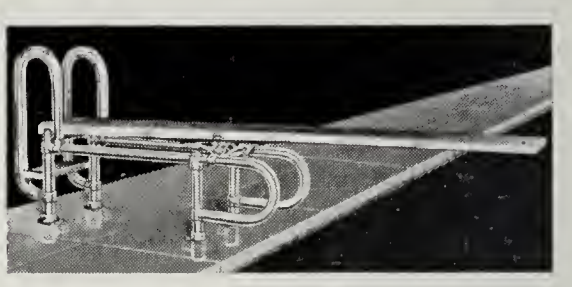
give you efficient use of both wide presentation of standard prints and of Cinema-Scope. We strongly urge every exhibitor to utilize every foot of available height.

Many exhibitors are of the opinion that only standard shop models of towers are available and must buy what the sales book offers. This is not so. Any size or style tower may be engineered to meet your particular requirements or specifications. The towers may be had flat or curved, vertical or tilted, according to your theatre's demands.

Facing for the screen tower has been a difficult decision for most exhibitors. They have been confronted with claims of indefinite guarantees, maximum light efficiency, no maintenance, and all with costs equal to or greater than the tower. We are still doing research work for the perfect facing, and will not introduce it to the market until we feel perfection has been achieved. In the meantime, we have continued to furnish our steel facing, which we introduced several years ago, and of course in addition, APAC transite facing and marine plywood. Proper painting of the facing, of course, is just as important as the facing and the all-important problem of whether to have the facing tilted or vertical. We agree that proper tilting does increase the light reflection to the viewer, however, tilting does increase the many angles of reflection to the viewer when the facing is wet, and presents an objectionable picture, whereas it has been found a vertical picture does not present so serious a problem when wet.

MANCO-VISION

Manco-Vision screens are made of fluted aluminum extrusions, six inches wide and six feet long that interlock like flooring. These aluminum extrusions are fastened to wood stringers by being screwed thereto with triple cadium plated screws every two feet. In a theatre where it isn't in excess of a 45 degree viewing angle from the center of the screen, no horizontal curvature is necessary inasmuch as the screen is so designed to deliver to every patron the same amount of illumination in an area as described above.



A vertical curvature is preferable wherever the projection booth is not at least 400 feet from the screen. In such instances, an arc is scribed on a 400 foot radius, taking from that radius the portion of the arc that would represent the bottom of the screen to the height of the screen. This means, should the bottom of the screen be 20 feet from the ground, and the screen 50 feet high, that one would select that portion of the 400 foot arc that would take from 20 feet from the ground to 70 feet. This results in a very slight curvature which does not require any special treatment at the factory as the extrusions, when fastened to the two by four stringers with the cadium plated screws, will draw itself into the curvature.

The screen positively delivers from any light source, 300 per cent increase in light over a white screen which has recently been painted, and the same light increase is enjoyed by everyone within a 45 degree angle from the center of the screen or the theatre.

SELBY INDUSTRIES

It is important to remember that the "new look" of drive-in theatre screen towers is not only an increase in the aspect ratio size for CinemaScope, but increased size, curvature and tilt.

The major increase in picture brightness, which is so important in outdoor wide screen presentations, is achieved by concentrating reflected light projected to the screen, and back to the customers, by proper tilt and curvature of the screen tower. Tilting the screen to an angle equal to the projection angle, and curving to a radius equal to the projection throw reflects light to the area of maximum car density, rather than to the sky or to side areas. Curving is also important to achieve uniformity of brightness on the far side.

The value of directed reflection is greater with gloss surfaces. Flat diffusing surfaces, such as dead flat white paint, (when dry) require the least precision, but conversely, are the lowest in efficiency.

Optical Function

In designing and building a drive-in screen tower structure, a full understanding of its optical function is necessary, for the curvature and tilt of the steelwork forms the giant reflector surface.

The exhibitor must understand the need for a long enough throw in new theatres, but especially in rebuilding towers in old theatres it should be understood that the throw must generally be increased by locating the new tower farther from the booth in order to add the needed distance. It is for that reason that replacement towers built by us have always been located behind the old tower. In those outdoor theatres having a short projection throw, the widening of a screen in its present location may very well be limited by the focal length of the lens required to do excessive magnification.

pressure behind the cone should not be greater than the air column at the front of the cone. The use of these holes which are sometimes referred to as bass ports obviously increases the bass response of the speaker, however, this obvious response is due to the reduction of pressure at the rear of the speaker cone, where it has had a cushion effect, rather than by any magic formula.

Speaker Case

In the design of a speaker case for drive-in theatre use, consideration should be given to type of material used and the acoustical chamber. At Dawo Corporation we have found sand casting to be the most desirable material primarily because of its greater strength and molecular structure and without the obvious deterioration of other types of material. The speaker should be mounted in the case in such a manner as to prevent warpage of the basket of the speaker and with due consideration being given to the obvious possibility of the dropping of the speaker, this can be attained by spring mounting rather than by four corner screw mounting.

To summarize, most drive-in theatre speaker manufacturers today produce a good sound product and the drive-in theatre owner can select the speaker that suits his fancy, based on what he believes to be the necessary requirements for his theatre.

Swimming Pools And Playgrounds

ment that will scarcely last a single season.

Safety is an important consideration. Playground devices should be carefully designed to avoid protruding nuts and bolts, rough or hazardous surfaces, or anything else that might cause injury to the user. Equipment should be properly installed, and regularly inspected and carefully maintained after installation.

SWIMMING POOLS

A growing number of drive-in theatres have added swimming pools to give the ozoners that cool look on warm evenings.

The Samuels Boulevard Drive-In Theatre, Dallas, Tex., for instance, has a unique three-pool arrangement. There are two circular pools, each measuring 18 feet in diameter, with the water depth only 30 inches for use as a wading pool for the small tots. The other is a conventional, rectangular pool, 20 by 35 feet, with water ranging from shallow depths to seven feet for the adult swimmers.

A Boxoffice Asset

A well-built, well-designed swimming pool is a definite asset to the drive-in theatre. It's also important to have swimming pool accessories of good quality.

Conventional equipment at swimming pools is the one-meter diving unit. It should be constructed of 1⅞-inch tested steel pipe, with the frame locked rigidly together by certified malleable fittings. All steel should be hot-dipped galvanized for enduring rust protection.

For pools where the walk areas are limited, an extra heavy duty regulation one-meter diving unit of the streamlined type is recommended. The frame, supports and guard rail assembly should be constructed of larger pipe, preferably 2⅜ inches in diameter.

There is also the streamlined three-meter diving unit. For larger pools, triple diving units will provide greater enjoyment and participation. This equipment should include one official three-meter and two one-meter units, fan-shaped to assure absolute safety for the divers. One official 16-foot and two 14-foot diving boards are recommended for the triple diving unit.

Accessories

Proper selection of diving boards will greatly reduce maintenance work and expense. A type which gives years of good service is the regulation board of solid laminated construction.

Springboard units are ideal for installation at drive-in theatres. The springboards are made in 12-foot lengths, with 15, 18 and 20-inch widths. Complete units are equipped with strapped-down fulcrums, all necessary fittings and anchors.

Increased safety is assured by covering boards with extra heavy duty cocoa matting. It is the approved regulation covering for diving boards and springboards.

Another important safety accessory is the lifeline, with floats of Tenite plastic material that is far superior to wood, cork or balsa.

Pool ladders should be roomy and equipped with non-slip treads for additional safety.

Lifeguard chairs should be designed so as to provide an unobstructed view of deep water areas. Their use minimizes patrons' conversation with the lifeguard, assuring greater alertness.

Other safety accessories for the swimming pool include lifebuoys and rescue poles. Other accessories may be desired, such as beach umbrellas, rubber diving bricks, picnic tables and park benches.

All-steel water slides are great attractions at the swimming pools. The slides are perfectly pitched for discharging bathers into water depths of from three and one-half to four feet at a thrilling yet completely safe speed. The slides help to bring more small tots and teen-agers to the drive-in theatre. It means more business, too, at the concession stand.

Dr. John G. Frayne, president of the Society of Motion Picture and Television Engineers announced the appointment of a five-man committee to select the 1955 winner of the Society's Progress Medal Award. First awarded 20 years ago, the Progress Medal goes to an individual for "any invention, research, or development which resulted in a significant advance in the development of motion picture technology." The last winner, named in 1953, was Fred Waller, the inventor of Cinerama. Presentation of the award will be made at the 78th semi-annual convention of the SMPTE, Oct. 3-7, Lake Placid, N. Y. . . .

. . . Milt Sherman has been appointed director of advertising and sales promotion for the Raytone Screen Corporation, Brooklyn, N. Y., it was recently announced by S. Shurpin, president of Raytone. Sherman resides in Chicago and will continue to make his headquarters there. Shorlane-Banet of New York will continue to place all national advertising for the company. According to Shurpin, Raytone's 1955 expansion program makes it advisable to maintain offices in both New York and Chicago. Sherman was last employed as advertising manager of Radiant Manufacturing Corporation, of Chicago. He spent three years there after several years as an account executive in the advertising agency field in Chicago . . .

. . . Merlin Lewis, executive secretary of the Theatre Equipment and Supply Manufacturers' Association, Inc., reports that the new address of TESMA headquarters is Room 1210 of the Times Tower Building, New York City . . .

. . . Filmack's 1955 Catalog of Trailer ideas for drive-ins has recently been published by the Filmack Trailer Company. The booklet is devoted exclusively to drive-in advertising, exploitations, special stunts, refreshments, and institutional ideas. Drive-in operators who wish to receive a copy of this catalog can do so by writing to the company in Chicago . . .

. . . Edward Lachman, president of Lorraine Carbons; Jean Suqet, director of Societe Le Carbone-Lorraine, and Pierre Demoreuille, Western Hemisphere, representatives of the company, have embarked on a nationwide business trip. They plan to survey the markets of Lorraine Orlux carbons, attend conventions, and discuss the comparative merits of their products with theatre owners and projectionists . . .

. . . Ray G. Colvin, executive director of the Theatre Equipment Dealers Association, who has been conducting his own personal public relations program to create interest in motion pictures, recently gave an address before the Lions Club of Jerseyville, Ill. His subject was "Sense And Nonsense About The Movies." Colvin has mapped out a heavy speaking schedule for the rest of 1955.

What's par ?

FOR A PROJECTION and SOUND SYSTEM

Unfortunately, there's no such thing as a "handicap" to help improve the performance of a projection and sound system. Whatever image is shown, whatever sound is heard — that's it! Your patrons know the true score!

That's why exhibitors who are "pros" in the business demand a par showing from their projection and sound systems! And for them, par means: DEPENDABILITY . . . consistently fine performance; CLARITY . . . hairline definition and overall brilliance; HIGH FIDELITY . . . the best in exciting stereophonic sound; VERSATILITY . . . the ability to show all the new wide-screen techniques; DURABILITY . . . lasting features that can stand up under the long run; ECONOMY . . . low maintenance and operational costs.

This is par! This is what exhibitors demand! This is what you'll get with the finest projection and sound system in the world today . . .

Gulf States Allied Plans Convention

NEW ORLEANS—AlliedTheatre Owners of Gulf States board met on March 1 and plans were formulated for their forthcoming eighth annual convention which will be held at the Edgewater Gulf Hotel, Edgewater Park, Miss., on April 3-4-5.

Ed Ortte, operator, Legion and Gulf, Gulfport, Miss., chairman of the convention, has sent out a letter of appeal to all exhibitors in the area to attend and to get busy right now and send suggestions of topics which they desire to have discussed at the big meet.

The agenda will include talks by industry leaders on product survey and print problems, exploitation and promotion, trade practices, and latest reports on EDC. The program, as in previous years, will highlight several social activities which will include the annual banquet.

"Your office force is burning the oil night and day in an over-all endeavor to whip this convention into shape," says Ortte, "but our work will mean nothing, unless you fall in and contribute your share both in presence at the convention and the building up of the necessary enthusiasm in advance of the convention dates.

Voicing his opinion on national toll-TV, Abe Berenson, president, advised all independent exhibitors that it can be the biggest problem that our branch of the industry has ever encountered in the way of competition, putting out of business every theatre other than the first-run cities. To combat this menace, exhibition has formed a joint committee on TV, mapped a program, and set up a financial budget to reach the public, Congress, and the Federal Communications Commission.

"Battle Cry" received its mid-south premiere at the Warner, and in conjunction, author Leon Uris made radio and television appearances. . . . The Memphis Neighborhood Theatre Owners Association reports satisfaction with the single bill policy during the week especially. Most customers seem to prefer the single bill, and attendance has been up. President J. A. West, owner, Hollywood, states, "We have been discussing this change for about a year. We have been talking to our patrons when there was a single film showing and we believe this is what the public wants." There will still be occasional double bill features, particularly when the films were booked first-run as a double bill. Both Ed Cullins, Idlewild, and Tom Ballas, Madison, agreed more business would be forthcoming from family groups.

Representative Eugene Fleeman, Ritz, Manila Ark., has introduced a revenue-producing bill which he says would bring the state of Arkansas about 25 million dollars a year in additional funds. His bill would increase the sales tax from two to three per cent, double the present state income tax rate, and add one cent to the present gas tax.

Just as predicted, Dot Barker, Exhibitors Service, is city champion bowler again this year, the second year in a row. . . . Bernice Leonard, Republic booker, and first vice-president, WOMPI, was wed to John David Tutterow, credit manager, Robinson's Ladies Apparel Shop. Among the numerous dinners, showers and prenuptial parties was a tea at the beautiful home of Mary Katherine Baker. She, along with co-hostess Katherine Randle, second vice-president, WOMPI, were well rewarded with the glow of happiness that revealingly lighted the face of Bernice.

New Orleans

Alberta Schindler, one of Film Row's steadfast employees since graduating from Sacred Heart School some 10 years or so ago, the past five years cashiering at Masterpiece, bade farewwell to public life to enter a convent in Covington, La. . . . Floyd Murphy, Exhibitors' Advertising Service, Alexandria, La., was in town. Louisiana exhibitors seen around on the Row after conferring with their buying and booking agency, Theatres Service Company, were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bethancourt, Bijou, Grand, and Houma Drive-In, Houma, La.; Ernest Drake, Ideal, Ponchatoula, La; and Nick Lamantia, Ritz, Bogalousa, La.

A. J. Broussard wired that Transway postponed the opening of the Bruce, Crowley, La., until further notice. . . . Jack Dumestre, Jr., head, Southeastern Theatre Equipment, who came here from Atlanta for Variety Club's charter banquet, remained to confer with manager William Murphy of the local branch and salesmen Raymond Gremillion and Don Wilmoth.

Urban and suburban exhibitors buying and booking were J. A. Parker, Gordon, Westwego, La.; Mrs. Bertha Foster, Violet, La.; William Sendy, Patio; Earl Perry general manager, Pittman Theatres, and buyer and booker, McElroy Theatres, Shreveport, La.; Rene Brunet, Imperial, Phillip Corte, Garden; Karl Williams, manager, Pitt; Paul Brunet, Dixie; Frank Lais, Lakeview, Fox, and Algiers Drive-In; Arthur Barnett, buyer and booker, United Theatres; Frank Ruffino, Gaeity; Gene Calongne, Bell; and Paul Shaffer, manager, Crescent Drive-In.

Ike Katz, Atlanta head, Kay Films, was here calling on circuits and film buyers and booker. . . . Sandy Weiner was here from New York to confer with Harold "Babe" Cohen regarding distribution of the documentary film, "Leonardo di Vinci."

It was happy birthday for Georgia Bruno, F. F. Goodrow office. . . . R. L. Johnson, Johnson Theatres Service, was in Meridian Miss., to confer with A. L. Royal. . . . Floyd Harvey, Memphis, Buena Vista's regional representative, was in to consummate deals for subsequent and territory showing of "20,000 Leagues Under The Sea." He was accompanied by district manager Douglas D. Desch, Dallas. . . . Among Variety Clubs International officers here for the local unit's charter banquet were Bob O'Donnell, C. A. Dolson, and Judge William McCraw, Dallas.

Florida

Miami

Variety Club Tent 33's Show of Shows drew $27,975.74, the largest gate in its history. . . . The Miami had a special front on "The Long Grey Line". . . . Joe Mallah, Wometco accounting department, was handing out cigars and candy on the occasion of the birth of his second child and first son, Joseph David.

The entire staff of Claughton Theatres assembled for the first annual presentation of Gold Service Awards. The Gold Service Awards will be presented annually to Claughton's most outstanding enployees, with selection based on efficiency, appearance, general ability, and courtesy to patrons. The meeting was preceded by a showing of Filmack's "Courtesy is Contagious." Mrs. Lillian C. Claughton, circuit owner, felt that this film played an important part in aiding the staffs of the various theatres to give prompt and courteous service to patrons.

Florida State has inaugurated a policy of providing music from future pictures to the disc jockeys in the area.

The Tower Drive-In, Rocky Mount, N. C., has erected a CinemaScope screen containing nearly 4,000 square feet of picture space, the largest of its kind in the area. Designed by John McKinley, Atlanta, engineer with the Wil-Kin Theatre Supply Company, it is engineered to withstand a 100 mile an hour gale, with a 50 per cent overload factor. It stands 65 feet in the air, is a completely welded all-steel structure anchored in 240 square yards of concrete. The Tower also installed specially designed projection equipment.

J. W. Allen, manager of the Mid-Way Drive-In, was slugged and robbed of around $300.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Stallings, who have been operating a house at Creedmoor, N. C., for the past three years and commuting from Henderson, N. C., 25 miles away, simply because they could not find a place to live at Creedmoor, finally located a home at Creedmoor and have moved in. They formerly operated houses at Henderson and have enlarged the lobby, entrances, and stage of the house at Creedmoor.

Cleveland

Local exhibitors, following an industry meeting in the 20th-Fox screening room, assented to the plan to make audience collections during Brotherhood Week. Co-chairmen were Meyer Fine, Associated Circuit, representing exhibitors, and Danny Rosenthal, United Artists branch manager, representing the distributors.

The big social news was the announcement of the engagement of Marshall Fine, son of Meyer Fine, who heads the Associated Circuit, and Patricia Crow, McKeesport, Pa. The bride-to-be is a student at Northwestern University. Marshall is a graduate of Harvard. There will be a June wedding. . . . Of equal importance was the birth of a son to the wife of Bert Lefkowich, executive, Community Circuit. The newcomer's grandparents, Max and Helen Lefkowich, returned from their Florida winter home.

The crowd participating in the Variety Club's gin rummy calcutta was comparatively small due to the bad weather, but those who did attend had a good time and report that any time Danny Rosenthal gets tired of his job as United Artists branch manager, he can always take up auctioneering as a profession. Winners were Jules Livingston, Republic branch manager, who copped first place, and Ray Schmertz, 20th-Fox city salesman, who finished in second place.

The Moreland, closed almost five years, is about to turn on its lights. The operators of the Mount Pleasant, S. V. Pancner and C. H. Kuenzi, have reportedly taken a lease on the Moreland, and after installing a wide-screen and CinemaScope equipment, will reopen it on a full time basis.

Spring must be just around the corner. The family of Dale Elleman was around starting to book for their two Bellefontaine, O., drive-ins.

Republic is moving its exchange from the Film Building's fourth floor to a store room of the building, formerly home of the Eagle Lion office. State Films has moved to the Film Building space where the Republic shipping and inspection department formerly held forth. State Films is now handling all of Republic's shipping and inspection.

The Cleveland Plain Dealer has notified all subsequent run theatre owners that effective March 1, their Sunday advertising rates will go up three cents from 39 cents per line to 42 cents per line. It is estimated this boost will cost the sub run owners a minimum of $2,700 a year. . . . Sylvester (Sly) Pierce, former manager, Berea, Berea, O., has been appointed manager, Windameer. He succeeds Norbert Clark, who resigned to join an advertising firm in Columbus. . . . Jack Gertz, Jack L. Gertz Enterprises; J. Stuart Cangney, Jewel; and "Andy" Anderson, Uptown, tried their luck at ice fishing on Lake Erie. The score is not in at this writing.

Mary Drews, who resigned as Republic booker to give her full attention to the new home she and her husband purchased, is doing temporary duty at the exchange assisting new booker Paul Hartnett to become acquainted with the accounts.

Milton A. Mooney, head, Cooperative Theatres of Ohio, is introducing Frank J. Thomas, newly appointed successor to Howard Spiess, who moved to St. Louis to buy and book for a circuit of houses owned by Phil Smith, Boston. Thomas hails from Pittsburgh.

Joe Shagrin, Foster, Youngstown, O., has left the Northside Hospital where he underwent surgery, and is now convalescing at home. . . . A damage suit was filed this week in Common Pleas Court asking $75,000 from the Fairmount Center Company and the Fairmount Amusement Company for injuries allegedly sustained from a fall on ice on the sidewalk in front of the Fairmount. The plaintiff, Joseph Ghanem, 53, is the editor and publisher of La Revve De Liban, newspaper of Lebanon. He charges that owner of the property and the operator of the theatre were guilty of negligence by allowing water to drip from the marquee and create a hazzard by freezing on the sidewalk.

Detroit

The big day came for the Music Hall with the opening of "Cinerama Holiday." John and Betty Marsh, Fred and Beatrice Toller, featured in the film, and Louis de Rochemont, director, made a tour of the city. Wile Raps New Plan For Ohio Censorship

COLUMBUS, O. — Proposed film censorship for patrons under 21 is "ridiculous," said Robert Wile, secretary, Independent Theatre Owners of Ohio, in a bulletin to ITOO members. Bill to limit censorship to that group was introduced in the Ohio Legislature by Representative Louis J. Schneider, Jr., Cincinnati Republican.

"The age limit of 21 is ridiculous because people get married at 18 and serve in the army at 17 where they are exposed to much worse than the worst movie could ever do," said Wile. "If the age limit is lowered this would still have its objectionable features. Many of the customers of drive-ins are couples with children who sleep during the show. Would they be permitted to enter without violating the law? And if they wake up during the show and looked at the picture, who is the culprit, the exhibitor?

"However, this might work out better than absolute censorship which had previously applied. Pictures not intended to be shown to children would not require examination or seal at all."

Wile said that exhibitors and managers are warned to be on guard about petitions asking for censorship. He said the Women's Federal Savings and Loan Association of Cleveland handed out such petitions to depositors. "When we called their attention to the position they were taking, they stopped it. When we informed the bank's attorney of the evils of censorship he asked us to detail them, as we had changed his mind. If any other business house, bank, etc., hands out such petitions, please call us," said Wile.

Abolition of the city motion picture commission was proposed by Edward H. Snyder, an attorney, in a talk before the weekly luncheon of Milwaukee Democrats at the Maryland Hotel. Snyder, who has studied the legal aspects of censorship, presented a report of his findings. Mayor Zeidler appointed 10 persons to the civic progress commission, among them was Angelo Provinzano, Alamo and Pix, and William Geehan, former assistant to Harold Fitzgerald, Fox Wisconsin Amusement Corporation, and F. R. Peterson, secretary to the mayor and former circuit booker.

Minneapolis

A new drive-in, to be called the Mile High, is now under construction at Plum, S. D., between Lead and Deadwood. The outdoor stand is being built directly below the Homestake Mine on the only piece of flat ground in the immediate area. Partners in the project are Robert Lundquist, Robert Lahti, and Charles Creamer, Minneapolis Theatre Supply Company, and Leonard Steele, who also will manage the stand. The drive-in will be a deluxe operation with 600 speakers. It will be equipped for CinemaScope and other wide-screen projection. An early spring opening is scheduled.

Independent exhibitors have served notice on projectionists in Minneapolis that they have made their final and top offer in negotiating for a new contract. The next move is up to the projectionists, the theatre operators say. Already rejected by the union by what was reported to be a unanimous vote to strike was the independent's final compromise offer of seven cents per hour increase for each of the last two years of the three-year contract and no allowance for additional preparation time.

Ed Linder, manager, Gopher, has been busy garnering plenty of free radio, TV and newspaper space as attested to by his recent campaign on "Bad Day At Black Rock." Larry Fischer, radio station WTCN, awarded passes to see the film on his old tunes program; John Cummings, disc jockey, radio station WLOL, did likewise on his show, with both resulting in gratis spots plugging the film and its showing. Jeff Hughes awarded six passes on his "Pet Program" over TV station KEYD. Linder made a tie-in with the MGM Gold Medal book through the local distributor and had 100 counter and window display cards, put out by the book distributor, picked up and lettered by his own printer. He did the same with truck banners, lettering them with "Gopher Theatre, Now Showing." This resulted in having 11 trucks carrying theatre name and playdate of the picture on the streets and surrounding territory. Local newspapers seemed to go overboard in giving Linder free copy for both still scenes and advance publicity on the picture. On the pre-opening and opening days heavy commercial spots were used on both WTCH and WLOL radio stations. A sound truck was used carrying two 24-sheets, one on each side, for several days with radio records used for sound effects.

Sindlinger to conduct a six month survey to find out what had to be done to stimulate more business for the theatres, and for the town generally. The town was losing business to nearby communities. The survey revealed that the town's merchants were not keeping pace with merchants in other cities. He had recently remodeled his theatres, had air conditioning put in, adding CinemaScope and refurbnishing them inside and out. The merchants were not properly displaying their merchandise, lighting stores and keeping their stores up to date. The Sindlinger survey showed that the interest of the theatre operator is paralleled with the merchants of the town.

A $60,000 fire that razed the Avalon, Corpus Christi, Tex., has been reported as "definitely a case of arson" according to local police. A local night watchman was arrested at the scene and booked at city jail for investigation for arson. Wadded newspapers were found under the movie screen. Apparently the paper sputtered out and did not ignite as the arsonists had planned. The screen was destroyed but did not create enough heat to ignite surrounding wood on the stage and ceiling. The stage where the newspapers were burned was far removed from the fire which consumed the other end of the building and apparently started on the roof. Several charred kitchen matches were found on the floor near the newspaper ruins.

Films can play an important part in achieving the year-round objectives of the National Conference of Christians and Jews, it was brought out at the New England industry's Brotherhood Week participation kick-off meeting in the Bradford Hotel. Nearly 400 exchange and theatre staff members heard Bill Cunningham, Boston Herald columnist, trace the growth of good will since dark days when, as a young reporter in Dallas, he was taken blindfolded to cover KKK floggings and demonstrations, and later, as a sports writer reporting Olympic Games in Berlin, he saw Hitlerism at its height. Referring to front page stories that morning in the Boston press reporting receipt of threatening letters by residents of one fashionable suburb, he said, "We still have to work hard for brotherhood. I never thought I'd see headlines like those today, in this part of the country and in these times." The meeting was called by Samuel Pinanski, Brotherhood Week chairman for exhibitors, and E. Meyer Feltman, U-I branch manager and chairman for the distributors, who also presided. Paul Levi, ATC publicist, was in charge of publicity for the week. Francis E. McElroy, New England Division Executive Director for the National Conference of Christians and Jews, told of its current projects, including use of films by Parent Teachers Associations and similar groups to develop goodwill among children. The regional budget this year, he said, calls for at least $50,000. Tom Donaldson, U-I salesmanager and co-chairman for the distributors, and Edward Canter, ATC general manager, spoke briefly. Plans were made to increase enrollment considerably among New England film industry ranks.

Bird Report Asks Tax Retention

ALBANY—The long awaited and final report of the Temporary Commission on Fiscal Affairs of State Government, commonly known as the Bird Commission, recommended to the Governor and the Legislature that the permissive taxes, including the five per cent on admissions, authorized for cities and counties, be retained.

"The Commission has not undertaken a qualitative appraisal of all these taxes, but believes that as a group they serve a useful purpose and should be retained," read one section of the study. "They add flexibility and some choice of alternative between the local revenue systems, and even in communities where little use has been made of them, there is considerable opinion that their continued availability is valuable."

The report, submitted by an 11-member group appointed by former Governor Thomas E. Dewey in August, 1953, to make a study and appraisal of the fiscal affairs of state government, set forth that "a recently adopted admission tax of five per cent is estimated by city officials to yield $16,700,000 in 1954-55."

Schenck explained that the obligation to Sheraton-Ten Eyck was a substantial one, involving an undertaking by himself and other officers. He thought that sufficient new members and renewed interest on the part of present barkers would warrant the leasing arrangement. It is for five years, but cancellable by the club at the expiration of the first. George B. Chelius, Jr., Sheraton-Ten Eyck manager and a new Variety Club member, will select the quarters. Schenck believed that 60 new members, chiefly associates since there would not be enough within the industry, were needed.

Sholly, MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR correspondent, was called out of town because of a death in the family. . . . Exhibitors saw a tipoff on business in a statemen by Edward Hare, Jr., director, Department of Public Welfare, that its capacities have been "strained almost to the breaking point" by the high case loads resulting from the heavy unemployment experienced in Delaware since the fall of 1953. He discussed the question of whether the high level of need will continue. "Economists differ," Hare said, adding that there are no concrete indications that the welfare department's job will decrease soon. He said: "We might be shaking down to a 'normal' level of peacetime economic activity, with unemployment hovering around where it is, higher than in the conflict periods and lower than recession or depression levels."

Cambridge

Telegrams and postal cards requesting Sunday movies for Cambridge are being sent to the five members of the Dorchester County legislative delegation now in Annapolis. Sam Newman, manager, RK, said he felt the people wanted Sunday movies and that he had passed out about 1,000 cards to businessmen and individuals. If such a bill would be passed it would apply only to Cambridge, and would be drawn so that the movies would not interfere with church hours, Newman said. A check with the legislative delegation, however, revealed that no such bill has been drawn.

zine representatives, who will come on from New York, and all parts of the keystone state for the event. The guests will be transported from New York in a fleet of deluxe motorcoaches. The Lancaster world premiere will signal day-and-date openings of the picture in all parts of Pennsylvania. The film opens nationally in late April. The first event on the agenda will be a banquet in the ballroom of the Hotel Brunswick at which the visitors will be greeted by the governor and other state and city dignitaries. Following the banquet, the party will head for the Colonial for the initial showing of the picture. The opening will be a kleig-lit affair radiating the glamour and excitement of New York and Hollywood premieres. Newreel, TV, radio and the press will cover the event, beaming highlights to the dramatic attention of millions in all parts of the country and overseas. Tours have been arranged to enable guests to see such famed Pennsylvania sites as the Farmer's Market in Lancaster; the old Pennsylvania pike; and other points of historical and cultural interest in the Amish and Mennonite area. Trip to nearby towns Lititz, Paradise, Bareville, Bird-in-Hand, Hindletown, and Leacock also will be included on the agenda. Charles Einfeld, 20th-Fox vice president; Edward E. Sullivan, publicity manager; Meyer Hutner, associate publicity manager; Leo Pillot, special events director; and Hal Marshall, Atlantic division exploitation representative, finalized plans for the gala premiere.

Reading

Loew's Colonial, Bob Diem, manager, has started a series of Saturday morning shows, cartoons, and other attractions, plus the regular feature for the day. . . . The Astor, J. Lester Stallman, manager, was host to various picture-interested groups at a preview of "Country Girl."

Regardless of the usual Lenten falling-off in business in theatres, local houses will step up interest in their programs by booking a number of high class attractions for March. Space in daily newspaper advertising is also being increased.

A number of alterations to the Rajah Temple building owned by the Mystic Shriners, are being planned as a result of a long lease to be taken on part of the temple and for part-time use of the theatre by Reading Consis'ory, Scottish Rite Masons. As Reading Consistory will discontinue holding sessions in the Plaza, which is part of Reading's Masonic Temple, this move to the Rajah has caused some speculation as to the future of the Plaza, 1,200-seater. After a 54-year history in which it was a legitimate house, a burlesque and stock company location, and for many years a motion picture theatre, the Plaza has had few rentals in the past year.

The inventory in the estate of Paul L. Knorr, this city, was filed in the office of Register of Wills Clair M. Price. Personal and real property listed amounted to $426,000. The Knorr estate is the owner, Warner.

Jack Whittle, new chief barker, Baltimore Variety Club, Tent 19, left, recently received the gavel from retiring Chief Barker Rodney Collier, who served three terms in the capacity.

American Legion Post 825, this city, which is raising funds for a new building and for welfare work, will stage a "Grand Old Op'ry" show in the Strand, Donald Hinkle, manager, on March 15. Tickets for the afternoon show will be free to underprivileged children of the city and suburban area. The post is soliciting advertising for a program for the show.

The Stanley Warner theatre interests have purchased the Warner from the John B. Knorr estate. The sale includes two stores. The sales price was reported to have been $180,000. Richard T. Williamson was attorney for the Knorr estate in the sale and SW was represented by Wolf, Block, Schorr and Solis-Cohen, Philadelphia attorneys.

Claude E. Greth, 72, for many years a stage employe in the Academy of Music, now Rajah, died at his home in Glenside.

listed as loans payable to J. J. O'Leary, trustee, $851,786.94; Comerford treasurer, $720,862.37; Binghamton Theater Company, $64,000; Kodeco Realty Company, $30,000; and Meco Realty Company, $2,400. The account was filed by Frank C. Walker, executor. Accounts also were filed in the estate of M. B. Comerford, nephew of M. E., and in the estate of M. B.'s wife, Anna, who served as administratrix until her death in 1945. Assets in the M. E. Comerford estate included Meco Realty Company, 3,334 shares, $928,885.75; Penn State Realty Company, 1,000 shares, $275,-188.72; Comerford, Inc., 167 shares, $166,968.27; Metropolitan Theatre Company, 616 two-third shares, $167,916.34; Capitol, Hazleton, 500 shares, $131,235; Luzerne, $119,480.62; Hyde Park Amusement Company, 334 shares, $108,581,86; Federal Theatre Company, 389 shares, $74,139.51; Carbondale Theatre Company, 84 shares, $17,556.17; Carbondale Amusement Company, 55 shares, $543.07; Forest City Theatre Company, 67 shares, $11,279.45; Edwardsville Amusement Company, $4 083.30; cash, $40,714.21. Accounts receivable total $93,702.87, the account shows. Principal disbursements of $937,765.87, and income disbursements of $453,817.79 up to 1953 were accounted for by Walker. Advances to legatees totaled $1,132,000, including $378,000 to Margaret A. Comerford, widow of M. E.; $126,000 to Mariel C. Friday and the same amount to Margaret B. Carey.

The M. B. Comerford estate account was filed by Walker, O'Leary, and Helen Comerford Egan. It showed a net value of $21,928.41 as of Dec. 31, 1954. The value as of Oct. 25, 1945 was $2,292,593. Disbursements of $2,200,181.87 cut the total to $92,411.48. Loans of $70,483.07 cut the net value to $21,928.41. Chief disbursements were $1,195,859.06 as two-third-share of the securities to the M. B. Comerford partnership and one-third of the securities to the Anna D. Comerford estate. The net value of the estate of Anna D. Comerford as of Dec. 31, 1954 was listed at $390,461.02. Total assets were listed at $1,407,701 and after disbursements of $552,418.92 the balance was $885,282.08 Outstanding loans of $474,052.89 cut the total to $411,229.17. Another deduction of $20,-768.15 also was listed. M. E. Comerford died Feb. 1, 1939, in Miami, Fla. His will named as principal beneficiaries his widow, Margaret, and Mariel Comerford Friday, wife of attorney Thomas Friday. Other beneficiaries named in the will were his brother, Andrew, and his nephew, M. B. Mrs. Comerford was given an outright bequest of $5,000, one-third of the residuary estate and the Comerford residence at 340 Wyoming Avenue as well as personal property and his automobiles. A one-ninth share of the residuary estate was left to Mariel together with real estate at 116 South Hyde Park Avenue. His stock in the Penn-com Corporation was ordered devised to his nephews, Frank C. Walker and Michael B. Comerford, to he held in trust 15 years with the income paid into the residuary estate. At the end of that time, the will directed that the stock be sold and the proceeds paid into the residuary estate for distribution to the residuary legatees. Nieces and nephews also shared in the estate. A one-ninth residuary share was awarded to children of his late sister, Ellen Comerford Walker; a similar share to children of his late brother, Patrick J. Comerford; the same to children of his late sister, Mary Comerford Collins; and the same to a brother, John, and a sister, Margaret Carey. A $125 monthly annuity had been set up for his brother, Andrew, who died after the will was executed. The will carried a clause that any beneficiary who contested the will's validity would be cut off from his benefits.

The luncheon tendered the Honorable Leo Weinrott proved a big success.

The first dance of the season will be held in the clubrooms on March 12.

Irving Shiffrin, hustling Allied Artists exploiteer, pulled one of the best interest-arousing stunts in connection with the preshowing of "Tonight's The Night," Viking, that hit Philadelphia in a long, long time. This was in the nature of tieins with radio stations which ran letter contests from listeners on the topic of "Why I Want To See 'Tonight's The Night.'" The preview, to which winners of the flood of mail were invited was held at the Locust. On the left is seen Harry Sley, owner, Viking and Locust, discussing some of the avalanche of mail with Ben Gimbel, head, WIP, which held the contest on its "Dawn Patrol"; center is Steve Allison, WPEN's "Midnight Belongs To Me" lad, with several of the winners of the contest he ran, including Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Murphy and Mrs. Charlotte Lynch. Allison plugged the contest for a week and several thousand listeners responded. On the right is another gimmick which had models, Shriffrin included, reading newspapers on street intersections with the back page covered with signs plugging the opening of the film at the Viking.

THINGS YOU SHOULD KNOW —about this service— THE CHECK-UP

This every-second-week regular department is NOT just an index as published in many other trade papers.

THE CHECK-UP is an exclusive EXHIBITOR service. Started many years ago, it represents a complete, unmatchable . . .

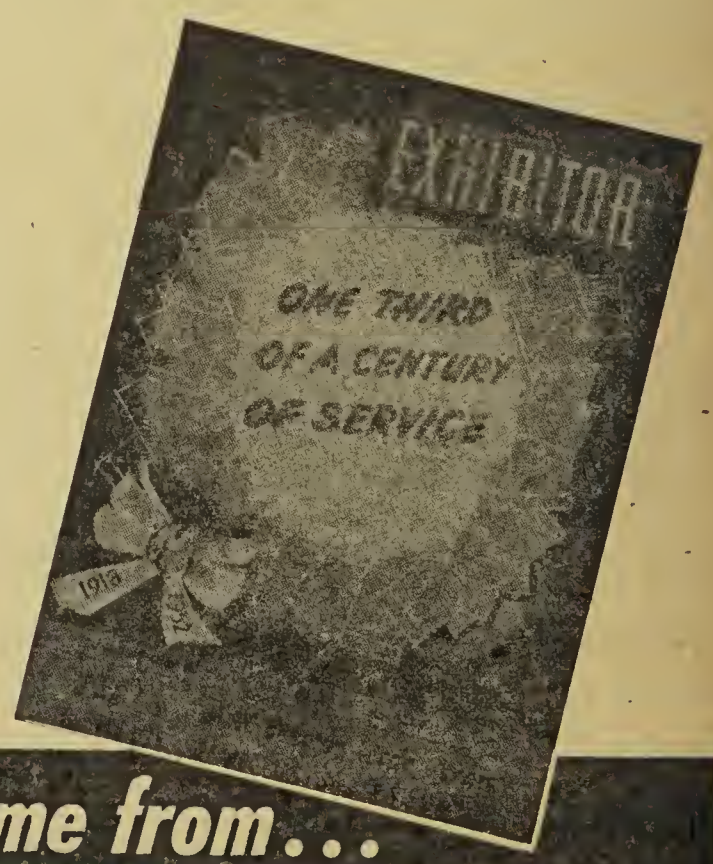
CAPSULE SUMMARY

. . . of ALL Features and of ALL Shorts that have been released and reviewed during the last 8 Months, . . . PLUS information on all that are in production for early release.

WITH THE CHECK-UP AT HAND—

. . . it is NOT necessary to go to your file or to look up a complete Review in order to find:

1. TITLE
2. TYPE OF SHOW
3. COLOR or BLACK AND WHITE
4. LEADING PLAYERS
5. ONE-LINE CRITICISM
6. RUNNING TIME
7. PRODUCTION NUMBER
8. DATE OF COMPLETE REVIEW
9. LEGION OF DECENCY RATING



They are all right here in THE CHECK-UP. And you need only save it for two weeks,— for it will be up-to-date the next time issued.

A MAN WITH HIS HAT IN HIS HAND

WHETHER YOU LIKE IT OR NOT, and as a theatreman myself, I don't, the prestige and position of the theatreman in this industry has hit a new low during the last five or ten years.

Through all previous history, since the days of the nickelodeon, there were many productions annually competing for the available playing time in our theatres. During the national depression starting in '28, and again during the industry depression starting in '46, their quality may not have been very high but their volume was there, so that a theatreman needed judgment, experience, and knowledge of the tastes of his particular clientele in order to choose the kind of entertainment they would buy. The accent was on the maximum millions of admissions per week, whether through new features, reissues, doubles, dishes, or bank night; and it was the theatreman's job to keep the industry healthy by exercising every wile of exploitation, advertising, ballyhoo stunt and publicity trick, in order to get those millions in and bring them back for more. In the grassroots across the nation, earnest and capable showmen were a part of the American scene; and they resisted all efforts to increase admission prices, so that their friends and neighbors, the American public, got a heaping amusement value for their dollar that had never been equalled.

During those days, distribution, which is not really a separate part of this industry at all, but only the sales department of production, did its level best to sell and service theatremen, but didn't question the latter's better knowledge of theatre operation generally, and of their own clientele particularly. If a star was not understood or liked by a particular local nationality group, the theatreman was allowed to pass up his picture even under block booking. If a theatreman knew that in his area a certain type of picture would do one good week and then die, it was taken for granted that he wasn't passing up revenue; and he wasn't forced to play it two weeks in order to get it at all. Sales forces in every branch territory were large enough to call on all theatres regularly, even the $7.50 accounts, and trade papers carried more than double today's total pages of advertising, keeping theatremen advised about current grosses and stimulating their interest in individual picture possibilities.

There was merchandising in those days! And there was showmanship! There were cut-outs on top of the marquee, and painted signs, and A-wagons carrying 24-sheet boards down the main stem. Theatremen prepared their own advertising to produce the best results on their patronage, predicated on the policies of their newspapers and the aggressiveness of their competition. Press books were conceded to be the producer's effort to help and suggest, but their ads weren't shoved down the throat of the theatreman as the ones he must use or else. There was thinking at the theatre level and year-round gross admissions ran 90,000,000 per week. The industry prospered and the American public benefited.

There was even a cameraderie, goodwill, and an understanding of mutual problems that showed itself best when the international monetary situation cut down the producers' foreign market income. Explained through their several organizations, the theatremen of America kicked in voluntarily with higher film rentals, and gave their best efforts to enable producers to weather the storm.

But in the last five or 10 years, and seemingly speeded by the divorcement of theatres from production, there has come a dramatic change.

The theatreman today is nothing more or less than the not-very-respected owner of some rather expensive one-purpose real estate on the main stems of America. Because it is one-purpose real estate, he has no alternative but to close up and lose his entire investment if he can't procure the only merchandise he is equipped to sell, namely motion pictures. With no theatres of their own to service or maintain, the same seven producers who in 1945, under wartime scarcities and restrictions, produced 225 features, in the first three months of 1955 are producing at the annual rate of 160 features. Through those same 10 years, and thanks to drive-ins, the total number of theatres has not changed. So, with 29 percent less features, it is simple arithmetic that the squeeze is on.

With his investment at stake, and possibly the future of himself and his family, the honest theatreman has no alternative than to accept the dictates of the producer's distributor and hope that some small spark of human decency and human kindness, at either the local branch

By Mel Konecoff

THE ASSOCIATION of Theatre Screen Advertising Companies hosted a luncheon last week for the press and other interested parties at the Hotel Astor, mainly, we guess, to tell you 16,000 theatres that run screen ads all about reaction of the average patron to the ads as seen through the eyes, ears, and statistics of a survey conducted by Sindlinger and Company, analysts. Or perhaps it was to give the information to the other 3,000 theatres that don't run theatre ads.

KONECOFF

Incidentally, the 16,000 houses split a profit melon of about 10 million dollars, with 90 per cent of this going to 10,000 houses and the balance being split among the remaining 6,000 "fringe" theatres. The money is net income, and nothing has to be taken off for expenses.

Albert Sindlinger was on hand to break down some of the results of a 10-month survey conducted in five test cities in different parts of the country, Belleville, Kans.; Bonham, Tex.; Bucyrus, O.; Waterville, Me.; and Fayetteville, N. C. In all, 6,651 interviews were conducted.

Conclusions reached were 10 per cent of audiences objected to screen advertising, with these being infrequent moviegoers and in the higher income brackets; TV set owners had a higher recall of theatre screen advertising sponsors and products than non-set owners, with TV and its commercials enhancing the impact value of theatre screen advertising; females had a slightly higher recall of theatre screen ads than did males; etc.

TV reception in all cities except Waterville, Me., was poor, and reception in the exception was fair. Other things noted by Sindlinger were preferences of audiences for either the drive-in or the conventional theatre, with 46 to 65 per cent preferring the conventional house. The reasons given were the drive-in lets out too late; better vision; air conditioned; better shows; more comfortable; you feel as thought you are out and part of an audience. The drive-in preferences had it that you can take the children; don't have to dress; cooler outside, can talk, smoke, etc.; better for a date; more personal comfort.

Claude Lee, eastern sales manager, Motion Picture Advertising Service Company, was toastmaster, while at the head table were W. H. Hendren, Jr., president, United Film Service; Carl J. Mabry, president, Motion Picture Advertising Service; Don Alexander, Jr., vice-president, Alexander Film Company; Sindlinger; Ted Cauger, vice-president, A. V. Cauger Service; Ray Jeffries, Reid Ray Film Industries; K. D. Clark, assistant to the president, Alexander Film Company.

THE METROPOLITAN SCENE: 262,000 attendees have seen the film "Aida" during its 15 weeks at the Little Carnegie, which incidentally, is claimed as a record for the house as to length of run and attendance. . . . "Marty" is being screened for stars of the stage in off-theatre hours. . . . For the opening of "Untamed" at the Roxy, a fabulous jewel collection of rare diamonds will be put on display in the lobby with an armed guard in evidence practically all the time. In addition, patrons will get a chance to own a free diamond by drawing from a huge drum filled with zircons and diamonds. An expert will be on hand to tell the holder whether his selection is valueless or not. . . . Good pressbook is out on "Man Without A Star."

Business Spotty

NEW YORK—Business in the Broadway first runs is reflected in the breakdown reaching MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR from usually reliable sources, as follows:

"Battle Cry" (Warners). Paramount expected the fifth week to hit $551,000.

"Three For The Show" (Columbia). Roxy claimed the second and last week would reach $22,000.

"Hit The Deck" (MGM). Radio City Music Hall, with stage show, was heading toward a $130,000 opening week.

"The Country Girl" (Paramount). Criterion did $25,000 on the 12th week.

"Bad Day At Black Rock" (MGM). Rivoli claimed the fifth week would reach $13,500.

"The Far Country" (U-I). Globe anticipated the fourth week at $9,000.

"Underwater" (RKO). Mayfair expected the fourth week to garner $13,000.

"20,000 Leagues Under The Sea" (Buena Vista-Disney). Astor claimed $16,000 for the 11th and last week.

"New York Confidential" (Warners). Victoria dropped to $16,000 on the third week.

"Sign Of The Pagan" (U-I). Loew's State was down to $11,000 on the fourth and last week.

"The Long Gray Line" (Columbia). Capitol reported $40,000 for the fourth week.

High Rentals, Toll-TV Hit By Ohio Exhibs

Allied Unit Calls Film Shortage "Deliberate"; Shor Sees Government Regulation As Necessary

COLUMBUS, O.—Existence of all theatres is threatened by toll television, and many small-town houses face extinction because of high film rentals, said Horace Adams, president, Independent Theatre Owners of Ohio, at the state convention in Columbus last week.

Adams, who was re-elected president of the Ohio theatremen's association, called upon all theatre owners to contribute to exhibition's anti-toll-TV campaign fund. He said the plight of many "grass roots" theatres, caused by "excessive" rentals, was one of the reasons why Allied "felt it absolutely necessary to go to the government for relief."

Adams charged that the film shortage is "deliberate." He also called upon film distributors to have established sales policies that are transmitted to branch managers.

Rube Shor, Cincinnati, newly-elected National Allied president, said that while he does not like government intervention, "We cannot stay in business without something happening at once." Shor said there are three distributing companies "which have taken a realistic view of the plight of exhibitors." He added that Allied realizes that all elements of the industry must remain healthy and that "you can't have healthy exhibition and sick distribution." Shor appointed Adams regional vice-president of National Allied.

Eidophor, the color theatre television system developed by 20th-Fox, will be available to theatres within one year, predicted Glenn Norris, eastern sales manager, 20th-Fox. Norris, in answer to questions from delegates, said that his company is willing to make any film rental deals acceptable to exhibitors providing that such deals give a fair return to the distributor. He also said that higher rentals asked for CinemaScope features are justified by generally higher grosses. "There's no problem that can't be solved if we sell enough tickets," said Norris.

New projection methods and the various wide-screen systems were reviewed by Merlin Lewis, executive secretary, Theatre Equipment and Supply. Mrs. Max Williams, Detroit, president, National Film Council, told delegates that "movies are a legitimate business run by experts" and offered the help of her organization in their problems.

Resolutions opposing censorship and toll television were approved by the convention. Censorship was called "pernicious and unconstitutional."

In addition to reelecting Horace Adams president, delegates elected the following slate of officers and board of directors, F. W. Huss, Jr., Cincinnati, first vice-president; Peter Wellman, Girard, second vice-president; Charles Sugarman, Columbus, treasurer; and Robert Wile, Columbus, secretary. Board members are Park Belden, Akron; Louis F. Eick, Martins Ferry; Marshall Fine, Cleveland; Marvin Frankel, Elyria; Henry Greenberger, Cleveland; J. Real Neth, Columbus; C. F. Pfister, Troy; Hoy L. Russell, Millersburg; Martin G. Smith, Toledo; Chris Velas, Bellaire; Walter Burget, Van Wert; Roy E. Wells, Dayton; and Louis Wiethe, Cincinnati.

Scrolls honoring National Screen Service and ITOO were presented to Burton Robbins, manager, NSS Cincinnati office, and to Horace Adams, president, ITOO, at the convention banquet at the Deshler-Hilton. Presentation was made by Lieutenant Governor John W. Brown of Ohio. The scrolls paid tribute to the cooperation of the two organizations in distributing highway safety trailers to several hundred Ohio theatres.

Abram F. Myers, Allied general counsel, was banquet toastmaster. He replaced Maurice Bergman, eastern studio representative, Universal-International, who was unable to accept an invitation to the banquet.

About 400 showmen attended the MGM Ticket Selling Workshop held as part of the convention program. Importance of special children's shows and special events was stressed by Jack Bruno, Cooper Foundation Theatres, Pueblo, Colo., in the Workshop sessions. He suggested a slogan, "Go to the movies . . . where happiness costs so little."

Mike L. Simons, director of customer relations for MGM, was in charge of the Workshop. Panelists, in addition to Bruno, included Emery Austin, MGM exploitation director; Ivan Anderson, Liberty, North Wilkesboro, N. C.; Conrad Brady, Interstate Theatres, Houston, Tex.; J. W. Gaylard, Troy Drive-in, Troy, Ala.; Nate Milder, sales director, WHIZ-TV, Zanesville, O.; and Jack Lake, advertising manager, Eagle-Gazette, Lancaster, O.

Alden Brinham, Weslin, Massillon, O., won the door prize, a briefcase.

Toll-TV Top Problem, New England Exhibs Say

BOSTON—Independent Exhibitors, Inc., of New England, a unit of National Allied, decided at their annual meeting last week that the threat of toll-TV was their most pressing problem.

The most effective way of meeting this problem, declared newly elected President Edward Lider, is to give money to support the national fight, but he indicated that his organization will make every effort on the local level to get out a large exhibitor attendance at the anti-toll-TV mass meeting scheduled for March 16, in the Bradford. Money spent on fighting toll-TV, he added, can be regarded as an investment in the future of exhibition.

In addition to Lider, other officers elected at the meeting were Albert Lourie, secretary; Melvin B. Safner, first vice-president; Lloyd Clark, second vice-president; Julian Rifkin, secretary; Nathan Yamins, national delegate; Norman C. Glassman, board chairman; and an executive committee composed of W. Leslie Bendsley, Roy Burroughs, Edwin Fideli, Henry Gaudet, Leonard Goldberg, Arthur Howard, Winthrop Knox, Frank T. Lepage, Walter E. Mitchell, Daniel J. Murphy, Samuel Resnick, Theodore Rosenblat, Andrew Tegu, and Robert Viano.

Circuits Must Open Books For Goldwyn

HOLLYWOOD—Federal Judge Michael J. Roche, last week ordered Fox West Coast Theatres Corporation and National Theatres, Inc., to open their books and accounts to be inspected by Samuel Goldwyn in a $6,750,000 anti-trust suit against FWC and McNeil and Naify Circuits.

The precedent setting decisions ordered FWC to make available to Goldwyn all records, including corporate income tax records, for the period from 1937 to 1950, showing actual house expenses for each theatre in the circuit for comparison with expenses, claimed by Goldwyn to be fictitious, charged against pictures in computing film rentals in sliding scale deals.

FWC attorney Arthur J. Dunne objected to this decision, claiming that the figures used in film deals as house expenses were negotiated, but this was overruled by Judge Roche as grounds for keeping the figures secret. This is the first time that a theatre circuit has been forced to disclose actual operating expenses. The court granted the motion of Joseph Alioto, Goldwyn counsel, to require FWC to open its competitive bidding records, its profits on real estate operation and candy sales for inspection by Goldwyn.

Judge Roche refused decision of a motion for a separate trial against McNeil and Naify, who contended that trial together with FWC would prejudice their interests. Goldwyn counsel opposed the motion, claiming that McNeil and Naify were co-conspirators with FWC and should be tried together.

March 18 was set for the date of the next hearing.

GOVERNMENT SHOWS INTEREST . . .

Dear Sir:

As you probably are aware, the Senate Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee instituted a study and inquiry into the so-called UHF-VHF problem as well as the need for network regulation in September of 1954. Two reports have been prepared by special counsels as a result of that study. One, the so-called Plotkin memorandum was released last week and another, the Jones memorandum, will become available this week. I am enclosing for your information a copy of the Plotkin memorandum and will forward a copy of the Jones memorandum to you as soon as it becomes available. I have requested the Federal Communications Commission and the Department of Justice to make a preliminary report to me within 30 days on the various recommendations set forth in the Plotkin memo. I propose to proceed with open hearings in the early part of March at which time the FCC will be the first witness. The Committee plans to continue its study and inquiry into the entire broadcast field.

Sincerely yours,
WARREN G. MAGNUSON, USS
Washington
Chairman

Dear Sir:

This is in reply to your letter of Feb. 15, addressed to the Attorney General, in which you call to our attention the possibility that corporations owning newspapers and radio and television broadcasting companies are producing "a monopoly of public information." The Department of Justice is directly concerned with the problem that you mention. The recent verdict of guilty by the jury in the Government's antitrust action against the Kansas City Star Company highlights the problem. You may be assured that this Department will continue to scrutinize this situation carefully and, consistent with manpower and funds available, prosecute violations that are found to exist.

Sincerely yours,
STANLEY N. BARNES
Assistant Attorney General
Washington

Dear Sir:

This will acknowledge your letter of Feb. 15, 1955, expressing your views with respect to newspaper ownership and interest in radio and television. You inclose various attachments on this matter. Your interest in making your views on this matter known to the Commission and in forwarding the enclosed material is appreciated.

Sincerely yours,
GEORGE C. MCCONNAUGHEY, Chairman
Federal Communications Commission
Washington.

Dear Sir:

Thanks for your letter concerning the forthcoming investigation of possible monopoly in the radio and television industries. I appreciate your sending me the attached copy of the MOTION PICTURE EXHIBITOR and will study this with interest in connection with the investigation.

Sincerely yours,
PRICE DANIEL
Texas

EDITOR'S NOTE:

The following replies were received from Senators, the FCC chairman, and the Justice Department concerning MPE's editorial (Feb. 9) "Right Suit . . . Wrong Customer."

Dear Sir:

This will acknowledge receipt of your recent letter in which you refer to the study and inquiry into the entire broadcast field that is to be conducted by the Senate Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee. As you are aware, the Committee instituted this inquiry in September of 1954 and recently two reports prepared by special counsels have been released. I'm enclosing copies for your information. These reports have been submitted to the Federal Communications Commission and the Department of Justice for comments and the Committee plans to conduct open hearings sometime in March. It is expected that the FCC will be the first witness. I appreciate your thoughtfulness in forwarding the enclosure to me, and I assure you that I will read it with a great deal of interest.

Sincerely yours,
JOHN O. PASTORE, USS
Rhode Island

Dear Sir:

This will acknowledge and thank you for your letter of recent date, and the enclosure, with respect to an investigation by the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce of possible monopoly in the broadcasting industry, etc. I appreciate your interest in writing me about this matter, and am glad to have your comments. I am bringing your letter and the enclosure to the attention of the Chairman of the Committee so that he may be advised of your interest in this subject.

Sincerely yours,
GEORGE SMATHERS, USS
Florida.

Dear Sir:

This is to acknowledge and thank you for your letter of Feb. 15, forwarding information concerning the possibility of monopoly in the television and radio broadcasting industry. As a member of the Senate Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, I am interested in all matters affecting our communication industry. You may be certain that I appreciate very much the information which you have forwarded on this matter.

Sincerely yours,
FREDERICK G. PAYNE, USS
Maine

Dear Sir:

The concentration in ownership of broadcasting facilities is certainly an important aspect of our inquiry into the television industry. When the public hearings on this matter get underway, I am sure that the question of ownership will receive a great deal of consideration.

I appreciate your bringing the views of your industry to my attention.

Sincerely yours,
JOHN W. BRICKER
United States Senate
Ohio

or national level, will permit him enough profit to face another day. The dishonest theatreman, or the one whom desperation has forced to adopt dishonest methods, has the second alternative of under-reporting his gross on the chance that, if caught, he will be able to make an advantageous settlement. As a matter of interest, the very fact that such settlements are proposed and accepted in a majority of cases, seems to best prove that most producers' distributors are conscious that their own hands are not clean enough to stand court inspection.

But, in either event and under either code, the average theatreman of today does not control his own business. By various devices and sales techniques, his views on percentage terms, length of run, preferred time, advertising and admission prices, rank somewhere near those of the circuit house managers of old; although the circuit house manager of old would have been given a little more credit by his home office for knowing his town.

As the ownership and/or management for five roofed and two drive-in theatres myself, this is an admission, and not something I am the least bit proud to admit. Among my personal relationships, I have heard similar admissions from men who have even greater financial holdings, and who have occupied prominent positions in exhibition for even more years. Gentlemen, the average theatreman of today is a man with his hat in his hand, accepting what he is allowed to keep, while our brothers of production make their largest profits in history on 29 percent less than their former production capacity.

Possibly, instead of an all-industry meeting, we theatremen should bring our hats and heads to one big meeting of theatremen only, and reach some decisions of our own.

Theatre Blazes Cost $2 Million In Decade

TORONTO—Although there were four more fires in theatres in 1953 than in 1952, the losses in the earlier year were almost double.

In 1953, of the 827 fires in Canadian institutional and assembly buildings, 29 were in theatres and these accounted for $107,091 of the $2,908,444 damage total. No theatre had over $50,000 in damage and there was not a single loss of life.

Losses in 1953 were $210,762, with three of the 25 fires in the $505,000-and-over category. In the eight years from 1946, the government reports show that there was a total of 308 theatre fires, causing property loss of $1,766,579. Of these, 12 resulted in destruction of more than $50,000. In 1951 there were 48 theatre fires and a loss of $229,524; in 1950, 29 and $266,438; 1949, 48 and $167,438; 1948, 41 and $459,071 (the record year); 1947, 49 and $151,077; and 1946, 39 and $175,178. Although there are no figures for 1944 and 1945, the average indicates that the damage over a decade totalled over $2,000,000.

An estimate of the fire loss in 1954 puts the loss at something about $150,000, with four major fires and a number of small blazes causing minor damage.

Canadian Comment

A dinner honored the 12 graduates of Variety Village, the school for handicapped children, financed and maintained by Tent 28, Variety Club Toronto; Donald Manners, Kincardine, the 83rd graduate, was valedictorian.

Manners, now employed by Scarboro township, told the large dinner meeting of his battle with infantile paralysis and rheumatic fever when he first started school in his home town in 1941, his fall when he started back to school that broke a leg, and his luck to be chosen to go to Variety Village. Principal J. Arthur Robertson told the gathering that graduates of the school, founded in 1949, will have earned $170,000 by this year. Three graduates have moved on from Toronto and are now established in widely separated parts of the country. Among those at the dinner were Premier Leslie Frost, Mayor Nathan A. Phillips, R. W. Hopper, Ontario Society of Crippled Children; George Hoover, international chief barker of Variety; Edward Emanuel, international secretary; Rabbi Reubin Slonim, and Rev. Ray McCleary.

City Council in Saskatoon has reaffirmed its decision to have two drive-ins located on the city's edge collect amusement taxes from customers. Until Jan. 1, these drive-ins were in a municipality where no amusement tax is collected. This is still the position of a drive-in on the city's outskirts. City Council recently set a license rate of $1.25 per speaker for the two drive-ins now within the city's boundaries, whereas formerly they paid $2 per speaker to the other municipality. One of the reasons for the reduction by the city was that the saving would partly compensate the theatres for their new duty of collecting the 10 per cent tax.

Schine Defense Rests In Contempt Trial

BUFFALO—The defense rested its case in the Schine criminal contempt trial last week, following the testimony of the fourth and final defense witness, John A. May, 71, semi-retired controller, Schine Chain Theatres, Inc., and one of the defendants.

Government attorney Joseph E. McDowell said that he expects to put four or five rebuttal witnesses on the stand. May, who said he had been in practical retirement since May, 1952, testified concerning the so-called Fostoria (Ohio) pool. The pool, which was ordered dissolved in Judge Knight's 1949 decree, consisted of Schine's Civic and Roxy, and the State, owned by the State Theatre Company.

It was charged that the pool was continued by substituting Darnell, Inc., alleged instrumentality of Schine, for the Schine Circuit in the ownership of the Civic and Roxy and in the conduct of a pooling arrangement under which they were operated with the State.

May testified that he had notified the State owners when the decree was entered that the pool must be dissolved. Negotiations were conducted for the sale of the leases of the Civic and Roxy to the owners of the State, Arthur and Ural Bucks. May said he knew of no plan to sell to Darnell.

Polaroid Patents Upheld

CAMBRIDGE, MASS.—Judge George C. Sweeney, Federal District Court, ruled last week that Polalite viewers infringe Polaroid patents. These Polaroid patents cover the basic polarizing materials used in 3-D movie viewers. One of the patents extends through 1956. A fourth Polaroid patent, covering the after treatment of polarizing material, was held invalid.

The court dismissed the action brought by Marks and Depix against Polaroid. One of the two patents involved on the suit was ruled invalid, and the other was held not infringed by Polaroid. The question of damages will be determined later.

EFFG Plans Discussed

KANSAS CITY—The launching of the planned series of regional meetings designed to increase exhibitor interest and stock participation in the TOA sponsored Exhibitor's Film Financial Group took place here last week with the speech given by John Rowley, TOA vice-president and EFFG vice-president, before the convention of the Kansas-Missouri Theatre Association.

Rowley outlined EFFG plans and explained the need for wide exhibitor support for EFFG.

TOA Blasts Zenith Head

NEW YORK—In a bulletin issued last week urging increased support for the joint committee on toll-TV, TOA rapped Commander Eugene F. McDonald, Zenith president, for his statement, quoted in Newsweek magazine, that "the only thing they (theatre owners) create is popcorn. They change it from yellow kernels to white."

The bulletin pointed out the large investment of exhibition in physical plants.

Weltner Named Head, Paramount World-Wide Sales Organization

NEW YORK—Appointment of George Weltner as head of a single world-wide Paramount sales and distribution organization covering both the domestic and foreign fields was announced last week by Barney Balaban, president, Paramount. Weltner, who has been associated with Paramount for the past 32 years, has been since 1945 president, Paramount International Films, Inc., the company's foreign subsidiary.

Naming of Weltner to head the domestic in addition to the foreign sales and distribution organizations following the resignation of A. W. Schwalberg is, according to Balaban, in line with Paramount's firm conviction that the entire world must today be considered and treated as a single entity.

Balaban asserted, "In this era of speed-up of communications and the world-wide similarity of motion picture appeal, our industry has truly become a 'one-world' organization. Mr. Weltner's outstanding record in the organization and administration of the foreign operations of our company has put Paramount Pictures in a most enviable position. As a member of the board of directors of Paramount Pictures Corporation, he has maintained a sound working knowledge of the company's over-all program, and has been for many years a valued member of Paramount's policy-making and executive cabinet. It is a particular source of gratification that we have found in our own Paramount organization as well-qualified an executive as Mr. Weltner to head our world-wide sales and distribution organizations."

George Weltner, right, newly appointed head of a single world-wide Paramount sales and distribution organization covering both the domestic and foreign fields, is seen being congratulated by Barney Balaban, president, Paramount.

Binford Ignores ACLU Wire

MEMPHIS—Lloyd T. Binford, chairman, Memphis and Shelby County Censor Board, announced last week that he would ignore the wire sent by the American Civil Liberties Union protesting the banning of Columbia's "The Bamboo Prison."

"If the studio doesn't like the ban," said Binford, "they can appeal it to the courts." The wire was signed by Elmer Rice, chairman, ACLU National Council on Freedom.

Dickson Named VC Meet Head

LOS ANGELES—A cross section of Southland theatre and distribution executives and owners was named last week to put into high gear extensive plans for the 19th annual International Variety Clubs convention slated for May 4.

Some 1,200 delegates and their wives from Variety Club chapters throughout the United States and six foreign nations are expected to attend the four-day conclave at the Ambassador Hotel. Dick Dickson, general manager, United Artists Theatre Circuit, will be executive director and convention coordinator, it was stated by Ezra Stern, chief barker, Southern California club, which will serve as convention host. Norman Manning will be his assistant.

Committee chairmen functioning with Dickson will be Al Hanson, finance; W. H. (Bud) Lollier, registration; John E. Lavery, transportation; Fred Stein, journal; Morton Scott, tours and greeting; Robert Brilliant, souvenirs; Edwin F. Zabel, Steve Broidy, and Willard W. Keith, banquet; Stern, heart award; Bernie Wolf, decorations; O. N. Srere, ladies' activities; M. J. E. McCarthy, publicity; W. C. Ricord, service; and Ben Ashe, lighting, sound.

20th-Fox Execs Meet On TV Productions

HOLLYWOOD—The first of a series of meetings of 20th-Fox executives last week discussed plans for future productions to be made for television by TCF Productions, new subsidiary of 20th-Fox.

Chief on the list discussed were 30 to 60 minute programs, and spectaculars where sponsors wish two hour shows, but it was also planned to place special emphasis on shows for children and subjects utilizing international backgrounds. The studio plans to create a host of new personalities, as well as using those already well known.

Further meetings will discuss the operation of the TV company with Leonard H. Goldenson, president, American Broadcasting-Paramount Theatres, and executives of the American Broadcasting TV network.

Called by 20th-Fox President Spyros P. Skouras, the meeting was attended by Sig Rogell, TCF production head; Al Lichtman, director of distribution; Joseph H. Moskowitz, vice-president and eastern studio representative; Charles Einfield, vice-president; Donald Henderson, treasurer and secretary; and Martin Michel, TV and radio director.

About People

NEW YORK—Walter Lowendahl, vice-president, Transfilm, Inc., has been elected president, Film Producers Association of New York. He succeeds David Pincus, president, Caravel Films. Other officials elected are Harold Wondsel, vice-president; Herbert Kerkow, secretary; and Edward Lamm, treasurer. Elected to the board are Henry Strauss, Peter Mooney, Jack Hendeson, David Pincus, and Robert Lawrence. The FPA approved the producer-SAG 1955 codified contract for filmed commercials. It had already been approved by the negotiating committee of SAG, and is now in the process of being signed.

NEW YORK—The National Film Board of Canada last week announced the appointment of John Duerkop as its senior United States representative. Duerkop will head the NFB's New York office, replacing Thomas L. Johnston, who goes to Ottawa as chief, information and promotion division. Duerkop formerly was in charge of the board's Chicago office. He will be replaced in Chicago by W. Dean Smith, Halifax office. Johnston will head up the NFB's publicity, advertising, and promotion operations, replacing Stanley Helleur, who has left the board to return to The Toronto Telegram.

NEW YORK—Henry J. Zittau has joined Associated Artists Productions as vice-president and treasurer, it was announced last week by Eliot Hyman, president, AAP. He assumes his new post immediately. Zittau has resigned as treasurer, Western Television Company and Motion Pictures For Television. His new association with AAP is a resumption of his close working relationship with Hyman who, prior to the launching of AAP, was also prominently identified with MPTV.

New York Council Head Talks Against Toll-TV

NEW YORK—City Council President Abe Stark last week introduced a resolution asking that body to request the FCC not to approve toll-TV.

Describing toll-TV as an unwarranted attempt to deprive the American public of free access to television broadcasting, Stark said that recent efforts by a few syndicates to buy up the best television programs for closed circuit home viewing could create many hardships among the owners of television sets.

Claiming that toll-TV would mean that many low income families would have only "mediocre shows and third rate movies available to them without charge," Stark asserted that toll-TV is a violation of the concept of free access to radio and television programs.

Pointing out that children will not stay home and watch mediocre television programs, Stark looked for an increase in juvenile delinquency once they are prevented from seeing better shows because of high subscription rates.

Stark derided the notion that price charging alone would bring automatic improvements in production standards, and used the motion picture industry as an example. He claimed that what TV needs is better writing, better acting, better directing, and better production, and that they can be achieved under the existing system.

Stark called toll-TV a violation of the spirit and intent of the Communications Act of 1934, which directed the FCC to encourage the larger and more effective use of broadcasting in the public interest.

BETTER MANAGEMENT

Valuable Exploitation Keys To Profitable Merchandising

TV Put To Good Use In 20th-Fox Promotion

NEW YORK—The largest use of TV for long-range promotion by any film company has been initiated by 20th-Fox in a major program designed to pre-sell CinemaScope productions months in advance of national release, it was announced last week.

Going into immediate effect, the policy of advance video campaigning will be effected in three important ways, the filming of a variety of background material on pictures while they are in production; filming of interviews with stars and other personalities connected with the lensing of a picture; and by a greater number of live appearances on TV by company personalities.

The three-pronged campaign will provide exhibitors with a variety of promotional material for local use, supplementing TV promotion on the national and regional levels. The overall effect will enable showmen to reach the largest possible audiences through the home entertainment media as well as by regular channels of newspaper advertising and promotion.

The initial CinemaScope attraction to benefit from this increased TV promotion is "Untamed," which opens March 11 at New York's Roxy. An eight-minute film clip containing unsqueezed footage of five highlight scenes from the picture starring Tyrone Power, Susan Hayward, and Richard Egan is being offered free to exhibitors as a unique preview for video audiences. Another subject, "Zululand," which describes the background of the South African location filming under the direction of Henry King, also has been produced for local TV planting. Running time of the subject is five minutes.

Another important segment of the new policy is the creation of six TV spot announcements, three 60-second and three 20-second messages on each picture, increasing by four the number of spots available to theatremen for video advertising campaigns.

For "Violent Saturday," the company is preparing a set of 10 and 20 second teaser spot announcements containing unsqueezed footage from the suspense drama starring Victor Mature. The picture opens nationally in April.

Clark Gable's first picture for 20th-Fox, "Soldier Of Fortune," will receive unusual promotion via a subject showing the star arriving in leading cities of the Far East for shooting of the Buddy Adler production.

Another view of the Orient through the eyes of the Movietone newsreels cameras will be realized for "A Many Splendored Thing," starring William Holden and Jennifer Jones. A camera crew followed the two stars during their Hong Kong location shooting.

An eight-minute subject is being prepared on "Sir Walter Raleigh," which currently is in production in Hollywood. The short will take TV viewers into the studio for an exciting background tour of the lavish sets and for glimpses of stars Bette Davis and Richard Todd. The picture will be released this July.

Joan Shawlee, featured in Paramount's "Conquest Of Space," is being nationally publicized as "The Space Girl" in connection with the release of the film. She and producer George Pal are appearing on TV shows with various space gimmicks, such as the huge space suit worn by the flight-to-Mars crew in the picture.

"Assignment" Pressbook Ready

NEW YORK—Exhibitors are receiving from Paramount branches an attractive pressbook on "Assignment Children," two-reel Technicolor subject about Danny Kaye's recent 40,000-mile tour on behalf of the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund.

A large array of promotional material, including stills, ad mats, publicity stories, lobby display posters and other showmen's aides are presented in the six-page pressbook together with a variety of business-building ideas.

The world premiere of U-I's "Captain Lightfoot," McVickers, Chicago, Ill., brought stars Rock Hudson and Barbara Rush into town for several days of advance promotion and personal appearances recently. Girls from the local Jones Commercial High School appeared at the theatre at eight a.m. in the morning, six hours before the first scheduled appearance of the stars, carrying picket signs with appropriate sentiments for Hudson. By the time the stars made their first appearance there was a mob scene requiring the calling of police reserves.

Proper Art Policy Seen As Boxoffice Booster

NEW YORK—Art films, properly utilized, will boost the boxoffice and prestige of "B" theatres, said Edward L. Hyman, vice-president, American Broadcasting-Paramount Theatres last week.

Basing his contentions on experiments conducted in AB-PT circuits, particularly in Minnesota, Hyman acknowledged that the experiment did not spell a program of salvation for "B" theatres, nor does it completely fill the product gap in such theatres.

Hyman referred to reports from Ray L. Niles, southern division manager, Minnesota Amusement Company, and Woodrow Praught, northern MACO division manager, in an attempt to prove his point.

Niles reported on the success of the Austin, Austin, Minn., in showing a series of 12 "prestige" pictures, played as single features in the middle of the week. The theatre reported improved revenues.

Praught told of the experiment, still going on, in the towns of Moorhead and Grand Forks. He says that the policy has brought in new patronage and revenue. The merchandising plan found most successful by Praught would have "B" theatres show so-called art pictures during some of the mid-week lulls. Patrons for art pictures will come as readily then as on a weekend, says Praught, who cautions against showing such films as a regular series.

Skin-Diving Display Set

NEW YORK—The first complete display of skin-diving equipment ever shown outside of exclusive skin-diving circles is on exhibition in the lobby of Brandt's Mayfair in conjunction with Howard Hughes' "Underwater!"

Among the large variety of underwater items included in the display are numerous types of fins and masks manufactured by the Voit Rubber Company, aqua-lungs, a snorkair (combination lung and snorkel), a res-q-pak (life-saving apparatus used by beginners), Jantzen's "Spearfisherman" diving trunks, and numerous styles of spear guns, compasses, knives and depth gauges.

Extra-large blow-ups of underwater scenes from the Superscope-Technicolor production are part of the lobby display.

Magazine Salutes UA Musical

NEW YORK—United Artists' "Gentlemen Marry Brunettes," CinemaScope Technicolor musical, receives an impressive salute in a six-page story-and-picture spread in the Feb. 26 issue of Picture Week magazine.

The mass-circulation break details the Paris location filming of "Gentlemen Marry Brunettes" and describes the UA release as "a romp full of nostalgic tunes and current sex appeal."

CANDYDLY SPEAKING

THE SUN SEEMS brighter these days and warmer, and the shadows of night take longer to build. Its harder to work and easier to loaf, and the groundhog agrees that spring is on the way.

THE CHANGING SEASONS are a wondrous spectacle of color and light and have been lauded in story and poem. They also offer theatremen an opportunity to capitalize on this universal point of interest by taking the long underwear off his concession stand, so to speak, and dressing it up to welcome the spring.

CLEVER MERCHANDISING techniques to maximize concession profits are numerous, and the tedious process of trial and error have proven, for the most part, what will best sell what where. A sure attention-getter at any concession stand is a seasonal format change.

AT BEST, customers buy concession items in theatres on impulse. The only way to stir such an impulse is to get them to the concession area. Once they have been drawn near, attractive displays, the aroma of fresh popcorn, and neat, well-groomed attendants can do their job; but you can't sell them by long distance.

THIS IS NOT meant to say that the changing from winter to spring or summer to fall is the only reason one can find to redecorate the concession area. The very nature of the industry itself offers innumerable opportunities. What better advertisement for a film, which after all is still our most valuable commodity, than to dress a concession stand to fit the mood. A pirate motif for a pirate feature, a ship design for a sea story, the possibilities are limitless.

AND REMEMBER, such extra effort means extra dollars. If they come to look, they'll stay to buy.

EXTRA PROFITS

This is the Refreshery at the new Community, the Walter Reade Theatre in Kingston, N. Y. The display cases in the rear will be changed for seasonal displays. The Refreshery was planned by Edwin Gage, circuit vice-president, and James Loeb, concessions department director. John McNamara, New York, theatre architect, drew the plans, and the Cassidy Cabinet Company, Kingston, built it.

Concession Manual

I. Merchandising

ADVERTISING has been defined as pulling the customer toward the product. Merchandising is the business of pushing the product toward the customer.

For obvious reasons, the operator of a conventional theatre usually does not advertise his concession stand outside the theatre itself, although highly effective jobs have been done in many instances with ticketing campaigns. These involve the distribution throughout a community of tickets inviting a customer, for example, to "Have a Coke . . . Free . . . from our dispenser next time you visit Such and Such Theatre."

The purchase at a snack bar is what a psychologist would call an "impulse" purchase. The customer sees or hears or smells something good, gets an impulse to buy it, and does so.

For this reason, active efforts should be made to merchandise the concession stand if it is to do the best possible job. A large majority of house owners across the country undertake active merchandising in some form or other in connection with their concession operations.

Merchandising in this sense is a subtle thing, since the stand itself is a secondary item to the average patron. As Shakespeare said in another connection, "The play's the thing." The customer comes to see a show, and is only interested incidentally in buying anything else.

Keep It Clean

What can be done to get his interest and to convert it into sales? The physical appearance of the stand itself is the first thing seen by the potential customer. The cleanliness and neatness of the counters, the design, styling, color, decoration of the booth itself, the counter facing, and the back-bar display—all these have the power to attract or to repel. If the job of designing has been well done, the stand will be a testimonial to the desirability of the items for sale there.

Lighting is an important aspect of good merchandising. Although here again situations will vary, the use of grid diffusers under cold cathode tubing has proved so generally agreeable that it is worth suggesting to newcomers. This system provides a steady, even light over the entire stand, and has an attractive modern look that helps the overall effect. Where possible, supplemental spotlights on special displays have often proved profitable, although they must be handled with care to prevent harmful heating of candy and other merchandise.

Let Them Look

Counters should be designed to show off merchandise in the best possible manner. Staggered shelving offers a much better chance for effective display than cases with shelves of even depth. Similarly, three-shelf cases seem to do a better job of merchandising than those with two shelves. Whether candy cases are open or closed, they should be arranged so that the product is easily visible. In some instances, where closed top cases are used, samples of all candy brands are kept in arrangements on the counter. It is not wise to arrange bars in geometric designs, however, since a potential customer may buy something else or not at all, rather than break up the design. In open-style cabinets, the effect of mass display of attractively wrapped candy bars helps to create sales.

No matter how attractive the basic stand may be throughout the year, it can be provided with new interest and excitement with seasonal decorations and changes of trim to coincide with picture themes. Enterprising exhibitors have increased sales measurably with special decorations for Easter, Valentine Day, Thanksgiving, and the like. In addition, certain film titles offer easy opportunities to capitalize on public interest. Rigging the refreshment stand to look like a pirate ship during the showing of a pirate film or like a circus tent while a big top feature plays the house may seem like useless trouble and expense, but the interest and eye-appeal the change may have for complacent patrons will make the effort worthwhile. No matter how devoted customers become to an attractive concession stand, an occasional gimmick to rekindle their interest pays off in dollars and cents. After all, the patrons expect the show to be changed each time they attend. Why not an occasional change at the concession stand, too?

Vary Stock

Along this line, some exhibitors have had success with tiein merchandise other than food items keyed to the themes of certain pictures. Dolls, toys, special-wrap candies, etc., are available from most specialty houses and distributors, and may substantially increase profits if properly stocked and displayed. Best bet for this type of extra merchandising effort is the large downtown first-run house, where children are accompanied by parents. Experience indicates that this type of sale should be made at a secondary stand, away from the snack bar, to avoid congesting the high traffic stand area. And, of course, it is not wise to overstock when taking on merchandise of this type.

A proper wedding of advertising and merchandising activity takes place at the counter and back-bar, where easel cards, motion displays, neon signs, and other advertising matter can effectively call attention to featured items. Wide-spread use has been made in many sections of shadow box displays in the facing of the counters, using the counter tops for candy and the inside shelves for storage.

In arranging the advertising display material, it is always wise to strike for the total effect. Displays should be kept

Drive-In Concession Forum Shows Value Of Cafeteria Sales Setup

ST. LOUIS—William E. Smith, Popcorn Institute, addressing the recent National Allied drive-in convention, gave an interesting talk on the advertising and publicity methods that have been used by Institute members and their customers to stimulate the purchase of popcorn. He presented an interesting display of sales literature, signs, costume items, etc., to be worn by pretty girls to attract the eye of prospective eaters, etc.

In the concessions forum, Stu Tomber, Rio Syrup, St. Louis, discussed and advocated the use of the cafeteria-style setup for drive-in concessions departments, touching on the advantages of such operation, such as speed of handling patrons at the program-break, control of food items and avoidance of waste, and more efficient handling of change, etc.

Henry Rolnick, Berlo Vending, went into the technical and administrative features of drive-in operations. Mrs. Maud Jefferis, Piedmont, Mo., wife of A. B. (Jeff) Jefferis, the chairman of the planning committee for this convention, then gave a down-to-earth, homey presentation of her methods in operating the concessions department of their Pine Hill Drive-In just east of Piedmont, Mo. The Jefferis' have a very high ratio of concessions sales average to drive-in patrons, and it all boils down to selling the patrons the things they like and in a manner they like. Their methods are very unusual but patterned to an overall policy tied in to southeastern Missouri thinking of the Ozarks folks. Barn dances on the drive-in veranda after shows, etc., are some of the interesting methods used at the Pine Hill.

In the floor discussion that followed there was considerable debate on cafeteria operation as opposed to station selling. There were strong points made on both sides but the great majority of those that had turned to cafeteria concessions plans after using station selling contended they wouldn't go back to the old methods. There were a few dissenters, however, who said they believed station selling the better plan, at least in their situations.

There was a very lively discussion pro and con regarding the advantages of the cafeteria-type of concessions operations. Only a few former station service operators expressed regret for turning to cafeteria.

It appears that presently some 90 per cent of the country's drive-in theatres operate cafeterias, many of them practically serving full meals to the patrons seeking that service.

The drive-in concessions clinic or forum held in conjunction with the convention is said to have made drive-in history in that it was the first ever held on a national level. In it experts dealt with the operation of vending machines, drink dispensers, and other equipment for dispensing confections, candy, hot dogs, and the like.

Suggestions advanced in the clinic on concessions operations, included the advantages of having the cafeteria help attired in white uniforms. The help should be inspected before each night's opening to make certain there is good appearance and neatness. New vending equipment should be selected with the utmost care and purchased only after qualified advice is obtained. Cafeteria structures should be large enough for the proper accommodation of the family trade and for the quickest practical service. On the average, an opening about 6:30 p.m. allows half-an-hour for checking the concessions stocks and an hour for extra pre-screening of concession sales. Careful watch should be maintained on the heat for food to be served hot and on the refrigeration of the cold foods items. Be sure all food served is fresh and wholesome. Don't skin the customer on quality or on quantity. Handle enough items to provide proper variety but cull out the "dead" numbers. The average view was that the concessions payroll should be 15 per cent of its gross intake.

Bottle Warmer Aids Parents At Drive-Ins

DETROIT—Drive-in operators everywhere have been quick to adapt Jobil self service baby bottle warmers since they have been made specifically for drive-ins in every respect. They are simple to operate, do not require watching or operating by attendants or concession help. The warmer, absolutely sanitary since only parents handle baby's bottles, are left on counter, the same as relish or mustard. Patrons help themselves, relieving concession help of warming bottle duties. Patrons merely insert bottle and it is warmed at correct temperature within a minute's time. There is no overheating, broken bottles, or burning out of units.

The "Jobil" model warmer is said to be the most practical on the market today for drive-in use. It is absolutely automatic in operation. Low in cost, lower in maintenance, it is cast in aluminum with Calrod heating element and constantly at correct warming temperature. A single warmer holds four large and two small bottles.

Jobil self service baby bottle warmers are proving themselves a valuable added patron service in many drive-ins. They are sanitary, time saving, safe and easy to handle, and may be obtained through Jobil Products Company, Detroit. The above photo was taken at the Miracle Mile Drive-In, Toledo, concession operated by the Berlo Vending Company.

IPA Popcorn Meet Sets Diverse Agenda

NEW YORK—"Based upon advance registrations, the Eastern Regional Popcorn Conference, sponsored by International Popcorn Association yesterday (March 8) at the Park-Sheraton Hotel, was expected to attract an attendance of over 300," stated Lee Koken, RKO Theatres, general chairman of the one-day merchandising and production meeting.

Morrie R. Yohai, King Kone Corporation, New York, was to be chairman and moderate the manufacturer-wholesale sessions. Among the topics and speakers to be featured were John Hayes, King Cole Foods, South Portland, Me., "Point-of-Purchase Merchandising Displays"; Norvald Reppen, Madison, Wis., "Action Displays Sell More Popcorn"; "New Ideas in Packaging"; "Combination Popcorn and Oil Packages"; and "Popcorn Figurines."

In the morning theatre-concession operator's session the topics and speakers to be featured were Sam Rubin, ABC Vending Corporation, New York, "New Ways To Merchandise and Increase Ice Cream Sales"; James Loeb, Walter Reade Theatres, Asbury Park, N. J., "Incentive Plans and Training Personnel"; Arthur Segal, SelMix, Inc., Long Island City, N. Y., "Manual Drink Equipment's Place in the Conventional Theatre". William E. Smith, The Popcorn Institute, Chicago, "Point-of-Purchase Popcorn Displays"; Ben Kornfield, ABC Vending Corporation, Cambridge, Mass., "Film Tie-In Merchandise Sales and Campaigns"; and Thomas J. Sullivan, IPA executive vice-president, Chicago, "IPA Provides Industry Leadership For America's Fastest Growing Business."

Following luncheon the afternoon session topics and speakers were to be Saul Lerner, Long Island Family Drive-In Theatres, "Cafeteria Operation and Its Advantages"; Bill Burke, Confection Cabinet Corporation, drive-in refreshment division, Newark, N. J., "Station Operation and Its Advantages"; Irving Rosenblum, Savon Candy Company, Paterson, N. J., "New Trends For Drive-In Concessions"; "Newest Items Sold In Drive-Ins"; "Intermissions and Playgrounds as Aids to Snack Bars"; "Has Automatic Equipment a Place in Drive-Ins?"; Reppen, "Motion Displays Attract More Sales In A Drive-In"; and Bert Nathan, IPA president and head, Theatre Popcorn Vending Corporation, Brooklyn, "What To Look For In A Good Concession."

One of the highlights of the conference was to be attendance prizes donated by prominent supply firms. In the morning session, Rex Specialty Bag Corporation, Brooklyn, N. Y., was to give away a $100 Royal portable typewriter. For the afternoon session, Bonomo-Korday Candies, Brooklyn, N. Y., was to present a $100 Philco portable record player. The grand prize of the session was to be a $1,000 RCA-Victor color television console donated by APCO, Inc., New York City.

Those attending the one-day conference were to be the guests of The Coca-Cola Company for luncheon and The Pepsi-Cola Company for cocktails and hors d'oeuvres in the evening. Charles Okun was to represent Coca-Cola and Peter Warren was to host for Pepsi-Cola.

In your theatre, too, these girls bring you more soft drink sales—

More Drinks Per Gallon
More Profit Per Drink

Pepsi-Cola's national advertising appeals to today's figure-conscious women. That's why Pepsi is today more popular than ever. This booming popularity sells more Pepsi in more and more theatres—and at a higher profit to operators in whatever form it's served.

Pepsi profit tops all nationally advertised and nationally available cola syrup lines. Pepsi's syrup price is the lowest of any nationally advertised cola. Add extra profits from Pepsi's extra drinks—128 drinks per gallon, compared with 115 for other comparable colas.

In your own theatre operation, Pepsi-Cola can boost your beverage sales and profits all along the line. Write today for full details.

Popcorn Institute Launches Sales Drive With "Animal Fair" Contest

CHICAGO—The Popcorn Institute has come up with a sales stimulator in the nature of "The Popcorn Animal Fair." A full line of accessories are available to help put over the stunt and sell it to the public at conspicuous places about the concession stand, at box office, and at the stub box.

The Popcorn Animal Fair is a poster coloring contest designed to boost popcorn sales and build attendance. It is built about black and white reproductions of the colored Animal Fair posters. The black and white posters are to be colored by popcorn purchasers and entered in a contest.

Here is how it works. Order black and white posters from the Popcorn Institute. During the period the contest runs, one black and white line drawing poster is given to each person purchasing popcorn at the concession stand, a different poster being given out each week. Instruct your customers entering the contest to use their own imagination in coloring.

To be eligible for prizes, it is suggested contestants be under 12 years of age and must have colored each of the eight black and white posters; therefore, they must have attended your drive-in or theatre at least once a week for eight consecutive weeks.

Appoint a panel of key people in your community or city to act as judges of posters submitted and a contest essay completing the sentence, "I like popcorn because . . . " in 15 words or less. The theatres will award a series of prizes and winners will be selected on the basis of the best essay sentence and neatness and imagination in coloring the Popcorn Animal posters.

Press releases should be sent to local newspapers, radio, and television stations. Seek tie-in cooperation with scout masters of the Boy and Girl Scout troops, and make tie-ins with local merchants who in return for publicity will donate prizes to be awarded to contest winners. Advertise the Popcorn Animal Fair in all daily ads and other ad matter.

The Popcorn Animal Fair contains tested sales building ideas. Ingenuity and showmanship on the part of theatre managers in merchandising the stunt should pyramid popcorn sales to an all-time high during the contest months.

The Popcorn Institute is making the black and white line posters available at less than cost, or $3 per 100 kits. Orders should be placed immediately with the Popcorn Institute, 332 S. Michigan Avenue.

Midget Popper Available

EAST CHICAGO, IND.—Corn Ette Machine and Packaging Company have announced the design and perfection of what is said to be the first midget automatic popcorn machine. Taking up less than one square foot of counter space, and weighing but 12 pounds the machine will be found to have no service problems as it is clean and profitable, fully tested, and capable of making 60 servings per hour.

The exclusive corn-ette package with quality control is the answer to top quality product, it is claimed. There is no muss, no measuring, just open the package, pour the contents of ready to pop corn into the popper and, presto, a serving of piping hot, fresh popcorn, properly seasoned. 100 packages come to the case, compact and easy to handle, and weighing but 13 pounds.

The Corn Ette is said to be the first successful automatic popcorn machine to sell for less than hundreds of dollars; and with "the corn bin" with a 12 bag capacity, designed for high volume locations and self service, compact and attractive it keeps the corn fresh and hot.

"The pillow fight is over" was the recent ringside decision of Barney Berns, right, vice-president, Dad's Root Beer Company, Chicago, as he discussed hard-hitting advertising and merchandising plans with Howard Williams, president, Erwin, Wasey, and Company, newly appointed as the company advertising agency.

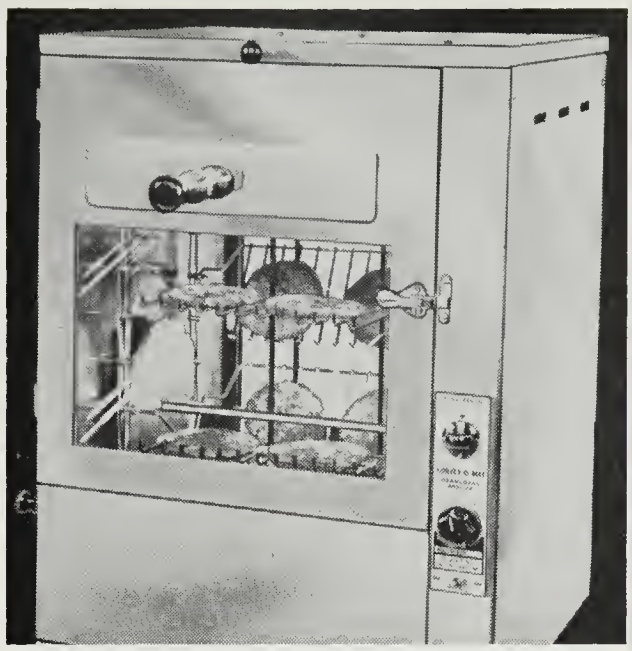
New Rowe Dispenser In Full Production

NEW YORK—The new Rowe Spacarb three-flavor, 600-cup automatic drink dispenser (the D-600), quality designed but economy priced—is now in full production and available for immediate delivery, it was announced by I. H. Houston, president, Rowe Spacarb, Inc.

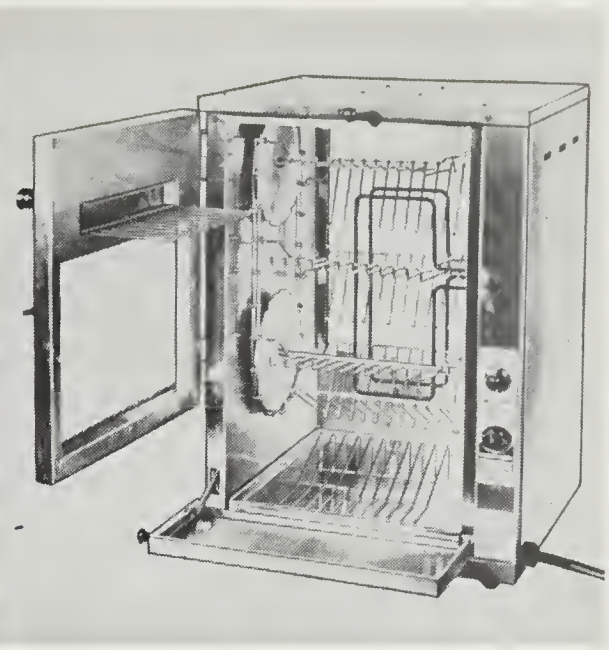
Priced at $895 (with terms available to operators under the new Rowe Finance Plan), the D-600 is described as "the least complicated multi-flavor drink dispenser ever made, both for performance and servicing."

The new vending machine contains all the exclusive features of other Rowe Spacarb models, including an illuminated Fiberglas display, "Mix-a-Drink" (which permits customers to mix flavors while the drink is flowing), "Select-O-Carb" (which meets the precise individual carbonation standards for nationally advertised drinks), and plug-in relays. It can be adapted to vend a fourth, non-carbonated drink at a small additional cost.

Its new features include an improved and simplified carbonator; a cabinet six inches off the floor to facilitate cleaning; refrigeration for all syrup; the first one-piece spun-metal syrup wells; a coin changer mounted inside the machine; and a simplified cup dispenser which minimizes cup pilferage.



Syrup capacity is 10 gallons and cup capacity 600, with ample storage space for additional cups and syrup. Built to fit conveniently into a small space, the D-600 is only 24 inches deep, 29 inches wide and 69 inches high. It weighs 525 pounds.



The D-600 can vend at either five or 10 cents and includes a coin-changer as standard equipment. A one-third horse power Kelvinator compressor, pre-cooling coils, plus the flexibility of either wet or dry refrigeration, assure ample cooling capacity. The units are ruggedly-constructed and conform with all health department requirements.

The D-600, like other Rowe Spacarb dispensers, is manufactured at the Stamford, Conn., plant of the Rowe Spacarb Division of Rowe Manufacturing Company, Inc. Further information can be obtained by writing the Company's sales office at 31 East 17th Street, New York 3, N. Y.

The New Rowe Spacarb D-600 three-flavor, 600-cup drink dispenser, is now in production and available to operators.

"More and more outdoor operators are switching to—popsit plus!

with butterlike flavor!"

says Larry Goldmeier . . president, Poppers Supply Company, Philodelphio, Pa. . . one of the largest firms in the field, covering the entire Eostern Seaboord.

Mr. Goldmeier says, "POPSIT PLUS gives popcorn a flavor and color that makes it easier to sell. Concessionaires, carnival men and drive-in theatre operators tell us POPSIT PLUS leaves fewer duds in the bottom of their poppers. And because it's liquid, it's easy to pour, measure and store."

Outdoor concessionaires like POPSIT PLUS, too, because it's an all-purpose oil, wonderful for frying hamburgers, french fries, seafood and chicken. No wonder sales of POPSIT PLUS keep climbing!

Try POPSIT PLUS yourself for just one week. You'll make it your regular and only popping and frying oil.

Concession Manual

simple, massive, and uncluttered. Good merchandise sells itself when properly shown. Brands that are nationally advertised and nationally known are pretty well presold to the customers. One can increase sales volume, turn over stock faster, and wind up with more dollar profits by sticking to popular items than by risking inventory capital on large-profit merchandise which is, nevertheless, unknown.

Scheduling of the breaks between shows can be effective in merchandising the concession stand. Many house operators make periodic use of film trailers between shows to invite the customers' attention to the snack bar, and these prove highly effective where used in variety and not overworked. Film trailers, are available from several standard film companies, such as National Screen Service and Filmack, and in some instances from product suppliers like Armour, the Coca-Cola Company, and others.

The scheduling of the break itself can be an important item when the crowd is unusually large, and extension of one or two minutes will enable more patrons to be served. A small house, on the other hand, calls for a shortening of the break period so as not to bore seated patrons. The screen should never be left entirely blank, no matter how long the break. An "intermission clock" on film is a good device, or colored spotlights on the stage can be used to add life and interest.

A break that is too long, no matter what the reason, will antagonize the customers, and keep their valuable ticket dollars out of the till.

Mint Display Improved

CHICAGO—The Bunte-Chase two-cent Chocolate Mint Patty is finding its way onto more retail counters these days because of a smart new 40 count display box. The chocolate, green, and white box is simple in design, featuring a reproduction of the candy in the upper left hand corner. The new box is popular with retailers not only because of its clear, sharp lines, but also because it requires only 6½ by 4 inches of counter space.

The Port Morris Machine and Tool Works, New York City, have introduced this entirely new Model 10P and 25P machine. These 1955 Electro Freeze are said to be the finest advance in direct draw soft ice cream freezers in years.

Exhibs Vie For Filmack Prizes In Scenario Contest

CHICAGO—Response to the Filmack Trailer Company's contest for the best scenario for a new full-color refreshment trailer indicates that not all good script writers are Hollywood bred, according to Filmack President Irving Mack.

The contest was announced in the February issue of Filmack's monthly publication, Inspiration. Prizes offered for the three top winners are first prize, $100; second prize, $50; and third prize, $25.

"The many scripts from exhibitors throughout the nation emphasize the old axiom that he writes best about what he knows best," observed Mack. "The exhibitors and their concessions men know their market and how to sell it. We are now culling the best of the lot . . . from which the three winners will be selected. But that certainly does not mean that the contest is ended. Additional entries are more than welcome, because the production of a full-color trailer is expensive and, naturally, we are eager to obtain the best possible scenario."

Entries should be mailed to Filmack Trailer Company, 1327 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago 5, Ill.

The Theatre Owners of North and South Carolina will hold a meeting at the Hotel Charlotte on May 17, the day following the locally scheduled MGM Workshop. At a directors meeting, representatives back from the TOA board meeting in Washington impressed them with the seriousness of the toll-TV situation. Mr. Walter Griffith, executive secretary, and C. A. Dandelake, president, urged members to send in contributions to fight this issue, based on what was paid COMPO last year.

Jacksonville

Chief Barker Danny Deaver was sparking a Variety Club activity of forming a "300 Club" to finance the group's selected charity of a counseling service for pre-school-age blind children. In a letter to Tent 44 members, Deaver said that the future of the club depends on the success or failure of the "300 Club" program, and he urged each member of the crew to support it and to gain the support of two other persons.

WOMPI's installation banquet will be held in the near future at the Roosevelt Hotel, announced President Janice Claxton. . . . George Hoffman, veteran National Screen Service representative for Florida, was in town to inform his many friends that he is retiring soon after more than half a century in the exhibition and service fields. . . . Theatre artist Bill Fegenbush was recovering from surgery in a local hospital. . . . The five principal players in "Yellowneck," an 83-minute feature made by Empire Productions of Orlando and distributed by Republic, will appear on stage at the Five Points when the north Florida premiere opens there. . . . Syrian-American and Lebanon-American clubs sponsored two midnight showings of Arabic-language films, featuring Egyptian dancers, at the Five Points. . . . A. C. Lyles, who was an usher at the local Florida many years ago, was in town with Mr. and Mrs. James Cagney. An honorary degree was awarded Cagney by nearby Rollins College. Lyles is now publicist for Pine-Thomas productions.

Irving Mack, president, Filmack Trailer Company, came in from Chicago on his way to a vacation at Miami, Fla. While here, he was the principal speaker at a dinner attended by more than a score of officials, theatre managers, and other personnel of Florida State Theatres. Brief addresses of welcome to Mack were made by Louis J. Finske, FST vice president, and James L. Cartwright, Daytona Beach supervisor of FST. Others attending included Joe J. Deitch and Mark DuPree, executives; Harvey Garland, chief booker; Frank Bell, St. Petersburg, Fla., supervisor; Robert R. Harris, manager of concessions; Robert Heekin, local supervisor; French Harvey, advertising and publicity director; and Ken Barrett, real estate supervisor. Theatre managers at the luncheon were Colonel John Crovo and Bobby Preacher, Arcade; John Thomas and Becky Roberts, Imperial; Joe Charles, Capitol; George Krevo, Palace; Al Hildreth, San Marco; Mrs. Lilliam Parker, Brentwood; Hal Stanton, Edgewood; and Robert Skaggs, Florida. Leonard Allen, Paramount exploiteer from Atlanta, and Mrs. Ernestine Noah, FST advertising department, also attended.

Memphis

Nate Reiss, owner, Gem, Covington, Tenn., is going to play "Bamboo Prison," breaking a precedent, as Covington usually bans all pictures banned in Memphis. The Mayor of Covington and other officials looked at the picture and could see no reason for banning it. . . . Visitors on the Row were Henry Pickens, Lyle, Carlisle, Ark.; Frank Easley, Lindy, Linden, Tenn.; Gene Boggs, Joy, Hayti, Mo.; Mrs. Johnny Keller, Joiner, Joiner, Ark.; and Mrs. George Young, new owner, Grove, Holly Grove, Ark. . . . Seen in Splash, about Paramount shipper Danny Wahlquist. Splash is the bulletin issued by Memphis Ski Club. "After wrecking his motoreycle, dangerous Dan Wahlquist has purchased a Pontiac convertible. This kid will buy anything. He now has a boat, a motor, a violin, a set of drums, a wrecked motoreycle, a hot rod (Ford), a Pontiac, a new portable radio, a dozen rotten eggs, and ten shares of Harrahan Bridge stock. Why doesn't someone sell him 30 gallons of McKellar Lake?

The Ink Spots, have been added to the Horace Heidt Show, which Memphis Trades and Labor Council will present March 9. Talent from this area is to be picked for the show. . . . Memphis Censor Board received a wire from American Civil Liberties Union, hitting at the ban of "The Bamboo Prison." The Union has vigorously protested the banning. The wire was signed by playwright Elmer Rice. He urged the Memphis board to reconsider its action and "not let this unconstitutional decision stand." Rice called the ban even more ridiculous in view of the fact that Columbia makes it clear at the beginning of the film that the apparent progressive prisoner is in reality a spy. . . . Lloyd T. Binford, chairman, Memphis Censor Board, appeared on TV as guest of "Press Conference."

Teddy Tedesco is now sales representative, Colonial Pictures. He was formerly manager, W. and M. Film Company. . . . Harry Carey, Jr., was in to plug "The Long Gray Line."

Danny Thomas, television and screen star, will be in with a troup of top-flight entertainers to kick off a campaign to build a hospital for underprivileged children. The hospital has been a dream for years, and looks as though it will soon be reality. The Foundation in Beverly Hills has close to $500,000, which has filtered in from all sections of the country. Danny plans a world premiere with a group of top flight stars in Memphis, among them being Jane Russell and Marilyn Monrow, who have assured him they will accompany him. Carmen Cavallaro and Cardinal Stritch will also participate. When the date of the visit is definite, Mayor Tobey will proclaim "St. Jude Hospital Week."

Lena Southerland, formerly with 20th-Fox, replaced Myrtle Hayre, Allied Artists head inspectress, who has taken a leave of absence, due to the death of a grandchild.

New Orleans

Jack O'Quinn, Joy-Oke Theatres, Kaplan, La., is adding another drive-in to his string. A large area near the corporate limits of New Iberia, La., has been cleared, and construction will soon get underway. It will accommodate 1,200 cars and will feature the latest techniques in equipment, a tremendous wide, sky-high screen tower which can be seen within a one half mile radius, hence, the trade name, Sky-High Drive-In. O'Quinn already operates the Echo Drive-In in the opposite region in that city, in addition to indoor theatres in Welsh, La.; Gueydan, La.; and in his home town, Kaplan.

The Lafayette Drive-In, Lafayette, La., will close for good advised E. R. Sellers, one of the owners, Hub Drive-In Theatres, Inc., operators of two other drive-ins in that city, the Hub and Twin. . . . Louisiana exhibitors seen around were I. M. Gauthier, White Castle; Ira Olroyd, Teche, Franklin; Anna Molzon, Royal, Labadieville; John Harvey, Nabor, Oberlin; Harold Dacey, manager, Rex and Gayle, Raceland; Mrs. Lillian Lutzer, Barksdale Drive-In, Bossier City, and King's Drive-In, Shreveport; and Robert Ricourd, manager, St. Bernard Drive-In, Arabi.

James H. Nicholson and Robert Corman, American Releasing Corporation, Hollywood, and their attorney, Samuel Z. Arkoff, met here with southern and midwest distributors Harold F. Cohen, Joy N. Houck, J. Francis White, Scott Lett, Fred Meyers, and Bob Harrella to consummate the deals for the distribution of their product in territories including New Orleans, Memphis, Charlotte, Atlanta, and Kansas City. They brought along with them a print of their first production "Five Guns West," which they screened at a private showing at the Panorama.

George L. French, Star, Mendenhall, La., was in to confer with his buyer and booker, Sammy Wright, Southern Theatre Service. . . . Raymond Gremmillion, Southeastern field representative, checked in after a trip in Mississippi. . . . Audrey Cotton, AA manager Henry Glover's secretary, and Frank Neumann were married in Our Lady of Good Counsel Church.

Republic's manager Leo V. Seieshnayde has covered every inch of the territory in the past months. . . . Ed Delaney, Pike, Magnolia, Miss., was in booking, as was Lonnie Davis, Pike Booking Company, McComb, Miss. . . . E. W. Ansardi, Buras, La., is back in swing after several weeks illness.

Columbia's publicity representative Jimmy Boyle, who was here to plug Sam Katzman's "New Orleans Uncensored" world premiere at the Orpheum, is off to Houston to publicize "Long Gray Line." . . . E. L. Graether, New York, RKO Orpheum maintenance department, visited with manager Asa Booksh and staff. . . . Rodney Toups, manager, Loew's State, has proven once again that if you give the kiddies a show to their liking, they'll pack the theatres. They did for "Cartoon-O-Rama," 12 color cartoons in CinemaScope.

Thieves invaded Film Row and raided several buildings, including National Theatre Supply, Lippert shipping room, Stevens Pictures, Warners, and Western Union. Even though their haul was small, they did damage, leaving a trail of broken windows and doors, ransacked desk drawers, besides cutting all the wires in the Western Union office. At Warners, they broke the lock on the depository of the Will Rogers Memorial fund, taking every cent, and a little petty cash. At National Theatre Supply, a few dollars from the petty cash box and a box or two of pencils was taken. Their break into Lippert's shipping room was to get into Stevens by the back way, however, here they were surprised by one of the projectionists, who was bringing back the equipment and film after a show. Evidently they heard him calling for the police as they back tracked and slipped out into the night. Police believe they have one in custody.

H. A. Greenlin, who assumed operation of the in-town Avenue, has changed the program policy from strictly art and foreign pictures to double feature American movies and every now and then a foreign or art feature. . . . The steady flow of visitors from all parts of the country arriving here daily the past month or so for the Mardi Gras and the hundreds of pre-carnival spectacle aspects including the 70 odd formal masked balls, the 20 parade pageants, 12 daytime and eight night affairs, boosts theatre attendance in the business section and along the parade routes, but deals a staggering blow to neighborhood and drive-in theatres, weather changes have also hurt.

The Tiger was robbed of $15, mostly from a soft drink machine, and an unsuccessful attempt was made to open the theatre's safe, which bore evidence that it had been tampered with. Officers found a screw driver, some drill points, and a puncher in the office which were reported stolen from a nearby service station. Manager Karl Williams notified the police.

The management of the Skyvue Drive-In believe it has hit upon a real system to catch up with admission fee evaders. When a lone person in a car enters, the gate attendant secretly takes the license number of the car, phones it to the various attendants stationed in the area, who'll be on the lookout for hidden moochers.

Allied Theatre Owners of the Gulf States will hold its eighth annual convention at the Edgewater Gulf Hotel, Edgewater Park, Miss., on April 3-4-5. Ed Ortte, chairman, urges that all interested make their reservations early.

Clearwater

Manager Foster Hawthorne, Capitol, has announced a "Miss Underwater!" contest which has spread to Tampa, Arcadia, Bartow, Bradenton, Lakeland, Plant City, and Sarasota, all in Florida. In cooperation with Walter Tremor, manager, Tampa, Tampa, Fla., the contest is being conducted to exploit first runs of "Underwater!" in the above cities. It was announced that the grand prize winner of the inter-city contest will be given a chance to join the professional chorus of feminine swimmers and divers who comprise the famous mermaid ballet at Weekiwachee Springs. The contest is being advertised by Peter Shaal, manager, Weekiwachee, and the theatre managers are planning to stage contests to decide winners from each city.

Miami

Members of the Wometco Old Guard, joined by other Wometco employees, made a joint donation to the John Elliott Blood Bank of Dade County. Over two dozen reported early in the morning to replenish the depleted Wometco account and then enjoyed a group breakfast afterwards. . . . Tony Martin and wife Cyd Charisse were hosts at a celebrity screening of Martin's latest film, "Hit the Deck," at the Beach, Miami Beach, Fla., for entertainers either vacationing or working in the area at that time. . . . Robert Francis made personal appearances at the Miami, Carib, and Miracle in connection with the opening of "The Long Gray Line."

Highlighted by the presence of Hollywood star Susan Hayward, 20th-Fox's CinemaScope production, "Untamed," was world premiered at three theatres. Debuting at Wometco's Carib, Miami, and Miracle, the drama, in which Miss Hayward stars with Tyrone Power and Richard Egan, was enthusiastically received by several thousand invited guests who filled to capacity the three theatres. Crowds jammed the downtown Miami section beginning in late afternoon to view a motorcade of celebrities proceeding to the gaily decorated theatres. By the start of the parade, extra details of police were required to restrain the throngs. With Miss Hayward were many figures from the entertainment world currently appearing in hotels and night clubs in this vacation metropolis. Leading civic, social, and business figures from the area also were in attendance. Celebrities entering were photographed by a corps of newspaper still photographers, newsreels, and were interviewed on TV and radio in special programs. Advance city-wide attention for the "Untamed" premiere was effected through an extensive program of activities arranged through the Chamber of Commerce. Scores of merchants were displaying posters announcing the opening; while night clubs and hotels also gave prominent space to other display material on the picture.

The Olympia reopened with "Battle Cry" and much festivities. Harvey Seeds Post of the American Legion had its band start off the ceremonies in front of the house and Sandy Wirth, Orange Bowl Princess and majorette, also performed. Bill Burns, popular local broadcaster, interviewed Mayor Abe Aronovitz, Major Albert Warner, and other notables, over radio station WQAM. Shortly thereafter, state festivities began with various civic and business leaders making an appearance, as well as Brigadier General W. C. Manley, commandant of the Marines at the Opa-locka base. The entire affair was filmed for showing over WGBS-TV.

Congratulations to the winners of Wometco's latest confection contest. Flyn Stubblefield and Dorothy Morrow in group two won the overall contest on the highest per capita sales increase as well as first place in the group. Flynn was at the Center during the contest period, although he was recently transferred to the Tower. Joe Fink and Ed Mitchell, Coral Way Drive-In, won in group one. Bill Goller and Mary Lawrence, Tower, won for group three. Goller was recently transferred to the Surf, Miami Beach, Fla. In group four, Margaret Hamm and Alice Terrell won first place for the Grand, West Palm Beach, Fla. Jack Fink and Sue Dick from the Park, Tampa, Fla., won first in group five.

Roger Doan is new in the Wometco advertising service division, replacing Murray Birchansky, who was transferred to the art shop upon the retirement of John Butler, artist. . . . P. and S. Operating Company, operating the nabe West Hills, has sued District Council 12, Brotherhood of Painters and Paper Hangers of America (AFL), for $50,000 damages, on a charge that the union conspired against the house because a maintenance man did the painting. The suit seeks to enjoin the union from picketing the house, representing directly or indirectly that the plaintiff is unfair to organized labor, or interfering or attempting to interfere with the rights of employers to use their employes to do painting work in Cincinnati and vicinity. The petition claims that the presence of the picket prevents the union projectionist from coming to work and forces the closing of the house.

Ohio Censor Defends Board Over 12 Year Operation

COLUMBUS, O. — Ohio's film censorship is not "the big bad wolf" that some critics claim, said R. M. Eyman, state director of education and chief film censor. The director used a report of film censorship covering a 12-year period from Jan. 1, 1943, to Jan. 1, 1955, to support his statement.

The report, compiled by the state division of censorship, showed a total of only 68 film rejections in the past dozen years. Eyman said the board reviewed 20,517 films during that period. Eliminations were ordered in 1,616 films.

The division has not been reviewing films since Dec. 1 last year, when the Ohio Supreme Court ruled the censorship law was "unreasonable and unlawful."

An explanation for each of the 68 films rejected was given in the Eyman report. The director said most of the rejected films "tended to incite crime or had obscene scenes." He indicated a steady increase of foreign films exhibited in Ohio was presenting additional censorship problems. He said that during the last fiscal year, 36 percent of films received in the state were foreign language features.

The report showed that films concerning the use of marijuana and habit-forming drugs had been banned because of the increase in juvenile delinquency. Eyman said that some cases of delinquency were directly attributable to ideas received from such films.

Among the better-known of the 68 banned films are "The Miracle," "M," "The Outlaw," "The Moon Is "Blue," "We Want a Child," "Mom and Dad," "My Life" (formerly "Ecstacy"), "Kiss Tomorrow Goodbye," and "Devil in the Flesh."

Three men charged with conducting a bingo game for the benefit of Our Lady of Peace Church were held for the grand jury following a raid by sheriff's deputies. Arrested were James Hite, Jack Jule, and W. J. Bentz. Attorney Roland G. Allen said he hoped to make a test case of the arrests. Allen said the church operated the game because it feels bingo is legal under state law but not under city ordinance. The hall raided is just north of the city limits. Allen pointed out that profits from the game are used solely for charitable purposes and that the church feels it has a legal right to operate under that basis. About 150 persons were in the hall when the raid was held.

A Golden Jubilee banquet honoring Claude C. Ezell for his more than 50 years in show business will be held in the Crystal Ballroom of the Baker Hotel tonight. His many friends in all phases of show business, including distribution and production executives from all parts of the world, have indicated they will attend. Although Ezell's colorful career may have been rough at times, it was never dull. More than 50 years ago he left his home town of Mexia to travel with the Wallace Brothers Circus. His goal was to become a bareback rider, but instead he became one of the daring young men on the flying trapeze. He had become familiar with most of the circus acts before he began to interest himself in the new medium, motion pictures. He had met Bill Selig, one of the film industry pioneers, who was showing these jumping pictures at fairs, carnivals, and amusement parks. So he finally bought several films and jumped successfully into showing of pictures in halls, schools, etc. After showing these films for approximately five years, moving from town to town, he opened the Bass Film Company, New Orleans, a company which rented the film to regular theatres, buying them from such producers as Biograph, Pathe, etc. This was the beginning of film distribution as we know it. Ezell later moved to Dallas as southern division manager, General Films Company. After a short while he opened an office for Lewis J. Selznick, father of David O. Selznick. Ezell became division manager and later the assistant to Selznick in New York. Moving up the ladder in distribution, he then became branch manager and later divisional manager for Warners. He returned to Dallas and with the late W. B. Underwood, bought the franchise for distribution of Monogram pictures in this territory. After several successful years, they sold the franchise back to Monogram and purchased the Republic distribution franchise. After successful years in distribution, Ezell and Underwood decided to pioneer the drive-in field. The vision of Ezell in this new field brought handsome rewards and new audiences to the ever-expanding motion picture industry. He was one of the founders of the Variety Club of Dallas and is a past chief barker. He was former president and honorary life member, Texas Drive-In Theatre Owners Association. Ezell was the president and founder, International Drive-In Theatre Owners' Association. He is an active executive board member, Texas COMPO, and other groups.

NEWS OF THE Territory

Boston Crosstown

The initial mass meeting of exhibitors from all over New England, alarmed over toll-TV threats to their welfare, has been called for the Hotel Bradford, Boston, at 10:30 a.m. on March 16 in the Empire Room. A general committee and state committee units have been organized. They report an immediate reaction of intense interest. At least two national figures in the industry are expected to address the March 16 meeting on the possible effects of toll-TV on the industry as a whole and on exhibitors in particular.

"Awards of Merit," signed by Thomas O'Neil, president, General Teleradio, owners of the Mutual and Yankee Networks, whose Philips Lord property, the "Gangbusters" radio series, is the basis for the Visual Drama, Inc., film feature booked in 54 greater Boston theaters for the beginning of March, have been presented to chiefs of police in Wakefield, Melrose, Chelsea, Revere, and Winthrop, Mass. This form of recognition of "outstanding contribution to law enforement" was developed by George Kraska, Embassy Pictures publicist, who formerly operated the Fine Arts, here, and later managed the Kenmore and Beacon Hill under art policies General Teleradio has purchased the Yankee Network Building. It houses radio and TV studios from which local programs of the network, associated for national hook-ups with Mutual, originate.

The Lexington, Lexington, Mass., rumored lately to be on the point of leasing to Ernest Warren, operator, Paramount, Needham, Mass., and the Strand, Canton, Mass., is being leased instead by Ray Feeley, executive secretary, Independent Exhibitors, Inc., and The Drive-In Association of New England. Feeley already operates the Weymouth, Weymouth, Mass., the Eggleston, here, and the Fairmount, Hyde Park, Mass. He plans to install CinemaScope with full stereophonic sound and to remodel the front of the theatre and redecorate the interior. The name will be retained. Opening is planned for April 1. The 490-seat house is the only one in the town, and has an estimated 22,000 population from which to draw. For a number of years it was operated by the late William Viano and after his death by members of his family. Last operator was Stanley Eilenberg, who closed it almost a year ago. Since then it has been dark.

Joseph Levine and Barnet Yanofsky have taken over the Hadley Drive-In, Hadley, Mass. Levine already operates the Sundown and Round Hill Drive-Ins, Springfield, Mass. The Round Hill, one of the first two to open the season on Feb. 18 in Massachusetts, is in the downtown district of Springfield. Despite poor, rainy weather, it launched the season with good business. . . . A new drive-in is to be opened in the late spring, it is expected, by Al Carey, North Adams, Mass. . . . Irving and Al Cohen, operators, Ritz, Lewiston, Me., visited Film Row as they returned from vacation in Florida. . . . James Croke, manager, Strand, Lewiston, Me., has entered Central Maine General Hospital for observation. . . . James M. Conley, division manager, 20th-Fox, has returned from a trip to Albany, Buffalo, and New Haven on company business.

Eliminations announced by the Bureau of Sunday Censorship included "Battle Cry," parts 1 to 19 (Deletions: eliminate dialogue, "You think I'm a tramp don't you Danny?" in part 6; eliminate dialogue, "Are we gonna have a baby?" to and including, "At least I had something this war could not take away from me," in part 14; eliminate scene of one of the Marines within group of Marines making hand and arm gesture toward Marines riding by on trucks, in part 16). Warners.

Ed Fideli, Rialto, Worcester, Mass., expects to open a new drive-in between Fitchburg and Lunenburg, Mass. . . . Shay Brothers, North Andover, Mass., are building a drive-in on the Lawrence-North Andover, Mass., line . . . Sam Nyer, Nyer Theatres, will open a new drive-in at Newport, Me., this spring or early summer. . . . C. J. Russell, Sr., operator, Bijou, Bangor, Me., has been admitted to the hospital for a major operation. . . . The Revere Drive-In, Revere, Mass., has opened its eighth season. The Redstone Circuit ozoner has been enlarged and is now the biggest on Boston's North Shore, with accommodations for 1,700
